NEW GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENT WILL HANDLE MINES

Announcement Likely In Speech From Throne

Ottawa, Nov. 1 — (CP) — A sweeping national development program, perhaps the greatest in Canada's history and designed to make full use of her vast natural resources in the field of manufacture, is expected to stem from creation of a new department of government now said to be planned by the administration.

First news of the planned new department came last night from a source close to the cabinet who said it would be forecast in the speech from the throne opening parliament Dec. 5.

It would replace the reconstruction department now completing post-war rehabilitation activities and the source said it would be headed by Reconstruction Minister Howe, the man who guided the Dominion supply for war and moulded the framework of her post-war reconversion.

Main job of the new department, the source said, would be to map a long-term program for development of Canada's natural resources with particular attention to making the Dominion more self-sufficient in vital iron and steel, in curtailing waste in industry and in encouraging manufacture of Canadian products from Canadian raw materials instead of exporting them in raw form.

Solve Dollar Shortage

The resources development program, it was said, would be one of the steps to solve the American dollar shortage problem and it was believed the mining industry would be involved. Base metals and probably gold production would be pushed with some form of government aid for the latter which government spokesmen already have said is being considered.

The source said that after cabinet consideration it had been decided to have the new department take over some of the duties of the mines and resources department and some of the functions of the trade and commerce department.

While efforts would be made to have most expansion projects sponsored by Canadian capital, there would also be an attempt to attract American capital to Canada in the way of plants and equipment.

May Restrict Export

The spokesman said one solution favored by the cabinet in the U. S. dollar shortage was inauguration of a program which would restrict the export of raw Canadian forest products such as pulp. Instead, Canadian manufacturers would be asked to produce finished products such as fine paper which could bring high prices on most markets.

The government would draft the general terms of the planned program, but the spokesman said that labor and industry also would be given a voice. They would be consulted before any final steps were taken and among those expected to be canvassed would be manufacturers of iron, steel, pulp, oil, base metals and water power.

BRITONS FOREGO PRIVATE MOTORING TO SAVE DOLLARS

Citizen Can Drive His Car Only on "Essential Business"

London, Nov. 1. (AP)—Britons grudgingly gave up another of their pleasures today, foregoing private motoring to save dollars by saving gasoline.

Under the government's latest austerity order, effective last midnight, a private citizen can drive his car only on "essential business".

Officials estimate the ban will save approximately £9,000,000 ($36,000,000) a year of dwindling dollar credits.

A few hours before the deadline motorists, armed with cans, saucepans and even jugs, jammed filling stations, determined to get every drop of their ration.

Effect of the travel ban will be to confine the Briton more closely to his unheated home where he could find some solace in an extra serving of tea.

Now there isn't enough tea either. That ration recently was cut to half a pound a month—inadequate for the inhabitants of these traditional tea-drinking isles.

Surprisingly, the people accepted the cut in tea supplies with only a mild amount of grousing. Reductions in bacon, fresh meat and other food allowances brought no organized protests.

But abolition of the basic petrol ration—enough to drive 180 miles a month—aroused a storm of opposition.

Automobile clubs circulated petitions, gathering well over 1,000,000 signatures, and carried the fight into the House of Commons this week to give the government its severest test since it came to power more than two years ago. A motion for restoration of the [illegible] ration lost by only 27 votes in a late-night test, compared with usual government majorities of about 150.

Parisian Consumers' Electricity to Be Cut Two More Days Weekly

Paris, Nov. 1 — (Reuters) — Parisian householders will have their electricity cut two more days a week by an order from Electricite De France, the administration which controls the state electricity services. It was announced today.

The new cuts, which begin Nov. 7, will mean that domestic electric current will be partially cut four days a week for periods of two hours.

The cuts will be enforced alternatively morning and evening in the various city sectors in turn. Industrial establishments, and hospitals will not be affected.

Accused Counsel Opens Habeas Corpus Action

Toronto, Nov. 1 (CP) — For the first time in Ontario legal history, habeas corpus proceedings were instituted yesterday for the release of a man who has been committed for trial on a charge of murder.

G. Arthur Martin, counsel for 31-year-old Ivan Cowden, accused in the fatal beating last Oct. 7 of 18-year-old Mary Morrison, has taken action for Cowden's release from jail, where he has been held since his arrest shortly before the girl's death.

The papers will be served Monday on Walter Rayfield, governor of Toronto jail, to produce Cowden at Osgoode Hall Nov. 14.

Mr. Martin is asking for Cowden's release on the grounds that no evidence has been produced which connects him with Miss Morrison's death. Cowden was committed Thursday.

At the time of his arrest, Cowden said he was awakened early Oct. 7 to find Miss Morrison, bleeding profusely from a head wound, "bouncing" on his bed. They lived in the same downtown Berkeley Street rooming-house.

W. B. Common, senior solicitor of the Attorney-General's department, said habeas corpus proceedings after a preliminary hearing on a murder charge are unprecedented in Ontario.

SEEK WOMEN RECRUITS FOR HOSIERY MILLS

Halifax, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Another recruiting campaign for Halifax women to work in an Ontario hosiery mill will begin next week, a national employment service official said today.

Radio-Activity May Produce Human Deformities for Next 1,000 Years

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 1 (AP)—Laboratory tests with corn by California Institute of Technology scientists indicate that radioactivity from the two atomic bomb explosions in Japan may result in inheritable defects producing human deformities for the next 1,000 years, says Dr. Ernest G. Anderson biologist and professor of genetics.

Dr. Anderson, in an interview yesterday announced that the tests were made at the institute's plant genetics garden with corn grown from seeds exposed to last year's Bikini "operations crossroads."

"Although it is impossible to conduct experiments with humans, the same biological laws apply to them as apply to corn," he said.

These tests were the first laboratory confirmation of the theory that atomic bomb exposure can lead to inheritable defects and revealed that exposure to radioactivity disturbs chromosomal genes, the inheritance factors in cell tissue.

"Affected genes and chromosomes in some Japanese people may result in the birth of morons, cripples and deformed progeny in future generations," said Dr. Anderson, adding that the mutations (changes) did not appear in first corn plantings, but were of a recessive nature, appearing in the second generation of the plants.

"It is quite possible that these 'recessive' genes will gradually be spread throughout Japan, and many years hence, probably not in our lifetime, it would follow that much human deformity would be apparent in the offspring of that country."

The Bikini corn tests, conducted in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture, produced little evidence that the atomic bomb could be a positive help in growing crops, Anderson declared. Taking cognizance of reports of improved crops in Nagasaki and Hiroshima areas, he ventured the opinion they were due to better fertilizing.

Armed Pathan Moslems Swarm Into Kashmir And Threaten Capital

New Delhi, Nov. 1. (AP)—R.A.F. observers said today armed Pathan Moslems swarming into the princely state of Kashmir are advancing in such strength as to threaten the capital of Srinigar itself.

One informant said after flying in last night that truckloads of Indian reinforcements were being rushed to the front, less than 20 miles west of Srinigar.

Loss of the airfield would be a serious blow to Indian and Kashmir State troops. If it fell it might mean the loss of the entire Kashmir valley and this accounts for the Indian government requisitioning as many civilian planes as possible to rush troops, ammunition and supplies for holding the field.

Seven R.A.F. planes yesterday completed the evacuation of all British Nationals who want to leave Kashmir.

The Indian government, which has flown in two battalions of Sikh regulars to defend Kashmir, announced last night that the situation remained unchanged in the predominantly Moslem State, whose Hindu Maharajah acceded to the Union of India last weekend. The communique added additional reinforcements were being dispatched.

At an India-Pakistan joint defence council conference scheduled for today Governor-General Mohammed Ali Jinnah and Premier Liaquat Ali Khan of Pakistan are expected to confer with Governor-General Viscount Mountbatten and Premier Jawaharlal Nehru of India.

It is expected that India will propose that Pakistan close the roads into Kashmir blocking reinforcement for the irregular invaders.

Body of Child Recovered From Fire-Razed Barn

Coe Hill, Nov. 1. (CP)—The body of 4-year-old Carol Ann Parsons was recovered Friday in the hog-pen of a firerazed barn from which two other children were rescued.

The rescued children — Jackie White, five, and Carol's brother, Donald, also five—were led from the smoke-filled barn earlier Friday by Mrs. Roy White, mother of Jackie, who came to the Parsons' farm on Eagle Lake, 80 miles north of Belleville, to help with the washing because Carol's mother was ill.

Unable to find Carol on her first trip into the burning barn, Mrs. White, after rescuing Jackie and Donald, was prevented from returning to search for Carol by flames which engulfed the haymow.

Police said they believed Carol tried to slide down a haystack to safety, but landed instead in the pig-pen and was trapped by the walls.

Housing Provincial Responsibility Says Hon. St. Laurent

Toronto, Nov. 1 (CP)—Because housing is a matter related to property and civil rights, it is essentially a provincial responsibility, External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said yesterday.

"I said before, and I still say, that under the distribution of powers and responsibilities made by the British North America Act, housing is a matter which is not a federal responsibility," he said in an interview.

He was commenting on a statement in the Ontario legislature Thursday by Premier Drew that this province had gone "far beyond its obligations" in the matter of housing.

Mr. St. Laurent said that during an emergency such as war, the federal government could "exercise very drastic control over property and civic rights." But wartime activity in the housing field did not alter the distribution of responsibility for provision of housing in peace.

The Dominion government, however, recognized some responsibility to veterans and "is continuing to provide housing for them as diligently as efficient administration can do so,"

DE MARIGNY LOSES APPEAL

Montreal, Nov. 1 —(CP)— The Appeal Court rejected an appeal yesterday by Alfred de Marigny against a Superior Court judgment maintaining an Immigration Department deportation order against him. The order called for de Marigny's deportation to his native Mauritius.

Marcel Gaboury, de Marigny's attorney, announced he would take the case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

BRITAIN RENOUNCES CLAIM

London, Nov. 1 — (AP)—Britain announced last night the renunciation of her share of the Italian navy and disclosed agreement to negotiate British-Italian economic, shipping, aviation and cultural pacts "to strengthen the renewed bonds of traditional friendship."

High Prices Force Farmers to Sell Their Livestock

Toronto, Nov. 1 — (CP)—The increased price of feed grains has caused farmers throughout Ontario to sell "huge numbers" of hogs and hens, Agriculture Minister Kennedy said yesterday in a press release. He blamed the situation on "Ottawa fumbling."

Mr. Kennedy's statement came as the executives of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association and the Ontario Hog Producers' Marketing Board passed a resolution demanding immediate revision of the British contract price for bacon or an alternative outlet for Canadian pork.

"Last month, barley was 65 cents a bushel," said Mr. Kennedy, "and the price of bacon at the seaboards was set by agreement between Ottawa and Great Britain at $29 per hundredweight. Now barley is $1.40 a bushel, over twice what it was last month, and bacon will remain at $29 per hundredweight at the seaboard."

He predicted a serious effect on the export market unless the ratio of barley and hog prices was changed.

"If we lose that export market, as we did after the last war, it will be years before this market is recovered."

Gillis Predicts General Election In the Spring

Halifav, Nov. 1 (CP) —Claire Gillis, C.C.F. member of parliament for Cape Breton South, told delegates to the party's annual convention yesterday that he expects a general election in the spring.

The Cape Breton member said the Commons session opening Dec. 5 would continue for about 19 days during which Prime Minister Mackenzie King would raise some issue concerning price controls or old age pensions.

"He won't really mean it," Mr. Gillis said, "but the Conservatives won't support it and the way will be paved. It will force an issue and we'll have an election in a March blizzard."

He also said Nova Scotia's three-year-old Liberal government would go to the people in 18 months time.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Synopsis: A persistent overcast continues along the north shore of Lake Erie in the circulation of cool air off the lake. Elsewhere in the province skies are clear except in the extreme northwestern section which is blanketed by a low overcast giving occasional light drizzle. This cloud area will edge slowly southeastward during the week-end to finally cover all of Northern Ontario. During the daytime, however, large breaks will occur in the clouds.

BANDIT TAKES $300

Woodstock, Nov. 1 — (CP)—A lone, armed robber last night forced Cib Fenton, proprietor of an electric store, to the rear of the store and made off with an estimated $300 after cutting telephone wires.

DE VALERA WILL DISSOLVE DAIL, CALL ELECTION

Former Professor In Driver's Seat Since '32

Dublin, Nov. 1. (CP)—Tongues of Eire's politicians wagged today as they had not done for 15 years as Prime Minister Eamon De Valera prepared to dissolve The Dail (Parliament) and call a new general election early next year.

Defeat of the Fianna Fail government party by the New Republican Party in two out of three by-elections Thursday, led to the call for a general election by the lanky, soft spoken former university professor.

De Valera has been in the driver's seat since 1932 when he became premier of the old Irish Free State. He became prime minister in 1932 when The Dail announced Eire's sovereignty and independence in a new constitution.

The challenge to the man who played a big behind-the-scenes part in the formation of the Irish Free State in 1922, comes from Eire's Republican Left-Wing—in the form of a newly-created Clann Na Poblachta—and makes the present picture all the more interesting.

Sean McBride, formerly one of the leaders of the outlawed Irish Republican army, and founder two years ago of the Republican Party, is attempting in effect, to do by constitutional means what the outlawed "army" long has been attempting to do by force.

De Valera has been advising for a long time that Irish Extremists enter The Dail and seek to achieve their aims through the ballot box and it is a touch of irony that the Spanish-American and former fanatic may be the first victim of his own advice.

Clann Na Poblachta however did not go to the people on the Republican ticket but rather on a bread-and-butter appeal scoring the government for alleged lack of policy in employment control and failure to control the sharply rising cost of living—against which the supplementary budget Fitanna Fail brought down two weeks ago was aimed.

Sharp Explosions Believed Due to Defective Cable

New York, Nov. 1 —(AP)— A series of sharp explosions jarred the Rockefeller Centre area of New York last night and early today as an accompanying underground fire poured clouds of oily smoke into streets jammed by theatre crowds, and the lobby of the 70-storey R.C.A. building.

The blasts continued intermittently for more than two hours before the blaze, confined to the fireproof vault of a giant transformer, burnt itself out.

Unrelated to the fire, believed set off from a defective cable in pedestrians as it ripped through a canvas marquee in Rockefeller Plaza.

Patrolman John Zittel said he found Henry P. Emil, 36, in the wrecked office shortly before midnight. He said that windows and glass partitions had been smashed and that Emil was bleeding from a severe cut on his wrist. He was taken to hospital. the transformer, but adding considerably to the excitement were the activities of a man who, police said, tossed two typewriters to the street from a window on the 41st floor of the R.C.A. building and then smashed other equipment in the office where he was employed.

Climbing Party Says No Survivors On Reaching Scene of Plane Wreck

Ketchikan, Alaska, Nov. 1 —(AP)— The terse message, "no survivors" from a United States Coast Guard climbing party near the top of snow-tipped Mount Tamgas of Annette Island, confirmed yesterday the deaths of 18 persons aboard an Pan-American airliner which crashed last Sunday.

Charts which give the mountain's altitude as 3,610 feet although the summit is apparently several hundred feet higher, may have contributed to the disaster William L. Baker, editor of the Ketchikan Chronicle, reported. He flew in one of the searching planes.

Searching planes first sighted the partly burned wreckage yesterday about 200 feet below the top of the peak. The plane, flown by pilot Alf. N. Monsen, veteran pilot, was bound from Seattle to the Annette Island Airport last Sunday and its last message said that extreme air turbulence over the island would compel the plane to fly on to Juneau.

Late yesterday, a Coast Guard climbing party, one of several starting up the mountain, reached the wreckage. They reported the last 200 feet was extremely difficult.

Russia Resentful Of British, U.S. Majorities in U.N.

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

New York, Nov. 1 (AP)—The first outspoken Russian resentment in the United Nations Assembly against repeated drubbings by the "mechanical majorities" of the United States and Britain raised an obstacle today in the path of the small countries trying to reconcile big-power differences.

The Russians flared up momentarily in debate on a Yugoslav resolution on war criminals but U. N. observers noted that it was the most pronounced Russian reaction to the steady parade of United States and British majorities yet registered in the U.N.

This turn in the U.N. Assembly came yesterday as the delegates meeting in full session Flushing Meadows waded through a series of minor proposals to try to get to the important resolution against aggressive propaganda. That item was reported unanimously to the full assembly by the political committee after the Russian bloc lost a hard fight to have the delegates condemn "criminal propaganda for war" which if charged was particularly prevalent in the United States, Greece and Turkey.

The delegates hoped to take up that item late today.

At Lake Success, meanwhile, the Palestine sub-committee was slated to meet again behind closed doors to discuss phases of partition proposals. This sub-committee is drawing up a concrete proposal for the full 57-member special Palestine Committee of the assembly.

Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister and Chief Russian delegate, took the assembly floor last night to urge the assembly to approve a Yugoslav resolution which would have the effect of ascusing the United States and Britain of harboring war criminals in the occupied zones of Eunrope.

Must Present Evidence

The assembly rejected the Yugoslav proposal by a vote of 40 to 7 and then approved a British resolution, 42 to 7, which requires governments desiring the surrender of war criminals to preent adequate evidence as to their guilt.

Recognizing that the majority would be against him, Vishinsky said:

"Any resolution submitted by a minority group is always summarily rejected. Everything submitted by a group which is inspired by the United States of America and by the United Kingdom is good; it is raised upon a shield and immediately whirled through the assembly by a majority vote...We are not afraid of it and it will not stop us in our struggle for justice, truth and equity and in the struggle for our right as a minority to see to it that white is called white and that white is not called black."

Film Identified By Customs Officials

Ottawa, Nov. 1 —(CP)— Customs officials today identified a film barred from Canada under tariff regulations as "Last Night We Attacked."

The film, based on Ben Hecht's play, "A Flag is Born," was banned under tariff regulations classing it as "treasonable or seditious," under a tariff clause.

Yesterday a high customs official said that to the best of his knowledge the script of the play, which constitutes a plea for establishment of a Jewish homeland in Palestine, had not been submitted for entry into Canada.

Britain May Reject U.S. Plan To Leave Britons in Palestine

By PAMELA MATTHEWS

London, Nov. 1 —(Reuters)— Diplomatic observers in London today believed Britain would reject the United States proposal to leave British troops in Palestine, to be solely responsible for law and order, until July 1948.

A Foreign Office Spokesman, however, declined to say whether such a decision had already been conveyed to the United States.

The official United States proposals for bringing the partition of Palestine into effect, announced at Lake Success yesterday by the United States delegate to the United Nations, Herschel V. Johnson, will end the short-lived identity of view on the Palestine problem between Moscow and Washington, diplomatic quarters considered here.

It appears that during the past month the United States has abandoned its earlier plan for enforcing partition with the aid of an international police force and has come to the conclusion that British troops ought to remain in Palestine to enforce law and order until partition has come into effect, according to the United States plan on July 1, 1948

For the British government, the obvious policy is to wait until the Assembly as a whole has given an opinion, firstly, on the merits of the partition itself, and secondly, on methods of enforcement.

The matter will also have to be discussed by the Cabinet after Arthur Creech-Jones, who as colonial secretary has handled the Palestine issue at Lake Success, has returned to London.

But apart from the tactics of the situation, well-informed quarters in London believe that a decision to leave some 100,000 British troops in Palestine at their distasteful task until next summer — incidentally enforcing a solution which Foreign Secretary Bevin is believed to distrust — would be adopted by Britain with the greatest reluctance.

Milan Newspapermen Strike, City Without Papers

Milan, Nov. 1 —(AP)— Milan newspapermen went on strike today for higher wages to meet increased living costs, and the industrial heart of Italy was expected to be without newspapers by this afternoon.

The strike came after a wage disagreement between writers and spokesmen for the Local Editor's Association. The journalists maintained that printers and other newspaper employees had obtained substantial boosts under a new national contract while their own pay had not kept pace with living expenses.

The journalists asked an increase of 10,000 lire monthly (about $28), effective the end of October.

Mr. O'Flynn is returning to the practice of law after serving eleven years as sheriff of Hastings County; registrar of the Supreme and Surrogate Courts, and county court clerk.

Born in Belleville, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn, the former sheriff graduated from Osgoode Hall and entered the law firm of O'Flynn and O'Flynn, under which name he will resume practice.

He was associated with his father, who practised law here for upwards of a half century and a brother, the late Colonel E. D. O'Flynn, later assuming his own practice which he maintained until he accepted the county position.

Mr. O'Flynn served with distinction in the First Great War, serving overseas. He was formally welcomed back to the legal fraternity recently by Messrs. R. A. Pringle and Malcolm Robb, when he adjourned court in his last official appearance as county court clerk.

His office will be formally open for the convenience of clients on Monday, Nov. 3rd.

WARMEST, DRIEST OCTOBER

Toronto, Nov. 1 — (CP)—The warmest, the sunniest and darn near the driest October in history of Ontario finished last night with a note from the weather bureau here that it was really a shining month. In 66 years of weather records, the bureau found the average for October is 151 hours. But that month just ended set a new mark of 216 hours and 24 minutes of sunshine, an average of seven hours a day.

Close to 1,000 members of the younger generation dressed in costumes especially concocted for the occasion and representing a reasonable facsimilie of hobgoblins, witches and other creatures expected to be abroad on Hallowe'en crowded into the local Armouries last night to enjoy the annual Hallowe'en party sponsored by the Y's-Men's and Kinsmen clubs.

Youngsters from all sections of the city, some coming "on their own" and wide-eyed toddlers clinging expectantly to the hand of Mom or Dad were in attendance at the party which saw contests for the best costumes, moving pictures, a sing song, and possibly the most appreciated of all, a treat for all present.

Sharp at six-thirty activities got underway with the formation of a parade of all those in costume as well as a few who were not in costume. Led by the Belleville Pipe Band the parade swung up Pinnacle Street from the Armouries to Station Street and then down Front Street to Bridge and returned to the Armouries.

Moving Pictures

Back at the Armouries the kiddies were treated to a program of moving pictures, with comics and other reels of special interest being shown. A special treat was the appearance of Frank Hockaday and his stooge "Willie McGuire."

Greetings from the Kinsmen Club to the kiddies were expressed by club member Harry Rollins, while J. Shortt of the Y's-Men's Club also had a few words for the kiddies and the oldsters present. Jack Sherwood of the Kinsmen Club was committee chairman for the evening's program.

Doug W[illegible]en, popular announcer for CJBQ kept the program moving at a fast tempo as master of ceremonies, while Roy Wilcox acted as song leader with Anne Claire presiding at the piano. Shortly after nine-thirty the program was over and the kiddies trouped homeward.

Clowns—Carry Doherty and John Woodcock.

Darkies—Billy McGuire, Billy Poste and John Ashley.

Tramps—up to nine years—Jack Doig and Janet Langabeer. 9-15 years, Denton Wessells and Audrey Tracey. Boys as Girls, Dennis Lloyd and John Wagar. Girls as Boys, Joanne Atkinson and Joan McGrimmon. Best couples, Alan Thom, Marian Thom, Judy and Marylin Watson.

Comic Strip—Rocky Davis and John Marshall.

Cowboys — Garth Bird and Ricky Locke.

Witches—Carol Pomeroy and Bob Holway.

Ghosts—Kenneth Smith and Charles McCormack.

Three-year-old Shirley Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Kennedy, 8th concession Thurlow Township, is in serious condition in Belleville General Hospital as result of being kicked in the head by a horse while she was playing on her father's farm. The little girl is under the care of Dr. G. S. Cronk.

Although just how the accident occurred is not known by the parents, it is believed the little girl was playing in the field where the horses were pasturing. It is thought possible that the dog may have attempted to drive the horses away with the result that they became startled, resulting in the girl being kicked.

This is the story of a car theft that backfired on the vehicular-pilfering fraternity.

Instead of speeding along eastern highways driving a help-yourself car, the light-fingered gentry were forced to abandon the job, when it refused to budge because of mechanical whimsies, a few miles east of the city.

It all started when Wesley Evans, operator of the Memorial Arena canteen parked his coupe outside the building while he looked over his supplies. Gone but a few minutes, he was surprised to note when he returned that the family jalopy had disappeared.

Two days passed and no word of the missing vehicle was seen. Provincial Police Officer Sam Ervine, while driving along No. 2 Highway noticed a car, which he recognized as belonging to Evans parked alongside the road near Marysville. He passed the vehicle several times then made inquiries as to how long it had been there. Being told "two days" he immediately made inquiries with the result that Evans was notified of the whereabouts of his missing car.

"That's once the thieves got fooled," laughed Evans relating the incident. "I left the key in the car all right, but what the boys didn't know was, that it had a quirk in its innards that requires someone that knows, how

"The thieves", he went on, "ap-

"The thieves,' he went on, "apparently stopped to get a bucket of suds in the Marysville hotel, and rather than have some of their brotherhood pull a similar trick and pilfer the crate, they removed the key and thereby lay their undoing."

"You have to be a juggler, mechanic, lawyer, electrician, plumber, carpenter and possessor of a vocabulary of fluent cusswords in order to get the car started. The boys couldn't manipulate the key and in their hurry to get away broke it off in the switch. Then they tried to cross wires and succeeded in getting the lights to work, and the horn to toot, but no ignition. I presume they left the car in disgust and started on the prowl looking for a later model."

"Oh, yes," laughed the amused Evans, "if the lads are caught, you might thank them for filling the tank with gasoline. It was nearly dry when I parked it outside the Arena."

Deer Plentiful, Season Opens On November 10

With the deer-hunting season only a few days away, it officially opens on November 10 and lasts through to November 25th both dates inclusive, local nimrods are readying their guns and gear in preparation for the annual trek into the northern haunts of the elusive bucks (deer, that is.)

Reports from the north country are to the effect that deer are plentiful this season, and hunters should get their quota with little or no trouble.

Other reports state that there is also a plenitude of bear and around Fernleigh Lodge district several bruins have been seen on scouting expeditions. John Ayr, proprietor of the lodge, states that he chased a pair of bear cubs for a considerable distance down the lane leading to his home.

On the other side of the picture game overseers have issued strict warnings to prospective hunters. Under the direction of chief overseer Robert Sheppard, Tweed, the officials will watch camps carefully to see that hunters do not take more than their limit.

Special emphasis, the officials state, will be laid on the game laws which do not permit the shooting of deer while in the water.

Fire Destroys Treetop House Of Tarzan Gang

Members of the Tarzan gang will have to build themselves another treetop house if they intend to carry on activities another year.

The reason is that the treetop house on Wellington Street constructed some time ago in the branches of a large tree on the old Fair Ground property, last night fell prey to flames apparently set by some Hallowe'en character.

Shortly after ten o'clock members of the fire department were called to the scene but the treetop house was already well enveloped in flames and little could be done but watch the blaze burn itself out.

Another alarm was answered by the department this time to Purdy Street where a father had been arranging some candles for the kiddies with result that the curtains caught afaire. Little damage was caused with the exception of the burned curtains, it was reported.

MEDALS PRESENTED

Only Few Calls For Police on Hallowe'en

With very few exceptions Hallowe'en celebrants kept their celebrations strictly to fun Friday evening with only a few calls being received by police of damage or other mischief being done.

Police reported more kiddies calling from door to door looking for handouts of apples or other treats, in fact it was stated there were more children on the streets than for the past several years. The kiddies for the most part, however, were strictly orderly and were out to have fun.

There were of course the usual soap markings on windows in the downtown areas, while in two instances in the north section of the city there were reports of as many storm door windows being broken by boys throwing rocks.

This was the case on Grier Street and again on Strachan Street but in the latter instance the fun backfired when the owner of the residence proved himself a better runner than the offenders. The boys will be charged with property damage.

Again in the eastern part of the city a group of boys were reported trying their aim in shooting out light bulbs with B-B guns. The cruiser car was quickly on their trail but the boys proved elusive and disappeared after shooting a pellet through the glass in the door of a car parked in the district.

At the city tourist park celebrants apparently took advantage of opportunity which presented itself after a trailer cabin had been turned over by parties unknown. The sum of $80 was reported taken from the tourist cabin after it had been overturned.

DOCTOR HONORED

Toronto, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Dr. Al Housse received a surprise yesterday — a new car purchased by 90 paraplegics, veterans of the Second World War, as a demonstration of their gratitude at the part he has played in helping them back to a state of health. About 50 of those who contributed to the gift were on hand — some coming from such points in Ontario as Kitchener, Orillia, Oshawa and Welland — for the presentation.

Assembly—October 29

Last Wednesday, the second of this year's student assemblies got under way to the strains of 'H.M. Jollies', on a record. While this canned music was alright for a change, I think everyone prefers the B.C.I. Band. (plug).

The assembly was formally opened by Dick "Crooner-boy" Stackhouse. We all sang hymn No. Two, 'Follow the Glean', after which Donna Parnell led the assembly in the 23rd Psalm. The National Anthem was then sung.

At that point, the 13B Happy Gang took over with their theme song. Things got off to a fine start with a commercial by Bob Matthews, who exhorted us to 'Beamo Economical'. (whatever that means!)

Then our genial M.C., 'Bert Pearl' Kuntze put us in the right mood by having us sing 'Peg of My Heart'. Throughout the assembly, Joan Wright did the accompaniment for all the songs, and she really did a fine job on the '88'.

Next came a series of announcements by Jack Campbell, Mr. Musgrove, Bill Wesley and Marilyn Kerr. Broose Blatherwick gave us a report, (as only he can) on the Commencement Formal, and wonders of wonders! it was written in black ink! ! !

The program got back to music with two numbers by Joan Wright and Barbara Joan Houston, who really tickle a mean set of ivories. They gave us 'Tea for Two' and 'Night and Day', which were enjoyed greatly by all. Next came the 13B girls' quartet, who with the help of the audience gave a fine rendition of 'Friendship'.

Then came the 'Piece de Resistance'. Or is is 'Coup de Grace'? It's all Greek (I mean French) to me. Dick 'Sinatra' Stackhouse warbled with that golden to Dot 'Cecilia' Bishop. (Lucky man). They made some very creditable attempts at dancing, and here was one place that audience participation would have been appreciated.

Line Forms on the Right

Going from the sublime to the . . . . we found Bob Matthews and Jack Kuntze with an all too realistic joke pot. They then did a joke. ('nuff said). Next came another song by the assembly, 'Sweet Sixteen', and when Jack Kuntze finally succeeded in getting Mr. Countryman to sing, four girls swooned. (Well——it's possible.)

Bob Matthews then returned to talk up Beamo. Why???

The assembly was concluded with a film, 'Portrait of a City', an extremely well-done technicolor movie about Hamilton. This film proved conclusively that education can be interesting.

I think that we should all take our hats off to 13B for a splendid job in putting on such a marvellous assembly. They have left a high mark for other forms to shoot at .

See you next week.

Commencement

In the afternoon and evening of October 24th the Commencement Exercises were held in the auditorium.

The Rev. H. O. Eastman offered the afternoon Invocation. He was followed by Miss Tickell, who briefly reviewed the history of the school. Mr. Townsend and Miss Neal' presented the school letters and presentations of Intermediate certificates were also made. The music sections of Grade X and the school band assisted in the program.

The evening session was opened with the Invocation by the Rev. J. G. Hornsby and an address by Mr. Wishart. Special scholarships, donated by various organizations and individuals were awarded, and Secondary School Honor Graduation diplomas were presented.

Mr. L. S. Beattie, director of Vocational Education for Ontario gave an excellent address. He stated that graduation carries with it a great deal of responsibility, pointing out that the three products of education were achievement, appreciation and attitudes, but the greatest of these was attitudes.

Boyd Upper made the Valedictory address in which he very capably expressed the sentiments of the graduating class.

The Glee Club and the school band presented a few musical numbers.

Cuff Notes by R. R.

'Tis rumored that a certain character by name of "Herbie" has been at large in the halls of B.C.I., and that certain rewards have been posted for "said gentleman". However, a certain fearless party, Lawrence Button by name, managed to bring forth a reasonable facsimile of the character in question.

As the mysterious voice of our unknown friend rolled over the airwaves for two weeks on Hi-time many puzzled brains were seeking the answer to this important question, "Who is Herbie?" The secret of his identity was hidden until Friday last, although many valiant attempts were made. Our sleuthful friend, Mr. Button, proceeded on Thursday to dust off his magnifying glass, took out his Dick Tracy badge, and a pair of handcuffs and retreated to Room 209, "for clues".

Justice is swift and the culprit was quickly captured and at long last name was revealed as Chuck Delong of G10B.

Hallowe'en will be over by the time this reaches "print" and I won't make any predictions whot wheet most of B.C.I. "stoodents" are going to do but I suppose thy'll all stay home and be good boys and girls.

Little Bobby's Observations

(Submitted by Belleville Teacher's Council)

This morning before nine I was sent in to stand at the principle's door becuse I had hit Henry Hudson — him showing off becuse his ant had come to supply in our scool today.

The techers was all standing in the hall talkin. Miss Redfern was saying that she had red in the paper last night that the airline cumpanies had a hard time having enuff stewardesses on hand—they was always getting married—and that the piece said no wonder! it was there looks which they had to have—They had to be perfectly groomed—and be a certain hight—and there hair always had to look smart — and they had to keep there weight right—, and it must be in the right places...

Of course it wood be important that it be in the right places, said Miss Lemon sourly, who is awful big, and sticks out behind a lot.

And Miss Whallen spoke up and said that perhaps if Normal Schools made the same rules some of us woodn't be teching so long eather.

Well, my goodness, said Miss Harps, that is an idea. Lets send them word. I am cummencing to think a smart looking gurl goes far in this wurld, men being what they was, and seeming to be the ones who run things.

Yes said Miss Lemon. About a week ago I met Shirley Thomas down street. You remember how we had to struggle to get her threw each year, and how she got her entrance, I don't know... Well you never saw sutch a smart looking gurl as she is now. She told me she has a job as a model in New York, and is making more salary than we are...What dew you know about that?

And Miss Whallen said, I have given up worrying about pupels who appear dumb. Most of the ones I have taught have gotten mutch farther on in the world than I have.

Miss Inkerman said, I gess we had better have a cup of coffee at recess after all this, or perhaps ice water on our heads would be better!

And they all went upstairs looking thoughtful.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

LESSONS IN LIVING

Some parent birds appear to be neglectful of their children once they have left the nest, but not so the Kingbirds. One August morning two sat on a power wire waiting for breakfast to arrive. Suddenly, with a downward dive the adult caught a dragonfly in midair, and presented it, still alive to the bunty-tailed bird. Then followed a flow of careful instructions as to how it should be killed.

Over and over, that poor dragonfly was whacked against the wire. But something was wrong with the technique.

"Go ahead, try again," shrieked the parent.

Perhaps the youngster was about to complain; at all events its mouth must have opened, because the fly fell.

"Catch it, quickly," called the adult; and before the unfortunate prey reached the ground it was neatly captured, and brought to a half-dead yellow birch.

Presently a boy and a dog came bounding along, and the show was all over. I shall never know if that particular dragonfly ever got eaten, but I do know a young Kingbird was given explicit directions for preparing a meal.

Towards the end of August Mrs. Hummingbird brought her two children to our garden, and, with series of squeaks, told them to sit on the small spruce trees and watch. From blossom to blossom she flew. Her long, slender bill poked way down into a nasturtium— then off she went and deposited the nectar in the bill of a young Hummer. Back and forth she hurried.

At last one of the juveniles perched on the telephone wire and there she again fed it. Finally the little one grew impatient, and flew to meet mother. They met half-way. It looked as though they kissed, but I have a strong suspicion that food was being passed from bill to bill. The next day the children did their own marketing.

A fortnight after a family of Kingfishers had left their hole in the sand bank, we heard a great rattling in the bay. Mother was giving her six offspring lessons in living. All would sit silently on boughs that overhung the lake. Suddenly would come a blue and white flash, then a mighty splash, and in a second up would pop a younk Kingfisher — with much rattling, but usually without a fish. This was a hard lesson; but they were learning.

Tweed

Degree Team Of Thomasburg Confers Work

Tweed (Special)—On Monday evening Capt. Don. Richardson and twenty-five members of his degree team from Thomasburg Lodge visited Tweed I.O.O.F. No. 290 and conferred the first degree on five candidates in a very capable manner.

At the conclusion of the degree work the Noble Grand of Thomasburg Lodge presented the Noble Grand of Tweed Lodge with a travelling gavel which had been started on its way by Bro. Ken Sine of Stirling Lodge in memory of his father and an uncle.

The gavel will travel back and forth between the lodges of Peterborough District No. 44 and Tweed District No. 45 and will eventually land back in Stirling Lodge.

Tweed Lodge will present it to Millbrook Lodge in the near future. After some speech making by District Deputy Grand Master Bro. Stanley Webb and other members, refreshments were served to a large crowd.

While working at digging a well on the property of Mr. Gerald Quinn across the lake, Mr. Chas. Davis had the misfortune to have a boulder fall from quite a distance striking him on the head and shoulder. He was alone at the time in the well and only for Mr. Quinn arriving soon after on the scene, there is no telling what might have happened.

Mr. Quinn had to summon some help to get him up out of the well which was down about 30 feet.

He was given first aid and then rushed to Belleville hospital where fifteen stitches were required to close the wound in his head.

CONTINUE SEARCH FOR DUCK HUNTER

Brockville, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Search parties left here again Friday to continue their efforts to locate Kenneth Johnston, 26-year-old Brockville duck hunter, who is missing after the duck boat in which he was crossing from Broadbill Island to the mainland 20 miles west of here capsized in the heavy waves of the St. Lawrence River.

Fred Hall, 22-year-old companion of Johnston who was rescued from a blinker buoy where he clung for more than three hours Wednesday night, led one of the search parties again Friday.

October's Record

Lovely October passes and leaves behind it a record of warm days and mild nights, an almost unbroken series from the first to the last. It is true it lacked some of the necessary rain but it helped to compensate in the minds of the people for a great deal of disappointment from the first of the year when weather conditions began to show the tangled nature and upset conditions of the weather that was to rule for the greater part of the year—that is weather which seemed out of season. The year had hardly turned before heavy snowfalls came and road and walk conditions were bad for the rest of the winter in face of the gigantic efforts put forth by plows. Then came spring, one of the tardy seasons if there ever was one, a season which laid great anxiety on the shoulders of the farmers who had difficulty in getting their seeding completed. Came summer without as much of the warmth as was required and rather an upset state of conditions prevailed until October arrived with its glory of the golden leaves, its mildness, soft atmosphere and color. While it lacked the georgeous colorings owing to the early frosts which laid heavy blight on the crops and vegetables, it has given a form of new October, the like of which will not be seen for a long time. October set records of warmth going back for more than a century. There were few vapors in the skies and only once did fogs slacken up the speed of highway traffic.

The word "cold" could not at any time be used in connection with the lovely month that has gone.

What is in store with November already here? This month is usually associated with winter. It is one of the gloomy months, only to be surpassed by February. Usually it brings the first touch of winter in earnest. Stoddard writes of this month in these words:

> "The wild November comes at last
> Beneath a veil of rain;
> The night wind blows its folds aside,
> Her face is full of pain."

October 1947 will live in memory. Its ideal weather will be remembered as long as those old enough to have appreciated it live. November yet has to play her part on the stage of every human life.

Mr. Churchill's Gift

Many will feel after reading in the newspapers that former Prime Minister Winston Churchill has presented to Princess Elizabeth a wedding gift of a set of six volumes of his work "World Crisis" that so great a leader as he was in the days of World War II and so great a literary giant and master of the spoken and written word of this generation could have made no more fitting present to Her Royal Highness. There are gifts in great profusion in the Palace for the Princess and these are a tribute to the place she occupies in the hearts of her people and of her closest friends and this gift from the statesman becomes a tribute to the Princess herself whose wide interests take in good books among the treasures by which she is and will be surrounded.

Mr. Churchill in making this gift has as a creator of history and a writer and historical record of worldshaping events as he views them given the world a work that will endure the passage of time. Great leaders are not always orators or historians but he is statesman, orator and historian. In this he stands unique and with him stand his works. It is one of the rare events of history for one to combine so many qualities of greatness, representative of the people of his race as Mr. Churchill does. He made a great contribution to democracy and to world civilization and his words are apt expressions of his master mind. He did much to secure the freedom of the world through victory and this work of his is another achievement. No statesman in history will leave so full a record of his time as Mr. Churchill who was destined to play no small part in the triumph over tyranny and aggression.

Then, too, Mr. Churchill is a lover of his native language, and of good works for he is a master of language in swaying the hearts of men. He is a lover of good books and is steeped in the literature of his people.

Such a gift serves to show the world what Mr. Churchill thinks of the place Britain occupied in the world conflict, and how high he places the written word and what a place he gives to reading in the lives of men and women.

Her Royal Highness was growing up in those years of turmoil and stress and knew intimately what the British people had to endure. She will feel that in this treasured gift from a statesman and master of the language she speaks she is brought very close to the hearts of her people and of the Allied peoples whose trials and sufferings she understands for she too served in that cause to preserve freedom for the world.

Men's Trouser Cuffs

Much stress has been placed on the height of the hemline of skirts in these days for the nwespapers have brought this situation before the court of readers everywhere. Now the Christian Science Monitor issues the cry, "Steady, men! Your trouser cuffs are creeping up on you. Don't be so busy scoffing at the ladies' hemline that you fail to notice what finicking fashion has in store for you. Ankle-length pants, short coats, things like battle jackets for evening wear! What stunning new effects you will be able to dazzle the little woman with next season!"

The newspaper speaks of the "sacrifice for a great big change in wardrobe" and adds, "honesty, however, compels us to admit that some of the manufacturers are resisting the change as being against the customer's interest."

But will man make the change? Once upon a time men were gay as parrots in the time of frills. History knows that men once wore powdered wigs and perfumed silks, though none would now like to go back to that attire of their ancestors, however men complain of the modern style of clothes the male of the species wears, as lacking in novelty and originality and comfort especially at certain seasons. That he would ever go back to the age of lace cuffs and breeches that came down to the knee seems impossible for man is very, very sensitive, he does not desire to have people think he would like to appear in gaudy array.

Actually man seems to have been willing to take what the style makes for him as long as it is not radical for in clothes man is very antagonistic to change. He will not admit he likes fashions.

That there is an opportunity for man to ask for some modifications of attire is apparent. In warm weather he is actually working towards a new freedom of dress.

But the possibility of everyday man adopting radical clothing is very dim. He has been taking on some color in his attire but that has come slowly. In time he may add a few other changes but still be very faithful to the present style.

Housewives Aid in Export

A novel scheme has just been initiated whereby the housewives of Britain are harnessing their traditional skill with the needle to the nation's export drive. In all parts of the country they have started work on producing hand-made articles of the highest quality for overseas markets. A large order has been placed by a prominent Canadian department store for children's woollen clothing and bedjackets. Delivery was promised within two weeks. The scheme is being organized and directed by the Women's Voluntary Services who are supplying the necessary material and paying for the work at standard rates.

Honest error is to be pitied, not ridiculed. —Chesterfield.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1947, Edgar A. Guest)

THE WELCOME MAN

You'll be welcome at all doorways if a twinkle's in your eye.
Friends will ask you to their parties if you're seldom known to sigh.
If you hide your various troubles underneath a merry grin,
You will be a favorite member of whatever group you're in.

If with patience you will listen to another's tale of woe,
You will gain a friend forever wheresoever you may go.
But you'll lose one in that moment when he makes his troubles known
If you dare to interrupt him to inform him of your own.

It's a curious world we live in; men and women in a throng
Who must somehow with each other find the way to get along.
And there isn't any grown-up, north or south or east or west,
But has suffered disappointment and has heartache in the breast.

If your eyes can hold a twinkle and you've merriment to share
And you never tell your troubles you'll be welcome anywhere.
If you keep your nature cheerful and a frown you never show,
Friends will smile to see you coming and be sorry when you go.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is India paper?

Originally "India paper" was applied to a peculiar variety of cream-yellow or pale buff-colored printing paper made in China and Japan from vegetable fibre and first imported into Europe during the middle of the 19th century when there was still a tendency to describe as "India" or "Indian" nearly everything that came from the Orient.

The original India paper was thin, soft and absorbent and had a smooth but glossy surface. It was used particularly in making the finest impressions and proofs from engravings and woodcuts.

Now, however, the name is applied to a very thin, light, tough, opaque, machine-made paper used in printing Bibles, prayer books and compact dictionaries as well as high-grade, thin-paper pocket editions of other works, where it is desirable to reduce the bulk and weight as much as possible without diminishing the size of the print or impairing the durability of the book.

The first paper of this type was made in 1875 by the Oxford University paper mills in imitation of a thin paper brought from the Far East by an Oxford graduate in 1841.

Oxford India paper is made chiefly from rags, no mechanically prepared wood pulp being used in it. The opaqueness is produced by an admixture of mineral matter that is retained in the fibre, and the strength is due to freedom from wood pulp, although most of the desirable qualities of this paper are traceable not so much to the ingredients as to the careful process of manufacture.

What is meant by jugging bumblebees?

Boys in the country sometimes amuse themselves with what is known as "jugging bumblebees." An ordinary jug, preferably light in color, is partly filled with water and placed uncorked near a bumblebees' nest. The boys then excite the bees by poking the nest and running from the scene of danger. For some unexplained reason the open jug seems to have a strange fascination for the angered insects. With an angry "zipping" or buzzing noise the bumblebees shoot into the vessel and are drowned. It is said that the scheme is most effective when the jug used is white and is placed on a dark-colored canvas to make it conspicuous.

October Biggest Post-War Month For Car Making

Detroit, Nov. 1 (AP) —Production estimates this week reveal the automotive industry not only has registered a monthly post-war record but also appears headed for one of the highest output years in history.

The estimated output of 105,834 vehicles this week, according to reports, made October the biggest post-war month with a 461,116 total, surpassing September's 452,066 units.

October's passenger car output of 316,434 also passed the April post-war mark of 315,917.

This upsurge has put motorcar makers in a position from which they can set their sights on the possibility of the biggest production year since the war, somewhere beyond the 5,000,000-unit level.

"It is certain now," the Trade paper Automotive News reported, "that if production in the final two months of the year continues anywhere near current levels, 1947 will be the third largest production year in history. It will be topped only by 1929 (5,358,420) and 1937 (5,016,437)."

Alberta and N.B. To Close Schools On Wedding Day

(By The Canadian Press)

Alberta and New Brunswick announced yesterday that schools would be closed Nov. 20 in observance of Princess Elizabeth's wedding. Ontario announced it would be left up to individual school boards to decide on the holiday question.

Alberta's decision to close schools officially was reached at a cabinet meeting and announced by Education Minister Ansley. The New Brunswick course was announced by Education Minister Blakeny, who said that while he was unaware what other provinces intended to do it was likely many schools in the Dominion would declare a holiday.

In Toronto, Premier Drew said the wedding day would not be a general school holiday since the federal government had decided not to declare a national holiday on the occasion. Mr. Drew, who is Minister of Education said provincial grants would not be affected in the event individual school boards decided to close.

At Port Arthur, the Board of Education announced schools would be closed. Board members said students deserved recognition for their work in the city's Princess Elizabeth fund for Britain campaign.

Fire Marshal To Conduct Probe Into Church Blaze

Sudbury, Nov. 1 (CP) — Inspector D. A. Craig of the fire marshal's office in Toronto arrived in Sudbury yesterday to conduct an investigation in the $200,000 fire at the Church of Christ the King. The fire destroyed the Roman Catholic Church, on Beech Street, here Thursday.

Inspector Craig said although the investigation is proceeding no announcement regarding the fire would be made until early next week.

Fire Chief William Andrews, of the Sudbury fire department stated he called Toronto Thursday asking that an investigator be sent. Fire Chief Andrews declared the fire apparently started in the kitchen of the Parish Hall. He stated there had been a Hallowe'en dance in the hall on the evening preceding the fire.

Father J. C. Humphrey, Vicar General, and Parish Priest of the church stated the Capitol theatre had been obtained for the holding of church services.

MORE D. F. ADVICE FROM THE CLINIC

An eastern reader writes:

"I have a steady headache from day to day. I went to (the best advertised "clinic") for a check over"—

This Yankee Wiseacre took 2 weeks off and journeyed far away for a medical examination or if, you prefer, a complete physical examination —which a real doctor in his or her own community could make at least as well as the hired help in the big "clinic" and probably at a fraction of the cost.

"...and they told me it was just nerves and just to keep on eating aspirin. I have been taking about six a day and it keeps me feeling kind of dopey but it doesn't seem to bring any lasting relief to the headache. I myself believe it must be from my stomach. Please advise what to use for a sour stomach. There is nothing that bothers me or makes me nervous, so far as I know, so I think it must be my stomach. I have had this headache for years. I am now 41 years old."

The advice this simple customer received is stereotyped—probably printed on card 27-D, Sec. IV for the department heads' guidance.

One poor geek with a claim of heart trouble went through the works, paid over his roll and, learned what he had known for a long while, namely, that he had infected tonsils, and probably the focus of infection was responsible for the heart trouble, but he could only go home and worry along without treatment for the condition of his heart made a major operation (tonsillectomy) too dangerous.

Later the poor geek happened to see something in this column about the safety of the modern method of treating infected tonsils, wrote to me, sought electro - coagulation (diathermy) treatment from the doctor I recommended, and in due time made a complete recovery from his heart trouble.

If the correspondent correctly quotes the clinic doctors, their advice that he contines taking aspirin is astonishing —I hope the correspondent misunderstood the advice they gave him. The usual formula is something like this:

"There is nothing more to be done about it. You should go home, carry on as you have been doing, and let it run its course. With reasonable care about your living habits etc., etc. you may go on for many years about as you are now, etc., etc."

As for taking aspirin, if you want my opinion and advice, I believe aspirin (any make, preferably the chest your druggist carries, for aspirin is aspirin, no matter whose name is on the package) is the least dangerous pain-killer one can take —but that does not imply that it is safe for any circumstance. I have no heart or other serious trouble but I'd hesitate to take five or ten grains of aspirin at any time unless I could lie or sit quietly at rest for at least two hours afterward.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Heart Tonic

Please send in the inclosed stamped addressed envelope your instructions for taking an iodin ration and building vite. I want to thank you for suggesting the vitamin B complex—it has helped my heart much more than a year of medical treatment.

(Mrs. A.J.)

Answer — Send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope for booklet "The Seven Keys to Vite." An optional daily intake of B Complex (two or three times as much as every one requires to maintain good nutrition) is a better heart tonic than digitalis, in my opinion.

Brady Did, Brady Didn't

Brady did, Brady didn't say that a spot of beer, ale or wine mellows elderly persons. (M.C.)

Answer — Brady said it, but two years later Brady acknowledged that he had erred grievously about that, because he never found any elderly infirm person or person who gained anything from taking beer or ale or wine or other alcoholic beverage or liquor.

30 YEARS AFTER

Halifax — (CP) — The Board of Trade has received a letter from Robert Smithson requesting names of hospitals in Halifax in 1917. Father on the Farm

Modern Machinery Was a Big Hazard

By KENNETH C. CRAGG

Father would not have approved of the machanization that is taking place today on the farm.

It wasn't that father was unprogressive so much as that he was unable to get along with machinery.

One of my earliest recollections was of seeing his hands cut and scarred from a struggle with a 30-rod stretch of woven No. 9 wire and a fence stretcher; and an indelible memory is the day he got his arm caught in the windmill.

While he wore out a binder and a half up on the Western Ontario farm which his father before him had developed from the Queen's Bush tract, it is doubtful if he ever really understood it, and it is possible he was a little afraid of it.

What was at best a constant state of armed neutrality between father and what machinery there was on the place occasionally broke out in active warfare. Not that father was to blame entirely. A lot of the responsibility must be attached to the implement companies and the certain natural hazards that are a part of farm operations.

The Old Monkey Wrench

There was, and probably still is, the farm machinery monkey wrench. If ever there was a devil's invention, it was the monkey wench that used to be put in the tool boxes of farm implements.

Theoretically it was an all purpose tool. By adjusting a screw the jaws could be expanded and contracted to fit any number of sizes of nuts and bolts. But no one in living knowledge has ever been able to tighten the jaws of an accessories monkey wrench so that it wouldn't slip from a nut. And because it is made from soft steel the jaws would wear round and lost any grip they might have had.

As a result the farmer had a wrench that was as trustworthy as a frustrated mink and little less dangerous. Standard practice on father's farm was for him to take a reef on a loose nut, the wrench would slip off and the knuckles and back of his right hand would bang up against the piece of angle iron placed there for the purpose by the sadistic ingenuity of implement designers.

Father was not a profane man, particularly when he thought any one might be listening. But he would spend five minutes remarking about the "blamed" if he wouldn't buy a wrench of his own. But he never did.

Wire-Fencing Tough Work

He put up a lot of fence one year, and when he was through the condition of his hands would make one cry. But that wasn't father's fault. He always said the Angel Gabriel, smart and all as he was supposed to be, couldn't put up fence without getting either torn by that No. 9 hard, springy wire or having his brains knocked out by the wire-stretcher.

When he was stretching wires come meal-time mother always was waiting with a bandage in one hand and a tin of antiseptic salve in the other. This used to annoy father but only on those occasions when his hands were relatively whole. "Blame it, woman, do you think I am a child," he would ask. Mother wouldn't say anything, just have the bandage and salve ready when he came in for the next meal.

Threshing day was a period of drawn-out agony for father. First of all, he was always frightened that a spark from the steam engine might set fire to the barn, and secondly, that somebody might get caught in the maze of unprotected belts and pulleys of the separator.

Actually there was sound sense in this viewpoint. While opposed to the tractor in principle as a noisy dirty thing—and it is a question whether he ever fully grasped the theory of the internal combustion engine—he did see at once that his barn would be safer with an engine that didn't spout sparks, and was the first in the neighborhood to hire a tractor-powered thresher.

Threshing Once Dangerous

Why more were not injured or killed during threshing remains one of the unsolved mysteries of the farm. The men had grown up with the hazards from the time they were shavers and were first permitted to skip school to run the straw blower. They were accustomed in sliding down along the separator in the usually narrow alley formed by a bulging haymow and the machine itself, down past the main power belt and past the high speed belt running from the cylinder shaft to the blower.

They knew it was dangerous, but so were countless other conditions on the farm, and they didn't have a union organizer to tell them what saps they were or a factory inspector to see that they were protected by a screen of regulations.

Some people thought father was timid. But the scaffold that had to be built straddling the power-belt was always assembled firmly at father's threshing and the mow men could always be confident that his ladders were sound and fastened securely.

Father seemed, if anything, in greater peril when coping with the less dangerous machines. This situation was partly due to mother's morbid fear of anything more complicated than a dash churn.

If father was going to mow hay he was told to be careful and not get in front of the cutting bar. Each warning was accompanied by a vivid synopsis of a case in which a man stepped in front of the cutting bar without throwing it out of gear and had his two feet cut off.

Careless When Exasperated

If father was going to use the land-roller he was told about the character a couple of townships away who was rolled so flat he could have been lathered with syrup and served up on Pancake Tuesday.

All of this was not good, for it led father, in exasperation, to be a little more careless than he should have been. And father, being what he was, a sure-fire attraction for danger, was not one to be encouraged.

Aside from the windmill, mother went in greatest fear of the cutting box, a relatively simple contraption that pulled fodder between a set of corrugated rollers and fed it in front of two knives bolted onto a large iron wheel.

Obviously it had no complications. A person would lose a finger if he put it under the turning knife, so would he burn it if he put it on the stove. But to mother the cutting box was a ravening beast, crouching on the barn floor, waiting to snatch a finger. At chore time mother seldom failed to caution: "Be careful of your fingers."

"Blame it, woman! Am I a child?" father would sometimes say. Mostly he would just sing, whistle or hum, loud singing indicating a low boiling point and humming, mild annoyance. His preference lay with Gospel hymns.

Unforgetable Accident

One noontime father said he guessed he would oil the windmill.

"Now be careful," started mother.

"Blame it woman, am I a child?"

"No", says mother, "but I've heard of people just as big as you come to harm with windmills. There was a man up on the tenth——"

"Shall we gather at the river, the beautiful, the beautiful river", sang father in a loud voice.

In less than ten minutes there was a wild shout, fairly dripping with terror, from outside. Mother ran to the back door and looked up. There was father dangling half-off the narrow little platform at the top of the mill and the wheel was spinning merrily and threatening to stop at his head.

Mother, although born and raised a Methodist, shrieked a "Mother of God", and sank to the boards of the back step.

I ran to the mill and, with slow pressure so as not to fling the wheel and tail around to knock father off, pulled down and locked the lever that took the wheel out of the wind. Father slowly got both feet onto the platform, only to find that his coat sleeve was so twisted in the gears that he could not get loose. Moreover, the blood was streaming from lacerations along the little finger and outside edge of his palm, making his hand so slippery that he probably could not have held the little iron rungs of the ladder.

By the time I had climbed up the ladder with a hank of rag for his hand and a knife to cut away his coat sleeve, mother had come to. For a moment she watched him tensely while father eased himself over the edge of the platform and onto the ladder.

From our perch, high up in the air, we were able to catch what seemed like a short speech about any one who would oil a windmill while it was in gear. Then she turned and walked into the house.

When father, a few minutes later made his way to the kitchen, mother faced him silently. In one hand was a clean bandage and in the other the antiseptic salve.

Says Production Of A-Weapons Beyond Resources

Washington, Nov. 1 — (CP) — Dr. George C. Laurence of the National Research Council, writing in the current issue of "The Bulletin of Atomic Scientists," says "The production of atomic weapons is beyond Canada's industrial resources."

His article described Canada's part in the joint Anglo-American-Canadian effort which produced the atomic bomb.

"Canada's atomic energy project is directing its efforts toward the extension of basic scientific knowledge, the training of young scientists and the development of the applications of atomic energy for peacetime purposes and for the benefit of mankind," he wrote.

His article traces the history of Canadian atomic development from the beginning of the war in 1939 up to now. He has been on the National Research Council since 1930 and now is in charge of one of the experimental divisions, of the Chalk River, Ont., plant.

Oliver Blames Power Shortage On Drew Govt.

Cooksville, Ont., Nov. 1 — (CP) — Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leader, said here Thursday night that the Drew government is responsible for the province's power shortage.

"We have been warned that we must conserve power," he told the Peel county Liberal Association. "In 1943, the Conant (Liberal) government introduced an agreement between the hydro, Ontario and Quebec which would have given Ontario 640,000 horsepower, and advocated immediate action to forestall power shortage.

"The present prime minister attacked the bill very strongly, and said we were selling our rights down the river and giving away our assets without sufficient return. He said if he were elected, he would cancel the 'nefarious' contracts.

"Contracts were not cancelled and although much could have been done toward averting the power shortage, nothing was done until 1946, when the government agreed to allow Quebec labor to work in Ontario. Now it won't be until 1950 or 1951 that power will reach the homes of southern Ontario."

London's West End Hotels Sold Out Until After the Royal Wedding

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 1 — (CP)—London's larger West End hotels are sold out until after the Royal wedding, but there is still accommodation to be held in the smaller ones at prices ranging from £1 ($4) to £3 a day.

"The rush has not been as great as we expected," said the manager of a three-floor hotel in the Piccadilly area, "but we expect to be full up towards the end of November."

Inquiries at the larger hotels revealed that large numbers of overseas tourists who normally return home during September have extended their stay until after the wedding. And many more are expected.

"In spite of the rough Atlantic crossing in November, we expect large numbers of visitors from overseas during November," said an official of the Travel Association of Great Britain. "But with hotels filling up rapidly we are not encouraging people overseas to come over without reserving accommodation first."

During the 1937 Coronation hundreds of visitors to London, unable to find rooms, had to sleep in the parks and many brought tents for the purpose. But that was in May, not November when London usually gets a full share of rain and fog.

Many private hotels and lodging houses in the outer London suburbs expect home and overseas visitors for the wedding period but the majority prefer to stay in central London.

"If more people were willing to go a few miles out of London they would find better accommodation at cheaper rates," a tourist official said.

An average charge in suburban private hotels for one week's board and lodging is four guineas ($16.80) weekly and one guinea ($4.20) daily.

Escaped 'Lifer' Earned Respected Place in Society

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 1 — (AP) — The State of Alabama weighed its legal code against the sympathy of a slain banker's family in the case of a life-termer who escaped from prison and earned a respected place in society.

Prison director Frank Boswell declared that 38-year-old James Robert Collins should be returned to Alabama to pay his debt to society for his part in a bloody attempt to rob a bank at Citronelle, Ala., 19 years ago.

Collins was sentenced to life imprisonment for his share of the attempted robbery which brought death to Claude D. Hurt, president of the bank.

The escaped prisoner was apprehended at Doylestown, Pa., after 11 years of freedom. He escaped in 1936, fled to Pennsylvania, married, and set up a successful well-digging business. He is the father of two children.

Mrs. Will Johnson said yesterday she felt it would be better for Collins' wife, children and mother if Collins were not made to return to Alabama and finish his sentence because "I feel that maybe he was trying hard to lead a better life."

Boswell said he had been notified that Collins planned to fight extradition, but that extradition papers would be sent to Peensylvania immediately.

Finance Minister Says Canada Must Sell More Goods

Montreal, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Increased sales to the United States was the chief theme of the annual meeting Thursday of the Canadian Exporters' Association, with the proviso that trade with the whole world must be made freer.

Finance Minister Abbott emphasized it in a dinner address by declaring:

"Sell more goods, including processed and manufactured goods, in the U. S. A. market." And also: "I am convinced that the ultimate solution of present difficulties not only for Canada, but for the whole world, must be in expanding world trade."

Two other speakers, an American and a Canadian, suggested the two countries form a customs union which would reduce tariff barriers to a minimum. At the same time barriers against the rest of the world would be reduced and others welcomed to join the union.

The proposal envisaged that each country supply what it could most economically produce and be assured of a market in the other.

Mrs. Doreen Curry Again Remanded

Toronto, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Mrs. Doreen Curry, 21, of Havelock, Ont., charged with abduction of a one-month-old girl from a downtown Toronto street, was remanded again Friday to Nov. 7 at the request of the Crown. The woman is a patient at a psychiatric hospital.

Mrs. Curry, married for four years and unable to have children of her own, was arrested last Oct. 10 in her Havelock home, less than 24 hours after Lois Susan Hughes was snatched from her carriage outside a downtown Toronto department store. The baby, unharmed, was found in Havelock.

Capital Closeups

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 1 (CP) —Prime Minister Mackenie King who used to be a pretty fair newspaper man himself, undertook a bit of press-agentry before leaving for Europe this week.

With 45 members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery gathered in his office for a final interview the Prime Minister seized about as good a chance as a tub-thumper will ever get to put in a plug for a product.

Picking up from his desk a book with a bright blue-and-white jacket, he observed it was a commendable publication and worthy of both being read by the newspaper men and of being extolled in their writings.

With tongue in cheek, a veteran political writer asked who the author was.

"Well, if you don't know, you must have been off this planet for a long time," the Prime Minister retorted.

For the book was "Industry and Humanity," and its author was the well-known writer politician, W.L. Mackenzie King.

First published in 1918, the book was issued again in 1935, and a new edition just off the presses went on sale yesterday.

With a twinkle in his eye, the author said he could recommend the work as probably being useful in promoting peace between labor and management and among nations.

The Prime Minister disclosed he hopes to deliver personally the mink coat that will be part of Canada's wedding gift to Princess Elizabeth. It will be flown overseas when finished, and Mr. King said he would like the privilege of bringing it from Canada House in London to the Princess.

As to a personal gift from myself, Mr. King said he wished he had one picked but he was sorry he hadn't yet run into anything to fit the occasion.

However, since Winston Churchill settled for one of his literary works, it's possible that England's future Queen may get a chance to study the priniciples underlying industrial reconstruction as outlined in "Industry and Humanity."

PLAYING SAFE

Fort Frances, Ont. — (CP) — There won't be much trouble with children in this district come Hallowe'en. The town's recreation council say they plan to sponsor a Hallowe'en jamboree to keep children out of mischief and avoid the heavy amount of property damage that usually accompanies the evening.

Wages System Of Britain Will Be Revised

London, Nov. 1 — (CP) — The wages system of Britain's building workers will be revised on an experimental basis at a time when increasing numbers of them may have to seek new work because of curtailments in the housing program.

Effective Nov. 16, skilled craftsmen will get a wage increase of 3d. (about 6 cents) an hour, bringing the average up to 2s 9d. (58 cents) an hour for a 44-hour week. Laborers' rates are 80 per cent of craftsmen's.

In addition, the industry will try out for the first time the effect of paying bonuses for increased production. It is left to individual employers to decide how payments will be made. Workmen may earn up to 20 per cent above their normal rate, and after a two-year tryout the various systems will be studied to decide the most effecient.

Many farmers in this area who responded to the government's request for more hogs are now in a quandary as to the action they should take since the price of feed has been raised so greatly. One man with 75 hogs of various ages said, "One cannot make a dollar if he raises them. I guess we might as well knock them in the head." A few have destroyed litters at birth and disposed of the mothers.

The Staff of Life

The Staff of Life" is bread, but as the staff upon which the weary traveller leaned was sometimes severely plain, sometimes intricately carved, so bread may have many variations.

The term "bread" includes yeast breads and rolls as well as "quick breads" which are made with baking powder. Among the latter are loaf breads, biscuits, scones and muffins.

The mouth watering aroma of hot bread sends out a welcome to the family when days grow shorter and evenings cooler.

An old recipe for beaten biscuits says "Beat five hundred strokes with a mallet. This will take an hour or more but the biscuits are worth it." The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture saw that the home-baker of today wants to serve hot breads with less effort than that, so they recommend the following recipes:

Apple Bread

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/3 cup mild-flavored fat
½ cup sugar
1 cup ground or finely grated
 unpeeled raw apples
½ cup wheat germ
¾ cup sour milk

Sift flour, salt, baking soda and baking powder. Cream fat, add sugar and cream well together. Add apple and wheat germ. Add dry ingredients alternately with sour milk. Bake in a greased loaf pan, 4 ½" x 10", in a moderate oven, 350°F., for about 45 minutes.

Butterscotch Crunch Coffee Muffins

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
 OR 1 2/3 cups sifted pastry flour
 OR 1½ cups whole wheat flour
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ cup milk
3 tablespoons mild-flavored fat

Sift together dry ingredients. Beat eggs; add milk and shortening. Stir into dry ingredients, mix only enough to moisten flour. Pour into lightly greased muffin tins. Sprinkle with following topping. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) 25-30 minutes. Yield: 9 muffins.

Butterscotch Crunch Topping

1½ tablespoon butter
¼ cup brown sugar
½ tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon water
1 cup corn flakes
 OR wheat flakes

Melt the butter and stir into it the combined sugar and flour. Add the water and cook over low heat, stirring to blend, for about 3 minutes. Quickly pour over the cereal, mixing thoroughly. Spread in a shallow pan and cool. Sprinkle over muffins.

Potato Scones

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup mashed potatoes
¾ cup milk
2 tablespoons melted fat

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Blend with mashed potatoes, add milk and melted fat. Pat out to 1-inch thickness and cut in diamonds. Bake on a hot ungreased griddle. When well browned on one side, turn and cook on the other side. Makes 12 scones.

Charming Personality Creates Beauty

Don't let yourself become a human lemon.

It doesn't matter how beautiful a woman may be; if she has a mean look in her eye and a "keep your distance" manner she will not be numbered among the beloved of this world. If she manages to gain friends they soon become mere acquaintances after becoming aware of her unpleasant nature. You know such women. When you see them coming down the street you want to turn and run.

How do they get that way? What do they gain? Any woman who has respect for her fellow creatures, who realizes that their shortcomings are much like her own, who has tolerance and a kindly soul, finds no difficulty in being amiable. The disagreeable individual must find herself uninteresting company. You'd think she'd want to get away from herself. The jolly soul has a good time all the time because, if there isn't anything or anybody else to laugh at, she can laugh at herself.

Blessed with a charming personality, a woman has a warmth and radiance of which everyone who comes in contact with her is immediately aware. You see it in the sparkle of her eyes, in her kindly smile, in the movement of her hands. There is no chip on her shoulder—no complaints, no whines, no mean criticisms of other mortals. She's stepping pretty and, if she is your friend, you step along with her, find her an inspiring companion.

A clever woman can create charm out of a few tender qualities that she may possess; another can mix up a dozen of them —the lucky lady—and produce an intoxicating glamor. There are so many ways of making oneself attractive that it is a cruel shame that there are any sour-doughs among us.

Keen perception and powers of observation are personality-builders. Cast your eyes upon the human lemons, don't ever let yourself be like them. Look at the sweet peaches, ever gay, ever interesting; take them for models. One just has to use one's head. We suspect that some heads are just used for carrying hats. Nothing goes on inside. Maybe the sour-doughs can't help being that way. Who knows? How did they come by their repellent dispositions? Were they handed to them by some mean forefather?

The woman with a pleasing personality is kind to everyone, even the haughty woman next door and the dog that digs up her lawn. She knows that if she isn't tolerant she will hate herself. She is responsive because she has an understanding of human nature. She doesn't expect other people to be saints or to mold their manners according to her code.

Her friends, grateful for her company, will never notice if she doesn't sport the latest hair-do or has forgotten to put on make-up. To them she possesses beauty of high rating.

To Have Engagment Announced It isn't Necessary to Have an Engagement Ring

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I became engaged last week, but as yet only our families know of the engagement. . . and, thank goodness, they approve! To announce the engagement my mother and father would like to give a large tea on a Sunday afternoon soon. But I'm in a quandary about the (or at least "an") engagement ring. I want very much to have a diamond band for my wedding ring, and after my marriage, I prefer to wear this ring alone; that is, I don't want to have an engagement ring. My fiance says he will do as I say about this, and will get an "extra nice" wedding band in lieu of buying an engagement ring! But what about the engagement-announcement party? I've never been to this kind of party at which the girl did not wear an engagement ring.

Irene S.

In order to have your engagement announced, it is not necessary that you wear an engagement ring. . . the important fact you are announcing is that you are engaged, not that you have an engagement ring to show to the guests. Today girls have such individualistic ideas about what they prefer as to engagement and wedding rings, and there are so many original ideas and designs for these rings, that when a girl does not follow along with the usual rings-custom, her friends quite unconcernedly accept the fact that she is doing what she chooses to do.

Both Correct and Significant for Her Parents to send Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow, forty-three years old, and am to be married in about two months. Since my first husband died, my parents have been kindness itself to me; I have lived with them, and they have supported me except for a small inheritance I received. I love them dearly and am deeply grateful … announcements sent out in their names, particularly also because the ceremony is to take place in our home. But several friends have told me that this form of announcement is sent only in the case of a "young" bride-for-the-second-time, and that an older bride and groom send out their own announcements. Would it, or would it not, be permissible for me to have announcements sent in my parents' name?

Marye D.

There's certainly no reason why you shouldn't have your parents sponsor your marriage announcements. I agree with you that making this bow to them bespeaks to all who receive the announcements your devotion and loving appreciation to your good and kindly parents. The reason why the majority of "older" brides and grooms send their marriage announcements in their own names is that the bride's family circumstances are usually not of such fortunate status as are yours. That is, both your parents are living, you have lived with them for some time, and the ceremony is to be performed in their home.

Most Greetings Between Girl and Boy are Simultaneous

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My boy friend doesn't like me to say "hello" first to other boys; he says this isn't correct. But I am under the impression it's a "woman's privilege" to speak first. Am I right, or is he?

O. D.

You are right. If there is a question of recognition . . . that is, when a girl and a man are perhaps only acquaintances. . . it is the prerogative of the girl to acknowledge the acquaintanceship by bowing or speaking first to the man whom she meets. But when the girl and man know each other well, or even fairly well, naturally there is no need or call for such formality, and they greet each other simultaneously. (However, I have a feeling that your boy friend's thoughts are troubled more by the number of your friendly hellos to the other boys, rather than by the question of greeting-se…

BACKACHE

The Plague of Outdoor Men

The outdoor man, whether he be farmer, truck driver, or railway operator, is often subject to backache. This may be the result of exposure to cold and dampness or the result of strain from the jolting and bumping of the vehicle he rides.

To many people, women as well as men, it would be great to be free of backache—one of the most common and annoying of ailments. And here is how you may be relieved of backache and other symptoms of poisons in the blood.

The treatment suggested is Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills. By reason of their stimulating action on both the liver and kidneys, you have two chances to one of getting relief from your backache by using Dr. Chase's Pills. The torpid liver is aroused to action, the kidneys are stimulated and consequently these organs help to purify the blood of the poisonous impurities which bring pains and aches and tired feelings.

The Staff of Life

The Staff of Life" is bread, but as the staff upon which the weary traveller leaned was sometimes severely plain, sometimes intricately carved, so bread may have many variations.

The term "bread" includes yeast breads and rolls as well as "quick breads" which are made with baking powder. Among the latter are loaf breads, biscuits, scones and muffins.

The mouth watering aroma of hot bread sends out a welcome to the family when days grow shorter and evenings cooler.

An old recipe for beaten biscuits says "Beat five hundred strokes with a mallet. This will take an hour or more but the biscuits are worth it." The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture saw that the homebaker of today wants to serve hot breads with less effort than that, so they recommend the following recipes:

Apple Bread

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/3 cup mild-flavored fat
½ cup sugar
1 cup ground or finely grated unpeeled raw apples
½ cup wheat germ
¾ cup sour milk

Sift flour, salt, baking soda and baking powder. Cream fat, add sugar and cream well together. Add apple and wheat germ. Add dry ingredients alternately with sour milk. Bake in a greased loaf pan, 4 ½" x 10", in a moderate oven, 350°F., for about 45 minutes.

Butterscotch Crunch Coffee Muffins

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
OR 1 2/3 cups sifted pastry flour
OR 1½ cups whole wheat flour
¼ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1 egg
½ cup milk
3 tablespoons mild-flavored fat

Sift together dry ingredients. Beat eggs; add milk and shortening. Stir into dry ingredients, mix only enough to moisten flour. Pour into lightly greased muffin tins. Sprinkle with following topping. Bake in hot oven (400°F.) 25-30 minutes. Yield: 9 muffins.

Butterscotch Crunch Topping

1½ tablespoon butter
¼ cup brown sugar
½ tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon water
1 cup corn flakes
OR wheat flakes

Melt the butter and stir into it the combined sugar and flour. Add the water and cook over low heat, stirring to blend, for about 3 minutes. Quickly pour over the cereal, mixing thoroughly. Spread in a shallow pan and cool. Sprinkle over muffins.

Potato Scones

2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup mashed potatoes
¾ cup milk
2 tablespoons melted fat

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Blend with mashed potatoes, add milk and melted fat. Pat out to 1-inch thickness and cut in diamonds. Bake on a hot ungreased griddle. When well browned on one side, turn and cook on the other side. Makes 12 scones.

"Whipper" Watson Defeats Gentleman Jack Claybourne When Latter Misses Dropkick

Masked Marvel, Aided by Masked Manager, Takes Bout from Meske; Bruns Defeats Frankie Taylor

There's many a slip twixt the kick and the Whip, moaned Gentleman Jack Claybourne, ebony graduate of the School of Applied Pachydermy at the conclusion of last night's main bout in Memorial Arena.

For Gentleman Jack, after splitting the first two falls with Billy Watson, flung his glistening black body through the air in a perfect drop kick that caught the British Empire champion flush on the button; levelled off for a repeat—but he did not reckon with the Whip's agility.

The Pride of East York hurled himself sidewise and Claybourne's piston like legs shooting out like ebony rapiers, missed the target and he crashed heavily to the mat. The Whip flung himself upon the prostrate "Gentleman;" parked his torso where it would do the most good and Referee Clifford Fox shook himself loose from a coating of ice long enough to count Claybourne out —and award the Whip the fall and the bout.

And it took just two minutes of flurrying flying bodies to end the seance in the final chapter.

Three Torrid Sessions

It was another of those bouts that have the faithful sitting on the edge of their seats. Another three torrid sessions for the wrestlers at least, that had the shivering fans forgetting there is such a thing as a villainous pachyderm. Both the Whip and the "Gentleman" adhering strictly to personal wrestling ethics gave finished performances of clean scientific mat mauling, that consistently drew the unbiased applause of the pew holders.

Weird African yells emanated from the Claybourne vocal cords whenever he was subjected to punishment, or secured a convincing hold on the foeman —shrill jungle cries of exultation or pain. But they went for naught on the ears of the Whipper. Both clever agile wrestlers, at times they gave excellent imitations of old Poppa Punch after he has delivered the knockout blow to the Irish cop, or the old woman.

Dancing dervishes of the ring, and in superb condition, they "broke" cleanly at the touch of the referee's hand whenever they encountered the ropes or did anything contrary to the recognized rules of rassledom.

18 Minutes For First Fall

Eighteen minutes had elapsed in the first fall before the Whipper got the nod. Up to this point, Claybourne remembering last week's bout continually played for the Watsonian leg, but the wily Whip kept out of range of that devastating hold. Fortunes of the fall went first one way then the other until finally the Whip clamped on his famous Irish "whip" whirled the Negro over his head once-twice and that was that.

Claybourne secured a cross-scissors on the Whip's legs in the second fall and had the champion in a bad way. But agility and speed again stood the Whip in good stead and he managed to break the hold after several minutes of gruelling punishment. But the "gent" sensing his advantage tore into the "white boy" and after fifteen minutes flung himself feet first in an aerial dropkick that found the mark. The Whip reached his feet in time to stop another jarring pair of colored heels with his jaw, and dropped to the canvas. Claybourne fell on him and the bout insofar as falls are concerned was all even.

Whipper showed a fine sporting gesture at one time in the second fall. He held the body of Claybourne high in the air, over the ropes. The faithful anticipated the black body crashing to the ice, but the Whip turned back and deposited Claybourne on the mat.

The last fall, you have already heard about, and so on to a bit of comedy.

Masked Manager

The Masked Marvel, who had the assistance of a masked manager who worked sly pokes and pinches from outside the ring, defeated Dr. Ed. Meske, Akron, O., when the latter failed to return to the ring in time after indulging with some icecapades on the frozen-surface outside the ring.

Meske was having the best of the bout despite the villainous tactics of the Hooded Horror, when the Mask politely dropped through the ropes to the ice. Meske followed him and in a slippery slithering fiesta of alleged fisticuffs flung himself headed for the end of the arena on the south side of his lap. The Mask, sensing an advantage crawled back into the ring, but Meske failed to make it in time and was counted out.

There was a decided Hallowe'en touch to the proceedings as irate fans hurled apples and candy at the warring gladiators, and especially at the Unknown manager.

MARCEL CERDAN WINS DECISION OVER RAADIK

Frenchman Carries Fight to Opponent but Tires Badly

Chicago, Nov. 1 — (AP) — Knocked down three times in the last round, Marcel Cerdan, the Casablanca clouter, lasted until the bell in Chicago Stadium last night to take a 10-round decision over Anton Raadik of Estonia and register the fourth ring triumph of his North American tour.

Cerdan, who after 100 victories in 102 bouts, seeks the middleweight world crown held by Rocky Graziano, was scheduled to leave for New York today and thence to Casablanca, Morocco, to join his wife and three sons.

The Frenchman, who is middleweight champion of Europe, carried the fight to Raadik most of the way but tired badly and was floored by round-house rights in the final round, once for a count of four and twice for counts of three. He was rising wobbily from the fight.

The crowd of 9,172 which poured $40,034 into the coffers cheered Raadik as he left the ring. They gave Cerdan's decision a round of boos.

Cerdan, who weighed 160 to the Estonian's 161½, peppered his rival with lefts and rights to pile up points in the first half of the fight.

OPENING MATCHES FOR RYDER CUP GET UNDER WAY

Scotch Foursome Play Will Inaugurate Series After 10-Year Lapse

Portland, Ore., Nov. 1 (AP)—Paced, encouraged and exhorted by their determined leader, Henry Cotton, British golf professionals were ready this morning for the first joust with the United States rivals in a two-day effort to achieve what predecessors have failed—win the Ryder Cup on American soil.

The opening match of the international competition revived after a ten-year lapse, was scheduled to start 9 a.m. PST. Cotton, 40-year-old captain of the invaders, paired up with Arthur Lees, another Englishman, as the No. 1 team from across the Atlantic. Their opponents in the Scotch foursome— two balls in use with players hitting alternate shots—were Ed (Porky) Olliver and the United States open champion, Lew Worsham.

Olliver and Worsham were designated as the No. 1 American team by Captain Ben Hogan who assigned himself and Jimmy Demaret to play in the third starting position.

The second match sent the British open and pro champion, Fred Daly of Ireland, and his English partner, Charles Ward, against long-hitting Sam Snead and the 1946 National Open titleholder, Lloyd Mangrum.

Weshman Dai Rees and Samuel King, England, as the No. 4 team had the difficult task of trying to take the measure of Byron Nelson, and his solid shooting partner, Herman Barron.

Nelson came out of retirement for the return of this famed biennial links event.

The Americans were overwhelmingly favorites to retain the trophy they regained in 1937. Favoritism fell to them for such reasons as far more tournament play the last few years while British golf was at a war standstill and the fact they were defending their laurels on a familiar course.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Due to some misunderstanding, there has been a complete change in the schedule of the Belleville District Hockey Association. When members of the executive gathered to draw up the schedule, it was found that due to the fact that twelve teams were entered and a single schedule decided upon, it would take too long, 16 weeks to be exact to play out the season.

As has been reported before the association must complete its schedule before Christmas, due to Ontario Hockey Association group games getting under way the first of the year, and the only possible way to complete the Association games was to divide the dozen teams in two sections.

This has been done, and as will be noticed in the schedule published elsewhere in this edition, sections of six teams each will play a single schedule. The four teams finishing in the order named in each section will go into sectional playoffs and the ultimate winners will play off for the Association title and trophy.

Two teams from "A" section and two from "B" will take part in a double header every Tuesday and Thursday night as is laid down in the Association rules and regulations. The new arrangement will mean less games for each team, but it is felt the playoffs will offset this to some extent.

The only alternative was to play triple-headers three nights weekly which would bring the end of the schedule somewhere in the vicinity of Christmas. This, it was felt, was too much hockey, and too hard a burden on the teams. Besides, three nights a week would tie up too much time of the Arena activities.

Competing in "A" section of the Association are RCAF; Belleville Juniors; Belleville Hornets; Bloomfield Sky Chiefs Napanee, and Point Anne. Included in "B" section are Campbellford, Cobourg, Trenton Hockey Club, Tweed Madoc and Stirling. Team managers will be in receipt of the new schedule by Monday, via the mail.

Looks like a hot time in the old town of Kingston this afternoon when the Murderous Mustangs of the University of Western Ontario, away from their home corral, meet the Galloping, or is it Golden, Gaels, of Queen's University. It should be a breeze for the Bangtails of Metras who inundated the McGill Redmen under a 53-5 score up in Lunnon last Saturday.

Rah-rahing Western Studes and supporters passed through this village in a steady stream yesterday Yippy-Ki, Yiying and chanting the praises of the Men of Metras in no uncertain fashion. They travelled afoot and in smart automobiles; ancient jalopies and other methods of transportation. They exuded confidence and college spirit and a couple of varsity wags were noted toting an adding machine. You figure out why.

George "Buck" Bouchers RCAF squad now in training as Canada's Olympic representatives, may be seen in action in Memorial Arena next week. It is learned from a reliable source that the Olympic squad has been negotiating dates, so don't be surprised to see them here next Wednesday or Friday evening against the Trenton RCAF team.

Coach Wally Kilrea is having plenty of worries these days as his Philadelphia Rockets are not only in fifth position in the American Hockey League's Eastern Division but several of his best players are on the shelf with injuries.

The injury jinx has hit the Rocket camp and Coach Kilrea stated that it's this jinx that has to be licked first. The Rockets have been icing a makeshift line-up these days and it is all due to the many mishaps suffered by the club to date. The club's brightest star, Phil Hergesheimer, has been sidelined since he was injured in a preseason game here. The Philadelphia club is pinning much of its hope of climbing in to the first-division on Hergesheimer's shoulders.

The loss of Phil has shaken-up the team considerably since he was the league's leading scorer last season with 92 points. But there are two other valuable men on the nijured list. They are Johnny Mahaffy and Harold Bangay.

Kilrea is now like a chicken on a hot griddle. Although he still has the 12 new players the Rockets signed this season, the three injured stars would greatly help the slipping Rocks. However Coach Kilrea is still confident that his Philadelphia club will finish up the season with a better record than last year's five wins and 52 losses.

The Rockets' best attacking trio has been Walt Stefaniew at centre with Mike Narduzzi and Steve Wochy on the flanks. Wochy is one of the new imports. The Rockets got him from Indianapolis and he played for Detroit Red Wings. Stefaniew came to the Rockets from the Minneapolis club of the U.S.H.L. while Narduzzi is a holdover.

Ottawa, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Looking ahead in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union, most sports writers and fans are finding grounds for speculation over the way things have turned out leaving Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders with four straight games to play to close the Big Four season.

The consensus is that the two teams, whatever else happens in the series coming up, will get to know each other like brothers — battling brothers — before it's all over. Interest in the series is heightened by the generally-accepted belief that the winner of the series will take the Grey Cup for 1947.

Due to a schedule laid out before the season started, and the fact that both Riders and Argos have earned the playoff positions, Ottawa plays in Toronto Saturday and the teams meet again three times in the next three weeks — at Ottawa Nov. 8 and 11, and again at Toronto Nov. 15.

"We see the ultimate Big Four champions as the team that gets acquainted quickest," writes Tommy (Ottawa Citizen) Shields. "That is, each will be looking for strength and weakness in the other. Argos are known to be a sharp club in this respect and Tedder Morris is not the kind to let any new plays slip past without inquiring full details thereof . . .

Little is yet known of the eventual composition of the all - R. C. A. F. team which will represent Canada in the Olympic Games at St. Moritz early next year. So far, under coach George (Buck) Boucher, former N.H.L. star and hockey expert of long standing, a number have gone through the mill.

Roughly 40 tryouts have appeared on the ice at the Ottawa Auditorium, and of these, 11 have been released. But the spotlight falls on one of the declines prospects — Bert Paxton of Calgary, who, a highly-rated goalie hope, found he couldn't take the Olympic oath.

Said Bill (Ottawa Journal) Walshe:

"Paxton is still a credit to his country and sport, although he will not be a member of the team.

"Paxton read the amateur rule and before the R. C. A. F. team played in a city hockey league game he announced he was not eligible to take the Olympic oath of amateurism. He never played professional and there were no charges that he had received money for playing sport, but Paxton was man enough to admit he was not an amateur.

Pheasants and Solunar Periods

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted sportsman, author and creator of Solunar Tables)

Of all the upland birds that are to be found in the United States and Canada, most folk will agree with me that the ringnecked pheasant is the most exasperating. No doubt some gunners will cast their votes for western quail; others will nominate the ruffed grouse; but for pure cussedness, my contention is that the ringneck tops them all.

You may or may not be familiar with this introduced species. He doesn't occur in all the states of the Union and all of the provinces of Canada. But he is present in the covers of most of them and those who hunt him each fall have found him to be a clever, wily bird that will tax the wits of the smartest dogs and hunters. The law in many areas prohibits the shooting of hens, and it is with cock birds that the hunter is concerned. In case you are not acquainted with him, let me give you a thumbnail sketch of the gentleman.

First off, he is a big bird, averaging around two and a half pounds. The hens are rather drab little brown creatures, considerably smaller than the cocks, usually distinguished in flight. The cocks are big, beautifully colored birds, fast flyers and able to run like a deer. They won't lie for a dog if they can possibly help themselves, preferring to trust to their legs so long as the cover is high enough to hide them.

All during the spring and summer months it is not uncommon to see them walking about the fields in plain sight. When fall comes, however, they seem to take on extra caution, and a pheasant in open country is a rather rare sight.

On the first day of the season the birds have not yet learned to grow wary of dogs and guns. Usually everybody has good shooting. But they learn quickly. Before the season is 3 days old, these birds will high-tail it for safe cover as soon as a shooting party enters their general vicinity. Under barns, stone fences, straw stacks they go; down woodchuck burrows, into hollow logs and stumps—anyplace that will offer them security. No longer do they depend merely upon hiding in thick cover. Soft, muddy swamps that are interlaced with cat briars — places where it is almost impossible to walk or to push your way through—that is where they stay a good share of the time. In a country that is well populated with cock ringnecked pheasants, it is quite possible to hunt for hours with good dogs without so much as finding a single bird.

Offhand, this seems to present somewhat of a problem, but there is a way to outguess Mr. Ringneck if you take time to study his habits more closely. He must, of necessity, come out of hiding to feed now and then and this is the time when he will give you some good shooting.

Like most creatures of the wild ringnecked pheasants are apt to be active and feeding at daybreak and again at dusk. That is to be expected. The trouble is that these two activity periods are of short duration. You may, if you are lucky, pick up a bird at these times, but that doesn't give you very much hunting.

All right— try keeping track of the daily Solunar Periods and hunt your birds when these periods are in progress. When a Solunar Period comes, the pheasants move out of their hiding places and into the feeding areas. Then you will find them in the cornfields, along the hedgerows and sometimes in the open fields that are grown to grass and clover. Usually they stay in these upland feeding areas for two or three hours before going into hiding again. Not only that, but they seem reluctant to leave the feeding grounds during the Solunar Periods and a dog has a chance to locate them and pin them down for you.

Some years ago when we lived in Orange, N. J., we used to hunt each fall at the Sunset Game Farm where many of the field trials are held each year. After a few trips of doing things the hard way and paying no attention to the Solunar Periods (over my protests) our hunting parties learned to plan their pheasant shooting trips so that they would coincide with the Solunar schedule. Accordingly, we would select a day when a Solunar Period was scheduled for mid-morning, with another during the mid-afternoon. We knew that there would be little profit in arising in the wee, small hours of the morning, so we made a leisurely day of it, arriving at the shooting grounds in plenty time to be in the field for the morning Solunar Period. At the close of the morning feeding and activity period, we would come in for lunch. After lunch we would rest and generally take things easy for a few hours. The afternoon Solunar Period would enable us to fill out our game bags and we generally were home in time for dinner. Not once, in all the times that we planned our days in this fashion, did we fail to find all the birds we wanted. Not only that, but our hunting was done in pleasant cover, with good dog work, and we never so much as went near the swamps and the heavy going. Believe me— it pays to plan your days in the open with the help of the Solunar Tables.

Child Injured After Running In Front of Car

Picton. (Special) — David Ward, fourteen-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Ward, of the village of Bloomfield, is recovering today from injuries suffered when struck by a car yesterday afternoon. The child was unconscious for some time but no bones were broken. The child was about to cross the street when a car driven by William Tripp approached. Mr. Tripp noticed the boy some distance away and slowed down his car. As he was close to the boy his car was almost stopped. Harold Pride was driving behind Mr. Tripp and believed the Tripp car was stopping there. He turned out to pass and the little boy ran in front of his car and was struck. Constable James Lovelace investigated.

There was little property damage here as a result of Hallowe'en celebrations. This was due in large measure to the fact that entertainment had been planned which kept merrymakers from doing mischief, and the fact that police were on the look out for those doing malicious damage. The Kinsmen Club sponsored a shell-out party for their arena fund. The children gathered at the community centre and paraded down main street headed by a clown band. There were all kinds of costumes and streets were lined to see them. Later, the children received candy, apples and cider.

At the armouries, the Legion Ladies' Auxiliary sponsored a dance which drew a large crowd. Proceeds are for their fund to be used to send Christmas parcels overseas.

The usual crowds of children called at homes and with candy and apples more plentiful this year, soon had paper bags filled with treats.

In Manhattan

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 1 (CP)—Got a new play up your sleeve? It might be just what Broadway needs.

With some notable exceptions, there's a dearth of first-class new dramatic writing on the current bill of fare. It is sprinkled with revivals or re-workings of old themes and that's where you'll find some of the top acting talent

The best examples are Maurice Evans in Shaw's "Man and Superman" and Judith Anderson in "Medea," Robinson Jeffer's adaptation of the old Greek tragedy. Three other distinguished actresses will be seen on Broadway this season in revivals. Katharine Cornell is due to arrive late in November in Shakespeare's "Anthony and Cleopatra." Jane Cowl returns next week in St. John's Ervine's comedy, "The first Mrs. Fraser." And Gertrude Lawrence is rehearsing for Noel Coward's sequence of short plays, "Tonight at 8:30."

Success Category

But the season has some productions that are both new and successful, from the box office standpoint. "Allegro," the serious Rodgers - Hammerstein musical play about a young doctor, currently is grossing $7,100, topping all its competitors. It boasts a record advance sale exceeding $750,000—all this despite a mixed reception from the critics. "High Button Shoes," the exuberant George Abbott production, is doing well financially and the current hits also include "Command Decision" and "The Heiress."

Stage Shorts

Noel Coward, now in New York, says his next comedy, "Long Island Sound," is about an eminent English writer who gets tangled up with the Long Island division of the cafe society set..."Harvey," the one about a rabbit, marks its third birthday on Broadway this weekend and "Happy Birthday," the Helen Hayes vehicle, observed its first anniversary Friday...Toronto-born Raymond Massey has been named to succeed the late Dudley Digges as third vice-president of Actors Equity Council.

"SINISTER" GIFT

London — (CP) — Police were summoned to investigate a suspicious-looking package addressed to Lord Woolton, Conservative party organizer. It contained a silver rose bowl.

NAPOLEONIC INVENTION

France developed the use of mechanical semaphore in Napoleon's time.

Suppose he is south as declarer at six hearts and west leads a trump. How would he plan to play it? Opponents have six cards in each red suit. Maybe either or both will split three-three.

If so, he can pull trumps and establish diamonds to sluff all his south black losers. This would appeal to him. So, hoping for the break in diamonds, see how he would plan it.

He would take two dummy trumps for his first two tricks. His south club king would haul in a trick. The two top trumps would be led from the south to pull what east has in that suit.

Dummy diamond ace and king would pick up two tricks. A dummy diamond would be ruffed in south. When diamonds do not break, the finesse of dummy spade is tried. He thus loses the contract. Or he may hope that trumps will break. If so, he brings in the first trick with dummy heart jack. Diamond ace has the first round of that suit. A small diamond is ruffed in south.

A trump lead is now taken with dummy heart queen. Another small dummy diamond is ruffed high in south. He then pulls a trump round. But trumps do not split evenly and he is down.

These losing methods were pointed out in the Bridge World where this deal appeared. And it may be a waste of your time to listen to such poor plays that you may never attempt.

But now that you have, how would you play this deal? There are two or more distinctly different ways of taking 11 tricks against any defence. One of them, perhaps, might not occur to you.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 1 —(AP) — Fred Astair is back in pictures—to stay.

The dancer, who has had two years of so-called retirement, was announced to replace the broken-limbed Gene Kelly in "Easter Parade," and folks wondered if Fred's return to the screen would be a one-shot affair. But he assured me his "retirement" is over.

"It's funny how the whole thing happened," Fred related "I read about Gene's accident and called him up. It's no mutual admiration society, but we've always admired each other's work; I often send him telegrams when I see something of his I like."

An hour after Fred delivered his condolences, MGM called him. He was urgently needed for the picture. "I was taken by surprise and told them I'd have to think it over,' 'the dancer said.

"So I called Gene back. I asked him if I could do the dances, since he and I do different kinds of work. He said they were adaptable to my style. Then I asked him if there were any possibility he could still do the picture. He said no, he wouldn't be able to dance for five months and he'd like to see me back in pictures."

The clincher was the Irving Berlin music for "Easter Parade." "Irving and I have done well together," he told me, mentioning "Blue Skys," "Holiday Inn," 'Follow the Fleet" and "Top Hat."

"I quit pictures," Fred declared, "because I got to the point that I couldn't do another one unless I knew it was the last. There just wasn't any kick in it any longer."

Fred, a courteous, quiet-spoken man who is earnest about his work, assured he would be around these parts in the future. The rumors of a vehicle with Joan Crawford were just rumors, but something else is in the wind.

"Ginger and I are anxious to do a picture again," he said. There's something to make any marquee gleam: "Rogers and Astair in ......"

KILLS TIMBER WOLF IN LAKE WITH BOARD

Peterborough, Oct. 29—(CP)—R. W. Dunford, Mount Julian, Burleigh township, killed an 80-pound timber wolf this week in Stony Lake about 25 miles north of here. While crossing the lake with his son, they rowed up to an animal they saw swimming out into the lake and when they saw it was a wolf they killed it with a board.

AWESOME PROJECTILE

Kalgoorlie, Australia — (CP)—During the height of a windstorm a resident was horrified to see a vast circular shape bearing down on him in the gloom. It was the conical top of a 1,000-gallon tank which was hurled 100 yards.

CHAPTER 26.

"You watch," said Jose. "You see. We go, I betcha."

The driver let the engine roar—if that is the word for the strange noise it made. Then it quieted a little, and there came the horrible grinding of gears that were ancient when Detroit was a village. The car jumped like a hop-toad, the Day of Judgment descended upon it, and with a shiver of dissolution it started down the street. Through the dusty yellow isinglass panes in the curtains Shane saw that they turned two corners, came out upon the town's busy main street, and passed quickly through its six-block length southward. Soon the cafes and the dance halls and the music, blatant and jazzy, lay behind. They passed the big Foreign Club, hit the dusty road which leads in three or four miles to famous and beautiful Agua Caliente, the playground of the rich, as Tijuana was the playground for those of lesser means.

A mile perhaps was rattled out, then Jose leaned forward and spoke to the driver. "Al mano derecho aqui," he said. "Turn right, here."

The boy obeyed. The machine, in a spasm as the gears were changed from high to second, and then to low, to take the gentle incline of the side road, miraculously made the grade, and then, at a further word from Jose, came to a panting stop.

"Here my primo leev," explained Jose. Another of Jose's numerous cousins. "We get out."

Shane climbed from the car, Jose dropped a coin into the hand of the driver of the jitney bus and followed Shane. Shane wanted to wait to see if the car could possibly back down the hill—as it needs must do, as the road went no farther—without falling to pieces, but Jose, taking him by the arm, urged him into the ill-kept yard, up rickety steps, and, without ceremony, into the front room of the little two-storey frame house. And then, being in, Jose opened his mouth and roared:

"Pepito! Margarita! Donde 'sta?"

At the summons a fat woman, in a pink gingham Mother Hubbard, bustled in, panting. Her brown eyes widened at sight of her guests. Then she broke into a torrent of greeting for Jose.

"This is my master, Don Shane O'Hara," explained Jose, in Spanish. "We have come to spend several days with you. There is a reason, which I will presently explain. Now find Pepito and send him to us. And then do you prepare a bedroom for the senor. Sweep it out, Margarita. Make it to be clean. Put fresh sheets on the bed. See that there is clean water—these Americans do not like to use wash-water more than once—which is probably why they are so pale. And let us have for supper plenty of food, for I am hungry. Tortillas and enchiladas and chili and some tamales. I will bring beer and tequila. Here is money for the food," and he handed her a dollar.

The woman Margarita went away and presently the sound of a masculine voice was heard arguing with her.

"Pepito," said Jose, and went out of the room to talk at considerable length with his cousin. Shane sat down, judged he might smoke—in view of the cigarette stubs on the floor and window sills and table. Funny people, the Mexicians—but they surely helped each other. And apparently had a lot of fun doing it. The right of any member of the family to walk in unannounced for a few days' stay, bringing with him an American guest—to order arrangements of the household as though it were his own— Well, didn't he recall that the usual Spanish greeting to a guest was, "The house is yours." Apparently they took this literally.

Shane was left to his own devices, after Pepito had been brought in and introduced. A small, wizened little man was Pepito, weighing about a third as much as his fat espona, Margarita. But he had brilliant black eyes, very restless and intelligent, and was not badly dressed, and was most polite, assuring him that the house was honored by the Senor Americano, and that if Margarita failed to make him comfortable and to give him plenty to eat and a clean bed to sleep in, he, Pepito, would beat Margarito until she howled like a dog. Absolutamente, senor, Como un perro!

After these assurances, Jose explained that he and Pepito would go and drink tequila and see what they could find out about the Rattlesnake. It was too bad that el senor could not go with them and drink ,but.... ojala! Maybe Pepito had a bottle of tequila to keep Mr. O'Hara company. Pepito did have. He dashed away, shouting at Margarita—who apparently was in the next county. Returned quickly with a tall bottle containing a white liquid, a glass. Set them upon the table; bowed to Shane. Said "Buen salud, senor,"—Good luck, Mister! and he and Jose took their departure.

Jose, his jaw again covered by the blue handkershief, Pepito trotting beside him, made his way back into the town. On the road he explained the situation to the little man, who trotted and listened and said nothing until Jose's story was told. Then—and his Spanish was admirable:

"Jose," he said. "I always thought that my cousin and your brother, Sam, was concerned with matters that the law would disapprove of. I have heard it hinted here in Tijuana—also in Mexicali—that he was in bad business. As for Rodrigo Guiterrez, who calls himself the Rattlesnake, he is a dangerous man. Of him also I have heard things. Talk of smuggling—opium, Chinese, alsohol. I think we can find the Rattlesnake without much trouble. But when we find him, I think it will be very wise to kill him at once. Quietly and swiftly."

"That is what I have told the Americano," said Jose, and explained Shane's ideas on this subject. "And so I suppose it must be done his way."

"That is what I have told the Americano," said Jose, and explained Shane's ideas on this subject. "And so I suppose it must be done his way."

"It is not a good way," said Pepito. "Nevertheless, as you say, if that is what the American wants, then that way will we do it. I think if we go and sit in the Cafe Espanol and drink a bottle of tequila, we shall find out whether the Rattlesnake is still in town or not. And if he is, perhaps we can discover where he lives."

The Cafe Espanol was not a big cafe. It was popular with the Mexicans; having no orchestra and being on a side street, most visiting Americans never found it. It was a narrow long room, with partitions thrusting out from one wall, like a real American restaurant, a poolroom in the back, a bar along the other wall.

"Hello, Loreto," Pepito greeted the white-aproned bartender. "Bring us a bottle of La Viuda Martinez, eh?"

He and Jose seated themselves in one of the little booths, back toward the poolroom, and upon the table between them the bartender set a bottle and two glasses.

Pepito reached a hand in his pocket. Jose stopped him.

"Sam was my brother," he said, and handed the bartender a coin representing about one-third of what American visitors paid for a bottle of La Viuda—The Widow Martinez—"the most popular woman in Mexico," as she was called.

Jose poured two half tumblerfuls of the fiery stuff.

"Kiss the Widow," said Pepito, and raised her glass to his lips.

Time passed, and the tide in the bottle ebbed. Men came and drank and went out, or came and drank and sat—but the Rattlesnake did not come. Jose grew restless. "Perhaps some other place," he suggested.

But "Wait," said Pepito. "I think he will come. I see him here more than any other place. When he gets really drunk he comes here."

Another half hour passed, and the Widow was empty.

Then there came loud voices from the doorway, drunken men shouting, laughing. It grew louder, came into the cafe.

"That," said Pepito, "is the Rattlesnake."

"He know you?" asked Jose.

"Yes," answered Pepito. "And you?"

"I don't know," replied Jose. "He may have seen me."

"Be on guard then," warned Pepito. "He may pass this way."

Jose adjusted his handkerchief up to his eyes. "I shall sneeze," he said, "if he passes. I have a cold. And also I have a cold knife near my right hand."

"Do not use it," warned Pepito. "Do not think of using it. Not here. And if he stops, remember you are Hernando Monroy, from La Paz, at his service."

But the Rattlesnake and his friends stopped in the front part of the cafe.

"Here, bartender," shouted the Rattlesnake, "Attention! Bring drink, much drink. Sit down, friends. Here we will spend the rest of the day—and the night." The idea met with a chorus of approval.

Wellington, N.Z. — (CP) — A move to have longer skirts banned has been suggested by Dr. A. M. Finlay, M.P. Saviour of Ceylon Will Be Heard In Crimes Trials

Ottawa, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Wing Cmdr. L. J. Birchall, the man called the "saviour of Ceylon" for a wartime radio warning of the approach of a Japanese fleet on that strategic island, is going to Japan to be heard in the war crimes trials of Japanese army personnel at whose hands he and hundreds of prisoners suffered during the war.

In making the announcement Air Force headquarters said the Ottawa and St. Catharines officer is being relieved as director of personnel administration and will leave for Japan shortly.

He will testify at United States trials against Japanese officials who were in charge of camps in which he was held by the Japanese during the 3½ years he was held prisoner.

Testimony taken by affidavit has already been given against two Japanese soldiers by Wing Cmdr. Birchall, the material having been taken from the diary he secretly kept while a prisoner of war.

Wing Cmdr. Birchall was a squadron leader when he joined 413 Squadron at Ceylon in 1942. A day or two after his arrival he spotted the approaching Japanese fleet while on reconnaissance and only had time to send a hasty wireless report before being shot down. His aircraft was not heard from again and for a time he was believed dead.

But his quick report was enough to allow preparations for the defence of Ceylon and when the Japanese carrier aircraft struck they were repulsed with heavy losses. The wing commander's report, giving the position of the enemy, won him an immediate Distinguished Flying Cross.

Picked up by the Japanese, he was sent to a prisoner of war camp in Japan and his conduct there won him the O. B. E. on his release.

With Wing Cmdr. Birchall during his first two and a half years as a prisoner was FO. G. C. Onyette of Huntsville, Ont., who was an observer aboard Birchall's plane. FO. Onyette now is a member of the regular R.C.A.F.

Bruins Cross Up Management; Depart From Rossian Formula By Making Fast N.H.L. Start

Team Could Open Up Five-Point Edge Over the Weekend

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Although there may be those who feel it's a horrible thing to say, smacking almost of an accusation of treason Boston Bruins appear to be slipping the management a neat double-x.

Not that general manager Art Ross and coach Dit Clapper are the least annoyed at this part of chicanery. Far from it. They are undoubtedly happy about the whole affair. Confusing? Not as much as it might seem at first glance.

It's simply that Ross, in his lengthy career as a National Hockey League mastermind, has made it obvious that he likes to bring his clubs along gradually. He likes to work his teams into top condition over the long schedule haul, figuring his men will hit the playoffs in peak form.

So, what happens this season? The Bruins cross up the system. They're off to a rousing start, perched atop the N. H. L. standing with four victories in five starts. On top of that, it's possible they might extend their margin during the weekend.

It's mathematically possible that Bruins, presently a point ahead of Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs, could open up a five - point gap from the weekend contests. The odds against it happening are heavy, and involve too many "ifs" to present a detailed explanation here, but it could come to pass.

Bruins play in one of tonight's two contests, skating out against Leafs in Toronto while Wings take on New York Rangers in New York. Tomorrow night Bruins tussle with Wings in Detroit in one of the evening's three games. Leafs engage Rangers in New York and Montreal Canadiens play Black Hawks in Chicago in the other Sunday encounter.

Six First-year Men

Bruins are carrying six first-year men on the roll. One of the ablest of their freshmen performers to date has been big Eddie Sandford, centre ice ace of last season's Canadian junior champion Toronto St. Michael's Majors.

Other rookies with the team are Eddie Harrison, a cousin of Sandford and another 1946-47 St. Michael's star, Pete Babando, Paul Ronty, Jack Peirson and Wally Wilson. Babando, Ronty and Peirson moved up to Bruins from Hershey Bears, champions of the American Hockey League last season, while Wilson was obtained from Leafs.

One obvious reason for Boston's success so far has been the play of three veterans — goaltender Frankie Brimsek, centreman Milt Schmidt and wingman Woody Dumart. Leave aside Boston's one losing game, a 5-0 defeat inflicted by Canadiens, and Brimsek's record is something that takes a lot of beating.

In five games, the phlegmatic net custodian has allowed 10 goals. If that loss to Canadiens is subtracted that means he has been beaten only five times in 4 games. That's the kind of goaling that wins a lot of games. Schmidt and Dumart have been forceful on the attack and still do a lot of backchecking to cut down the scoring chances of the opposition.

GUS LESNEVICH RETAINS TITLE OVER MAURIELLO

Referee Stops Slaughter in Seventh Round to Save Opponent

New York, Nov. 1 — (AP) — Gus Lesnevich today held the Shaughnessy playoff championship over Tami Mauriello as well as the world's light heavyweight title.

Lesnevich had beaten the Bronx barkeep in all three of their previous fights and if Mauriello had any doubts as to who was master it was very brutally removed last night in Madison Square Garden.

The Cliffside Park, N. J., 175-pound king cut par for the course in his fourth chance before a crowd of 14,079 who welcomed boxing back to the big arena after a six-week run by the rodeo.

Mauriello had gone the route with Lesnevich in the first three but referee Ruby Goldstein stopped last night's slaughter after 33 seconds of the seventh round.

Mauriello went down only once, a nine-count in the fourth, result of a left to the jaw. But he was a doomed man from the first round on.

The new trophy, to be presented annually, is in memory of Keith, former star with the Beaches who died last year.

Governors of New York and Pennsylvania re-opened their woodlands to hunters yesterday, leaving only Maine where the forests are closed to ginners because of the continued threat of fires.

Calumet Farm's Fervent, laying back in the early going, came down the stretch with a rush to score a head victory yesterday over Cosmic Bomb in the $25,000 Pimlico Special, with favored Armed third.

Prizes worth $16,500 will be awarded in the 1948 Nipawin, Sask., bonspiel next Jan. 7-17. The prizes have been increased $3,500 over last year. To date 50 entries have been received.

The unbeaten University of Ottawa Carabins came through again last night in the last half to down Queen's University 18-0 in a regular intermediate intercollegiate football league under lights at Ottawa.

Leslie O'Connor Plans Lone Hand Assault on Court

Cleveland, Nov. 1. (AP) — Shorn of support by seven other American League Baseball Clubs, the Chicago White Sox General Manager, Leslie M. O'Connor, plans an unprecedented "lone hand" assault on Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler to escape a $500 fine and suspension for signing a high school southpaw pitcher.

The Chicago official, following a six-hour closed session yesterday in which the junior loop's club owners voted to replace him on baseball's executive council, said he would seek a restraining order against the Commissioner's edict in Cincinnati's Federal Court next week.

President Harridge, summing up the session, declared:

"From now on, any action is Mr. O'Connor's personal business, and that of the White Sox. Like any business, baseball is anxious to stay out of the courts, but the American League cannot prevent any member club from going into court.

"Speaking as the League's president, we recognize Commissioner Chandler's interpretation of the rules, and the league will not be a party to any court action."

O'Connor bases his case on the premise that the White Sox did not violate baseball rules in signing 17-year-old George Zoeterman of Chicago's Christian High School, since that institution is not a member of the National Federation of High Schools.

Conservatives Gain 621 Council Seats From Labor

Worst Setback For Labor Since the 1945 Elections

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 3 — (CP)—Intensive political activity looms in Britain following Saturday's municipal elections which saw labor suffer a setback to the Conservatives — the first since the labor party swept the 1945 general elections.

Revised complete returns from the 388 English and Welsh boroughs voting showed the Conservatives made a net gain of 621 seats and labor sustained a net loss of 652.

Although Conservative leaders called for a general election, such a course does not seem likely because the Labor party still has a powerful majority in the Commons.

Labor party leaders frankly admitted that the outcome was "disappointing," and Conservatives acclaimed the result as a sharp swing to the right which showed the handwriting on the wall.

Churchill last night proclaimed that the "result deprives the Socialist (Labor) government of any mandate they obtained at the general elections" in 1945.

"Henceforth," he declared, "they will govern without the moral support and against the will of the people."

POHL TO HANG, FOURTEEN OTHERS ARE CONVICTED

Neurnberg, Nov. 3 (AP)—Lt.-Gen. Oswald Pohl, the swarthy S. S. officer who operated German concentration camps were millions died, was sentenced today to be hanged for war crimes and crimes against humanity.

Fourteen others were convicted and three acquitted by the United States tribunal, which ruled for the first time that a German S. S. operative could be considered innocent of war crimes if it was not proved that he knew the intent of the S. S. to be criminal.

Pohl, 55 and black-eyed, accepted his doom with a curt nod. In his days of power, he had accepted orders only from Heinrich Himmler, the Gestapo chief, and Hitler.

The court said that in addition to Pohl, these defendants were guilty of murders, tortures, deportations, enslavement of whole populations and plunder of property:

Gen. August Frank and Gen. George Loerner, deputies to Pohl; Gen. Karl Fanslau; Colonels Hans Lierner, Erwin Tschentscher, Max Kiefer, Frantz Eirenschmalz, Hans Heinrich Baier, Karkkl Mummenthey and Hans Bobermin; Maj. Karl Sommer; Capt Volk; and Hans Hohberg, a civilian.

Convicted with Pohl and the colonels were three generals, a major, a captain and a civilian.

Acquitted were Colonels Joseph Vogt, Rudolf Scheide and Horst Klein. The tribunal ruled that evidence was inconclusive in their cases.

The verdict declared the convicted men were "monsters of depravity."

Pohl's Guilt.

The 3,000-word court opinion said that Pohl as chief of the business office of the S.S., was guilty of chief responsibility for rounding up slave labor and plundering the possessions of millions of victims, even down to their gold teeth, before they were thrown into a crematorium.

TYPHOON HITS YAP

Guam, Nov. 3 — (AP) — A typhoon with 100-mile winds struck the tiny island of Yap in the Western Carolines today, causing severe damage to United States naval housing, warehouses, dispensaries and other buildings. Seawalls were badly damaged by high tides. No casualties were reported.

Janet Flindall, 17, Brighton, Dies of Burns in Hospital

Brighton, Nov. 3. —(Special.)—Miss Janet Flindall, seventeen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Flindall who reside just outside this village, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday afternoon, as a result of fatal burns received during a Hallowe'en party on Friday night.

The dead girl dressed as "Peter Rabbit" was enjoying a Lion's Club-sponsored masquerade party in the Brighton Town Hall with a large crowd of young people. Some of the masqueraders carried lighted candles as part of their costumes and during the gay time the masquerade clothing of Miss Flindall caught fire.

Before the flames could be extinguished, Miss Flindall was severely burned. She was attended by Dr. Clark, who immediately ordered her to hospital. The badly burned girl failed to rally and died on Saturday afternoon.

She was the youngest of a family of eight children and was a popular member of the 4th grade in high school here. She took an active part in the school sports.

Clergymen Given Easing of Their Income Tax

Ottawa Nov. 3 (CP) —Ordained clergymen are given an easing of their income tax burden under a new regulation of the Revenue Department effective this month, it was learned today.

Before the regulation was issued clergymen had to add to their taxable income the estimated rental value of the manse provided rent-free by their churches.

Now the manse is classified as a place where the clergymen carry out part of the duties of their office and, as such, the rental value is not applicable to taxable income.

The new rule applies immediately in all cases where a final assessment has not been issued by the income tax branch, or where the statutory period of appeal from such an assessment has not expired. A number of clergymen already have received rebates.

ACCIDENTALLY SHOOTS SISTER

South Royalston, Vt., Nov. 3—(AP) — Before the horrified gaze of his grandmother, mother and a sister, a 13-year-old boy Sunday accidentally shot and killed his 14-year-old sister with a shotgun. Hugh Russell and his sister, Hazel, were in the kitchen with the other members of the family when the tragedy happened.

SUGAR, MOLASSES OFF RATION LIST, CEILINGS REMAIN

Ration Books Become Just a Souvenir

Ottawa, Nov. 3 (CP) — The ration book became "just a souvenir" for Canadians today.

Sugar and molasses, last holdouts on the Canadian coupon ration list that once included butter, meat, tea, coffee, jams, preserves and gasoline, are freed from rationing effective immediately. Thus ends consumer rationing begun in the Dominion in 1942 to ensure a fair distribution of scarce commodities during wartime and in the postwar period.

In making the announcement last night, Finance Minister Abbott left no doubt that the Canadian housewife can safely throw away her multi-colored coupon leaflet that has been her shopping companion for five years—unless she wants to keep it as a souvenir.

The minister also disclosed:

1. Price ceilings will be retained on both sugar and molasses, though the price of sugar will be allowed to rise a cent a pound above its present level of approximately nine cents a pound.

2. Unless unforseen circumstances arise, there should be no further increase in sugar prices for the next year.

3. Domestic sugar beet growers are being allowed a bonus of one-quarter cent a pound above the present price.

4. The government does not propose to subsidize the production of sugar beets in 1948.

At times during its rationed career, sugar vied with butter as a critical commodity and at one time the individual ration was reduced to as little as a pound a month. But the supply position improved with the ending of the war and the removal of the ration entirely apparently stems from abolition of internation allocation controls because of the improved world supply picture.

Mr. Abbott said that the one-cent price increase being allowed would cover regular statutory import duties currently being reinstated and increased costs of cotton and jute bags and other materials.

Margaret Truman Likes Skirts Just Below Knee

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 3 —(CP) —Margaret Truman, who likes her skirts a little below the knee and who doesn't allow secret service men along on her dates, arrived here yesterday for a concert. The preference regarding skirts of the daughter of the President came in an interview she gave 24 aspiring High School journalists.

"Just below the knee is about right," she said.

"I settled that with them the first thing," she said. "If my escort can't protect me, then I'll just do without."

THEN THERE WASN'T ANY GARAGE

Altoona, Pa., Nov. 3 (AP) — H. F. Myers is courteous —and as a result he has no garage.

Myers opened his garage doors preparatory to driving his car in. But first he graciously yielded the street right of way to a five-ton truck. The truck hooked the garage doors, tearing off one side of the building. Then the roof collapsed.

Truman's Probable Program Likely to Meet Strong Republican Opposition

Washington, Nov. 3 (AP) — President Truman's probable program for helping Europe while fighting prices at home emerges in a pattern likely to crash into Republican opposition on several fronts.

Continued high taxes, strong anti-inflation controls and "outright gifts" abroad all were urged by the President's council of economic advisers. All seemed certain to provoke sharp outcrys from many Republican legislators.

Congress meets Nov. 17 in special session at Truman's call to consider assistance abroad and inflation curbs in the United States and Representative Harold Knutson (Rep.-Minn.) announced Sunday that a $4,000,000,000 tax-slashing bill will be ready "at high noon Nov. 17."

Knutson is chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and Republican manager of tax legislation. His stand means that the Republicans will stand firm against the Democratic party's drive to place European aid before tax cuts

In a weekend report to Truman on what the United States can do to carry out State Secretary Marshall's plan of helping Europe help itself, the council said the United States is well able to finance its share of the $22,000,000,000 program.

But the advisory group cautioned that the inflationary risk involved will require government allocation of some scarce foods and other goods, controls over speculation, new credit curbs and —if these fail—possibly some form of price control

Meanwhile it was learned that the administration probably will ask Congress to provide Europe with more than $3,000,000,000 in the form of gifts during the first years of the Marshall plan, in addition to repayable loans.

There seemingly is agreement among both American and European officials that perhaps 60 per cent of next year's aid under the Marshall program should be furnished without asking repayment. The administration is expected to seek between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000,000 in aid next year, as the first step in the four-year recovery drive of 16 western European countries.

The council of economic advisers in its report said failure to give aid will mean "industrial paralysis" overseas, the erection of trade barriers, and political upheavals which will jeopardize this country's attempt to hold to a stable economic course.

Huge Fortune Won Through Hunch Lost When Mining Bubble Bursts

By BRYAN YOUNG
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Erleigh, born in London of a mining family, parlayed his hunches into the £19,000,000 ($76,000,000) New Union Goldfields, Ltd. — an organization embracing 152 companies which once was one of the shining light of South African enterprise but which recently was involved in a serious stock crash.

New Union had a spectacular career from its formation in 1934 but recently it got into difficulties and as a result gold stocks on the London exchange tumbled spectacularly. The company reported that it had borrowed £5,000,000 payable on demand and that it had found its current resources were "totally inadequate" to meet the loans. Total available cash was reported at £177,500.

Following this report, the market skidded and millions of pounds were slashed off gold values.

But before this recent eclipse, Erleigh had built New Union into a gigantic combine. The story involved such romantic elements as a young genius, dusty and fading maps leading to new gold in deserted fields and an intricate financial development covering dozens of widely divergent companies.

(By The Canadian Press)

After October's near-record warmth and dryness in many parts of Canada, chill winds and lower temperatures spotted the weather map today — but temperatures still were five or 10 degrees above normal in Ontario-at least.

Little change in the balmy temperature is anticipated for Southern and Central Ontario. The Prairie Provinces and Quebec also reported above normal temperatures at the start of the month but a slight drop was indicated.

Sunshine and unusually warm weather prevailed throughout October in most parts of Canada with Quebec recording temperatures rising to high 70s and low 80s, one of the warmest Octobers on record.

British Columbia was the only exception, reporting a month of rain and high winds, with gales on 20 of 31 days. Rain and not sunshine set the record for this west coast province. A total of 20.33 inches of rainfall was recorded topping the previous record of 18.37 inches in 1940.

Ontario enjoyed an unusually warm October with a new record for sunshine. In 66 years' recording, the weather bureau found the average sunshine for October of 1900 set a record of 216 hours but this October set a record of 216 hours and 24 minutes — an average of seven hours a day.

Ontario's Indian Summer however ended last week with a return to more seasonal and chillier mercury readings.

Candy-Makers Have Free Rein

Ottawa, Nov. 3. (CP)— The candy-makers, bakers and soft drink manufacturers now have free rein when it comes to getting all the sugar they need. Prices Board officials said today the lifting of sugar rationing applies to the industrial user as well as to the individual.

However, the official said he didn't think the lifting of rationing would make much of a difference to industry which since June has been back on 90 per cent of its 1941 sugar quota. As for icings, layer-cakes and pies, he pointed out that restrictions on such were lifted more than three years ago.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Nov. 3 — (CP)—Synopsis: Pleasant fall weather will continue over Central and Southern Ontario today. Minimum temperatures will again be five to 10 degrees above normal. A disturbance moving up the Atlantic coast will bring overcast skies and intermittent rain to the extreme southern part of the province Tuesday. Cooler air is moving into extreme Northwestern Ontario. It will spread rapidly eastward across the northern part of the province today.

300 Police Cruisers Will Be Connected To Radio Network

Toronto, Nov. 3. (CP)—A network of 41 radio stations, designed to increase the efficiency of the Ontario Provincial Police, should be in operation within the next few weeks, it was disclosed last night. The network will connect a fleet of 300 police cruisers.

One police official said the new radio facilities, rated as the largest and most modern police radio setup on the North American continent, would enable Provincial Police to patrol thousands of square miles of territory "with almost as much ease as we once patrolled a 10-mile area.

"Sometimes," he added, "it took us hours to mobilize our forces in an emergency. Now the same thing can be accomplished in minutes."

Radio receiving and sending equipment already has been installed at a "master" station in Aurora, 24 cruisers in the district, and at substations at Brampton and Whitby. Communication can be carried out on a four-way basis—station to station, Station to car, car to station and car to car.

In conjunction with the new radio system, a magnetic dispatch map is to be put in use at various headquarters. Each dispatcher will have a map of his district, showing traffic arteries, villages, towns, cities and other strategic points. Cruisers will radio in half-hour position reports.

United Nations Projected into Kashmir Crisis

New Delhi, Nov. 3. (AP)—The United Nations was projected into the situation in strife-torn Kashmir today by an Indian government leader's suggestion that it supervise a plebiscite to determine the status of that princely state.

The suggestion came from Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister of India, to which Kashmir's Hindu Maharajah decided to join his predominantly Moslem State a week ago in order to obtain help against Pathan raiders coming from Pakistan's northwest frontier province.

Declaring that India had no intention of maintaining troops in Kishmir once the "danger of invasion is passed," Nehru said:

"We are prepared when peace and law and order have been established to have a referendum held under international auspices like the United Nations. We want it to be a fair and just reference to the people and we shall accept the verdict."

Nehru termed the invasion of Kashmir by the Pathan raiders a "violation of international law and an unfriendly act to a neighbor country." He said they were "fully armed, well trained and have competent leadership."

LABOR PARTY TO INVESTIGATE HEAVY DEFEAT

Attlee Said Not to Be Unduly Disturbed

By FRASER WIGHTON

London, Nov. 3 (Reuters) — The Labor party's election sub-committee, on which the cabinet is strongly represented, intends to meet tonight to conduct an immediate investigation into labor's heavy defeat in the municipal elections on Saturday, when the party suffered a net loss of 644 seats.

The meeting was contingent upon all the committee personell being rounded up in time. It was to be held in the absence of Prime Minister Attlee, who leaves for Walcheren Island, Holland, for war commemoration ceremonies.

The Labor landslide was not on the agenda of today's cabinet meeting, but it was discussed afterwards by cabinet ministers. Attlee, it is believed is not unduly disturbed by the situation. Quarters close to the Prime Minister reflect his view that in the present crisis, something of the kind was inevitable, and that the government still has three years of office in which, by its record to put the episode in proper perspective.

The Labor world as a whole however, is undoubtedly dismayed by the extent of the defection form its support in the country.

A three-fold probe is expected to be made — by the cabinet into general causes, by the Parliamentary party of 400 members of parliament into the question of responsibility for the defeats and by the National party into the efficiency of local machinery, which may call for general overhaul.

Considered view of many political quarters today is that the labor reverse was due to a number of clearly discernible factors. They were:

1. The protest of a large and growing number of housewives normally not political, at the oppressive and still increasing food stringency.

2. Exasperation of certain sections — sometime Labor — at what they consider a government habit first of laying down a strict line of policy and then vacillating in its application.

3. Resentment at some aspects of nationalization policy.

4. Cessation of the basic gasoline ration to save dollars. Most Labor people probably approve the principle but some contend the government has left loopholes that will enable many "undeserving cases" still to get dollar-purchased gasoline.

5. The government decision to curtail the powers of the House of Lords. In the midst of the country's economic crisis, many consider it "fiddling while Rome burns."

In perspective, the results are regarded not as a disaster but as a strong warning to the government.

PHILOSOPHY SOUND

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 3 (AP) — English Prof. Kenneth D. Longsdorf of Franklin and Marshall College takes a philosophical view of his impending house eviction.

Longsdorf was host Sunday to 30 college faculty members and students at a "pre-eviction house cooling" party, entertaining the folks with movies songs, and tricks of magic.

He said he was able to take a philosophical view of the situation since he had already found another place to live at $30 a month cheaper rent.

Polish Leader Reaches Sanctuary In Britain

Says Polish Govt. Planned To Sentence Him to Death

London, Nov. 3 (CP)—Stanislaw Mikolajczyk said tonight he fled Poland through the Russian zone of Germany to the British area after learning that the Moscow-sponsored Polish government planned to sentence him and at least two other Polish Peasant party officials to death.

The Polish opposition leader reached the promised sanctuary of Britain in an R.A.F. plane, two weeks after dropping from sight in Poland.

"I got the news on the day of the opening of parliament that immunity would be taken away from me," Mikolajczyk told an interviewer at his wife's home in suburban London.

"I knew also they had made plans in advance with a military court to sentence us to death."

The stocky, 46-year-old Polish Peasant party leader, who helped the Polish government-in-London during the occupation, kissed his wife's hand after walking into the house.

"After I got the news they were going to arrest us I made a decision to go away because, after all, they would sentence us to death and oud people would try to avenge us and cause unnecessary bloodshed," Mikolajczyk said.

No Word on His Plans

Mikolajczyk refused to say whether he planned to form an anti-Soviet bloc outside of Poland, whether he intends to remain in Britain or to go to the United States.

He said he has been out of touch with the news and has no immediate plans for the future.

Mikolajczyk said he left Poland Oct. 20, crossing the country's western frontier and the Soviet zone of Germany, and went on to the British zone of Germany. He declined to disclose the point where he found safety there.

"I first felt safe last Saturday," the day of his arrival in the British zone, he said.

He said British authorities had known of his whereabouts since his arrival in their zone.

Asked if other associates were safe he replied, "No comment."

First intimation of his arrival was given in the House of Commons were Christopher Mayhew, under-secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, said amid loud cheers:

"I have been informed Mikolajczyk arrived in this country today and was given leave to land."

He was answering Capt. Raymond Blackburn, Labor member for King's Norton, who asked whether any application had been received from the 46-year-old Polish leader for asylum in Britain.

Blackburn then asked where the Mikolajczyk plane had landed, where he came from, and who was with him. But Mayhew said that at the moment there was no other information he could give except that the Polish opposition leader had landed at Manston, which is a British transport command airport.

An Air Ministry official said that Mikolajczyk "arrived at Manston at 12.30 p.m., today in a special R.A.F. plane from Germany." The station adjutant at Manston said he didn't know

5,800 TEXTILE WORKERS IN 4 PLANTS STRIKE

Walkout Follows Breakdown of Negotiations Over Contract Terms

Montreal, Nov. 3. (CP)—Joseph Pelchat, publicist for the National Catholic Syndicates, announced today that 5,800 employees of the Dominion Textile Company in four plants throughout that province went on strike this morning and were picketing the plants "quietly".

The strike followed breakdown of negotiations here last week over terms of a contract recommended by a Provincial Arbitration Board. The Union accepted the recommendation but the company balked on a clause suggesting employees should not be reclassified without the consent of goodwill committees in the plant.

Affected by the strike were Dominion Textile Plants at St. Gregoire (near Quebec), Sherbrooke, and Magog and the subsidiary Dominion Cotton Company plant at Drummondville.

Mr. Pelchat said the workers were striking "because the company refuses to submit itself to the majority report of the arbitration board".

A company announcement said the strike picture "is not yet clear since representatives of the company and the syndicates are meeting with Labor Minister Barrette in Montreal this morning."

"The meeting, which follows several held last week in an endeavor to reach a settlement was called by Mr. Barrette on Saturday in an attempt to avoid such costly and harmful strike action. Further remarks must await the results of that meeting."

Last week's meetings were held with Cyprien Miron of the Provincial Labor Department and Mr. Barrette offered to act as mediator when the negotiations failed to produce an agreement.

The arbitration Board's decision on the proposed contract was given Oct. 15 and its recommendations included a general wage increase of 15 cents an hour, retroactive to April 15.

The company announced the wage increases would go into effect today, whether the contract was signed or not, and agreed to consider the question of retroactivity.

Major point in dispute, however was understood to be the board's recommendation that the company should not make any changes in its work schedule, production methods, work load or machinery without union permission.

This, the company argued, would take away its right to manage its business.

Santa Working on Toys That Should Amuse Children as Well as Parents

By MARILYN LAMBORN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 3 — (CP)—Santa Claus, gay philanthropist of the chimney, may or may not be unionized but nevertheless he's working overtime to reach full production of Christmas tops in line with the atomic age such as junior has never seen.

During the war he bowed to limitations of shortages, quotas and heavy overhead. He's still struggling with these problems but has succeeded this year in turning toyland into wonderland for little boys and girls who have missed out for a number of years.

News of the atomic age reached the north pole, so Santa acquired tricks of producing super-electronic trains run by remote control, complete with radio equipment installed in each coach and real smoke pouring from stacks.

Santa has also brushed up on plastics and will fill his bag with a bigger and better selection of plastic toys. Junior will find them under the tree in the form of dump trucks, noise-makers, games and singing canaries.

If Betty Ann has been a good girl he might leave her a gigantic doll house, furnished completely in plastic from the washing machine in the basement to deck chairs on the roof.

However he's giving every ambitious boy and girl a chance to probe atomic mysteries themselves with chemistry sets that could double for research laboratories.

BLAZE IN ROOF

Members of the local fire department were called to 187 Station Street on Saturday afternoon where fire was reported in the roof of a dwelling occupied by Mark Adamson, the blaze presumably resulting from sparks from a chimney. Firemen reported some damage as result of the blaze which was promptly extinguished by the department.

WINTER UNIFORMS FOR PROVINCIAL POLICE

Winter uniforms came out of summer storage today for members of the local detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police as constables and other staff personnel reported for duty wearing their darker hued and heavier uniforms reserved for winter wear. November 3rd. was the date set by headquarters for the change to winter apparel, it was stated.

JUNIOR HOCKEY CLUB CANCELS TRIP

Belleville Junior Hockey Club officials announced today that the hockey excursion planned for Wednesday, Nov. 12 has been cancelled. Dearth of interest in the sale of tickets is said to be the reason. Ticket holders will be refunded purchase price.

SHOVEL WINDOWS BROKEN OVER WEEKEND

Possibly it was merely a belated Hallowe'en prank but proprietors of the Diamond Construction Company do not appreciate the fact that all the windows of their mechanical shovel were broken some time during the weekend. The shovel was situated in the quarry north of College Street and this morning when the operator went to the scene he found the windows of the shovel cab had been broken, presumably by boys throwing stones.

SPLENDID WEATHER DURING OCTOBER

The month of October will long go down in the records as being one easy on the coal bin and also one in which the weather man leaned over backwards in giving forth balmy weather.

Mean temperature for the month was 55 degrees, according to records kept by officials at the local water filtration plant, while rainfall for the month was just .70 inches—considerably less than one inch. By comparison the mean temperature for October last year was 51 degrees while the precipitation was 4.14 inches.

High temperature for last month was 78 degrees while the low was 26 degrees.

RAINFALL ASSISTS FALL PLOWING

Alleviations of "tough" plowing conditions by the recent rainfall caused many farmers to speed up weekend plowing operations. A number in Prince Edward County and other surrounding areas were seen turning furrows on Sunday in an effort to take advantage of the more favorable condition of the soil.

COLLEGIATE H. & S. ASSOC. SPONSORS VOCATIONS NIGHT

The Collegiate Home and School Association and Guidance department will sponsor a Vocations' Night at the Collegiate auditorium, this evening.

Speakers will be on hand to address the students giving them short informal talks on what qualifications are needed and what will be expected of them in each particular field of endeavor. There will be an opportunity for discussion and students are urged to attend this meeting.

During the evening the students will be able to hear two discussions and a wide variety of occupations will be on the list.

NUMBER OF SMALL PLANTS STILL RUNNING

A number of small plants are still in the tomato canning business. In Wellington, the L. G. Greer and Morden factories will wind up the year's pack this week.

Toronto Tribune Quits Daily Field

Toronto, Nov. 3 —(CP)— The Daily Tribune, Leftist morning newspaper, after six months of publication, announced today it would cease temporarily as a daily as of tomorrow's edition. Starting Saturday the newspaper will return to the weekly field as "The Tribune." Before turning daily the weekly was known as "The Canadian Tribune."

Stewart Smith, former city controller, presided at a weekend meeting of certificate holders — contributors to the newspaper's $222,000 foundation fund — which heard a report of the trustees and decided that The Tribune's financial position did not warrant its continuation.

Oscar Kogan, general manager, told the meeting The Tribune's paid circulation was 7,000 daily, 8,000 short of the necessary figure. The foundation fund had fallen short of the $250,000 objective and of the amount subscribed $111,000 had been invested in the plant and losses were $100,000 on operation and $10,000 on promotion.

OBITUARY

JAMES FRASER PAUL

James Fraser Paul died suddenly of a heart seizure at his home, 16 Forin Street, shortly after noon on Saturday. He was at his place of business during the morning and it was soon after his return home that death occurred.

The late Mr. Paul, who was in his 62nd. year, was born on the 4th. concession of Thurlow township near Corbyville, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Paul. For some time he was in the employ of the Algoma Steel Company at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario and later he taught school at Croyden, Ont. Twenty four years ago he returned to Belleville and was engaged for a considerable time as bookkeeper with the firm of J. E. Walmsley & Company, wholesale grocers. Of late years he conducted a tobacco and news business on Victoria Avenue, near Front Street.

Mr. Paul was a member of the Tabernacle United Church and took an active part in the work of the congregation being a member of the Board of Stewards. Fraternally he was a prominent member of the Orange Order, being a Past Master of Benjamin Lodge No. 274, a Past Preceptor of the Royal Black Preceptory and a member of the Royal Scarlet.

Surviving are his wife, the former Lottie Pearl Martin; two sisters, Mrs. Levi Hampton and Mrs. Gean Talbot, also two brothers, Reginald Paul and Bertram Paul of the province of Saskatchewan; two uncles, Frasser Bell and Frank Bell, both of Newburg, Ontario.

MISS MARY S. HERDMAN

Miss Mary S. Herdman, who was well known in this city some years ago, died at her home in Toronto on Friday, Oct. 31st, after a brief illness. Her brother, the late John Herdman, was secretary of the Y.M.C.A. here at one time.

The late Miss Herdman was born at Pictou, N.S., and was a daughter of the late Rev. Andrew Herdman and the late Mrs. Herdman. For twenty years she was a missionary representing the Presbyterian Church in India and during the past twenty years she lived retired in Toronto.

Interment will take place here; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Candidates Will Be Asked to Outline Platform

At a joint meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce and the executive of the Belleville Property Owners' Association, it was dcided to call a meeting to be held in the Collegiate Institute, of all those aspiring to seats in civic government this year, who will be asked to give an account of their stewardship, or outline their platforms.

The meeting is called partly because of the lack of space facilities at the City Hall and secondly because the joint conference felt that number of people would be interested in hearing what candidates will have to say.

The date of the meeting will be announced later.

BOY OF FIVE DIES OF BURNS

McKeesport, Pa., Nov. 3 —(AP) — Five-year-old Robert Swalwell, Jr., wanted to be a real cowboy so Saturday he put on his Hallowe'en cowboy costume and with a playmate built a fire on a hill near his home. A few minutes later, Robert ran screaming down the hill, his cowboy suit aflame. Neighbors beat out the flames but Robert died yesterday.

New Substation On West Hill In Operation

The Belleville Utilities Commission had the new electric substation at the corner of Catharine and Sidney Streets in service over the weekend. It carried part of the load on the west side of the river from noon on Saturday to late Sunday evening.

The work at the station is not complete and it will not be placed in service continuously until it is completed but in case necessity it can be used. When completed it will serve all users West of the River and South of Moira Street, also the users on the West side of Front Street between the upper and lower bridges.

Although it is nearly three years ago that the orders were given for the station to be built, the decision to locate it at Sidney and Catharine Streets has turned out most satisiacorily as it is well placed to serve the new plants of the American Optical Company of Canada Ltd., and the Northern Electric Co. Ltd., and the Corbin Lock Co., of Canada Ltd.

Four Break-ins Of City Business Offices Reported

Police officers today were investigating a series of four breakins which occurred in various parts of the city during the weekend in which an office safe was smashed and drawers ransacked with an undetermined amount of cash being taken.

Some time during Saturday night the office of the Canada Bread Company on Moira Street, East, was entered with the office safe being smashed open with sledge hammers and a considerable amount of cash being taken. The loss was reported to police Sunday afternoon when an employee of the firm had occasion to visit the office.

Other offices entered were that of J. J. Trudeau, the Coca Cola Company and Lipson's store, where drawers were ransacked as the thieves apparently looked for cash.

At Trudeau's an amount of cash was reported taken, while nothing was reported missing at the Coca Cola plant although all derk drawers had been ransacked.

Police expressed the opinion that the break-in at the Canada Bread Company warehouse was the work of out-of-town men as several of the company's offices in other centres have been reported entered during the past few months.

At Lipson's Furniture Store drawers were also ransacked and an undetermined amount of cash and cheques reported taken.

Consul-General To Chicago Still Edmond Turcotte

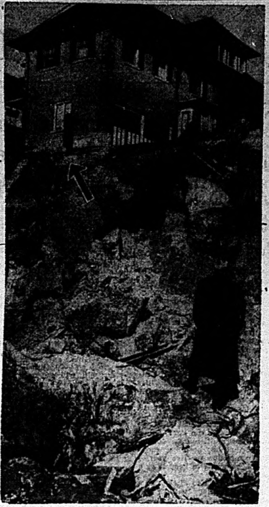
(By The Canadian Press)

Edmond Turcotte was still Canadas designated Consul-General to Chicago today, despite a civic furore somewhat reminiscent of the days when big Bill Thompson threatened to punch King George VI in the nose.

Mr. Turcotte, 49-year-old Montreal newspaper man, was appointed to the post Thursday, Oct. 30. On the same day, Col. Robert McCormick's Chicago Tribune accused him—quoting unnamed American sources in Ottawa—of "notorious anti-American expressions."

Subsequent development in order of occurrence, were:

1. It was reported that Canada's External Affairs Department had received protests and would transfer and re-assign him to a post elsewhere than in the United States.
2. External Affairs said not so; that Mr. Turcotte, it was expected, would take up his duties "later in the coming week."
3. Mr. Turcotte—who was born in the United States—professed himself an admirer of that country, while admitting occasional disagreement with the Tribune, which he said had pulled from its context a two-year-old reference to the "tawddiness of America," and wrongly applied it to the U.S.
4. Chicago's Mayor Martin Kennely said "we don't want any anti-Americans here, from Canada or any other nation." Seven city councillors and the President of a Woman's Federation said the same thing.
5. External Affairs Minister St. Laurent called the matter "a storm in a teacup" which in his view was cleared up by Mr. Turcotte's explanation of the misused quotation, pointed out that "the appointment of diplomats is arranged gith the governments of the countries to which they are appointed," and remarked that he would be surprised if Mayor Kennely tried to do anything about it except through the state department.



Landslide into new Clifton Rd. extension in Rosedale yesterday afternoon left the home of Lt.-Col. E. A. Olver right on the brink. Driveway and sidewalk were almost demolished as tons of earth cascaded, leaving the gate to the back entrance (arrow) swinging over nothing. Occupants have moved to the opposite end of the house.

Garvey Will Get 100 $1,000 Bills And Split With Friend Geo. Hester, Tells How He Came to Buy Ticket

Toronto, Nov. 3 (CP)— Fergus Garvey, 39-year-old rubber worker whose money dreams came true last Wednesday when Fairey Fulmar won the Cambridgeshire handicap in England, confirmed today that his friend George Hester, 68, will get one-half of the $100,000 winnings.

"As soon as I get the $100,000 from Ireland, I'm going to get 100 $1,000 bills, take George down into a bank vault and together we'll split the money," Garvey told the Daily Star.

"And, if anyone of the busybodies who are so worried about whether George is going to get his money would like to bring me $50,000, I'll gladly give them the ticket and they can collect the money for him — if George is willing."

Garvey, who "disappeared" when it became known he was a big sweepstakes winner, declared he was "in hiding." He went to Phelpston, 50 miles north of here, to share the sudden happiness with his wife and two children — and then to his mother's home at Downeyville, Ont., to talk things over with her, too.

Buying the Fortunate Ticket

It was back in July that Garvey made the move which finally brought him a fortune.

"My boss, Alex Fyfe, had saved the last ticket in (his) book for a fellow-worker. When he came to sell it to him, the chap said he had just bought his child a pair of shoes and couldn't afford to purchase the ticket. He then asked me and I took it."

That same night, Hester happened to remark that he had been unable to buy a sweeps ticket.

"I'll sell you have a share in mine," Garvey offered. Hester gave him $1.25 and "that's all there was too it."

Garvey's plans — unlike those of the traditional sweepstakes winner — don't include quitting his job. First of all, he'd like to buy a house and get his family together again and end the accommodation problem that has plagued the Garveys.

Planning the Future

"Then maybe a little trip would be in order. As far as my $50,000 is concerned, I think I'd like to invest about $40,000 of it at about three per cent. That would give me $100 a month coming in and, with what I can make working, the children can have a good education without touching the principal. If anything should happen to me or my wife, the $40,000 should give them a good start in life."

Here — from Fergus Garvey— is what it's like to win $100,000:

"I was so excited I nearly went crazy. I grabbed my nearly new hat and jumped up and down on it."

PHEASANTS SCARCE

Toronto, Nov. 3 —(CP)— The fish and wild life division of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests reported today that the two-day pheasant shoot last week disclosed a scarcity of pheasants.

Majority of the birds bagged by the hunters carried identifying leg bands which indicated they had been raised in captivity and released. Naturally-bred birds are said to have suffered from the severe winter.

POHL TO HANG,

The conviction of Pohl came on three counts—war crimes, crimes against humanity and membership in a criminal organization, namely the S.S.

The court asserted that Pohl and his aides built the death camps, erected guard towers manned by troops who shot and killed on whimsy, supplied vicious dogs which ripped helpless people to shreds and worked inmates until they were fit only for extermination.

Pohl and his men were convicted also of helping in infamous medical experiments on camp inmates, of systematically destroying the Warsaw ghetto, and making Reinhard Heydrick's "final solution of the Jewish question" possible.

Nineteen Nazis, high in the administration of Hitler's Third Reich, today were indicted on war crimes charges ranging from the waging of aggressive war to conducting fifth column activities in countries subsequently overrun by the Germans.

No. 1 defendant named in the indictment presented by Brig.-Gen. Telford Taylor, chief U. S. war crimes prosecutor, was Baron Ernst von Weizaecker, former ambassador to the Vatican.

Weizaecker, senior diplomat in Germany, was charged with urging the Japanese envoy to Germany in September, 1941, to impress on the Tokyo government Germany's wish that Japan attack Pearl Harbor.

Others named in the indictment, in what may be the last case to be prosecuted by U. S. authorities, included:

Dr. Ernest Woermann, chief of the political department of the foreign office.

Walther Darre, Reichmaster for food and agriculture.

Dr. Otto Meissner, secretary of state.

Dr. Otto Dietrich, Reich press chief.

Meissner, Lammers and Diefrich were charged with abetting Hitler's rise to power "in that they marshaled the financial, political and propaganda support necessary" when the Fuehrer suspended constitutional guarantees in Germany.

The prosecution accused some of the defendants with handling orders that amounted to murder and charged Lammers with approving a decree to kill all parachuting Allied airmen.

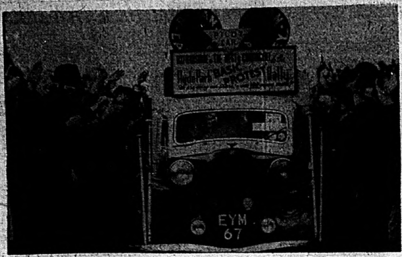
DEMONSTRATION RE GAS RATIONING HELD IN LONDON



Thousands or motorists from many parts of England converged on the west end of London to take part in the monster "Save the Basic Petrol Ration" demonstration held in Hyde Park at noon. Ten protest meetings were held in the park, and later six representatives of the motorists presented a petition to the minister of fuel. Biggest job of the rally fell to the police, who had to keep a check on the motorists as they entered London along the special routes previously fixed. Here, motorists cheer the car containing the deputation as it leaves Hyde Park, London, to drive to the ministry of fuel, where the petition was presented.

POLISH LEADER

that the ex-Premier had been on the station "until sometime after he left for London."

The news was immediately given to friends of Mikolajczyk in London, and messages sent to his wife, who has been anxiously awaiting word.

The official announcement ended the mystery which had surrounded Mikolajczyk's whereabouts since he dropped out of sight in Poland with a party of seven friends.

Both the Foreign Office and the Air Ministry said an R.A.F. plane carried the broad-shouldered Mikolajczyk to Britain. Apparently the plane was assigned under top secret orders.

Still lacking were the details of Mikolajcyzk's dramatic flight. There was speculation that he might have made his way across Poland and the Russian occupation zone in Germany to the British zone, that a special plane might have flown him from a secret Polish air base or that he fled his homeland by sea.

En Route to His Home.

After he landed in Britain a spokesman for the Polish Peasant Party said Mikolajczyk was en route to the home of his wife who has remained in Britain since the war. There, it was said, Mikolajczyk would meet with other officials of his party.

Since his flight the Polish Peasant Party in Poland has been remodelled along the lines favorable to the Communist-led Warsaw government. Informants in Warsaw have declared that Mikolajczyk's departure meant the end to organized political opposition to the present Polish regime.

There has been speculation that Mikolajczyk eventually might go to the United States to lead a fight from there against the government of Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz.

In unofficial quarters in London there had been a firm conviction that Mikolajczyk would turn up in Britain. During a portion of the war Mikolajczyk served as premier of the exiled Polish government in London.

He left Britain more than two years ago at the behest of Winston Churchill, then prime minister, to return to Poland to take part in the formation of a "provisional government of national unity." Ultimately he became the spearhead of the opposition to the Moscow-supported regime in Warsaw. Mikolajczyk's wife and 21-year-old son, Marjam, remained in Britain.

Hughes Makes Run In $25,000,000 Flying Boat

Long Beach, Calif., Nov. 3 — (AP) — The $25,000,000 flying boat that Howard Hughes built flew yesterday.

The maiden flight of about one mile at 70 feet above the choppy sea of Los Angeles-Long Beach harbor was as unpredictable as its millionaire builder and pilot.

Only Saturday he said Sunday's tests would be only taxi experiments, that he didn't expect to fly the giant craft, under construction nearly five years and subject to investigation by the Senate and Investigating Committee, until next March or April.

But on the third taxi run when Hughes gunned the eight 3,000-horsepower engines to speed the plywood behemoth to about 100 miles an hour it was virtually airborne.

"That felt so good, that I just took it off," Hughes grinned.

When he stepped ashore after the flight, to applause of 100 reporters, photographers, radio and television men, plus thousands of spectators lining docks, piers and the shoreline, Hughes was obviously as pleased as a small boy who had just made his first bicycle ride.

Three days before the Senate investigation into Hughes' $40,000,000 in plane contracts resumed in Washington, the flier said after the test hop:

"I think the airplane is going to be fairly successful. I had hoped to be able to take the plane up today but I didn't want to make any predictions. There were so many things that could have happened to prevent it."

Hughes plans to leave later this week for Washington. The investigation is into the $18,000,000 government contract on this craft and $22,000,000 contracts for four photographic planes, in the first of which Hughes crashed in the summer of 1946.

A reporter asked Hughes if he believed the test would have any effect on the attitude of committee members about his plane.

"I think not," replied Hughes. "I don't think, the committee is concerned whether the flying boat flies or not."

Apples, Pears Greater Than 1946 Season

Toronto, Nov. 3 (CP) —Ontario orchards yielded more apples and pears this year than in 1946, the Ontario Department of Agriculture announced today in its seasonal fruit and vegetable report. Yield of plums was up in Eastern Ontario, down in Western Ontario, and fewer peaches were harvested than in 1946.

The Western Ontario grape crop, estimated at 35,720 tons, exceeded 1946 yield by 10 per cent. Heavy frost during the week of Sept. 22 caused severe damage to all varieties of grapes in eastern Ontario and the report gave no estimate of the crop in that section.

For Western Ontario, the department gave this comparison with 1946 yields:

Apples, 496,800 barrels, up 13 per cent; plums, 258,880 bushels, down 13 per cent; peaches, 925,100 bushels, down 37 per cent; pears, 389,200 bushels, up 50 percent; grapes, 35,720 tons up 10 per cent.

A 53-per-cent increase in the apple crop is predicted for Eastern Ontario with the yield estimated at 371,200 barrels. Pears production estimated at 13,800 bushels shows an increase of 95 per cent over 1946. Plums, with total yield placed at 6,400 bushels, show an increase of 32 per cent.

Weather conditions were ascribed as generally unfavorable for late vegetables in both eastern and western Ontario. Both areas expected the potato crop would be below average.

Treated 'Like Prisoners' Choral Singers Charge

Toronto, Nov. 3. (CP)—Regina Strash, one of 45 Toronto singers refused admission to the United States at Detroit, charged today that U.S. Immigration officials had treated them "like prisoners".

The 45, members of the Bangos Choral Club, were said by the secretary of the Detroit Lithuanian Club to have been barred because of the club's alleged Communistic leanings.

Miss Strash, who denied that any of the singers had Communist tendencies, said: "We were herded into a room like cattle and treated like prisoners for five hours without food and the opportunity to telephone."

Her 18-year-old sister, Ida, said: We had no breakfast and by 1 p.m. we were all feeling rather faint. We asked why we were being held and the officials refused to say. I asked an immigration man, 'What if we refuse to leave here?' His reply was, 'We'll take you bodily back to Canada when we have finished with you.'"

The Saar and France

By a vote held in an atmosphere of perfect calm, the population of the Saar showed by a majority of some 90 per cent of the votes cast that it accepted the economic attachment of the Saar to France, says Albert Mousset in the French Information Service. He recalls that in January 13, 1935 plebiscite, the people terrorized by Nazi propaganda, had registered only 4,000 votes in favor of union with France although the supporters of economic union today number upwards of 400,000.

He quotes General De Gaulle's speech of 1945 defining France's position precisely with regard to the Saar: "Inasmuch as we are Western Europeans and in spite of what has arisen between us we should understand one another and work together. France's solution for a sincere, practical and humane agreement on the subject of Germany is simply — make the Saar Basin of which a large part was but lately torn away from us by the Treaty of Versailles part of the French economy."

The coal crisis gives new seriousness to this problem. M. George Bidault has spared no effort to rally the peace makers to the French point of view. "France," he says, "only claims the guarantees necessary to security. She has thus accepted the view that the territory of the former Reich be treated as an economic unit with the exclusion of the Saar which ought to be developed within the French framework."

The bonds between France and the Saar go back very far into the past. France ruled the Saar from 1680 to the Peace of Ryswick in 1697, from 1792 to 1815, from 1920 to 1935. Fortified by Vauban, the city of Saarlouis belonged to France from 1680 to 1815 without interruption. The Saar was declared free at the time of the Revolution. It was the country of Marshal Ney, the "bravest of the brave." Landua and Saarlouis were represented a tthe time of the Revolution, at the Fete of the Federation when they proclaimed their reunion with the Republic as one and indivisible. In 1793 Landau maintained an heroic siege at the issue of which the Convention declared that the city "had deserved well of the country." The whole Saar basin thus became French in the midst of an enthusiasm described by Goethe: the vote of the peoples, recorded in the trembling petitions that the National Archives preserve today, proclaim their union to the Republic "in one and hte same family." Certainly cities like Impflingen, insisted on specifying that their vote was only inspired by "love of country." Others, like Deux-Ponts, expressed the desire "to be sheltered from the wars that the despots of Germany stirred up every 20 years in their country, most often for objectives which are wholly foreign to them."

This desire to collaborate with France finds its retrospective justification in the wise administration established in the country, it is said. France was the first to develop the mines: a school of mines was founded by Napoleon at Geslautern on the left bank of the Saar and the results that it obtained awakened the covetous desires of the Prussian metallurgists of which an agent, Boeking, led, in 1814 and 1815, a campaign for the enumeration of the supporters in favor of annexation to Prussia.

It is not a question today of making the Saarlanders "French by force." Political annexation is an outmoded formula, not by international morals only but by the most elementary political realism. The problem of the Saar then, it is claimed, does not represent a calculation of territorial expansion for France and that it is within the framework of the organization of European peace the realization of an economic equilibrium in which French and Saarlander should find an equal advantage under a regime of freely accepted co-operation.

Education

Education Week serves a fine opportunity to bring parents and others more closely into touch with the progress and development of education.

Modern education has come to know more about the child and his needs in an expanding world of interest. The school that the grandparents of present day scholars attended served its time and generation. Even then education was a living thing and it grew as it is growing now and will continue to grow.

It is widening its bounds more and more. There was a day when all were trained in much the same mould but it is not so today. The special needs of certain pupils are especially looked after so that they may have the fullest opportunity of being prepared for their adult lives.

Looking at the fine buildings of modern schools, at the playgrounds and at the comfort provided the children at school the grandfather of present day scholars might be pardoned if he were to sigh as he thought of days long past when there were no such comforts, when school buildings were not the commodious structures they are today and when some of the studies taught today were not taught.

Education grows and will continue to grow. The scholars and pupils of today are bright and alert, showing the result of the best modern training. Education has deep at heart the needs of the children and is preparing them to play their part well in the coming age when they will be the adults and the leaders in the life of the future.

Education keeps in step with the march of invention and with the deepening knowledge of science.

It offers the opportunity for a boy and girl to find the best way that leads to the development of their natural gifts along the lines for which they are best fitted to play their part in the world when they are adults.

Health plays no small part in the thoughts of the people and it accordingly occupies no small place in the work of the schools.

Education today seeks the interest of parents in its work so that the aims of training may be fully realized in the best possible training for the future.

Here Today—Gone Tomorrow

We cannot help feeling that it is unwise to release news of the "rediscovery" of the North Magnetic Pole just as thousands of boys and girls are resuming study of geography, geology, physics, geometry, algebra and other so-called "exact" sciences.

Realization that the Magnetic Pole — supposedly the sure guide of mariners and basis of all sorts of scientific calculations—is a fickle wanderer, ranging the Arctic regions practically at will and actually eluding the savants for 15 years, may well engender a "what's the use?" attitude among junior science students.

Indeed, it may shake their none too firm faith in all school-acquired knowledge. While we advocate freedom of the press on principle, we wonder whether the government might not have been wise to temporarily suppress news of the Pole's peregrinations. — Montreal Herald.

Lure of the North

Despite the lack of adequate sleeping and dining accommodation, more than 6,000 persons took out permits to travel over the Alaska Highway during the past season.

Canada's Northland is rugged and challenging. Probably just because it is challinging does it hold such a lure. There are people from the Southern States, for instance, who make their way up to the end of steel at Moosonee, the entrance to James Bay.

These tourists take the black flies, the mosquitoes and the rather primitive conditions of the North in their stride. As long as there are railroads and highways, there will always be people who want to go to the end of them—if only to see what is there.—Windsor Daily Star.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL

I wonder is it envy or regret for what I've missed!
No pennant on the bedroom wall, no place on glory's list;
No sweater with a letter and no emblem made of gold.
No ring upon my finger—and for these things now too old—
But through every football season I am one among the throng
To share the thrills of college and to cheer the boys along.

It is more than love of action that attracts me to the stand.
There's the group that leads the cheering and the music of the band,
And the crowds that wear the colors of the two competing teams
Which a little fellow cherished as the fondest of his dreams.
Though he never realized it, when they sing the college song,
He likes to stand bare-headed paying tribute with the throng.

Oh, there must be thousands present who in this resemble me:
No sweater with a letter and no watch chain with a key;
No sheepskin phrased in Latin to display with honest pride,
But there to share the rapture of a dream that was denied.
So I hail the football season and the game with all its thrills,
For the hopes a youngster cherished, all in vain, it now fulfills.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Is the U. S. Chamber of Commerce a Government organization?

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America—popularly but improperly called the United States Chamber of Commerce — although formed at a conference called at Washington in 1912 by President Taft, is in no sense a Government organization.

It is a super chamber of commerce—a federation of some 1600 local chambers of commerce, boards of trade, national trade associations and similar bodies. It publishes a monthly magazine called The Nation's Business and its chief functions are to co-ordinate and express the views of its member bodies, supply trade information and general to serve the commercial organizations of the whole nation as the local units serve their communities or industries.

There is no Federal law prohibiting the use of "United States" in the names of private companies and associations. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States of America, like the United States Steel Corporation, the United States Rubber Company and many other private concerns, merely incorporated part of the official name of the nation in its organization name. The name indicates that the organization serves the business interests of the whole country and not those of one city, region or State.

Chambers of commerce, trade organizations and associations of businessmen formed to protect and promote the commercial interests of the members originated in Europe after the disintegration of the guilds. The chamber of commerce at Marseille, France, the earliest such organization on record, grew out of a committee of merchants organized in 1599.

The first American organiaztion of this kind was The New York Chamber of Commerce, founded in 1768 and incorporated by a royal charter from King George III in 1770. A chamber of commerce was organized at Charleston, South Carolina, in 1773, and in 1839 the businessmen of Cincinnati organized the first chamber of commerce west of the Alleghenies.

In Europe chambers of commerce and boards of trade often are official organizations; in the United States they are private organizations and have no direct connection with the Federal, State or local governments. Chambers of commerce and boards of trade may represent all the business interests of a city, region or the whole country, or they may represent only one industry or a number of related industries.

CONSERVATIVES

Lord Woolton said that the elections showed that "the voters of the country have no confidence in the government.

"I believe the government . . . should recognize that the House of Commons no longer represents the political convictions of democracy and should seek another mandate."

Reflects Discontent

While opinions on the significance of the Conservative gains were divided most observers expressed the opinion that the voting reflected growing public discontent with shortages and restrictions — climaxed by reduction in the bacon ration to one ounce a week and the elimination of gasoline allowances for non-essential motoring.

Labor party spokesmen minimized the importance of the voting and made plain the government had no intention of altering its legislative program for the coming year — which includes further nationalization of vital industries and curtailment of the historic powers of the House of Lords.

Conservatives on the other hand, took heart from their successes and some elements —notably the Conservative Daily Telegraph—expressed belief they had a good chance of blocking the measure to trim the authority of the Lords.

Lord Woolton's demand for a new election was ridiculed by Morgan Phillips, secretary of the Labor party, who declared that only a major defeat in the House of Commons—where Labor holds a 395 of 640 seats —could bring about a change.

"All that has happened is that Labor's unprecedented run of success in local government elections since 1945 has been temporarily halted," he said.

Returns from two of the boroughs voting in England and Wales Saturday still are to be announced.

London Did Not Vote

The outcome in the remaining boroughs showed the Conservatives had won 1,236 Council seats compared with the previous holding of 618, while Labor won 831 compared with 1,475 at the last elections.

Those voting yesterday, together with 3,000,000 eligible to vote in Scotland's borough elections next Tuesday, represent about 50 per cent of the parliamentary electorate. The other 50 per cent live in areas with different voting timetables.

London, which Labor has held since 1934, did not vote Saturday, nor did many anti-labor farm areas.

The only place where Labor gained control of a new council was Llanelly, Welsh coat port. In Bootle, Liverpool suburb, Labor won equal representation with an anti-labor coalition of Conservatives and Independents.

In Birmingham the Conservatives gained eight seats to wipe out Labor's majority on the municipal council. The new strength is Labor 68, Conservatives 65, Independents three.

Labor also lost control of the Manchester City Council, although in industrial Sheffield the government party gained four seats from "Progressive" and strengthened its topheavy majority.

National Issues Involved

Labor's vote was cut to such an extent that the Attlee party lost previous majorities in Rugby, Lincoln, Reading, Rochester and the London suburb of Wembley.

National issues were deeply involved in the municipal elections Prime Minister Attlee's supporters had invited local voters to elect candidates who would help the central government to reach its Socialistic objectives. Conservatives said voters should oppose Labor plans to reduce the power of local governments and concentrate authority in the national administration at London.

The surprising feature of the elections; was that Labor's chief losses were in the industrial centres where the party normally is strongest. Labor members from constituencies where fuel cuts, supply restrictions and Labor direction plans would bear most severely, have been among the most critical of the cabinet and directed their fire particularly at Emanuel Shinwell, who recently was removed from his Fuel Ministry post.

THE ASSIMILATION OF SPAGETTI

The couple drove up to the restaurant in a car which still smelled new. They were perhaps fifty. I'd be willing to bet fifty-fifty, judging entirely by the brand new car, their obvious effort to appear accustomed to it and the gentleman's easy informal way of wielding his toothpick, that they had just come into it.

At dinner the lady had spaghetti. Spaghetti is mainly carbohydrate, starch— prepared in the Italian way with cheese, tomato paste etc., it is a dish fit for a king.

The lady (eh?) had teeth, all right, whether her own or some she was wearing on approval I could not say, but she wasn't using them. She didn't inhale the spaghetti, she drank it.

In that the lady was only doing what most Americans do when eating. Why wear your teeth out chewing food when you can gulp it down just as it comes or wash it down with your drink?

Now I've just been rained off the bowling green and I'm feeling mighty low, but having come this far I'll try to explain how to assimilate spaghetti. It is immaterial whether you wind it into a ball on your fork and pitch shove or slide it in, or carve it into little fagots or bundles which you can convey to your mouth on your fork. In order to get the full nutritional benefit of it, and no untoward effects, you must chew every mouthful of it, particularly if you are a potential diabetic.

According to Dr. Elliott J. Joslin one out of every four persons in this country is a potential diabetic, that is to say he or she has inherited the tendency from parents or grandparents. The child does not inherit the tendency if one parent alone is or was a diabetic, provided the other parent did not have the tendency inherited from his or her parents or grandparents.

Not every one who is a "carrier" of the tendency develops diabetes, but any one who has inherited the tendency should have a care how he or she lives, for the sake of health and longevity. If you are interested in this question of the tendency to diabetes send ten cents (in negotiable condition without laundering or dry cleaning) and stamped envelope bearing your address and ask in writing for booklet Training for Diabetes.

If you are in such all-fired hurry to wolf a meal it would be better to gulp down chunks of meat, egg, fowl or fish, for such food is as readily digested in chunks as it is in finely chopped or chewed condition.

Spaghetti, or any other food consisting largely of starch, must be chewed because cookd starch is digested by the ptyalin (amylase) in the saliva, provided the saliva is well mixed with the food as is during chewing. This salivary digestion of cooked starch occurs not only while the food is being chewed but it continues for half an hour to an hour after the food has been swallowed.

If such food is swallowed without chewing an extra burden is placed upon the pancreatic digestion, including the production of insulin by the Islands of Langerhans in the pancreas, and when is forced to work overtime, so to speak, for year after year, its function is more likely to fail—and that means diabetes.

The question of the normal digestion and assimilation of starch foods such as potato, rice wheat, flour, corn or corn meal, peas, beans and other cereals and vegetables, or various manufactured products containing these, is only part of the reason why it pays to keep your teeth in good functional condition. Another reason is that proper mastication of chewing of cereals and vegetables insures assimilation of the minerals and vitamins these foods supply.

The Appendix

I underwent a major operation during which they removed the appendix—there was nothing wrong with it but they said it has no function and so they removed it to prevent possible future trouble and another operation. My friend had a similar operation but they did not remove the appendix because they said there was nothing wrong with it. Now we want to know whether the appendix has a function.

Answer — It has no function.

Early Drive Predicted to Purge Labor Unions of Communist Tieup

(By The Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Nov. 3 (CP)— Labor sources are predicting an early drive to "house-clean" several Canadian unions of their Communist tie-ups.

The hand of Canadian Congress of Labor leaders in this move was strenghthened considerably by the recent C.C.L. convention in Toronto, which voted a strong condemnation of Communism and followed this up by tossing off its executive two officers who had not favored this denunciation.

Follow-up steps are anticipated shortly. The tipoff on future developments may emerge at next week's annual convention of the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) at Atlantic City.

George Burt Canadian director of the U.A.W. was one of those dropped from the C.C.L. executive. Burt is not a Communist, but he has surrounded himself with a number of Red and fellow-travelling henchmen. The fate of Burt, and his Red associates, at Atlantic City will help set the pattern for anti-communist moves in other Canadian labor groups.

Pay

The Civil Service Federation of Canada will hold its annual convention here this week and delegates are expected to renew demands for salary increases for government employees all across the country.

Various civil service bodies have already made several requests for pay increases, but so far they have not been acted upon. The bodies have claimed that as a result of recent increases in the cost-of-living many civil servants in lower wage brackets have been reduced to a state of actual want.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King recently told one of the bodies that he would see that the question of civil service salaries was studied by the cabinet as soon as possible.

However, since that announcement about three ago, no indication of government action has been received. Unless assurances comes before the annual convention that salary increases are imminent the delegates are expected to urge that steps be taken immediately to see that action

Canadians Went from Barter To Banking 130 Years Ago

Bank of Montreal, Canada's First-established Bank, Gave Colonists Their First Real Money—Founded Canadian Branch Banking System in 1817

B of M Completes 30 Years on Second Century of Operation

Ontario's oldest banking institution will be 130 years old next Monday.

Oldest in Canada, as well as in Ontario, the Bank of Montreal, although organized in Quebec, had two branches in this province within eight months of its foundation — one at York and another at Kingston — and, today, the bank has substantially more offices in Ontario than in any other province of the Dominion.

It was in 1817 that the first regular stage-coach run began between Kingston and York. That same historic year saw the founding of Canada's first permanent bank — the B of M. as millions of Canadians now call it. The date was November 3, and thus next Monday will mark the bank's 130th anniversary.

In all the intervening years, the B of M has opened for business on every single banking day —an impressive proof of how closely and continuously the bank's work has been woven into the vast progress of the country since colonial days.

Pioneer Days.

A good account of early times has come down from James Croll, a British settler who later became a Bank of Montreal shareholder for the extraordinary span of 60 years.

"When I began farming in Ontario," Mr. Croll's recollections begin, "we had neither mowing nor reaping nor threshing machines, and the women had no sewing machines. . . . The postage on a letter from Ontario to Halifax was two shillings threepence. . . . There was no money in circulation in those days. . . . Everything was done by barter . . ."

Mr. Croll wrote those words referring to Canadian conditions at a time a good deal later in the nineteenth century than 1817. It can be imagined how difficult life was in that even more primitive day.

When the Montreal Bank, as it was then known, first opened its doors, the population of Canada was just about half a million. Trade was carried on principally by barter, and to a lesser extent by the use of American, British, French, Spanish and Portuguese money.

Canada's First Money.

At the very outset, the young bank issued its own bills in small denominations and, later, copper tokens. This money, indeed, was the first real Canadian currency. The innovation did much to stabilize and speed up commerce and industry, which had hitherto been subject to the varying rates of exchange of the several currencies in use.

This was but one aspect of the bank's major contribution to the Canadian economy. That contribution amounted to nothing less than ending the chaos in which business was transacted and organizing the first domestic financial system of Canada.

So well did the bank succeed that this system has since evolved without ever losing its stability, no matter how critical the times or how rapid the country's growth. Thus, through more than a century and a quarter, the Canadian economy has survived two major wars and several minor ones, as well as periodic depressions and civil unrest. It has expanded many times since 1817 and has won world recognition for its rare combination of dynamic growth and steadiness.

Much of the nation's economic strength derives from another principal which the bank introduced in Canada. This was the branch-banking system. Within a fortnight of the opening of the first office in Montreal, an agency was started in Quebec City. In the following year the B of M opened a branch at York —, the Queen City's first bank — and another at the garrison town of Kingston.

Spreading Branches.

As the years passed, the bank spread its branches all over Canada. During the early 1840's, it opened branches at Bytown, now Ottawa, at St. Thomas, Belleville, St. Catharines, Brockville, Hamilton and London.

In the opening of the West which the B of M facilitated by placing its resources behind Canada's first transcontinental railway, the Canadian Pacific, its branches went hand in hand with the pioneers and were established at key points from coast to coast at an early date.

The bank contributed vitally to many phases of home-front activity in both world wars. In peace as well as war, the strength, swift progress and high standard of living of the young country can be attributed in a unique degree to the policies of its oldest bank. And the B of M has grown with the country.

The bank began with a capital of $250,000 and a staff of seven. At the present time its capital and reserves amount to $78,000,000. Its resources are close to the two-billion mark, and its staff numbers more than 8,000. It has over 500 branches, including offices in Newfoundland, New York, London, Chicago and San Francisco. Its depositors number more than 1,500,000—about one out of every five bank depositors in the nation.

Thus, the bank that nine colonial merchants started in such a modest way 130 years ago, has become, indeed an integral part of the life of the nation.

George W. Spinney, C.M.G., president of the Bank of Montreal for the past five years of the bank's 130-year history. A member of the staff since 1906, he joined the bank as a junior at his native town of Yarmouth, N.S.

Mr. Spinney served at a number of posts in the bank before his appointment as assistant to the general manager in 1922. In 1928 he was appointed an assistant general manager and eight years later he became general manager. During the war, Mr. Spinney was chairman of the First Victory Loan Campaign and for two years he was chairman of the National War Finance Committee.

B. C. Gardner, vice-president and general manager of the Bank of Montreal, who is also president of the Canadian Bankers' Association and a vice-president of the American Bankers' Association.

Mr. Gardner, whose wide experience in banking includes service in England, the United States and Newfoundland, as well as in eastern and western Canada, became an assistant general manager of the bank in 1935. In 1942, he assumed the duties of general manager of the organization and two years later became a director and vice-president.

H. N. Becker, Manager of B of M Here, Began Career at St. Mary's

Veteran of First Great War is Greatly Interested in Veterans' Affairs

Mr. H. N. Becker, manager of the Bank of Montreal branch here, celebrated his 33rd year of service with the institution a year ago when he succeeded retiring manager Thomas H. Dredge.

Now in his 34th year of service with the bank, Mr. Becker looks back with justifiable pride to over three decades of association with the institution.

Born in Waterloo, Ontario, Mr. Becker received his public school education in the Western Ontario city, later graduating from the Kitchener-Waterloo High School.

He entered the Molsons Bank in St. Mary's, Ont., in January, 1913, and after graduating from the junior ranks of the service, received his first appointment as accountant in his native Waterloo in 1926.

After serving in that capacity there for the next three years, he was transferred to the Windsor, Ont., branch in the same capacity and after remaining there for a year, was given his first managerial position as head of the Tavistock, Ont., branch. Serving there for 3 years he was brought to Ontario Superintendents branch, Toronto, and shortly after was sent to North Bay as manager of the bank's branch in that city.

Came Here From Renfrew.

His managerial experience has been achieved in such centres as Norwich, Ont., Richmond, Que., and Renfrew, Ont. He remained in the latter place until a year ago when he was transferred to Belleville.

Mr. Becker left the service of the bank temporarily during World War I, enlisting with the 25th Battalion, C.E.F., and after going overseas and seeing action in France, transferred to the Royal Flying Corps with which he remained until the cessation of hostilities. During his army service he was wounded and gassed at the now famous battle of Passchendale.

HENRY N. BECKER

With his record of service as a background, Mr. Becker naturally takes a keen interest in the affairs of war veterans, not only of those of the First Great War, but the young veterans of World War II. While in Renfrew, he was appointed vice-president of the Canadian Legion branch and also was vice president of the Rotary Club of that city.

Ardent Sportsman.

An ardent hunter and fisherman, Mr. Becker puts aside the worries of office duty and quite often takes to rod and reel and lake and stream. Also a hunter of more than passing ability, he keenly enjoys that sport when in season. "Inside" activities finds him quite often enjoying a game of bridge with his friends, and he is recognized in local bridge circles as a player of no mean ability.

Mr. Becker is married and has one son, Bruce, who at present is the accountant in a branch of the Bank of Montreal.

PRIVILEGE WITHDRAWN

Halifax, Nov. 1 — (CP)—Mailing privileges have been withdrawn from "several" Nova Scotians for violation of regulations regarding lotteries, a post office official said here today.

Commenting on a Saint John, N. B., report that three sweepstake salesmen there had been warned they may lose such privileges, the official said department regulations forbidding lottery-by-mail were "followed right along."

Names of affected persons were not divulged, nor did the official say when or how many persons had lost the use of the mails.

Local Branch of Bank of Montreal Established Here 104 Years Ago

A few lumbering camps, a scattering of wooden and brick houses connected by sawdust-covered streets was the picture presented by Belleville when, in the latter part of 1843, the Bank of Montreal opened an office here. One of the earliest branches of the B of M, the local office was opened at a time when the bank was beginning to expand in Ontario and give the region helpful banking service.

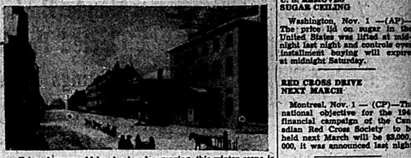
Since that far-off day, 104 years ago, the development of Belleville has been reflected in, and materially aided by, the bank, which has expanded in keeping with the ever-increasing needs of the city. Opened in a one-room building on Victoria Avenue, the bank has three times moved to new quarters in order to extend its services.

Last Move in 1922.

The city's development being exceptionally rapid between 1911 and 1922, the bank found it necessary, in 1922, to move to its present spacious quarters. This three-storey, brick and stone structure, with its fine oak fixtures, is situated on the corner of Front and Bridge streets.

In charge of the city's office since last November when he succeeded Tom Dredge, still a resident here, is Henry N. Becker, one of more than a dozen capable and popular men who have represented the bank as managers during the past century.

CANADA'S FIRST BANK BUILDING



Taken from an old hand-colored engraving, this winter scene is a view of St. James Street, Montreal, as it appeared in 1830, thirteen years after the Bank of Montreal's founding. The building on the right was the first head office of the bank, which served as headquarters for the B of M from 1819 to 1848. This was the first building especially constructed for banking purposes in Canada. Today a post office stands on this site, while adjacent to it, facing historic Place d'Armes, is situated the bank's present head office building, completed and occupied in 1848.

9 Men of Vision...

PROVED THEIR FAITH IN CANADA

...130 Years Ago

An exhausted Europe—torn by decades of war—was breathing more easily . . . two years before, the Napoleonic Wars had at last ended at Waterloo. In the New World, the three-year-old Treaty of Ghent had ended an attempted invasion from the south . . . and the peoples of North America began a friendship that is the admiration of the world today.

1817 . . . Sturdy colonists of British North America—half a million of them—were scattered over as many square miles. To the west and north lay another two million square miles, unsettled and untouched. Merchants and traders did their business by barter and with a hodge-podge of foreign currencies, whose changing values spelled chaos. Trade development languished.

INTO this scene came nine men of vision . . . nine English and Scottish merchants who realized that, without a solid financial foundation, the colonies could never reach nationhood. Together, they determined a course of action. With their own money and the backing of 209 other pioneering citizens, these nine men founded the Bank of Montreal, which opened its doors for business on November 3rd, 1817. Never once since then has the Bank failed to open on a business day.

AT the very outset, the Bank issued its own bills and coins. Here was Canada's first real money. The currency won immediate acceptance . . . goods moved more quickly . . . and the stability the nine men hoped for came rapidly. The people proudly welcomed this Canadian currency—and, as its circulation spread, so did the reputation of the new bank. Within a year of its founding it became the Government's banker, and its currency officially replaced the British money used by the Government up to that time.

JUST two weeks after the Bank started, Canada's first branch bank was founded . . . the B of M's Quebec agency opened—and, thus, the Canadian branch banking system began. The following year saw agencies opened at Kingston and York, now Toronto, and branches spread as the years went on. Hailed throughout the world for its strength and flexibility, this system of branch banking—begun 130 years ago—has proved ideal for a country vast in area and small in population.

BUT all was not easy. There were hard, trying days ahead—each decade had its ups and downs. From 1836 to 1840, Canada experienced a succession of bad harvests, political convulsions, commercial changes and failures. Rebellion had depreciated the value of property and seriously hindered the improvement and further settlement of the country. The Bank of Montreal survived only by the most careful use of its resources and the confident loyalty of its depositors.

RECOVERY was rapid during the middle years of the century. Then came 1867 . . . and a nation was born. But a trans-continental railway was a condition of Confederation, and now the Canadian Pacific had to be pushed through. To speed the construction, the enterprise was placed in private hands. The work went fast, and the last spike was driven five years earlier than expected. With faith characteristic of its nine founders, the B of M had backed to the limit this great national project.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY BELONGS TO CANADA—Laurier

1900—the century opened with a new flood of prosperity which lasted for more than a decade: Two more trans-continental railway systems . . . a great influx of new settlers . . . abundant crops . . . thousands of new industries—and then . . . World War I! Through the trying times which followed . . . the inflated days of the 20's and the depressed days of the 30's—through a second World War in our time . . . Canadians worked and fought, and Canada became a world power.

1947—Peace . . . new plans . . . new hopes . . . rehabilitation. Life in Canada still takes work, courage and, above all, vision . . . the kind of vision which spurred nine men to pioneer the nation's economy 130 years ago. From a corporal's guard in 1817, the staff of the B of M has grown to an army eight thousand strong . . . working closely with Canadians and their industries in hundreds of communities from coast to coast . . . supplying the lifeblood of credit to an expanding nation . . . seeking always—through sound counsel and friendly service—to give practical help to the million and a half customers who put their trust in the Bank.

What of Tomorrow . . . ? Just as history foreshadows the future, so the record of Canada and of her first-established bank working together gives promise of bright tomorrows for the nation. "The twentieth century belongs to Canada" . . . and for that future we pledge ourselves anew to work constructively with Canadians in every walk of life.

ONTARIO and the B of M Have Grown Up Together

Business by barter, travel by stagecoach . . . such was the order of the day when the Bank of Montreal began business in Upper Canada. Within eight months of its founding in November, 1817, the B of M—Canada's first-established bank—opened agencies in the garrison town of Kingston and the trading settlement of York. Typical settlers of the time, the thousand citizens of York lived by farming, lumbering, and trading with the Indians.

Since that far-off day, Ontario has become the most populous and highly industrialized Canadian province . . . and the B of M has built up its largest representation here. Soon, the new 16-storey B of M building will be numbered among Toronto's many beautiful edifices . . . typical of the progress Ontario and the Bank of Montreal have made together.

Today, the B of M serves the people of this modern-minded province through 189 branches and is constantly adding to this number.

Happy Gathering Presents Shower Of Linen Gifts

3rd. Sidney — Wednesday evening, Oct. 29th., the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Ray, Third of Sidney, was the scene of a happy gathering when about forty friends and relatives gathered to honor Mrs. Fred Edmondson, (nee Dorothy Ray) with a shower of linen gifts.

Mr. Arthur Greenwood, of Belleville, was the Master of Ceremonies for the presentation of a short but "spicey" program, which began with community singing, the pianist being Miss Evelyn Ray.

"Whistle, Dorothy, Whistle" was a song given by Misses Doreen and Lorna Ray; a reading, "The Thanksgiving Turkey" by Mrs. Bernard Hollinger, and another, "Mother's Council" by Mrs. Clair Weege were enjoyed. A song by Junior Miss Marilyn Hollinger and a recitation, by Marie Hollinger followed.

Humorous verses were read, which had been composed for the occasion by Mr. Everett Hubble on "The Romance of Freddie and Dorothy," and created considerable amusement. Fine poetry had also been prepared by Mrs. A. Greenwood, which really was in the form of an address for the presentation of lovely gifts. In reply Mr. Edmondson expressed appreciation of the sentiment and for the gifts, and, on behalf of himself and Mrs. Edmondson, extended a cordial invitation for visitors at their home on the third line of Sidney township.

Delicious refreshments including sandwiches, cakes, ice cream and coffee were served and an enjoyable social hour spent.

Mrs. Hollinger conducted a contest, originated with the surnames of the families represented in the gathering, as the answers to the questions.

Red Cross Donates $500 to Coe Hill Relief Fund

A meeting of the executive committee of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held last week with Mr. M. P. Duff presiding.

The branch decided to comply with a request from headquarters to assist the Coe Hill Tornado Relief to the extent of $500.

The reception hut at the C.N.R. station has been sold to Mr. R. Lockyer to be equipped as a home for Mr. D. R. Buchanan, a veteran with family who is badly in need of living quarters.

It was decided to establish the Visiting Homemaker Service in the city and a special committee was authorized to proceed with the necessary steps to set up this service, which is somewhat similar to that of the V.O.N. but provides a homemaker for an emergency period of time, while the mother is absent or ill. Further information will appear in the press soon.

Mrs. Bulger was appointed convener of the Women's Work Committee. Plans were made to order materials and open the work rooms soon for much needed sewing and knitting.

The treasurer, Mr. Lancaster, presented bills to the amount of $42.20.

Women's Activities

QUINTE W.I.

It seemed that "once again 'tis Spring", for a large raspberry branch, bearing several ripe berries and some green fruit was on display at the October meeting of the Quinte W.I., when Mrs. Stanley Macdonald, of Shannonville, was hostess and the President, Mrs. G. Bradshaw was in charge.

Business matters included application for the annual legislative grant to be used for educational purposes. A suggestion that swimming classes for children be conducted during the Summer of 1948, was laid over for further consideration. Mrs. Fred Mitchell and Mrs. G. Bradshaw were chosen as delegates to the Area Convention. Final arrangements were made for serving afternoon tea at the Area Convention.

Members responded to the Roll Call with "Local Happenings".

Mrs. Sandercock, convener for community activities, presented a program which included: A poem, "Daddy is Back to Work", depicting the anxieties of a striker's family with the Christmas season approaching and their joy when the father returned to work. "Our Life's Journey", a reading by Mrs. Montgomery and another reading by Mrs. N. Brown, "Cooking a Husband", were followed by two selections by Mrs. Maguire, "Friends" and "The Cow", and a reading by Mrs. Montgomery, "Just 'Sposin' the Case".

Refreshments were served by Mesdames H. Greatrix, K. Vivian, S. Macdonald and W. D. Robinson.

Rally Held in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, Over the Weekend

The annual Fall Rally of the South Hastings District Y.P.U., was held in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, on Saturday afternoon and evening, November 1. Harold Hagerman, president, presided over the sessions in a very capable manner.

The afternoon's program began with a Worship Service, which was in keeping with the program theme 'Christ of the Upward Way'. Those taking part were Jessie Hart, Loretta McDougall and Maude Burke.

Welcome Extended

A sincere welcome was extended, by Rev. R. W. Barker, minister of St. Paul's Church, and also by Harold Hagerman. Theme speaker for both sessions was Rev. G. Earl Leard, M.A., secretary of Boys' Work and Young People's Work of Toronto.

In the afternoon Rev. Leard spoke on the theme 'Christ of the Upward Way'. He outlined the organization of the Young People's Union of the United Church from the National Union down to the ten Conference Unions, down to the 115 Presbytery Unions and then down to the 2,600 local unions with a membership across the Dominion and Newfoundland of 56,000—the strongest youth group in Canada. He emphasized the need to put Christ in the centre of all activities that we may accomplish the true purpose of the group, to gather young people into the Christian Fellowship of the Church and lead them to commit their lives to 'Christ of the Upward Way'.

Divide Into Groups

The rally then divided into four Commission Groups, which discussed the work of the different departments for one hour. The decisions of the groups will be forwarded to each local union by the Secretary, Jean Badgley.

Leaders of the groups were: Fellowship, Rev. F. R. Harback; Missions, Rev. R. W. Barker; Citizenship, Rev. P. H. Christensen; Culture and Recreation, Loretta McDougall.

At 4.30 the members adjourned to Stirling High School gymnasium where Miss Willehmine Huffman, recreation convener, led in a lively period of games.

The banquet was a most excellent meal, catered to by the W.A., of St. Paul's. Miss Mabel Chapman expressed appreciation to the W.A., to which Mrs. Elliott, president, responded. Loretta McDougall then led in an enjoyable sing-song, during which three new songs were learned. Miss Georgina Huffman welcomed the group on behalf of Stirling Union, of which she is president.

Outlines Aims

Raymond Gunsolus, president of Belleville Presbytery, outlined the aims and projects of the Presbytery, enlisting the support of the unions.

Gaynor Rendell, Conference Citizenship convener, and Gerald McCaul, Boys' Work convener for the Presbytery, spoke on the work of their departments.

The Moira Lake Camp Site project was outlined by Rev. A. L. Shorten and an appeal made for the unions to do their share in raising the $2,000, allocation for the Presbytery.

Theme Address

Rev. Mr. Leard's second theme address was 'Forward With Christ'. In speaking of Moses' advice to the dissatisfied children of Israel to "stand still and see the Salvation of God", Rev. Mr. Leard pointed out that "that was before Jesus' day. Now we have His example to strengthen us and the Power of the Risen Lord always to help us when we get in tune with Him. This necessitates a complete religious experience", said Mr. Leard.

"We must go forward with Christ into the areas of knowledge, beliefs, and attitudes. We must study our Bible, the history of the Church and our Christian faith. Let us not underestimate the power of this Christianity we embrace".

Illustrating with the story of the little boy, who fell out of bed 'because,' he said, 'I stayed too close to the place where I got in,' Mr. Leard stated that this is true of many church people —'we stay too close to where we got in. The potential strength of our Christian youth movement is sufficient to change the way of life offered by Communism or any other undermining force but conviction is necessary and a close strengthening fellowship and purpose knitting all together."

"The things we want to be accomplished by the church must be done in and through us," said Mr. Leard in conclusion. What John Wesley said is still true—'The world has yet to see what God can do with a life, wholly consecrated to Him."

Officers Installed

The installation of officers and the candlelighting service was conducted by Rev. A. L. Shorten. Assisting were Luella Homan, Doris Baxter and Gerald McCaul. This was a very impressive service as each member pledged to the new executive their support during the coming year. The service was concluded with the singing of the theme hymn 'Forward, Be Our Watchword'.

Harold Hagerman, retiring president, expressed his gratitude for the co-operation of his executive and for having been given the privilege of serving as president. He then introduced the president-elect, Maude Burke, of Belleville.

Miss Burke thanked the members for the honor and high privilege of serving and asked for the support of every member of every union, that with all keeping in close fellowship with God, the district may go 'Forward with Christ' during the coming year to accomplish great things in His strength. While pointing to the high place of leadership she declared that the adventure of being a true follower of Christ is the greatest thing in Christian life.

The singing of 'Rise Up, O Men of God', and the benediction by Rev. Mr. Barker, concluded a most successful rally which will give new impetus to the work of the unions.

Education Week:

History of City Public Schools

Queen Alexandra School

A brief history of Queen Alexandra School will no doubt be of interest to a large group of people who are closely connected with the school at present and others who have been associated with the school in the past.

The school faces Ann Street, with playgrounds extending to Dundas Street on the south and William on the west. At present there are fourteen class rooms with an enrolment of five hundred pupils in all grades, from Kindergarten, Primary to Grade VIII. There is also a Boys' Handicraft Class which draws its pupils from all over the city.

In 1828, a lot on what is now Pinnacle Street was granted by the Crown to be used for school purposes in the village of Belleville. It was not, however, until 1851 that a two-roomed brick structure was erected. This school was known as School Number III and later as the Pinnacle Street School. It served the growing community for many years.

Opened in 1912

Much later a piece of land was purchased by the Board of Education from the Lazier Estate, which at that time was a part of the St. Agnes' School property, for the purpose of erecting a school. In September 1912 Queen Alexandra School, as it was named, was opened for use. The enrolment at that time was three hundred and twenty-five pupils. In November of the same year the formal opening and naming took place when the Honorable R. A. Payne M.D., L.L.D., was present. Mr. C. M. Reid was Chairman of the Board of Education and Mr. F. E. O'Flynn was chairman of the school. Mr. M. W. Mott was appointed principal and Mr. H. J. Clarke B.A., was inspector.

On June 14, 1919 the Duke of Devonshire, then Governor-General of Canada, the Duchess and their two daughters visited Belleville. At the request of Her Majesty, Queen Alexandra, the Governor-General presented to the school a picture of the Queen, in whose honor it had been named.

A gradual increase in school population made it necessary to enlarge the school. During 1931 the addition was made which gave the school five new class rooms and an auditorium. This is the building as it stands today

The school is equipped with radio, a moving-picture projector and phonographs which are valuable aids to the pupils' education.

Nurses, Supplies Flown to Areas Of Peru Quake

Lima, Peru, Nov. 3 (AP) — Planes bearing nurses, medicine and food were dispatched today to stricken areas in the mountains of Peru, where an earthquake shattered the peace of All Saints Day Saturday, killing at least 50 persons and demolishing two towns.

Government officials said bad weather and quake-ruined runways had prevented planes from landing in the affected zones, but added that if landings were still impossible today supplies would be parachuted.

Poor communications from the isolated mountain area where the quake struck obscured details of the damage, but official dispatches said San Ramon and neighboring La Merced, both about 130 miles northeast of Lima, had been "totally destroyed." Each town has a population of about 5,000.

Reports indicated that the heaviest loss of life was at Satipo, 165 miles east of Lima, where dispatches said at least 40 had been killed and many injured.

The shocks, said to be severest in the mountain region east of Lima, were felt 650 miles northeast at Iquitos and 200 miles southeast at Ayacucho.

In stricken Satipo the tremors were said to have precipitated landslides which dammed up the Satipo River, and the resultant floods washed away a hospital.

The Mayor of La Merced was quoted as saying about 80 per cent of the buildings were razed in the town and that the residents were camping out in a heavy tropical rain.

Secondary School Band Not Allowed To Play Concert

Toronto, Nov. 1 (CP) —The Toronto Musical Protective Association came to grips today with the Toronto Board of Education over refusal to allow a secondary school band to broadcast at Education Week ceremonies here.

Mrs. Isabel Ross, chairman of the board, said last night she felt "very indignant" about the ban imposed on a proposed broadcast by the North Toronto Collegiate Girls' band yesterday. Permission to air the band program was refused in a letter to Dr. C. C. Goldring, municipal director of education, from Walter Murdock, president of the association.

Declaring she didn't intend to let the matter rest, Mrs. Ross added: "I understand that United States ruling permits school bands to broadcast at civic functions and it was within Mr. Murdock's power to allow us to do the same thing."

"I think Toronto taxpayers who are paying for the bands are entitled to hear them," continued Mrs. Ross. "We are paying $27,000 over 1946 to further the bands."

Dr. Goldring declined immediate comment but said he would have "plenty" to say later.

The Musicians Association is affiliated with the American Federation of Musicians (A.F.L.) of which James C. Petrillo of Chicago is president.

Trustee W. R. Cockburn said: "It looks as if this dictation is coming from Petrillo in Chicago. I am going to bring this matter before the finance committee Monday. It's time we had a showdown as to the public appearances of the school band."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

19 is Too Old to be Under Mother's Thumb

I would be the last person in the world to be quick to advise any girl to leave home. But there are times when that seems the only solution to an improper situation. And certainly it is far from a proper one for a 19-year-old girl to have to live under her mother's thumb.

There may be very little a growing child can do to win from a dominating mother the consideration she should have. But when a girl has come close to her twenties and still is a victim of maternal harrying, it is time for her to take a decisive stand for her own protection.

One such girl writes me that she has been going with a young man for over a year; that she loves him and he loves her, but the courtship has had to be completely secret because, if her mother knew about it, she would forbid the two ever to see each other.

"My father sympathizes with me," she writes, "but he hasn't much to say, for mother is the boss of the family. If she knew about this, she would find ways and means to prevent us from ever meeting. I tried to talk to her, but she won't listen. What chance have we with a set-up like this?"

Well, the only chance that I see for her romance, under such circumstances, is for her to let her mother understand definitely that she is now of an age when she has a right to live her own life in any reasonable way, and to proceed along those lines in spite of any angry outbursts her mother might stage.

It goes without saying that she should be very sure of her position before doing this. That is, she should be certain that nothing she is doing or contemplates doing could fairly be criticized, that her conduct is above question in every respect.

If she continued to live in her parents' home after asserting her right to freedom of action, she would obviously be subjected to a constant barrage of fault-finding and reproach from her mother. If she could learn to steel herself against this, so that she was not too greatly affected by it, or, if she could plan her time so that she would be exposed to it as little as possible, she might be able to hold on until marriage freed her from the whole sordid situation.

But if she found things unbearable, then, rather than give in to her mother's unreasonable attitude, I think she should get herself a job, if she hasn't one already, and live away from home as an independent individual.

Honor and respect are not any mother's natural right. She must earn them by conducting herself in such a way toward her children that they instinctively give them to her. If she does not choose to do this, then she leaves her children no alternative but to disregard her.

Fashion Flashes

ELEGANCE is quite at home in youthful date dresses this season. White wool shot with silver lame threads makes a charmingly simple and youthful date dress. The beautiful fabric is handled on simple shirtwaist lines with tiny collar and buttoned cuffs.

BIRDS ALIGHT on the newest hats. Beige felt is used for a pretty hat, the wide-off face brim split into two big, rounded scallops accented with a spread of natural wings shading from palest beige to brown and mounted on tiny mink heads for a touch of whimsy.

BIG CHANGES in the newest fur coats. Persian lamb in a generous 45-inch length has a four flare back, a detachable hood and double wing cuffs. Hood and cuffs are banded with almost-white mutation mink.

MANY A TRICK can be worked out with the new 60-inch pearl bead ropes. Nice to wear as a necklace, then caught at the waist by the dress belt, then left to hang loose. Or wind it twice around the neck and hold with a broad barette or pin at the base of the throat.

IN KEEPING with lush Autumn fashions, new bags are beautiful, with rich accents. Black antelope is used for a wafer-thin pouch with a gold-washed etched frame in which is set a row of carnelians. Bag has a generous handle and is lined in satin to match the semi-precious stones.

NOT IN AGES have woolknits been so smart and wearable. Wool chenille in deep purple is used for a sweater-blouse and skirt dress in a stimulated handknit. Top has a gold embroidered emblem high at the shoulder and a narrow belt of gilt kidskin. Slender skirt is ribbed.

HUGE FORTUNE

Through it all Erleigh was the guiding genius.

Erleigh, 44 went to school in Tonbridge, Kent, graduating from Gaius, College, Cambridge, in 1926. His father was Ludwig Erleigh, Rand pioneer prominent for many years in London as the head of many mining companies in Africa, Great Britain, Canada and Australia.

Erleigh joined his father's business and visited Canada on an inspection tour of mining properties. He came to South Africa in 1928 where he represented two of his father's concerns as a director, Later extending his interests and acquiring various properties on his own.

By the time he was 30 he was rich in his own right — and ready to move on to other developments.

In 1934 Erleigh founded the New Union Gold Fields group of which until recently he was the chairman and joint managing director. He also was director of many big companies with interests in new gold fields of the Orange Free State, industrial firms and the hotel and cinema industry.

Legend has it that the New Union Gold Fields group stemmed from a fluke hunch which Erleigh played. According to this story, Erleigh took over a building which once had housed the Sir Abe Bailey, South African financier years ago. While browsing through the dust-filled offices, Erleigh is said to have discovered letters and maps concerning mining companies that never panned out.

Out of Erleigh's investigations into the Bailey properties grew the vast New Union Gold Fields, companies of which at one time included iron foundries, air transport firms, hotels, movies, timber plantations and other organizations.

After New Union got into difficulties Erleigh was understood to have sold his interests to the Anglo-Transvaal Consolidated Investment company.

Now Anglo-Transvaal has applied for a "judicial management order"—which may mean that New Union will be liquidated.

CERTAIN POLICE PERSONNEL OUT AT TEL-AVIV

Probe of Disturbances on July 31st Does Not Warrant Criminal Charges

Jerusalem, Nov. 1 — (Reuters) — Palestine police headquarters announced today that "certain police personnel" have been dismissed as a result of a three-month probe into disturbances in Tel Aviv July 31 after the terrorist organization, Irgun Zvai Leumi, had hanged two British sergeants.

Five Jews were killed and a number wounded in "reprisal shootings" on that date by men described as wearing uniform, the police statement said.

The results of "exhaustive" investigations did not warrant criminal charges, it added.

British army authorities in Palestine announced Aug. 7 that no British troops had been involved in the rioting a week earlier which followed the finding of the bodies of Sgt. Clifford Martin and Mervyn Paice.

Four outside teams swing into hockey action at Memorial Arena here tomorrow night when Stirling meets Trenton Hockey Club and Madoc tangles with Tweed. It will be all four squad's baptism of fire and should be productive of some good hockey. The three outside teabs, outside of Trenton that is, played the winter pastime in the Trent Valley Hockey League and all three vaunt plenty of power. Some of them are bolstered with Belleville Intermediates and these players with strong local talent should make for a neat evening entertainment. The first game gets under way at 7.30. Better be on hand.

On Thursday night two more eye-pleasing tilts will be dished up when the Trenton team meets Ed. Haynes' Cobourgers and the Belleville Hornets swing into action against the strong Gerow-led Napanee organization. Both the latter teams showed plenty of punch in their initial appearance here last week and the outcome should be a dilly.

Also in the kill were Steve Wochy who got himself three markers and Johnny Mahaffey who also celebrated his return to the hockey wars by getting himself three assists.

Looking over the Ontario Baseball Association release which includes the names of provincial winners in all the various groupings, baseball fans in this district can well ask "What's wrong with Eastern Ontario Baseball?" Out of fourteen group championships not one came east of Toronto. All went to the western part of the province with the exception of a couple which were won by centres well north of this neck of the woods.

Winners are Senior "A" London Majors; Senior "B", Windsor Stirlings; Intermediate "A" Chatham Shermans; Intermediate "B" Oakville; Int. "C" Acton Tanners; Junior "A" Kitchener Rangers; Junior "B" Dresden; Juvenile "A" Hamilton Crawfords; Juvenile "B" Milton; Midget "A" Welland; Midget "B" Collingwood; Bantam "A" Toronto Stanley Parks; Bantam "B" Wallaceburg; Pee-Wee, London.

The answer perhaps, may be simple. In Western Ontario, centres, a great deal of interest and action centres around the midget, bantam and juvenile squads. The youngsters rate as much attention as do the big brothers and the result is a steady stream of players, starting from baseball scratch so to speak, and stepping up into higher company each year. Its time Eastern Ontario forgot about dillydallying for imports and centred its attention on the development of its youngsters.

Eyes of the fistic world will be turned down Montreal way tonight when the highly-ballyhooed scrap between Harry Hurst and Johnny Greco takes place. Opinion is pretty well divided anent the outcome although the majority of sports writers appear to favor Hurst. The fight it seems is a grudge affair, as the Hurst factions claims Greco has been 'ducking their favorite for the past two years.

Montreal, Nov. 3 — (CP)—Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll, taking a look at the basketball scores being piled up this fall by University of Western Ontario's football Mustangs, asks how far should a team go in humbling their opponents and comes up with his own answer in the statement: "If they're point-hungry it's all the more to their credit."

Apparently there were some mumblings in intercollegiate circles when Western rolled up 139 points against Toronto, McGill and Queen's in its first three games this season and the opposition only totalled 15.

"There isn't a doubt that Western's lop-sided scores not only make the losing teams look bad but they reflect on the ability of other coaches whose teams are not doing so well this year," wrote Carroll. "You never hear the complaint from the losing coaches, but some of the disgruntled alumni of the defeated colleges don't like the way the Western team has been 'pouring it on' this season."

Dink finds this complaint unjustified and, elaborating, remarks that coach Johnny Metras has two complete teams one about as good as the other, and they are on the field about an equal length of time. So he can't ease up by sending in his second team, because he really hasn't got one.

Furthermore, said Dink, since the Western players are on the field only an average of 30 minutes they don't tire and are rolling just as fast, or faster, in the fourth quarter as in the first. Hence those big second half scores.

"What's wrong with winning by large scores anyway . . . the greatest thrill in football for the fellows playing the game is scoring touchdowns . . . and what about the customers who paid their way to get in? Don't let anyone tell you they aren't thrilled by seeing touchdowns scored . . ."

Lightweight Buddy O'Connor Stars as New York Rangers Win Two Weekend Games

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

"Good things come in small packages" is a saying that might apply to Herbert William O'Connor of New York Rangers.

H. W.—or Buddy, as he generally is called—is one of the mites of the National Hockey League. Drape him in a damp towel and stick him on the scale in the Rangers' dressing room and it isn't likely that the indicator will go much over the 145 mark.

At any rate, O'Connor appears to have found his niche with Rangers to whom he was traded before the start of this season by Montreal Canadiens. The slim centreman was a standout performer for the New Yorkers in two weekend victories a 4-3 triumph Saturday night over Detroit Red Wings and a 7-4 lacing handed Toronto Maple Leafs Sunday night.

O'Connor picked up seven points in those two victories, No. 2 and No. 3 of the season for Rangers. Against Wings he scored one goal and helped in two others. Against Leafs he racked up three goals and an assist.

In First Place Tie

Wings used a Sunday night triumph over Boston 2-1, to go into a first place tie in the standings with Bruins, who managed a 1-1 draw with Leafs Saturday night. Montreal Canadians pushed into a tie with Leafs, one point away from Bruins and Wings, by handing Chicago Black Hawks a 4-2 setback Sunday night. It was Chicago's sixth defeat in as many games.

Veteran Bryan Hextall ran O'Connor a close second for New York scoring honors in the two games, with two goals and three assists. One of Hextall's goals came against Leafs and he also aided in two other scores in the New York-Toronto contest. Ed Slowinski, Neil Colville, and Grant Warwick were other Ranger scorers against Leafs. Toronto marksmen were Bud Poile, with two. Nick Metz and Wally Stanowski.

In the New York-Detroit clash, Rangers earned the victory with a goal by Warwick with a little less than four minutes to play. Phil Watson, Hextall and O'Connor marked up the other Ranger tallies while the Detroit scores went to Syd Abel, Jim McFadden and Ted Lindsay.

Made Good on Gamble

Rookie Mav McNab and Bep Guidolin clicked for the goals in Detroit's victory over Bruins, whose tally went to Wally Wilson.

Bruins made good on the gamble of yanking Goalie Frank Brimsek in the last seconds of their Saturday night contest with Leafs. Down the game's lone goal, scored by Harry Watson in the second period, Bruins brought Brimsek to the sidelines and the strategy paid off in a goal by defenceman Murray Henderson.

Elmer Lach, with a pair, Rocket Richard and Bobby Carse were Canadians scorers against Hawks, who counted goals by Cy Thomas and Hank Blade. A free-for-all fight broke out in the last minute out of which Butch Bouchard of Canadiens drew a match penalty for punching Referee George Hayes. Four other players received major penalties.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Slim Buddy O'Connor, New York Rangers centre, racked up four goals and three assists in Rangers' two weekend victories to move into a tie for third place in the National Hockey League scoring race. Added to a goal he scored last Wednesday, Buddy's big spree gave him eight points. Canadiens' ace punch line still holds down three of the top spots with Maurice Richard and Toe Blake tied for the leadership with nine points apiece, while centreman Elmer Lach is tied with O'Connor and Syl Apps of Toronto with eight. Behind them with seven points come three Detroit Red Wings, Jim Conacher, Jimmy McFadden and Jerry Couture.

Man O'War Dies From Heart Attack

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 3 (CP)—Man O'War, foremost thoroughbred in the United States is dead from a heart attack.

Starting in 1919 as a two-year-old he won 20 of the 21 races entered, established five world records and retired after two years to become the leading money winning sire of all time. "Pops," the name the stable boys tagged on him, had been ill since last summer.

Patrick O'Neill, farm manager, said Man O'War would be interred today in his private paddock at the base of a statue that will be erected. A French sculptor was commissioned to do the big horse in bronze and is expected to finish the work by spring.

Man O'War's life span was compared to the equivalent of 105 years in a human being.

Even in his death, the big racer set another record, becoming the first thoroughbred to be embalmed in preparation for burial.

D. M. Lowe, mortician, said he used the same method and fluid used to preserve human bodies but, he added, it took 28 bottles while an average two is used to persons.

Lowe said the operation required two hours, only slightly longer than the average embalming time for humans.

A REALLY NEW KIND OF TIRE ASTONISHES AUTO ENGINEERS

New Super-Cushion By Goodyear Is First To Absorb Lateral Shock Satisfactorily

Bigger, Softer Tire Runs on Only 24 Pounds of Air —Gives Amazing Comfort, Safety, and Mileage

"Let's get that tire on our cars as soon as possible."

What is there about this tire that made these engineers so eager to get it immediately? Why do they call it one of the really important postwar improvements?

Read what they found out when they tested it.

At first they couldn't believe it

Those engineers put Super-Cushions on test cars and drove them over good roads and bad. Then they compared notes.

"This is impossible," they said. "There's practically no sign of lateral shock. Can the tire be absorbing it? No tire has ever done it satisfactorily before."

They tried it again, and the same thing happened. For the first time they were testing a tire that satisfactorily absorbed lateral shocks.

Why should this excite the engineers? Because lateral shocks were one of the few things that still had to be engineered out of the modern motor car. Automotive engineers knew that if these crosswise shocks could be done away with, an automobile would ride better—not just a little better—but a lot better.

The surprises had just started

As the tests went on, these automotive engineers ran into one surprise after another. Let them tell you:

"The Goodyear Super-Cushion," read one report, "is bigger than a conventional tire, and requires only 24 pounds of air.

"And I have confirmed Goodyear's report that the Super-Cushion builds up less pressure on the road. This means it gives greater comfort. This means it runs cooler. It means less tire trouble, since heat is the greatest single cause of tire failure."

"It's a different car with these tires"

Another report read, "These Super-Cushions make a small car feel like a big one. The car holds the road better. You seem to float in and out of traffic. These tires make any car easier and safer to handle, especially in taking turns.

"And believe it or not, they make a car ride more comfortably—not only on rough roads, grade crossings, and cobblestones but even on smooth roads.

"Fatter and tougher"

"This fatter tire rolls with the punch," reported one engineer. "It's a safer tire. Instead of resisting impacts, it yields when it hits an obstacle, broken pavement, or railroad tracks. So there's much less chance of bruising, cutting, or breaking it.

"Because it's a softer tire with stop notches (saw-tooth grooves molded across the tread), it gives noticeably better traction. You're conscious of this every time you step on the brakes or gas."

• The speed with which leading car makers accepted this new kind of tire indicates definitely that it is the tire of the future. Auto engineers call it the first tire in 15 years to make a positive contribution to driving comfort and safety.

"They dress up any car"

From still another report—"It's surprising how much these fatter tires improve the appearance of our cars. This is true, to some extent, even of our largest car. But what it does for the small car is something you have to see to believe."

"It's almost like floating"

"These Super-Cushions," read the final report, "make such a tremendous improvement in riding comfort that any layman can drive a car equipped with them and readily notice the difference."

What about mileage?

What about mileage? Goodyear had the answer to that one. Goodyear showed these automobile engineers records of millions of test miles driven on these tires, where Super-Cushions consistently averaged more mileage than the best standard tires.

SUPER-CUSHION TIRES ARE BIGGER!

6.00	replaced by	6.70

Super-Cushions on New Cars

Any day now some new cars equipped with Super-Cushions will be rolling off the production lines.

Your new car may have Super-Cushions. And the purpose of this advertisement is to give you a preview of the incredibly finer ride you will get from this really new kind of tire—the Goodyear Super-Cushion.

• Super-Cushions are bigger tires. They require only 24 pounds of air—in contrast to 28-32 pounds in most conventional tires. Super-Cushions also build up less pressure on the road. This means they maintain riding comfort on a long drive, and run cooler. This, in turn, means greater mileage—for heat is a tire's worst single enemy.

Ottawa in East Clinches First Place in Big Four by Defeating Argos 15-5

(By The Canadian Press)

While Winnipeg Blue Bombers took a stranglehold on the Western Canada football title, the East's Grey Cuppers disposed of all business during the weekend but the formality of finishing out one schedule before starting the elemination layoffs leading to the Dominion final.

The Bombers became heavy favorites to enter their third straight East-West final by whipping Calgary Stampeders 16-4, at Winnipeg. That means they'll take a 12-point lead into the second game of the two-game, total points series, scheduled for Calgary Nov. 11.

Whether Winnipeg will meet their old sparring mates in the final began to look doubtful, Toronto's Argonauts, who've walloped the Bombers two years running, dropped a 15-5 decision to Ottawa Rough Riders meanwhile and on the form shown in that game the Riders looked good enough to walk away with the Big Four title.

The two teams meet once more in Ottawa however before starting their two-game, total-point series for the Interprovincial Union title.

Ottawa in Top Spot

Victory made Ottawa certain of finishing first in the Big Four standing and that was about the only issue decided in the East's six weekend games —one Sunday and the others Saturday.

The Alouettes Consolidated third place in the Big Four by defeating Hamilton Tigers 33-12 at Montreal Sunday. In the Ontario Union, with its four play-off positions already decided Hamilton Wildcats swamped the Trojans 46-12, at Ottawa, and Balmy Beach defeated Sarnia Imperials 14-1, at Toronto.

The League-leading Wildcats will play one sudden death semi-final against the fourth-place Toronto Indians at Hamilton Friday afternoon while Balmy Beach and Trojans, second and third place teams in the final standing, will meet in Toronto next Saturday.

Push Argos Around

In the East's Intercollegiate Union, aloof from Dominion title aspirations, Western Mustangs continued their mastery by shutting out Queen's at Kingston 32-0. The University of Toronto defeated McGill 13-9, at Montreal.

A crowd of 16,000 at Toronto's Varsity Stadium watched Ottawa push the Argos around, rolling up a 15-point lead in the first half of touchdowns by Bert Haigh and Mat Anthony, both converted by Bert Dressler, and Eric Chipper's placement. The only Argo points came on Doug Pyzer's third quarter major.

Halfback Virgil Wagner added 10 points to his league-leading individual scoring total as Alouettes and Tigers rolled up eight touchdowns at Montreal. Wagner scored two Montreal touchdowns, others being bagged by Tommy Gates, Pete King, Bill Toohy and Dick Schweidler. Joe Szezek and Bus Stephens scored Hamilton's two majors.

The Wildcats eight-touchdowns act was sparked by the Lawson Brothers at Ottawa, Mel pitching passes to Gord for three majors. The others were bagged by Ross Hemingway, Joe Moretto, Benny Dyack and Gordie. Miller, with two. Bill Petrilas and Doug Smylie were the Trojans touchdown-getters.

McFarlane Paces Western

Balmy Beach rang up touchdowns by Bill Stockman and Eddie Powers, both converted by Billy Myers, along with two singles punted by the Veteran Sammy Sward, persuaded out of retirement again, against Sarnia, whose only point was Hank Gallaway's single.

The Mutsangs were paced by Bob McFarlane, who scored 17 points on three touchdowns and two converts, as they rolled up their four-game total of 171 points against Queen's. They got three others from Bob's brother Don, Bob Phipps and Jack Parry. The Gaels considered the third quarter, then they held Western scoreless for 15 minutes a moral victory.

Some sparkling forward passing by Varsity's Bruce Cummings scuttled McGill, tied for last place with Queen's, before a Montreal crowd of 17,500. Cummings pitched a touchdown pass to Steve Karrys and set up the other, scored by Tommy Waldon, Bob McBoyle took a 30-yard forward from Red Syrett for McGill's only major.

WINDSOR SITTING ON TOP PERCH OF JUNIOR RACE

(By The Canadian Press)

Detroit Wings have found a good thing in their farm club of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" Circuit. Jimmy Skinner's Windsor Spitfires are sitting on the loop's top bench after their fourth victory in as many games. Saturday they defeated Toronto St. Michael's Majors 9-2 in Windsor, handing last season's Memorial Cup champions their second loss in two starts.

In the other four games of the 10-team league, Saturday, Tommy Anderson's Oshawa Generals racked their third win in three starts and kept their hold on second place in the league, when they overpowered Bobby Bauer's Guelph Biltmores 6-4 in an overtime game at Oshawa.

Hap Emms' Barrie Flyers handed Alfie Moore's Galt Rockets a 6-4 beating at Galt; Stratford Kroehlers marked their second win, defeating Toronto Young Rangers 5-3 in a twin-bill opener at Maple Leaf Gardens and Toronto junior Marlboros won 2-1 against St. Catharines Teepees in the afternoon's second game.

At Windsor the Toronto Collegians were far from the power which swept them to last season's championship. However, the club showed signs of brilliance at times and kept Spitfires hustling. Terry Sawchuk, Windsor goalie, had 30 saves to Tom Shea's 44.

Windsor scorers were led by Earl Frezell with three goals. Jack Taylor and Jim Uniac tallied two each with John Wilson and Doug McKay collecting the other Windsor counters.

Two Goals in 15 seconds

With 3 1-2 minutes left to regular time Oshawa Generals were coasting with a comfortable 4-2 lead. At this point Frenchy Mayer drew a high-sticking penalty and Johnny Flynn and Stan McLellan rapped in Guelph's tying goals in less than 15 seconds.

Dick Gamble and Frenchy Mayer broke the tie and led Oshawa scorers with two counters each. Olly Oleksiuk and Brando tallied other Generals' goals. Biltmores' Stan McClellan led Guelph with two tallies. Glen Sonmor and John Flynn sank the others.

The blood flowed freely at Galt. Referee Pat Paterson handed out 29 penalties, including two misconducts and three majors, with Barrie collecting 13 of them.

The Flyers collected their second win in three starts while Galt has snatched only a tie in three starts.

Gil St. Pierre performed the hat trick for Barrie with his three goals. Paul Meger took two and McMaveny one to complete Flyers' scoring. Galt's Harry Macher and scored twice with Wiggie Wylle and Sam Mullholland collecting the others.

Dutch Hillier's Stratford Kroehlers took their first win in two starts and handed Ed Widey's Young Rangers their third loss in as many games.

Stratford Opens Attack

Stratford opened the attack with a three-goal leap in first period. Both teams scored twice in the second frame to finish the game's scoring.

Stratford Smythe's junior Marlboros avenged last week's defeat by Art Jackson's Teepees and earned their second win in three starts. Young Duke's goals were scored by Bobby Clarke and Tommy Buck sank the lone St. Catharines' counter.

Two senior A games are slated for tomorrow with Toronto Marlboros at Owen Sound Mercurys and Hamilton Tigers facing Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen.

Time Apparently Has Taken Toll Of Fritz Hanson

(By The Canadian Press)

Time apparently has taken its toll of Melvin (Fritz) Hanson, one-time Grey ghost of Canadian football.

Hanson, who once gained 300 yards rushing for Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Grey Cup final against Hamilton Tigers, made a set total of seven Saturday for Calgary Stampeders in the first game of the Western play-offs against his former club.

He gained 13 on one play and a total of 10 on four others as the Stamps went down to a 10-4 defeat at Winnipeg. But in between he was tossed for a 16-yard total loss on three others.

R. C. A. F. members trying out at Ottawa for places on Canada's Olympic hockey team have been cut to 21 players but eight or 10 new arrivals are expected early this week. Coach George (Buck) Buchard will begin to make final selections for the team within the next three weeks.

Man O' War set another record in his death by heart attack Saturday, becoming first thoroughbred to be embalmed in preparation for burial. The same method and fluid used to preserve human bodies was used but — it took 23 bottles of fluid while an average of two is used for human beings.

Heavyweight champion Joe Louis arrived in New York Saturday for his title bout with Jersey Joe Walcott and told friends he planned to risk. his crown twice next spring if he succeeds in defending it against the Camden, N. J. challenger at Madison Square Garden Dec. 5.

Harry Bailey of Toronto was elected president of the Ontario Lawn Bowling Association at the annual meeting at Toronto Saturday. It was announced the annual match between the P.L.B.A. and the eastern section of the American Lawn Bowling Association would probably be held in Hartford, Conn., sometime next August.

Well-known in his earlier days as a hockey and lacrosse player, Harry Cline, 66, died at Hamilton Saturday. He had played with O. H. A. clubs in Port Colborne and Newmarket and later played as professional in hockey and lacrosse at Detroit.

Officials of the Winnipeg Rods, Manitoba - Saskatchewan junior football champions, are faced with financial difficulties and said yesterday unless funds were raised the club would have to withdraw from the Western Canada junior football final Nov. 15. Rods Saturday trounced Saskatoon Hilltops 34-10 to enter the finals.

Hamilton Tigers Cubs qualified to meet Toronto Argonauts for the Junior Big Four title when they defeated Parkdale Lions 23-6 at Hamilton Saturday in a sudden-death semi-final.

Assumption College Purple Raiders, defending junior O. R. F. U. champs, took a big stride towards the 1947 district championship at Windsor Saturday when they stopped A. K. O. Fraternity juniors 18-11.

Li'l Arthur King, ace attraction in Toronto box-fight circles, will have a chance to even the count with Joey Brown of New Orleans in a return match at Toronto Nov. 10. Brown proved too experienced for the dusky Arthur in their last go.

CANADIAN TEAM TO BE WELCOMED AT OLYMPIC GAMES

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 3 — (CP)—Entry of a Canadian hockey team in the 1948 Winter Olympics in all probability has been welcomed with hand-rubbing glee by some European clubs, especially Czechoslovakia and Sweden. These are the "big shots" of continental hockey and they're anxious to play the Dominion.

This attitude was evident at the Prague championships and International Ice Hockey Federation Congress last February and also the I. I. H. F. meeting at Zurich, Switzerland, in September.

The Czechs cleaned up the Prague titles — Canada didn't send a team — and they boasted openly they would give the Dominion a good battle if ever afforded a chance. Many sneered that Canada was "afraid" to enter.

Mike Buckna, Czech coach and Trail, B. C., Smoke Eater player in the '30s, alone was cautious — he thought his club would lose by "perhaps three goals to a top-class Canadian senior club." —

His team is imbued with a will-to-win spirit probably unmatched in any other hockey-playing country in the world. They take on all comers while their fans hunch on benches around open-air rinks in 15 to 20-below-zero weather. If the champs can ring up a 40-0 score the freezing supporters go home deliriously happy.

They rise to a man when their team scores a goal—whether it's the first or 21st of the game — and there is ominous silence when one is scored against them. It's worth your life to cheer at this crucial moment.

Czech delegates, interviewed at the Zurich Congress, said the team would be "much stronger" for the Olympics. Practice started Nov. 1 and when the games open Jan. 30 it is a certainty this country will have a well-trained and superbly-confident club.

The Swedes, second to Czechoslovakia in the Prague tournament, openly jeered at the United States entry, an inexperienced and weak club, and wondered out loud why Canada didn't enter. The Swedish Hockey Federation weeks ago sent invitations to 60 of the country's best players to try out for the Olympics and they will have plenty of pre-games competition.

Pittsburgh Hornets Hottest Team in Loop

Pittsburgh Hornets with only one defeat in nine games continued to hold the spotlight as the hottest team in the American Hockey League today. The Hornets share the top rung of the Western Section with Indianapolis Capitols with 14 points each.

Last night Pittsburgh edged St. Louis Flyers 4-3 and trounced Providence Reds 5-2 Saturday. Buffalo Bisons snapped a two-game losing streak by whipping Washington Lions 7-3 last night and earning a 4-4 stalemate with Springfield Indians Saturday.

Indianapolis Capitols came through with a double victory during the weekend. Yesterday they scored a 9-1 victory over the luckless Indians while Saturday they turned Hershey Bears back 6-4. Philadelphia Rockets blanked Washington 7-0 Saturday, but were handed 4-1 upset by New Haven last night. St. Louis received their second defeat of the weekend of Cleveland feat at the hands of Cleveland Barons last night.

Providence handed Hershey a 4-1 defeat last night.

Albert Bows to Peterborough C.I. By 12-6 Score

In one of the best interscholastic football games seen here in some time the powerful Peterborough Collegiate Institute squad defeated the Albert College COSSA grid seniors by a 12-6 count on the college gridiron on Saturday afternoon.

Coach Don Huyck unleashed all his Albert power in the first half the Yellow team scoring the first and only touchdown in the first quarter and holding the lead until the end of the half.

Peterborough, however, came back strong in the third and fourth quarters to maintain its undefeated record and turn what looked like defeat into victory.

They opened their share of the points with neat placement kick and shortly afterwards added a single point to put them within striking distance. The Petes went over for their only major score of the game in this half converting the touchdown to make the count 10-6. Albert fought back gallantly but the Peterborough power was a little too much for them and before the final whistle blew the winners had booted the pigskin for two more singles to make the ultimate score 12-6.

In another senior COSSA football tilt, Oshawa C.I. defeated the Lindsay gridders by an 11-6 score.

JOHNNY GRECO TO MEET HURST

Montreal, Nov. 3. (CP)—Montreal fight fans will get their long-awaited chance to witness the Johnny Greco-Harry Hurst "grudge fight" for the Canadian welterweight title—a match that has been in the offing for the past three years.

Hurst, who packs a kayo right hand but who has never had the opportunity to try it out on any boxer of importance, finds himself past his peak form, but despite his 30 years, still reaching for the Pot of Gold.

Boxing's elite circle of "odd makers" have given the younger Greco the green light as the 8-5 favorite.

At 25, Greco has battled the cream of the welterweights in New York at Gates that bordered on the $100,000 mark. However, Hurst has had to be satisfied with preliminary bouts and mainliners in small towns.

Greco weighed in at the Boxing Commission's medical checkup Saturday at 147, but is expected to hit the 150 mark before fight time tonight. He will carry a 10 pound edge over his rival whose official weight is 140.

N.H.L. Stars

Buddy O'Connor, New York, who led Rangers to their twin weekend victories with a total of seven points in both games.

Murray Henderson, Boston, whose goal Saturday with only eight seconds of play remaining gave the Bruins a standoff with Toronto.

Bud Polle, Toronto, who garnered a pair of counters when Leafs lost 7-4 to Rangers.

BRITAIN'S BID FOR RYDER CUP EASILY BEATEN

By RUSS NEWLAND

Portland, Ore., Nov. 3 — (AP) — Britain's bid for the Ryder Cup in the first revival of the classic golf competition in 10 years failed yesterday when the United States team scored a smashing 11 to 1 match victory.

It was the worst beating a British team had sustained in the history of the event.

The Americans completed the route yesterday by winning seven of the eight singles events in the wake of sweeping all our Scotch foursome bouts on Saturday.

Only Sam King saved the day — and the humiliation of being stopped on every front — by capturing his singles contest yesterday. The 36-year-old Englishman, defeated Herman Keiser 4 and 3 in the eighth and final match Keiser was an alternate who did not play in the two-ball foursomes but was named to the singles by team captain Ben Hogan, who withdrew in his favor.

Victorious King accepted his honors modestly, but his feat of standing alone against the American landslide will be long remembered.

The two-day results went as follows:

Sunday's singles:

E. J. Harrison, U. S. A., defeated Fred Daly, 5 and 4.

Lew Worsham, U. S. A. defeated James Adams, 3 and 2.

Byron Nelson, U. S. A. defeated Art Lees, 2 and 1.

Saturday's Scotch foursomes:

Oliver-Worsham, U. S. A. defeated Cotton-Lees 10 and 9; Snead-Mangrum, U. S. A., defeated Daly-Ward 6 and 5; Hogan Demaret, U. S. A. defeated Adams-Faulkner 2 up. Nelson-Herman Barron, U. S. A. defeated Rees-King 2 and 1.

The United States took possession of the gold Ryder Cup for the fifth time in the seven times it has been at stake since the initial competitions in 1927. The Americans also won in 1937, the last previous battle for the trophy.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Reading how a hand was played is easier than playing it in the midst of a bridge game. With all the cards exposed to view, we can see what plays will not work. So, we can hunt for those that do.

See all the cards in this deal:

South was declarer at six hearts. The opening lead from west was a trump. We know what plays will not succeed. At least a couple will. Study one of them today.

Grab the first trick with dummy jack of trump. Take two top south clubs and ruff a third club with dummy queen of trump. What will east discard on this trick? Say he lets go of diamond.

Enter south with the spade ace and pull two trump rounds with ace and king. On these you can sluff two of the small dummy diamonds. West is all out of trumps by now. East is left with only one trump.

Take a trick with dummy diamond king and lead its ace. On this diamond ace you should sluff a south spade. The idea is to be out of spades in south hand when dummy leads the third round of it.

Then you ruff a dummy diamond with a south trump. Now enter the dummy hand with a spade king and lead dummy spade jack for a south ruff. All east gets is his trump. The last trick. His only one.

When you ruff a south club with the dummy queen of trump, east could sluff a spade instead of a diamond. If so, proceed as you did before until dummy is left with spade jack and a diamond.

Now lead the dummy diamond, a suit in which east still has a card. Ruff this diamond in south with your last trump and give east the last trick with his trump. It comes to the same result.

This plan looks reasonable with the east cards in sight. But an expert used a different and novel play without a glimpse of the east hand. It is worth the telling when next we meet.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 3 (AP)—If you think winning an Oscar will induce Frederic March to settle in Hollywood, you have another guess coming.

The incumbent academy award winner is back in these wilds for "Another Part of the Forest," his first film since his award performance. But he won't stay.

"I was tied down here for nine years," he said, referring to his servitude at Paramount in the '30s. "Never Again."

The Racine, Wis., actor keeps a house here but avoids all entangling alliances. One of the most demanded actors on stage and screen, he needs a term contract like he needs dramatic lessons. Instead, he likes to call his shots, doing film at intervals between stage appearances, which he usually makes with his wife, Florence Eldridge.

His next project is a mammoth one—portraying Christopher Columbus in an English film. Mrs. March, who is also in his current picture, will play Queen Isabella or another prominent character. Fred reported that plans are nearing completion and his Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria are already being built.

I asked him if his Oscars (the first one was for "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde") made nice book-ends. He said they did "expect the second one is bigger than the first." Inflation has hit everything.

Power Airborne

Tyrone Power is reported to be flying across the Atlantic this week in his own plane. The Edward Small Company says the actor is bringing back some footage of "Gagliostro," which his friend, Gregory Ratoff is filming in Rome. That's an expensive messenger boy.

Ida Lupino is abed with infected gums which resulted from extraction of her wisdom teeth. She should be recovered in time to start "Dark Love" with Victor Mature next month.

Ingrid Bergman, like many of us, is not impressed with the current crop of pictures. "Whenever I look in the paper for a show I look for a re-issue," she told me. That would be a good idea if the re-issues are as good as the currently revived "The Women," a thoroughly delightful film. But most revivals are old claptrap that would best be forgotten.

Brief Review

"Body and Soul" (Enterprise) deals a smashing blow to the emotions with one of the best fight pictures in many years. A fortright story of crooked dealings in fighters, it won't make New York boxing circles happy. The tough, humorous story is beautifully photographed, particularly in the realistic fight scenes John Garfield again impresses as one of the most convincing of screen performers.

RANGERS BOOST LEAD

(By The Canadian Press)

Fort Worth Rangers boosted their lead in the southern division of the United States Hockey League to three points last night, winning their fifth straight game on home ice by downing Dallas Texans 5-3.

Freddie Weaver scored both of what proved to be Rangers' winning tallies. Mutcheson, Jones and Paul Bedard were the other Ranger scorers. Squee Allen, Johnny Horeck, and Gordon Petrie scored for Dallas.

Houston Huskies ran up a 10-3 victory over St. Paul. Paul Mundrick and rookie Jack Giesebrecht led the assault with two goals apiece with Agar, Pageter, Melong, Macey, Mackenzie and Hickey notching one each.

Sports Digest

(Odd Facts From the World of Sport)

On May 2 1917, Fred Toney of the Reds and Jim Vaughn of the Cubs pitched a no-hit, no-run game for nine innings! In the tenth Vaughn allowed two hits, which, coupled with an error, won the game for the Reds, 1-0, as Toney carried on his hitless pitching for the last half of the inning!

On no less than four occasions have boxers knocked out their opponents in 11 second of the first round! Rudy Zymeck did it to Alex Luke in 1939; Willard Dean to Claude Allen, 1940; and Irish Jimmy Pierce and Joe Jakes accomplished a like honor in 1942 when they despatched Tommy Jessup and Al Foreman respectively.

Observation: Golf scores would likely be higher if players told the (hole) truth.

Although many think that Jimmy Braddock was the oldest pug to ever win a world championship title — Jimmy was 30 when he won the crown from the then 26-year-old Baer—the current issue of Canadian Sports Digest reveals that Bob Fitzsimmons is actually the oldest in this respect. Rudy Robert was 35 when he took the measure of 31-year-old Gentleman Jim Corbett, Sport Digest reports.

The Toronto Evening Telegram reports a new approach on the defence of a bookie. A Toronto man was accused of accepting bets, but argued his counsel, bookmakers are a benefit to a community, they helped employers by keeping the racing enthusiasts at their desks or benches. Men bet on the races through books, whereas, if there were no bookmakers, the men would make personal visits to the tracks in order to bet on the ponies. No, decided the magistrate imposing a fine of $200 and costs, bookmakers are not a benefit to a community.

Back in the nineteenth century polo was played on a certain field in New York at the corner of 5th Avenue and 110th Street. This ground was eventually taken over by the New York Giants baseball team and although the Giants have since made two changes of playing site, their stadium is still known as the "Polo Grounds."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Nov. 3 — (AP) — New York Ranger fans are about the most loyal in the National Hockey League and they got a big shot in the arm Saturday and Sunday when the Blueshirts pulled off two victories . . . The Rangers during the war were a sorry lot who were down in the cellar so regularly that they seemed to have a lien on it . . . (At any rate, they didn't suffer from the housing shortage) . . . But Frankie Boucher has been promising better things this year and the Ranger victory 4-3 over Detroit Saturday night, and 7-4 Sunday over Toronto may mean that the Blues are slated for an escalator ride.

New Faces

One thing that seems to be strengthening the Rangers is the acquisition of Buddy O'Connor from Montreal Canadiens . . . Buddy has more style than most of the N. H. L. centres around but the fans were gloomy when he did not score in his first three games in the next three . . . Last Wednesday he scored New York's lone goal in a 3-1 loss . . . Saturday he had a goal and two assists against Detroit . . . Sunday he rapped in three against Toronto — as well as an assist . . . that made it five goals and three assists in three games . . .

NO LUMBER SHORTAGE IN RUSSIA

Russia is lacking in many things, but lumber isn't one of them. With proper conservation, the timber supply of the U.S.S.R. is practically unlimited. Here are some big rafts, each containing from 6,000 to 8,000 cubic feet of lumber about to be floated down the Volga from various tributaries.

NEW TREATMENT FOR LUNG INFECTIONS

An oxygen penicillin inhaler for the treatment of lung infections adds to the methods for using the life-saving drug. The British inhaler was recently demonstrated at the hospitals' mid-wifery and nursing exhibition at Seymour Hall, London. British bacteriologist, St. Alexander Fleming, discovered it in London. A nurse at the exhibition demonstrates the method of using the new inhaler.

Libya Will Resist Italy's Return Under Any Form

By MOHAMED WAGDI

Cairo, Nov. 3 (AP)—The people of Libya will resist the return of Italy to their country under any form of trusteeship, says Bashir Al Sadawi, President of the National Council for the liberation of Libya.

"We fought the Italians for 35 years," he said in an interview. "We have struggled against oppression and tyranny. We will continue our struggle with unabated strength and determination until we attain complete independence and unity of our country."

Al Sadawi, who said he fought the Italians from 1911 to 1923, explained:

"We are not alone this time. We have the support of the Arab League. The Kings and rulers of the league's seven member states, when they met at Inchass (in Egypt) in 1946, decided on the independence of Libya. They also decided to give us every material and moral help."

When the Italians overcome Libyan resistance, Al Sadawi said, he left the country and began seeking support in Arab conferences against "the tragedy of the Italian rule in Libya."

He is now, he said, adviser to King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, who "gave me permission to come to Egypt and look after the case of my country."

World powers, he claimed, are treating Libya as a subject of bargaining.

"They meet and take decisions on the future of Libya while the people of the country feel that there are attempts and market for bargaining. Some powers are trying to seek the friendship of Italy, and attempt to restore Italian rule in our country.

"The people of Libya will resist such unfair attempts."

CHAPTER 27.

"I think," whispered Pepito, "that he will stay and become very drunk. Let us now return to the house, and eat. Later we will return and watch. If the Rattlesnake drinks enough, as he usually does, he will lose his reason. We will meet him when he leaves this place. We will take care of him, eh? And when he wakes up, he will be much astonished."

"Good," approved Jose. "Tonight we should be able to pull his fangs."

They made their way out through the poolroom and the rear door, and returned to Shane waiting for them in the casa de Pepito.

Around midnight the Rattlesnake and one remaining friend reeled from the Cafe Espanol waving empty bottles.

They staggered down the dark street, talking nonsense.

At last the friend stopped, sat down carefully against a board fence.

Two men, singing with liquor, approached. They came up to the Rattlesnake. They stopped.

"Sing, hombre," commanded one of them to the Rattlesnake. "Can you not sing"

"Surely I can—sing," said the Rattlesnake. "Listen." He opened his mouth and began "La Paloma."

"He's the man we want," said Pepito. "He can sing. Come along, Rodrigo. We are going to sing. To sing and drink tequila. You are certain you can sing?"

The Rattlesnake swore.

"Come on," he stuttered. "Wherever—you—going. I'll show you—whether I can sing—" He seized them by their arms, got between them, peered at each face. "Never mind," he told himself. "I don't know you. But you sing—and drink." He began La Paloma again.

And thus Pepito and Jose brought the Rattlesnake to Shane O'Hara, awaiting them at Jose's cousin's ramshackle garage.

A golden sun glinting across the desert country south of Tijuana threw a shaft of light into the window of a small adobe house on an eastern hillside, illuminating thereby a ten-foot square chamber, white-walled, containing a rickety iron bed on which a bound man strained against the cords which held him, cursed wildly and stared about him with eyes red from tequila and vicious from astonishment.

The Rattlesnake's awakening had been most unpleasant.

Assuredly now, he told himself, when consciousness began first to come, this is only a dream from which I will presently awaken. Many times I have bad dreams, after drinking, and this is only another one of them. What a thirst! I wonder if there is water, after the dream goes away?

But the dream, instead of going away, became clearer and clearer, each part more vivid. Until at last it came to the Rattlesnake that this was no tequila-dream, but some horrid truth.

He could not move. There were ropes about him. Yes, he could see the knots. And his wrists were tied. Not only tied together, but tied to a rope which passed between his legs. He raised his arms; the cursed rope pulled around his neck—it ran from his wrists between his legs and up his back, then was noosed around his neck. Struggle would choke him to death. His feet would not move; tied, too.

Nevertheless—but cautiously—he raised his head and chest. But as he could see no more that way than without rising, he relaxed again.

"This is not the jail," he told himself, noting the ordinary wooden door, closed. His eyes sought the window. No bars. But from just outside it came a casual whistling—"La Paloma."

The Rattlesnake listened to the whistling for a moment. His head ached terribly. His throat was aflame. He must have water, or he would die. Water and a drink of tequila. What had happened last night? He was with friends, at the Cafe Espanol, he recalled. They had spent all evening there, half the night. Then some of them had gone away. He had remained. He and—and who? Somebody, because they had left the cafe together. Singing, too. Yes, he remembered: they had gone forth singing that cursed song that somebody was now whistling outside the window. And then—then what? Blank. Until now. His head! His throat! Assuredly he was dying, or was dead and in the ante-room of hell. Funny, it had never occurred to him before that hell might be built along the same lines as Baja California. But why not? Take water away, flames would be unnecessary.

Then his rambling, jumbled thoughts whisked to another question. Certainly the devil never tied up his victims; he didn't have to. No; he was not dead. Not yet; although assuredly he would be if water was not forthcoming soon. But who—what mangy curs—had dared to truss up him, the Rattlesnake, like a calf to be branded?

Swiftly he thought of his enemies—and he had many. But this was not what they would do to him, if they could catch him. No, there would have been no question as to whether he was dead or not, in that case. But they were not Tijuana people; all his enemies were in Mexicali. Ensenada—maybe one or two in Tecate. Not here.

"Water!" he cried. "You who whistle there! Water, for the love of heaven!"

"You make a lot of noise, hombre," Jose told him.

"Water!" groaned the Rattlesnake. "Water, water...And who are you? And what am I tied up for? Am I...." His voice broke. "Water," he gasped.

"There is no water," said Jose, calmly. "And I do not think there will ever be any water.

"What!" screamed the Rattlesnake. "You refuse me a drink? You will let me die here? Who are you? What—what does it mean?"

"Ask yourself," said Jose, shrugging. He turned, left, the window resumed whistling as he sat down beneath a stunted tree. In a little while now...

Every drinker knows the torture of being unable to get a drink. Had there been a bottle of tequila within sight of the Rattlesnake, or had he been free to seek one, he would have had only a slight discomfort—because relief was only a matter of time. But being tied up, no drink possible, he lost his nerve. His craving increased a hundredfold. Tequila. He must have a drink of tequila. Just one.

And on top of this came something far worse.

With one of those queer transitions which afflicit the human mind in pain or terror, it was suddenly not tequila that the Rattlesnake wanted, had to have, would die without—but water.

And a still worse trick did his nerves play him.

He was on the desert, without water, and he saw a stream and plunged his face into it, and it was salt water.

Salt!

His thrist blazed more fiercely. He shouted. He was dying. He screamed.

"Water! Water!" he screamed, the complete victim now of his inflamed nerves.

No one answered him.

Fires of hell. Had they gone away? Left him to die of thirst in this little hell?

He twisted struggled against his bonds. Tried to roll off the bed, and found himself tied to it. Screamed vile epithets.

And now he was burning with flames from head to toe, and a great flame burned in his throat—a flame of salt.

What with a warm sun, bright sky and flaming trees, Cooksville youngsters are riding far into the fall, this year. Teddy Skinner, 6, and his brother Bill, 7, get around the neighborhood of a Saturday afternoon. Rills and hills mean nothing to the intrepid equestrians, especially as their mounts get most of the exercise. But even the horses enjoy their outings, as long as there's plenty of hay at the end of the day.

GENERAL ADOPTED

Fifty-year-old Brig.-Gen. Ralph C. Tobin, U.S.A. (ret.) who is reported to have been secretly adopted by Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster, rich octogenarian leader of Newport's "Old Guard." The "legal formalities" were said to have been executed in Pan Craig, Mrs. Webster's estate at the Rhode Island social colony. Brig.-Gen. Tobin was once commander of the New York National Guard and during the war commanded the Seventh Regiment 207th Coast Artillery.

Official Protests Lifting Subsidies Off Coarse Grains

Ottawa, Nov. 3 (CP)—Removal of ceilings and subsidies from coarse grains has "cut the feet from under" Canada's agricultural program, H. H. Hannam, President of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said last night in a statement.

"Nothing that has happened to Canadian agriculture in many years has stirred farmers throughout the Dominion to such a high pitch of resentment," said Mr. Hannan, declaring protests have been pouring in to federation and government offices in the last week.

"The cancellation of the subsidies and ceilings on oats and barley has caused a double rise in the cost of these grains to farmers feeding livestock and poultry," the federation president continued.

That means that there must be of necessity an increase in the price of food products to the public, unless some other way is found to alleviate the situation. Farmers simply cannot go on producing milk, meats, butter, and other products with such heavily increased costs.

"What is more, the government's action has cut the feet from under the best livestock program we ever had in Canada, a program that not only achieved the greatest production of livestock dairy and poultry products in the Dominion's history, but what is more important, established some degree of stability in the whole agricultural program, and offered hope for some permanency to this stability for the future.

"That program has now been tossed out of the window. The marketing of oats and barley has been thrown back into the field of gambling on the grain exchange, with prices fluctuating up and down from day to day, and livestock farmers not knowing where they are at in their feed costs.

Weekend Traffic Claims 10 Lives

(By The Canadian Press)

Traffic accidents accounted for 10 deaths, four persons were drowned and one was accidentally shot in the total of 15 fatalities in weekend accidents across Eastern Canada recorded today by The Canadian Press.

A triple drowning in Lake St. Louis at Montreal resulted in deaths of Marcel Raymond, 26, Romeo Jalbert, 41, and Sylva Taillon, 44, when the boat in which the men were on a fishing trip, capsized. The other drowning was that of Emmett Fowler, whose body was found in a creek at Chatham, after he had been missing for several days.

The traffic deaths were all single fatalities except for an accident near Sarnia when Norman R. Johns, 17, and Lois Brown, 16, returning on a motor-scooter from a Hallowe'en dance early Saturday, collided with a heavy tractor-trailer and were fatally injured.

Donald Evans, 21, died in hospital at Windsor, Ont., Saturday from injuries received when struck by a car two days previously. At Leamington Wilfrid St. Pierre, 24, was fatally hurt when his motorcar overturned on the highway. Another Windsor district fatality was that of 35-year-old Richard Bissett, killed when struck by a car as he was helping others to re-start a stalled vehicle on the highway.

Car Crashes into Tree

Harold Lowery, 40, of Lakeview, was killed when his car crashed into a tree Sunday at Burlington near Hamilton. Nicholas Zivanovitch, 14, was found dead on the side of the Caledonia road near Hamilton early Sunday and police said he had evidently been struck about midnight Saturday night by a driver who failed to stop.

Near North Bay 65-year-old Joseph Vaillette was killed Saturday when the truck he was driving was in collision with a tractor-trailer. Arthur Mott, of R. R. 3, Orillia, was killed Sunday when his car collided with another on the highway five miles from Barrie.

Youngest of the accident victims was David Ward, 14 months old, who died Saturday at Picton, Ont., from injuries received when he was hit by a motorcar on Friday as he went on to the highway.

Papers Agree Labor Party Suffered Serious "Setback" In Municipal Elections

London, Nov. 3 —(CP)—Newspapers from the right to the far left agreed last night that the Labor party suffered a "setback" in Saturday's municipal elections and that a period of political activity lay ahead for Great Britain.

Monday morning editions of the papers, even the staunchest Conservative organs, were notably lacking in predictions of early action on demands by Winston Churchill and the Conservative party chairman, Lord Woolton, for a general election to put the Labor government out of office.

"It appears unlikely the government will draw the correct conclusion and seek a fresh mandate," the Conservative Yorkshire Post said.

The opposition press, generally jubilant, urged its followers in and out of parliament to draw "renewed confidence," as the Daily Telegraph put it, and make the government toe the line on national issues.

The Daily Herald, Labor, conceding that Prime Minister Attlee's government might have been at fault in "public relations," called for "ceaseless initiative, ceaseless hard work" for a Labor comeback.

The concensus among Conservative editors was that the Conservative party's gains constituted the "writing on the wall" for Socialism in Britain, the Daily Mail adding it was a "body blow to the cocksure arrogance" of the government.

The Financial Times views the Conservative gains as a "long term favor" for the markets.

"It is now a possibility that investors may be prepared to feel their way beyond the immediate terrors of the remainder of the Socialist term to the possible advent of a Conservative government," the Financial Times said.

Tide Turning

"The tide is turning," the Conservative Daily Telegraph said. "The stirrings of revolt against Socialism . . . are now demonstrably more than party wishful thinking.

The Times, describing the election results as a "notable Labor reverse," said the elections must be interpreted as an expression of dissatisfaction with the government's record.

"It is certain," the Times said, "that many, probably most, voters were thinking rather of this disappointment with the fruits of the government's policy than of the needs of local housing or of a new borough library."

The Liberal Manchester Guardian, criticizing partisan claims, said: "Mr. Churchill's comment that the election figures 'deprive the Socialist government of any mandate obtained at the general election' is well wide of the mark on one side: the secretary of the Labor party, Mr. Morgan Phillips, is not much nearer on the other side in claiming that 'all that has happened is that Labor's unprecedented run of success in local government elections since 1945 has been temporarily halted.' "

"What has happened seems to be less a 'swing' from Labor to Conservatives than a fresh stirring of Conservative interest in local affairs," the Guardian said.

Called Excited Yelp

The Daily Herald, terming Lord Woolton's demand for parliamentary elections an "excited yelp," noted that despite their claims of "landslide," the Conservatives still had won back less than half the 1,559 borough council seats it said they lost to Labor in 1945 and 1946 local elections.

Pro-Labor Sunday newspapers did not comment, but three anti-Labor newspapers carried editorials expressing approval of the outcome of the voting.

"Back to sanity," Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express headlined its comment, declaring:

"The country turns back towards its Great War leader, Churchill. The Socialists . . . have had their chance. They have fallen and failed most lamentably."

The Sunday Chronicle said: — "The men of the left and their false claims were rejected with a vigor that has inspired the whole country. The people of Britain are no longer deceived by the promises of a Socialist paradise."

Injuries Prove Fatal to Child Struck by Car

Picton (Special) — Injuries received when struck by a car on Friday proved fatal to 14-months old David Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Ward of Bloomfield. The child died in Prince Edward County Hospital here without regaining consciousness. It is expected that an inquest will be ordered today.

The boy was crossing the road when a car driven by William Tripp approached. Mr. Tripp slowed down as he neared the lad. Harold Pride, a mail courier, was driving behind him, and told police he thought Mr. Tripp was coming to a stop and turned out to pass. As he did so the boy stepped in front of his car.

The child is the youngest of a family of eight.

The funeral took place from the residence of his parents, this Monday afternoon. Interment was in Hillside Cemetery.

Besides his parents, brothers and sisters, he is survived by his grandmother, Mrs. C. H. Farleigh of Bloomfield, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Ward, Picton.

Reds Appear Gaining Ground in 20th Year China's Civil War

By JOHN RODERICK

Shanghai, Nov. 3 — (AP) — Government efforts to contain the Chinese Communists by force — a program which began in earnest soon after Premier Chang Chun took office a year ago—appear to have made little positive progress, foreign military men here said today.

Chiang Kai-Shek's campaign, which began smartly with the capture of the Red strongholds of Yenan, Kalgan and Chefoo, has collided with superior Communist mobility and punching power, these students of warfare observed.

In marked contrast to the localized fighting in Southern Manchuria and Shantung last November, the government armies now are forced to fend off the Reds on at least six fronts.

Communist commander-in-chief Peng Teh-Huai has led his troops back to the very threshold of Yenan, the Reds' former capital.

As the Chinese Civil War wears on — it now is in its 20th year — the Communists appear to be gaining rather than losing ground. They have overcome the initial Nationalist advantage of greater fire-power and more modern weapons by using their arms with greater effectiveness and striking with speed and deception.

Government sources now estimate Communist strength in excess of 800,000 soldiers.

Travellers returned from the Communist-held areas say Red morale is higher than ever and that the armies still appear adequately fed, well clothed, and are capturing arms and munitions in steady battlefield successes.

Armed Jewish Youths Storm Police Station

Jerusalem, Nov. 3 —(AP)— Police announced that 15 or 20 armed Jewish youths had stormed a police station in Tel Aviv today and released two alleged members of Irgun Zvai Leumi who had been arrested during the weekend for removing and defacing street signs.

The raid coincided with the explosion of a noise bomb in front of the offices of Hagana, self-styled Jewish defence army, whose intervention was responsible for the arrest of the two Irgunists.

The latter were seized after they had removed signs marking Allenby Street and King George Street and replaced them with signs reading "Liberty Road" and "King David Street".

Police said the band that raided the police station was equipped with automatic weapons and gathered up all available police arms before fleeing.

The raid brought to an abrupt end a 24-hour truce between the Extremist Irgun Group and the more moderate Hagana, whose members had been involved in frequent clashes in recent weeks. Irgun broadcast a statement during the weekend saying that if Hagana "continues to behave with the same restraint as in the past week Irgun will cease to attack Hagana members."

Irgun also said United States proposals in the United Nations for British troops to remain in Palestine were motivated by a desire to "bar Russia or her satellites" from the Holy Land.

EX-AMBASSADOR, JOHN G. WINANT, COMMITS SUICIDE

Suffered From Mental And Physical Fatigue

Concord, N.H. Nov. 4 (AP) — John G. Winant, 58, former ambassador to the Court of St. James's, committed suicide last night by shooting himself in the head with a .32 calibre Belgium pistol.

His private secretary, J. Bernard Teulon, said in a statement issued early today that the death weapon was one of two pistols found in the bedroom where his body was discovered. The other a .32 German Luger, apparently had been thrown against the wall when Winant failed to find ammunition.

Teulon said that Winant had not been in good health since the summer, but that he had continued to work on his memoirs, even completing a section of the second volume yesterday.

He ate lunch downstairs, but had dinner served in his room. No one saw him after dinner. Teulon said he died at 8:20 p.m., about an hour after the diplomat had fired the fatal shot into his head. He did not regain consciousness, dying while his personal physician was administering to him.

Mrs. Winant, who was notified in New York of his death, arrived at Concord airport in a state of collapse, in a chartered plane early today. She went immediately to the family home.

In Low Spirits

Miss Irene Mason, secretary to the thrice-governor of New Hampshire, told officials he had been suffering "mental and physical fatigue," while Miss Orol Mears, a maid in the Winant home, said he "seemed to be in low spirits."

They said they heard no shot but were attracted by the thump of Winant's body. They rushed from the first floor study to find him dying in his room.

Winant returned to private life last December when he asked Prsident Truman to relieve him of his post as permanent United States representative on the United Nations Economic and Social Council, to which the President had named him in 1946, after he left his ambassdor's office.

Throughout his public life, Winant cared naught for political creeds. He never hesitated to support President Roosevelt on legislation designed to better the American people, often doing so in the face of colleague's objections.

He said many times he was not interested in political jobs, but in principles.

Winant, because of a personal resemblance, often was likened to Abraham Lincoln. Tall and somewhat stooped, he appeared serene under most adverse conditions.

Canada Likely to Enter Complicated U.N. Debate On Palestine Partition

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, Nov. 4 (CP) — Canada is likely today or tomorrow to enter the complicated Palestine debate at the United Nations with a statement which will sharply underline the difficulties in both the United States and Russian proposals for partition of the Holy Land into Jewish and Arab states.

For the time being at least, the Dominion does not intend to advance any concrete proposals of its own for settlement of the problem but the delegation aims primarily at this stage at trying to clarify the main issues and focussing attention on the basic difficulties.

Yesterday the Russians presented their Palestine plan, calling for ending the British mandate next Jan. 1, withdrawing all British troops by next May 1, and handing over administration of the Holy Land to the Security Council pending establishment of the two states by Jan. 1, 1949.

The Canadians believe this plan is shot through with weaknesses and have presented the Soviet Union's delegation with a list of about six questions asking clarification on these points.

The delegation also is not particularly impressed with the American plan, rejected completely by the Russians yesterday, which proposes that Britain surrender the mandate simultaneously with both Jewish and Arab states coming into existence next July 1.

This would mean that Britain would have the responsibility for law and order in Palestine until that date and the Canadians are seeking clarification on this too.

It is felt in Canadian circles that in this proposal the Americans are tieing down Britain too much to a responsibility they've borne for many years without much thanks.

Possibly a better approach would be to arrange it in such a fashion that the mandate could be carried on by Britain as a member of the United Nations and on authority from U.N. rather than as a single state acting alone.

Few delegates are giving the Russian proposal much of a chance of acceptance in its present form, for these fear complications would arise if the Security Council had the administrative responsibility, during the transitional period.

According to the Russian scheme this would be from next Jan. 1 when the mandate would be abrogated.

In other major U.N. developments yesterday, the General Assembly without a dissenting vote and in 20 minutes elapsed time approved the Canadian-initiated compromise resolution condemning all forms of war propaganda for peace — or "peace-mongering."

This "war-mongering" dispute had gone on ever since Russia's Andrei Vishinsky made his "war-mongering" charges against the United States, Turkey and Greece in his opening address to the assembly Sept. 18.

But it was all harmoniously brought to a close when the assembly without dissent approved the joint Canadian-Australian-French resolution.

NEWSPAPERMAN "MISSING" SINCE VISITING ZONE

Long Avoided Going Into Soviet Sector

Berlin, Nov. 4 (Reuters) —Dieter Friede, 40-year-old political correspondent of the United States-licensed Berlin paper Der Abend has been "missing" since he visited the Russian sector of the city Saturday, it was alleged today.

The articles of Friede, who is said to have developed a widespread "undercover" news network in the Russian zone, have aroused the occasional antipathy of the Soviet-licensed German press.

Friede, said to have long avoided going into the Soviet sector of Berlin, was expecting a friend from that zone Saturday, when, it was stated, he received a telephone message from a stranger saying that his friend was seriously hurt in an automobile crash.

His friend was said to be lying in a house at Friedrichshagen near the border of the Soviet zone. Friede left for Friedrichshagen and, according to today's report, nothing has been heard of him since.

A man claiming to be a member of the Abend's staff called at Friede's flat and asked the landlady to hand over his notebook and papers, but she refused, the report said.

The editor of the Abend declared no one had been sent from his paper to get anything from Friede's home.

Police Fear Girl May Have Met With Foul Play

Crippled Toronto Girl Missing Since Sunday

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP)—Fear that a 13-year-old partially-paralyzed girl missing since Sunday night may have met with foul play was expressed by police today as they mobilized a city-wide and suburban search.

The girl, Arlene Hilda Anderson, has never been far from home because of her paralysis and a speech impediment, police were told. They learnd the girl was last seen being followed on St. Clair Avenue West, a mile or so from home, by a gang of boys who were teasing her. The motorist who saw her was unable to leave his car in traffic to help her.

"The situation looks extremely bad," said Sergeant of Detectives Joseph Shields. "The entire west end and midtown districts have been combed...anybody would immediately recognize her from the description published in the newspapers yesterday."

Find Gambler's Body in Car Trunk

Detroit, Nov. 4 (AP) — The rope-trussed body of 35-year-old Gust Andromalos, described by police as a gambler, was found today in the trunk of his automobile on an east side street.

Police quoted friends as saying Andromalos was last seen Oct. 29 in a downtown coffee house district.

Officers said acquaintances told them he had $30,000 in his pockets at that time. The only money found on the body was two pennies, although the fingers bore two large diamond rings.

Andromalos' arms and legs were bound behind his back and the legs drawn up by a rope twice around the neck. Police said death apparently resulted from strangulation since the only mark on the body was a bruised nose.

SMALL BABY

Kingston, Nov. 4 (CP) — A baby girl weighing only one pound, 12 ounces is still alive today after delivery by Dr. William Amodeo yesterday. The underweight infant seems to be in good health, Dr. Amodeo said.

Birth of such undersize babies is rare at any time; for them to survive as long as 24 hours is an even rarer occurrance.

The doctor and hospital officials would not release names of the parents.

CANADA'S FOREIGN TRADE SHATTERS ALL-TIME HIGH

Adverse Balance With U. S. Continues Climb and American Dollars Dwindle

Ottawa, Nov. 4 (CP) — Canada's foreign trade has reached a record-shattering $3,927,500,000 for the first nine months of 1947, the highest in her history, and the only black spot on an otherwise bright trade picture is the growing adverse balance with the United States coupled with a dwindling supply of American dollars in this country.

The Bureau of Statistics gave the latest glimpse of the trade picture in official figures issued yesterday. They showed the Canadian trading total of $3,927,500,000 compared with $3,043,900,000 for the first nine months last year and which topped by more than 320,000,000 the peak wartime year — $3,907,000,000 in 1944.

The nine-month record was a far cry from the pre-war Canadian trading total which averaged $1,119,400,000 for similar nine-month periods between 1935 and 1939.

But the adverse balance with the U.S. — the amount Canada has to pay in American funds to cover her import excess over her exports to that country — continued. It jumped another $373,800,000 during September to a new all-time high of $718,300,000 for the nine-month period.

May Seek Loan

The new high, sharpening the possibility of a $800,000,000 adverse balance by the year-end, was disclosed shortly after an unexplained visit to Washington by top Canadian finance officials and recurring rumors Canada may seek a loan from her big neighbor. Finance Minister Abbott has said that "something will be done" about the growing adverse balance.

The figures showed that the September deficit with the U.S. was $2,200,000 more than the August total of $71,600,000 but still was $11,100,000 below the July figure of $84,800,000. At $718,300,000 the trading deficit now is $221,600,000 over the total for the whole of 1946.

With the world at large Canada had a favorable trade balance of $135,000,000 for the first nine months of this year.

In trade with Britain, Canada had a favorable balance of $411,500,000 for the first nine months of 1947 against $397,400,000 for the whole of last year.

CITY CONSUMERS MAY PAY 19 CENTS QUART FOR MILK

Producers Announce Steps to Secure Increase in Price for Product

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP) — The Ontario Whole Milk Producers League has announced steps to secure an increase in the price paid producers, which may result in an increase of two cents a quart to city consumers, bringing the price to 18, or possibly 19 cents.

Following a meeting of producers here yesterday it was announced the Producers' League will apply for an increase from the present $3.45 per hundredweight to $4.30 in the price paid producers. This was estimated to mean an increase of 2.2 cents per quart. Present prices are 6 or 17 cents a quart.

All the 79 milk-producing areas of the province were represented at the meeting, or telegraphed their views, and all but two were in favor of seeking the 85 cent increase to producers, said Roy F. Lick, Oshawa, Secretary of the League.

The two districts which did not join the application are Hamilton and Windsor, which had previously initiated negotiations for an increase because the recent report of the Ontario Royal Commission on milk said production costs were higher in these two districts than in the rest of the province.

Goes to Milk Board

Notice of the producers' request for an increase goes today to the Ontario Milk Board and to the milk distributors organization. The latter then is entitled to name bargaining representatives and arrange a conference. If the distributors and producers reach agreement, the milk Board is notified. If they do not agree, an arbitration Board will be set up.

As amended at the recent session of the legislature the Ontario milk law provides for collective bargaining on price between the producers and distributors.

The Milk Board Act provides that the price paid Oct. 22 is the ceiling price permitted for dairy distributors, but that this price may be increased by order of the Milk Board on approval of the government.

Speakers at yesterday's producer meeting stressed increased costs of coarse grains. Mr. Lick said that the new figure of $3.40 per hundredweight "is based on the minimum which the dairy farmers think they can get by on."

A spokesman for distributors, Bruce Scott of the Ontario Milk Distributors Association, commented that it would be impossible for dairies to absorb any increase in the price paid producers and it would have to be passed on to the consumer.

Kingston Convict Subdued with Hose

Kingston, Nov. 4 (CP) — A wet and subdued convict was removed from roof of workshop building at Kingston penitentiary yesterday after firehose poured water on him for about five minutes, it was learned today.

The 26-year-old convict, whose name penitentiary officials refused to comply with order of prison guards to get down and remained on roof for couple of hours before hose was brought into action.

Christmas Coming, Says Post Office Giving Deadlines

Ottawa, Nov. 4 — (CP)—Don't look now, but Christmas is just around the corner. Approach of the season became official Monday as the post office department issued the first of its annual warnings to Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public to get their Christmas letters and parcels mailed early. Deadline on parcels and letters destined for the European continent is Nov. 8, parcels to the United Kingdom, Nov. 15 and letters to the United Kingdom Nov. 29.

KNOCKS AT DOOR OF PRISON

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP)—One Don jail guard thinks maybe it's the housing shortage. He phoned police last night with the startling information that some one was trying "to break into the prison." Police found an unidentified man pounding on the door of the prison trying to gain admittance. The uninvited guest was chased away.

Red-Dominated Poland Soon to Begin Attack on Church, Terror Grows

—MIKOLAJCZYK

By TOM WILLIAMS

London, Nov. 4 —(AP)— Stanislaw Mikolajczyk predicted today that Communist-dominated Poland soon will begin an attack on the Roman Catholic Church.

The Polish peasant party leader refreshed after his dramatic flight from his native land to escape being "shot and killed like a sheep," said he intended to go soon to the United States to see friends."

(The Foreign Office spokesman told Reuters News Agency today that British authorities had no hand in organizing Mikolajczyk's flight through the Russian zone of Germany. He also denied the Polish leader had been flown here by R.A.F. plane, as had been reported yesterday.)

Fight Against Church.

"I am sure," he said, "that you will hear in a few weeks of a priest being tried for sabotaging the workers; another for having weapons . . . You will see an increasing fight on the church."

Answering questions, the wartime premier declared:

"Everyone in Poland would like the church land to be divided among the peasants if only they could have political freedom. We often hear of charges being manufactured against priests for associating with the underground, but it is true to say that the church has never enjoyed such enthusiastic support from the people as it does now."

Regarding his bold dash from Warsaw Oct. 20, across the Russian zone of Germany, Mikolajczyk said with a smile:

"Sometimes you meet many ordinary Russian people, who like us, are fond of cigarets."

Canada's Need to Buy More Goods From Friendly Nations Stressed by Trade Minister

London, Nov. 4 —(CP)—Trade Minister James A. MacKinnon of Canada said today that "never before have I been so impressed by the need of Canada to buy more from countries who buy so much from us, especially those of the British Commonwealth."

In an interview following his 23,000-mile good-will mission trip covering 12 countries, the minister emphasized that "we must realize that by so doing we indirectly assist and strengthen the United Kingdom in her present financial condition."

MacKinnon, completing a busy schedule before sailing for the Dominion tomorrow, spent an hour today conferring with Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade.

A good-will tour to South Africa and other countries which are outstanding Canadian customers was planned last spring, MacKinnon said, but it now coincided with the United Kingdom dollar crisis.

It thus gave the Canadian mission an opportunity to explain what Canada was doing to assist the United Kingdom over its difficulties.

"The mission was unlike most delegations that go abroad in that for the first time great emphasis was laid on Canada's desire to assist foreign exporters to sell their products in Canada rather than merely to assist Canadian exporters to sell their merchandise.

"This attitude on our part was the more appreciated by the many countries we visited because in the majority of cases we had a balance of trade in our favor which at times was most embarrassing."

The mission tried to show its appreciation of past business from the countries visited and "we have every reason for believing that we left the desire on their part to place even larger orders in Canada, limited only by their own financial resources and our ability to supply."

Airplane Pressed Into Hunt for Missing Boy

AIRPLANE PRESSED etc

Sudbury, Nov. 4 — (CP) — An airplane has been pressed into the hunt for missing eight-year-old John Gougeon, of Haileybury, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Samson of Sudbury. A blood hound will probably be added to the search this afternoon for the boy who has been missing from his Haileybury home since Sunday afternoon.

Reports reaching anxious relatives here from the boy's parents scout the theory that the boy might have been drowned in Lake Temiskaming. In the belief that he may have wandered away, or been forced to leave against his will, the parents have notified all members of the Ontario Provincial Police across Northern Ontario.

Says Whisky Good For Canary Warbles

Hartford, Conn., Nov. 4—(AP) — A canary, when it is "down in its warbles," needs a "throat-opener," says Mrs. Catherine Grasso, canary breeder and judge, but even then, it shows a lot more sense than some human beings.

Mrs. Grasso said here yesterday at the first canary show in Connecticut history that a "drop of whisky or a bit of gin" was the best thing for restoring a canary's warbles, "but the cure never makes it drunk."

"Men are in the rabit of taking the cure before they get sick," she added.

London Presents Fine Furniture To Elizabeth

London, Nov. 4 — (AP)—The Lord Mayor of London, flanked by aldermen and councillors all standing stiffly in their formal finery of office, today presented the city's wedding present—highly prized antique furniture — to Princess Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace.

Wearing his heavy gilded robes and massive chain of authority, the Lord Mayor, Sir Bracewell Smith, read a congratulatory address to which the Princess replied:

"As long as we live it will be the constant purpose of Lieut. (Philip) Mountbatten and myself to serve a people who are so dear to me and to show ourselves deserving of their esteem.

"As a freeman of the city I am especially glad to receive your good wishes."

The heiress presumptive to the throne was made a freeman of the "city," the square mile which is the oldest part of London and its financial centre, last summer.

A pair of Sheraton satinwood side tables inlaid with flowers, vases and scrolls; Adam mirrors in gilt, fluted and elaborately decorated; a set of Sheraton decorated furniture comprising five elbow chairs and two window seats; a Sheraton satinwood Pembroke table and an Adam half circular chest finely inlaid.

Crew of 30 Rescued From Sinking Schooner

New York, Nov. 4 — (AP) — The Coast Guard said today that the United States Army transport John Stafford reported it had rescued a crew of 30 men from the three-masted Portuguese schooner Maria Carlota, which radioed last night that it was sinking in mid-Atlantic.

The 230-ton schooner was set afire by its crew and left adrift, the Coast Guard said.

Cunard White Star Lines said in London that the liner Queen Elizabeth, which had changed her course to aid the disabled schooner, was proceeding on her voyage to Southampton.

Rescue units, including a Coast Guard cutter and a converted B-17 plane equipped for air - sea rescue operations, were recalled.

The Carlota's position was fixed by the Coast Guard as 640 miles east-southeast of Argentia, Nfld. She was reported sinking after running before a storm.

'Guying' Popular Political Sport Ever Since Gunpowder Plot of 1605

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—Tomorrow night's the night the fireworks go off all over Britain as children and grownups "remember the fifth of November.

"And the Gunpowder Plot of 1605.

In a festival resembling a cross between the 24th of May and hallowe'en, children will parade their "guys"—cloth effigies of public figures—to bonfires and burn them amid exploding firecrackers and soaring rockets. Adults will be begged to "remember the Guy" and contribute to his creamation with a few pennies to buy fireworks.

Fawkes commemorates the attempt by Roman Catholic plotters, angered at the harsh anti-Catholic measures invoked by King James I, to "blow the Scottish King back to Scotland."

One of the plotters, Guy Fawkes, was caught red-handed. Seven others were rounded up. All were hanged, drawn and quartered.

Children adopted the custom of hanging and burning Guy in effigy and have been doing so ever since —with variations. Nowadays it is seldom an effigy of Guy that is burned but of some more modern figure.

A history of England could be written around the men who have been "guyed." For a long time the reigning Pope was a popular "Guy"—because of the papist nature of the original plot—and he was followed by Oliver Cromwell, Bonnie Prince Charlie, Napoleon, Nana Sahib (leader of the Indian mutiny), the Boer's President Kruger, the Kaiser and Trotsky.

It is difficult to say who is the most frequent Guy this year. Some observers claim that Emanuel Shinwell, army minister and recently relieved of his fuel ministry post, is the No. 1 selection while others say that it is Winston Churchill, leader of the Conservative party.

Guying is always a popular form of political criticism and this year is no exception.

Merchants Asked To Give Veterans Time for Parade

With no public holiday having been proclaimed by city officials for Remembrance Day, November 11th, merchants in the city employing veterans will be asked to permit these workers time off to attend the Remembrance Day program.

This was decided this morning at a meeting of the directors of the Retail Merchants' Division of the Chamber of Commerce when they met for their regular meeting. The matter of merchants closing on Remembrance Day was discussed by the executive but as all members of the executive were not in accord on the matter it was decided that no action would be taken, especially in view of the fact the day had not be proclaimed a holiday by city officials.

Remembrance Day has been declared a statutory holiday for the Dominion, thus all government offices and banks will remain closed.

Graduate Nurses Plan Refresher Course

Dr. Gordon Mylks of the Canadian Cancer Society, Kingston, lecturer on the staff of Queen's University, addressed the graduate and student nurses recently at the Belleville General Hospital. Dr. Mylk's lecture on Cancer was most educational and instructive in nursing. A film "Time is Life" was later shown. Mrs. W. Donaldson, president of the Belleville Community Nursing Registry, introduced the speaker.

During the month of November the educational committee of the Community Nursing Registry are planning a refresher course for graduate nurses of Belleville and district.

This is the first course of its kind to be held here since the close of World War II. Medicine has advanced greatly since 1939. It is hoped a large number of active, as well as non active nurses, will avail themselves of the opportunity of attending this series which will be held in the Ritchie Memorial Residence of the Belleville General Hospital.

Sow Chews Two Fingers from Hand Of Little Girl

New Liskeard, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—Police Chief J. J. Evers said last night a sow entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Alberta of nearby Kenabeek, chewed two fingers from a three-year-old girl's hand and mangled a third.

Chief Evers said he had been informed the animal forced its way into he house last week while the mother was away. The injured girl was one of six children living with the mother at Kenabeek, 15 miles north of here, while the other children are with the father, a sawmill worker at Gogama.

The police chief said the girl was brought to New Liskeard by Dan Jarvis, a farmer neighbor, for medical treatment. The Children's Aid Society, notified of the incident, was reported to have taken the six children under care at Dane, 40 miles north of here.

Chief Evers added the mother was in New Liskeard and that arrangements would be made for the return of the children to her.

WOULD BE BREAKING LAW

Ottawa, Nov. 4 — (CP) — If you're tempted to include apples in your next parcel overseas, don't — they'd probably spoil in transit and, besides, you'd be breaking the low.

That's what the Department of Agriculture said today in issuing a reminder that its export regulations forbid shipment of apples to countries other than the United States and Newfoundland unless they are certified to be free of apple maggot.

This certification cannot be supplied for small quantities which might be sent by parcel post.

Cracks Police Safe Legally of Course

Moose Jaw, Sask., Nov. 4—(CP)—When a Moose Jaw man purchased 20 safes from surplus military supplies recently he stood to make a fair profit on the transaction—if he could get them open.

He immediately called in Louis Ouellette, 55-year-old locksmith, who specializes in opening safes—legally—with nothing more dangerous than a paper and pencil.

Ouellette has never tried detective-story techniques of safe-cracking—such as rubbing the fingers with sandpaper. The probable result of that, he said, would be sore fingers.

He first finds the number of dials in the lock by checking the clicks as he spins the knob. Then, using a system of combinations he has worked out, he tediously turns the knob until the lock opens. Sometimes it takes 20 minutes—sometimes 30 hours.

One of his most interesting jobs was opening a Moose Jaw police department vault that had been locked for years. He was sworn in as a special constable before he did it.

The meanest safe he ever opened took only two tries—then the door fell off.

Believes Gamblers Poisoned 6 Blooms Of Choicest "Mums"

Macclesfield, Cheshire, England, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Jim Jackson, champion chrysanthemum grower of this west of England district, believes that gamblers, "known to bet heavily on local flower shows," poisoned six of his choicest blooms.

Arriving home from a flower show where he had won first prize, Jackson said he found three patches of tetrachloride on the greenhouse floor and blooms he had intended to exhibit next Saturday at another show wilting.

"No fellow-exhibitor would have done a mean trick like that" he was reported to have said.

Liquid tetrachloride is the chemical frequently used for bleaching.

Trinity United Church Observes Anniversary

Madoc — The Anniversary Services of Trinity United Church were held, on Sunday, Nov. 2nd, with Rev. A. Dawson Matheson, Dean of Emmanuel Theological College, Toronto, as the guest speaker.

Large and appreciative congregations listened with rapt attention to the stirring and eloquent sermons delivered by the Dean. The morning subject was "With Gratitude We Press On." The text was taken from I Cor. 15:57 "Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ". The subject of the evening sermon was "The Church's Urgent Task". The text was selected from the Gospel of St. Luke 14;23, "Go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in."

The services were conducted by the minister of the Church, Rev. A. Poulter, who introduced the speaker and welcomed him on behalf of the session and congregation of Trinity Church.

During the morning service the choir of Trinity Church sang the anthem "Seek Ye the Lord" and Mrs. McKinley Rankin delighted all with a solo rendering of "Beside Still Waters."

In the evening the choir of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, under the direction of the minister, Rev. R. W. Barker, led in the worship of song. Two anthems were sung "Arise and Shine" and "The Twenty Third Psalm." Mr. Percy Pyear sang a solo "The Ninety and Nine". The guest speaker and the choir were warmly thanked by the minister of the Church for their services of inspiration and praise.

Rev. M. W. Heslit, the visiting minister at St. Peter's Presbyterian Church, and many of the congregation attended the evening service; also many from other communions and from Stirling attended the services.

Liberal Leader Raps Drew Over Vacation Lands

Toronto, Nov. 4 —(CP)— Ontario Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver yesterday rapped Premier George Drew's Progressive-Conservative government for not being alert to all the opportunities of developing Ontario as a vacation land — to benefit residents of the province and help attract American tourist dollars.

"He must sell Ontario and keep it sold, as Canada's even North America's, outstanding attraction for vacationists," Mr. Oliver said in an address prepared for delivery over the Ontario network of the CBC.

Terming 'almost picayune" the the government's appropriation of $335,000 — 0.15 per cent of the provincial budget — for the provincial travel and publicity department which aimed to attract a $70,000,000 tourist trade, Mr. Oliver said "much more can, should, and must be done in the way of advertising and publicity" to keep tourists "interested in this province every year as the place in which to spend their vacations."

"I do not believe we are paying enough attention to developing Ontario as a winter resort," Mr. Oliver said. "Why cannot Muskoka be made as attractive for winter recreation as the Laurentians have become? . . . All that is required is more energy and foresight on the part of the government."

In the increasingly competitive campaign to attract American dollars to Canada it is necessary to give American tourists vacation comforts which would persuade them to return, he said.

"It is up to the government to impress upon the management of hotels and resorts the importance of paying close attention to such vital details as prompt, speedy handling of reservations, appetizing food, promptly served, and more modern and more comfortable rooms and beds."

The building of good roads to vacation spots was a necessity Mr. Oliver said, for "tourists—especially Americans — have turned back when they have had to drive over bone-shaking excuses for roads in order to reach some desirable spot for camping, fishing or hunting.

RED-DOMINATED

(A United States military government source in Berlin said Mikolajczyk had been helped in his 15-day flight by a kind of "underground railroad" set up by American and British intelligence sections.)

He said Communists in a free election would get less than five per cent of the Polish vote; that Communist control and terror were increasing in Poland; that feeling there "is very intense now."

Will Visit U. S. Friends.

"I have not yet decided whether to join the International Peasant Party organization" in Washington, "but I shall go to the United States to see friends. I have very many there.

"Many Poles have been made to believe the Communist story that America is moving for another war."

He declared himself still the leader of his party, despite seizure of it by Left Wingers last week. He said he was considering writing of his experiences for "2½ years under the control of the so-called Peoples' Democracy," although he left most of his papers behind. He said nothing new about the friends who dropped from sight with him in Warsaw last month. Previously he said he believed they were safe.

He predicted that Poland will come more and more under Communist control and more pressure will be put on the people following the coming of the comintern.

"If the Yalta decision could be fulfilled in Poland and there could be a free, unfettered election, I am quite sure that the Communist bloc would not get five per cent of the votes.

"But there has been a steady increase of the terror and it has grown more since the comintern."

Communist Bureau

He was referring to the recent organization in Poland of a nine-country Communist information bureau with headquarters at Belgrade.

"The real terror," he continued at a press conference, "has existed there all the time and we have been resisting it as much as we were able in the past 2 1-2 years.

He planned a quiet day, resting and relaxing from a journey across most of a continent, over the heavily-guarded Polish border, through the Russian-occupied zone of Germany, and by R.A.F. plane to England.

Berlin, Nov. 4 (AP)—A United States military government source said today that Stanislaw Mikolajczyk was aided in his dramatic 15-day flight from Warsaw to London by a sort of "underground railway" set up by United States and British army intelligence sections to help "interesting personalities" escaping from the east to west.

The Polish Peasant party leader, who fled Warsaw Oct. 20, arrived in the British zone of Germany Saturday.

An informed American source here said those who helped him comprised a team especially trained and practised in aiding persons escaping from the east to the west, such as scientists, technicians, scholars, politicians and others. This source said such persons were being moved westward at a rate of two a day.

"We get some hot customers—hot with the breath of the Russian pursuers on their necks," the informant said. "Some of these have been Russian scientists who fled the Soviet Union and made their way to the United States or British sectors of Berlin and appealed to us as refugees."

A War Department detachment taking orders only from the highest authorities was reported to be in charge of the American phase of the work.

Kinsmen Club Holds Business Meeting

It was strictly business at Kinsmen Club meeting on Monday evening as it was decided to dispense with the customary guest speaker in order that the time may be utilized to clean up numerous business matters.

A report of Friday evening's Hallowe'en party was given by committee chairman Jack Sherwood, while a list of forthcoming club projects was given by Bill Dennis.

Kin Ernie Smith gave an outline of the accomplishments of George Haddad, noted Canadian pianist from Windsor who will give a piano recital in the Collegiate Auditorium on November 18th. Mr. Haddad has completed several tours in the United States and is just now commencing a Canadian tour.

Club members will be given the opportunity of joining a club bowling league with games to be played each Monday evening at the Recreation Alleys. Already six teams of club members and their wives have entered the league.

The matter of club dues came up for discussion with members voting a two dollar increase in annual dues in order to take care of added expense arising from district and national dues.

President Art Cruji acted as chairman for the meeting with Kin Johnny Fisher as sergeant at arms, Kin Gardiner Duff as song leader and Kin Phil Huddleston as pianist. Alec Gordon, well known local pianist, favored with several tricky piano selections and received a big hand from club members.

Devotions to Mark Visit of Statue To St. Michael's

This Tuesday evening an event of much importance will take place at St. Michael's Church when ceremonies will open in connection with the visit to this parish of a replica of the statue of Our Lady of Fatima, Portugal, which is now being taken across America. The statue will arrive at seven thirty o'clock and devotions will immediately begin. Services will include the Rosary and the Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Augustin Bennett, C.S.S.R., and the Benediction will be conducted by Monsignor McGrath of Scarborough Foreign Missions, assisted by Dean Garvin of Tweed and the Rev. E. Briceland of Read. The Rosary will be recited by Rev. Father J. Carley. Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson will attend on the reception of the statue.

Pontifical High Mass.

On Wednesday the devotions will be continued with Pontifical High Mass at 8.30 a.m. In the afternoon at four o'clock the Novena of Perpetual Help will close the exercises associated with the presence of the statue in St. Michael's parish.

This statue came from Portugal to New York and is now making a tour of the Dominion. The purpose is to encourage devotion to the Blessed Virgin and to ask her intercession in bringing peace to the world and for the conversion of Russia. It will be taken to South America and thence to Asia and carried to the borders of the Soviet-controlled countries on that Continent. A similar statue is being carried eastward across Europe to the "iron curtain" behind which are Russians and the Communist-controlled lands.

The occasion is one of deep interest to the people of this parish of St. Michael the Archangel. It was in Kingston on Sunday and at Marysville on Wednesday and after the devotions at Belleville it will be taken by car to Marmora and then to Peterborough.

Christian Youth Fellowship Holds Opening Meeting

The opening meeting of the Christian Youth Fellowship, held Saturday evening in the Salvation Army Citadel, was well attended. An inspiring and challenging address was given by the Rev. C. A. Perkins and music furnished by the C.Y.F. chorus and visiting artist Jack Fenn, was gladly received.

Mr. Perkins based his address on the words of Jesus Christ to Peter; "Thou art Simon, but thou shalt be Peter, a rock". Simon, the Galilean fisherman, did not become the great apostle instantaneously but he grew, the speaker pointed out. He denied his Lord and deserted Him, but Jesus had faith in Peter when he did not have faith in himself. When Simon finally became Peter, the man of rock, there were no more denials delinquency and despondency. He became leader of the apostles.

"There is a better you in you and a better me in me", said Mr. Perkins. "There are hidden possibilities for growth in every one of us. That growth can only be realized and experienced as we allow Jesus to mould us and direct us all the way.

"A young man in trouble was told by his pastor, 'The important thing is not that you have failed but that you have tried and will try again'. No matter how we have failed, Jesus Christ lets us keep on until the old Simon is licked and the new Peter is born. There is a Peter in every Simon.

"We are made in the image of God. God has made each one of us capable of reaching the heights of Christian experience. The old Simon drags us down but the new Peter lifts us up. God has planned that if Jesus grows within us, the new Peter shall be triumphant and lead us into the avenues of service where our influence can count in the building of the Kingdom of God. What an opportunity young people have today to commit their lives in the upbuilding of men".

The meeting was under the chairmanship of Eric Naylor, president of the Fellowship. The opening prayer was given by Cyril Magor and Scripture was read by Dennis Smith. Two numbers were sung by the C.Y.F. chorus, under the direction of Stan Lessels, "Glorious Things of Thee are Spoken" and "True Hearted, Whole Hearted". A trio composed of Misses Eleanor Baragar, Marion Allen and Jean Cook sang "In Remembrance of Me". Miss Edna Jobson accompanied at the piano. Jack Fenn, popular young cornetist, played "The Old Refrain" accompanied by Mrs. Jack Green, and a vocal solo "Follow Me" was contributed by George Ellerby, accompanied by Mrs. Ellerby.

Education Week:

History of City Public Schools

King George School

For a number of years previous to the construction of the King George Public School on North Front Street, a very crowded condition existed in the Grier St. Public School — now the factory building of J. and J. Cash Co. This school had been providing accommodation for the children of S.S. No. 5 Thurlow, as well as for the northern portion of the city of Belleville. A partial relief for the congestion was secured by transferring the Thurlow pupils to the gymnasium of the old Albet College buildings.

Queen Mary and Queen Victoria Schools were both quite crowded and the Grier St. School being in a most unsatisfactory condition a new building was considered necessary. The property about five acres, was purchased from Mr. S. J. Wedden and Mr. T. Manley was given the contract for the construction of the present building.

The construction of the new building was sufficiently completed to allow it to be used for school purposes in September 1923. No official ceremony marked the opening.

The staff in the school in September 1923 was as follows:

Chas. F. Simpkins, principal, Jas. Irwin; Miss M. Fleming; Miss A. Lounsberry; Miss H. Middleton; Miss H. Sills; Miss M. Urquhart; Miss E. Watson and Miss M. Wedden.

Upon the retirement of Mr. C. F. Simpkins in 1929, Mr. L. A. Kells was appointed principal. In December 1943, Mr. L. A. Kells, B.A., B. Paed, was appointed by the Dept. of Education as inspector of Belleville Public Schools and Mr. Chas. Brown was appointed principal. Mr. Brown was appointed to the staff of the Belleville Collegiate in June 1945 and Mr. E. S. Fairman was appointed principal.

In 1930 the King George Home and School Association was formed with Mrs. R. E. Smith as its first president.

Two Deer Killed With One Bullet

Hull, Que., Nov. 4 (CP)—Two birds with one stone? Kid stuff! Here's a hunter who brings down two deer with one shot.

It happened during the weekend to Dr. Louis J. Levesque of Hull, who was hunting with a friend, Wilfred Lablanc, also of Hull, at Murray Lake, near Maniwaki, Que., about 60 miles north of here. Sighting a buck about 100 yards away Dr. Levesque fire one shot with his .32 calibre Winchester.

When the hunters arrived at the point where the buck had been dropped in his tracks, they found a dead doe beside it. The shot had passed through the buck's neck and lodged in his mate's shoulder.

Canterbury, England, Nov. 4 — (AP)— Dr. Hewlett Johnson, 62-year-old "Red Dean" of Canterbury, cancelled his plans today to make a three-week lecture tour in the United States. His wife said he was in bed with an ailment "similar to sciatica."

Few Negroes Cast Ballots in Election

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 4—(AP)—Few Negroes cast ballots with the overwhelming white electorate today in Mississippi's state-wide election to name a successor to the late Senator Theodore G. Bilbo.

The capital city of Jackson reported "heavier than usual" votinging from the start, reflecting a lively campaign over the issues of anti-Communism, race-segregation and "outside meddlers" in Mississippi politics.

Early reports from the Delta showed that votes had been cast by only four Negroes out of a total of 80 votes in two boxes at Greenville.

Lighter voting was reported from some other cities, including Hattiesburg and West Point, with no Negroes participating.

Sugar Ration Off

On Monday the food ration book lost its value when sugar, the last of the foods to be bought under the ration system since the middle of 1942, could be had without the production of the coupons to which Canadian people became accustomed five years ago.

That time seems far off. Gradually and steadily the eclipse of the ration book has been taking place as article after article of food was purchaseable without the ration slip.

Rationing was one of the necessities of a wartime economy, what with the needs for the armed forces, the Allied countries and the people at home in Canada. It assured a fair distribution of foods and offset or made impossible attempts to hoard these commodities.

During the rationing period, the Canadian people were well fed. While numbers went with something less than usual in the way of these food commodities the average standard of living was high.

Sugar, butter and meat stayed longest under rationing. Meat was early freed from the use of ration coupons and tokens, and had to be placed back on the system for a period of time. Sugar anr butter stayed under the system from the time when they were controlled by rationing. Butter was the second last of the foods to be freely sold and sugar and molasses bring up the end of this system of distribution.

Sugar allowances were gradually increased as supplies were built up, these increases easing the situation considerably.

Health

"More men are living well into their second forty years than ever before. Half a century ago the average life expectancy at birth was between 45 and 50 years; today it is nearly twenty years longer. Much of the increase is due to control of diseases which formerly took great toll of young people. The science of medicine, the spread of good sanitation and strides in agriculture have contributed to longevity."

This statement appears in the monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada on Business Men's Health. The letter goes on to comment, "Our population is getting older. Between 1921 and 1941, the number of people from 0 to 19 decreased from 43.4 to 37.5 per cent of total population, while persons 65 and over increased from 4.8 to 6.7 per cent of total population. In the ages 65 and over the increased percentage was 83.21.

It is true that science has not found an injection that provides renewed youth at forty, but it can show how to continue some of the advantages of youth in these later years.

When the four chief components of life from adolescence as work, recreation, physical health and mental health are balanced then life can be very satisfying and will be enjoyed longer."

The letter answers the question how to achieve this balance. It must be realized first of all that if you are emotionally upset, unhappy in your work, deprived of an outlet for your creative urges, depression may cause pain symptoms in the body.

"Then it must be realized that no hocus-pocus is going to make one over." The letter advises, "Get competent advice, start periodical medical examination and believe your physician. Don't shy away from new practices just because they are different from those to which your grandparents were accustomed."

Signs of the times are seen in words once new which are now understood by everyone, "psychology" and "psychoanalysis." The former has yielded knowledge of boundless value to people of this era, and the study of the subconscious mind need have nothing fearsome about it. Another expression is "psychosomatic medicine" from "psyche" meaning "soul" and "soma" body.

The letter closes with the comment, "The world does not owe anyone health or wealth; they have to be earned. Everybody wishes so to live that he shall extract the greatest satisfaction from living. Everybody in this pursuit that the art of living manifests itself. Many people fail in the quest because they never clearly think out just what the most satisfactory things for them may be . . . To live wisely and well is indeed an art and he who gains skill in this greatest of all arts is favored of the gods."

This age of so much real wonder and progress as revealed by science should be inspiring to every man and woman and child. Science are at work to help man to live longer and more happily.

There are a few simple things people can do to help keep their bodies and minds in good condition. "They should slow down and relax every once in a while. Relaxation isn't magic, but it does give the body a chance to pull itself together." Next to rest comes exercise. Persons who have continuous and heavy responsibilities need to engage in outdoor activity.

The Curse of Ideologies

Right down through history we can trace the sanguinary working of ideologies. The ideological struggle between Athenian democracy and Spartan aristocracy prepared the way for the extinction of the Greek city-state. A similar struggle in Rome ended in the triumph of Caesarism. The fantacism of rival creeds in Europe bore appalling harvest in the quaintly entitled "religious wars," which ended barely 30 years ago. In our own day we have had conflicting ideologies bringing tragedy to Spain.

An ideology, or system of ideas, is in no way objectionable so long as it remains an exercise of the private intellect or an affair of the academies or even a theme of constitutional propaganda. It becomes objectionable and evil when devotion to it dries up the well of human kindness and leads people to become intolerant and cruel. A man who dies for an idea may command our admiration, but not a man who murders other people for it. The awful error of the ideologue is that he thinks of human beings, not as men, women and children, still less as friends, but as puppets to be worked in the interest of his idea, or as pests to be destroyed because they refused to conform to it.

It is this brand of "ideology," alien to our way of life, and today torturing Europe, that we must, at all costs, avoid in this country. The British, suspicious of uncompromising theorists, have found the secret of progress in the working out of practical comprises — have always been reformists rather than revolutionaries. We must cling to their way.

Cling to that way, too — shun hate-breeding ideologies — because we are Christians. Christianity tells us that duties and decencies are more to be cherished than hates for an idea; that souls are always more sacred than systems. Ideologies which seek to control and compel persons are always sub-Christian and often anti-Christian. The only ideology worth cherishing is that which bids us do all the good we can in all the ways we can to all the people we can. When Christ said of little children that they were of the Kingdom of Heaven, He gave the lie to the inhuman people who would set an idea there instead. —Ottawa Journal.

Thirty Days Hath November

A calendar watcher — a slightly higher form of life than the clock watcher — looked thoughtfully at the sheet for November. Five Sundays, with no work to be done by him. Five Saturdays, with no obligation to come to the office. Three holidays —election day, Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day — which were off days for him, not for all. Total working days for November, seventeen; total idling days, thirteen. Whereupon he muttered a few words which were understood by those standing near to be, "Let us then be up and doing." But they might have been, "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." — New York Sun.

Some must follow and some command, though all are made of clay.—Longfellow.

Our greatest glory is not in never failing, but in rising every time we fall.—Confucius.

FATHERLY CONCERN

The boy who heeds his father will not suffer much remorse.
He'll cash no checks for strangers and their notes he won't endorse.
For there never was a father, at least
none I ever knew,
Who didn't tell his youngster these are foolish things to do.

The boy who heeds his father will not throw his life away.
He'll know the various follies that have led good men astray.
For there never was a father, at least
none that's known to me,
Who didn't want his youngster to be wiser than was he.

The boy who heeds his father will learn all he can at school.
He'll know that fame and fortune
scorn the idler and the fool,
For there never was a father who didn't warn his son,
Howsoever he was tempted, not to do
as he had done.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

When did the Army use camels in America

On March 3, 1855, President Franklin Pierce approved an act of Congress appropriating $30,000 for the "purchase of camels and importation of dromedaries to be employed for military purposes."

Secretary of War Jefferson Davis sent Captain Henry C. Wayne to the Near East to buy camels. Captain David Dixon Porter made two voyages to the Mediterranean in the steam storeship "Supply" and transported a total of 77 camels to the United States. Another cargo of 41 camels was transported in the "Suwanee."

The camels were landed at Indianola on the Texas coast, taken overland to the new camel station at Camp Verde west of San Antonio, and placed temporarily in charge of Captain Wayne. Moslem camel drivers and attendants were brought over from the Levant to teach American cavalrymen how to breed, handle, pack and drive camels.

It was Edward Fitzgerald Beale frontiersman and explorer who served in both the Army and Navy, who conceived and sold to Secretary Davis the idea that camels would provide efficient transportation across what was then known as the Great American Desert. He argued that camels go longer, eat less, carry heavier loads and travel faster and longer than horses and mules.

In 1857 Beale set out on an expedition to test the fitness of camels for transportation in the semi-arid regions of the West. The train consisted of a troop of cavalry, mules pulling wagons, Indian guides, 15 camels in charge of a Moslem "camelteer" named Hadj Ali, and 100 sheep to supply mutton in any emergency. One purpose of the expedition was to survey a wagon road from Fort Defiance, New Mexico, to the Colorado River. Beale took the camel corps all the way from Camp Verde to Los Angeles and back. He reported that he lost 10 mules and two horses in crossing the Colorado River but no camels and that the camel experiment was successful.

Despite Beale's praise of their performance, little further use was made of the camels by the Army. The experiment failed for several reasons. Public opinion was decidedly opposed to the use of camels. The Arabian dromedaries did not prove adapted to the rocky terrain of the West Sharp stones cut their feet and made the camels lame. American cavalrymen did not like camels because they are ugly tempered and because they frighten horses. The presence of the camels often caused the horses to stampede.

Finally the War Department reported: "It has been shown that camels are not adapted to military transportation in this country."

Nun With Union Card Saves Show

Ottawa, Nov. 4 (CP) — A Canadian arm of American music czar James C. Petrillo and his American Musicians Union (A.F.-L.) reached into a local radio station last night and almost stopped a choral choir broadcast — but a nun with a union card stepped in and saved the show.

Greatest concern of officials of the Notre Dame Convent Choral Speaking Choir today was what to do about two more broadcasts scheduled for later this week in connection with National Education Week. Sister St. Francis of Notre Dame Convent, Kingston, the nun with the union card, won't be around. She is scheduled to return to Kingston.

The Ottawa Local of the A.M.U. informed choir officials that the broadcast couldn't go out over a local station (CFRA) last night unless a union musician provided the necessary accompaniment or was paid to stand by.

Officials made frantic telephone calls and discovered that the regular choir accompanist, Sister St. Francis, by a freak of fate, had an A.M.U. card. She obtained it in local 802, New York City, when she went there to take a music course and discovered only union members could take the course.

Donald Lynn, secretary of the Ottawa Local of the A.M.U. quickly confirmed Sister St. Francis' union status and the choir broadcast went on as scheduled.

Harold E. McCloskey, a choir official, said: 'We're not trying to buck the union, but we don't think they should interfere in a matter of this nature."

He added that Seoarte School music teachers, such as Sisiter Francis, are not professional musicians and their job is teaching not competing with professional musicians.

"We're at a) stalemate," he added.

Its either pay a union accompanist, go on without one — or find another nun with a union card.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

BABIES, BE COMFORTABLE

Massachusetts reader says she has followed many of the teachings in The Brady Baby Book (inclose twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope and ask for it in writing) and has the finest, healthiest fourteen months old baby. She particularly likes my advice concerning dressing babies so be comfortable...

You had better listen to this, Baby, whether you are fourteen months, fourteen years, forty or seventy years old. It applies to babies of all ages.

"I know that many times other women have disapproved of the lack of clothing my baby wears, but he has never had a cold and he has never been upset or cross even when cutting teeth, thanks to your advice."

Only a short while ago I had half a dozen letters from parents thanking me for having taught them not to worry about what the youngsters wear, so far as health may be concerned. It makes no difference whether one wears little or much clothing or goes barehead, barefoot, bare kneed in any weather or climate. That is, provided one is not an idiot. An idiot may not known enough to realize whether he is comfortable. If you regard your children as idots you must tell 'em whether they are comfortable or not.

The infant too young to express discomfort otherwise than by crying requires a simple test if you wish to be sure the baby has sufficient clothing or bed cover. Feel of the baby's feet. If they are warm to your hand the baby has plenty of clothing or bed covers, no matter how cold the weather or the room may be.

When children go out to play in cold or damp weather the less clothing they wear the better for health. It is a mistake to bundle them up in hampering coats, sweaters, overshoes, leggings and the like, for such excessive clothing makes active play too great an effort, tires the children quickly, impedes their development makes soft namby-pambies of them.

I do not advise anything like "hardening" of children or adults. I do agree with the dictum of Dr. Leonard Hill, famous English physiologist and ventilation authority, that—

"It is absurd to put on an overcoat when going out for a walk. It is good to go out and be braced by feeling cold and so be impelled to take vigorous exercise."

Then it seems to me that the experience of polar explorers, hunters, fishermen, surveyors, sailors, soldiers, forest rangers, lumbermen and the like is better evidence that the traditional fancies of fireside philosophers. Take for instance the statement of Vilhjalmur Stefansson in his book The Friendly Arctic:

"No one in any of our parties has ever, so far as I know, suffered the slightest ill effect from "indefinite exposure to damp . . . Seldom a day when the feet of all the Indians we were with were not wet all day. I had Eskimo footwear and my feet were never wet while I was with the Indians, but I do not remember that there was any difference between us as to catching cold. This occurred when we met strangers and not when we happened to get wet . . ."

(I'm sorry, but I remember now that this is what Stafansson wrote in a personal communication in reply to my queries and not in the book.)

. . . "I don't want to pretend deciding anything. but certainly all my evidence, whether from experience or observation, is completely negative. I have never sen any connection between wet feet and head colds."

Once more, kids, let me assure you that chapping, chilblain, frostbite or freezing are the only ill effects any one can possibly get from exposure to any kind of weather, dampness, sudden change or cold.

And once more, mollycoddles, fussbudgets and fireside philosophers that life is a good deal more enjoyable for any one who can take every-day experiences with dampness, draft, sudden change, cold, wet and the like with an upsy-daisy and then forget it.

IF YOU CANNOT PAY ANY MORE PREMIUMS

SOME people fear the future more than the present!

✰ Occasionally they hesitate about buying more life insurance because they do not know if they can keep up premium payments "if a depression comes". Such hesitation is unwarranted.

✰ If, after the policy has had three years' premiums paid, some economic situation prevents you from paying a premium, you can arrange to have your insurance continued in force by:

1. Having the premiums paid by a loan against the policy . . . This will be done automatically if a premium is not paid within thirty days of its due date . . . While the loan, with interest, is a charge against the policy in event of death or maturity, the loan value is generally increased by reason of the premium so paid; or

2. Converting the policy into a "paid-up" policy for a smaller amount on the same plan, but without any further premiums being required; or

3. Securing a "term insurance" policy (free from premium payments) for the full amount (less any loans) for a stated period—after which the insurance ceases entirely; or

4. Obtaining the "cash value" through the discontinuance of the policy contract.

✰ The first option enables you to keep your policy in force so that you can restore it to its original condition by repaying the premium loans with interest . . . The other three give you a return on your investment in premiums, either in proportionate protection, or full coverage for a limited period, or in cash payment.

✰ If you have "put off" buying life insurance recently because of your personal uncertainties—why not let us together examine how your life insurance premiums can safeguard your future, "stormy weather" or not!

Bancroft

Bancroft (Special) — Bancroft for a second time will open a theatre in its village. The former theatre constructed, run and operated by the late Elvin George of Bancroft, was situated on Hastings Street and which now is divided into two stores, that of G. A. Eddy, druggist and that of Tom Mahoney, who operates the Fairway Store. The new theatre is situated on Bridge St., between Hotel Bancroft and the Department of Highway Office. Messrs. G. E. Broughton and A. Winch, formerly of Bowmanville, moved into Bancroft last January taking up residence here. They were both ex-servicemen having served in the Navy and R.C.A.F. They set out on a great venture in this part of Hastings County to establish a theatre in Bancroft with a capital outlay of between forty and fifty thousand dollars. The weather and securing of materials was against the men for some months but they finally turned the first sods in June and since that time this large theatre has progressed under a local contractor, Albert Ciana, and his son "Tony" and local labor. Mr. Ciana was a native of Switzerland and there he learned his trade as a stone mason. He has many excellent pieces of work throughout this north country displaying his handiwork. This theatre despite many handicaps and reverses has been completed in less than five months. It is entirely constructed of stone and cement blocks with steel trussing and all fireproof equipment. The front entrance comprises four large oak doors glazed. These were manufactured locally by Mr. Howard Tanner. The front of the theatre is all stone work artistically patterned into a design. Mr. Winch is a licenced theatre operator and has been at this work for the past ten years. Mr. Broughton was formerly with Provincial Police for ten years.

Peep into Canadian Birdland Enjoyed by Open Meeting Of Women's Canadian Club

"Camera Trails Along Nature Trails" was the subject of a very interesting and instructive illustrated lecture by Mr. Dick Bird, A.R.P.S. F.Z.S., at an open meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, held last evening in the Sunday School Hall of Bridge Street United Church. Mrs. E. May, president of the Club, introduced this noted Canadian traveller and naturalist, who is also an accomplished photographer.

"There is always pleasure and fun in sharing with others the photographs of migratory birds and small animals, not as they were posed for the occasion, but as they appear in their business of natural every day living," said the speaker. Mrs. Bird, who accompanies her husband is his very able assistant both in securing and in showing the pictures. Some of the birds pictured are well known in Ontario, wren, blackbird, thrush, robin, but the majority are better known in Western Canada.

Pictures Outstanding

The pictures were outstanding; first, for their beauty of color in the plumage of the birds, and also in their surroundings; secondly, as a source of information, because few people know how a chickadee "chisels" a tree trunk to secure a safe nest for her eggs and a home for future fledglings nor how many twigs and branches are used on the construction of other nests, and the way some wild ducks cover their eggs with a thick matting of reed pieces to protect them while the female forages for food.

The "true to life" story told in these pictures, was often secured under difficulties and often after hours of patient waiting on the part of the photographer, but it is surprising how "unafraid" these feathered friends of man are, as they continue at their building or feeding duties, while the camera is within inches of their nest. This was particularly noticeable in the case of a family of prairie owls, whose curiosity added numbers to the first "gentleman" solemnly posing for the camera man, until for the final scene the picture included a family group of five interested members, the last four appearing unobtrusively from "nowhere".

Many Specimens Shown

Beautiful meadow larks, and the lark sparrow, or as we name it, the "blue bird" and the yellow warbler, or wild canary, were among the most colorful specimens shown. A species of blackbird included one rare variety with a golden yellow head and a wide band taking in fully half of its small body. Close-ups of the familiar red winged bird showed that the female is brown and white, but has the distinguishing red patch on its wings, though much smaller in size and less brilliant in color than that of the male bird.

The prairie lark is a very industrious bird, and the male a very "proud" one too, as he flits about to exhibit his beautiful blue coloring. The small female, pictured during the nesting season, in one hour made 55 trips to and fro in her building operations. The male was nearby and did his part by making exactly four trips in the same length of time.

The black tern, the coot and greb, as well as the "aristocrat", which lays its eggs on the alkali covered earth with no nest for protective purposes, were among the varieties rarely seen in Ontario. The colorful "wood" duck and others of this species, whose eggs are turned occasionally by the female, and whose young often do not mature because of lack of water and proper food during a "drought" on the prairies, were shown in interesting groups along the shores of a pond or swimming on a slough.

Pelican Rarest Bird

Among the rarest of Canadian birds is the pelican, which, absolutely featherless when hatched, develops into a remarkably large nestling, avid for food, which the mother carries, but does not distribute as do other specie, and the commorants, whose male diligently assists with nest building, but when at last the female is settled for the incubation of the eggs, he at once becomes a "playboy" with the other fellows, and they put on a "show" of aquatic sports and games, which not even a duck can imitate.

Mr. Bird sought to impress upon his listeners the fact that birds are the friends of mankind, and should be well guarded. Picture after picture showed the parent birds feeding their young with destructive insects, from tiny flies, grubs and mosquitoes to the largest of grasshoppers. "These migratory birds", said the speaker, "are of actual dollars and cents value to Canadian agriculturists, and therefore to townsfolk too.

Interspersed with the bird pictures were a few "shots" of interesting small prairie animals, such as the badger and gopher, shown in their native haunts.

A brilliant prairie sunset completed the series, and Mrs. May expressed appreciation for this peep into "Canadian Birdland", and for the very interesting and profitable address accompanying the "walk on the prairie" with Mr. and Mrs. Bird.

Students Given Practical Talks On Vocations

The B.C.I. & V.S. Home and School Association and Guidance department conducted a "Vocations' Night" program at a meeting at the Collegiate last night.

Mrs. G. G. Wright, presided over a short business meeting, and reminded the members that the candidates for the Board of Education would speak at the Collegiate on Nov. 27. The students and parents were invited by Mr. Musgrove to attend two discussion periods.

Speakers of ability and wide experience were present to address each group. By means of informal discussions students could be advised and learn of the necessary qualifications and demands of both commercial and professional vocations. The opportunities afforded and hope of advancement were questions frequently asked by the students. Initiative and willingness to work for the sake of the job itself were found to be valuable attributes in any position—especially in radio.

The members expressed their appreciation to the speakers who donated their time to give the students valuable and practical information direct from the business world.

In conducting a meeting of this nature the Secondary Home and School Association attempts to fulfil its aim, that of working with the student and it is hoped that more students will in the future avail themselves of the opportunity to attend a meeting of this kind.

Conducting a class in Group One were Mrs. Maser, secretary; Mr. C. Miller, druggist; Miss Boyd, dietitian; Mr. Edwards, forester; Mr. Warner, salesman; Mr. Roth, cabinet maker and upholsterer; Mr. Barber, florist; Mr. Cawker, commercial pilot; Rev. Grant Sparling, minister and missionary.

Classes were led in Group Two by Miss Langdon, nurse; Mr. Bews, engineer and geologist; Mr. Brown, chemist; Mrs. Watters, hairdresser; Corp. Spears, Mounted police; Mr. Rattray, commercial artist, Mr. Stovin, radio broadcasting; Mr. Benn, motor mechanics, Mr. Mott, teacher.

Philip Mountbatten Receives Nearly As Much Attention as Elizabeth

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The people of the United Kingdom already have accepted Lieut. Philip Mountbatten as a member of their Royal Family.

Wherever he goes with Princess Elizabeth — and official appearances are increasingly frequent— he is the subject of almost as much public interest as the heiress presumptive . . . particularly with the ladies.

His tall, straight figure in naval uniform with a ready grin and a rakish angle to his cap, stands out in any crowd. Everyone wants a good look at him and when they have had it they invariably are pleased with what they have seen.

"He's got the same dashing air about him as the Duke of Windsor when he was Prince of Wales" said the wife of a Clydebank shipbuilder at the launching of the liner Caronia to which Mountbatten accompanied his fiancee.

When Mountbatten was Prince Philip of Greece and rumors of an impending engagement began to spread, there was some criticism of such a match. It was easy to find people in London and elsewhere in the United Kingdom who argued that it would be better if Elizabeth married some young British nobleman.

But now that the wedding is scheduled for Nov. 20 and Mountbatten has given up his Greek title in taking British citizenship, everybody takes it for granted he is the best possible match.

Elizabeth got a big cheer when she began to speak at the Caronia launching. When she mentioned "my future husband," Mountbatten, seated on the platform near her, got one just as big.

I watched him shaking hands with scores of men and women who were presented to him during his Scottish visit. For each he had a brilliant smile, firm handclasp, and a few words of greeting. Each person, as he passed on, was smiling too.

"My he's nice," said one woman to her husband.

"Oh yes, he'll do," he said, and those two comments are probably an accurate summary of what the country thinks.

Centenary W.A. Presents Gifted Elocutionist

Centenary — As a climax to anniversary services held on Sunday Oct. 26, the W.A. held a dinner on Friday evening, in the church hall. Due to the Hallowe'en festivities in the surrounding places, the attendance was not as large as was expected.

The pot luck dinner was all that could be desired with plentiful supplies of hot and cold meat dishes, salads, jellies, steamed apples and pies of all kinds.

The entertainment following the dinner was put on by a group from Sunderland, Ont., with Miss Iva Fallowdown, outstanding elocutionist, as the guest artist, assisted by Mrs. Ellwood Free and daughters, Roslyn and Elizabeth who supplied several musical-numbers, Miss Fallowdown is a gifted entertainer with a most charming and gifted personality, and kept her audience amused from beginning to end of the program.

Opening with an impersonation of the country school teacher and her pupils, presenting a Hallowe'en concert, she portrayed the usual characteristics of children anxious to say their pieces, and to show their talents a number, "Going for Her First Car Ride, With her Best Beau" was exceptionally well acted and caused peals of laughter.

As the majority of her selections were of a humorous nature, she finished her program by rendering two numbers of a more serious character which gave opportunity for her dramatic ability.

Rev. McCallum as chairman, expressed the gratitude of the president and members of the W.A. to Miss Fallowdown, Mrs. Free and daughter, for a wonderful evening's entertainment.

INVASION BEACH SOIL EXAMINED

Soil from the Normandy invasion beach of Arromanches was presented in a silver casket to the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Bracewell Smith, by ex-servicemen who brought it from France. The actual presentation was made by George Drury, chief of the press section of the Southern Railway, who has long been connected with Arras. He was the last civilian tourist to leave in 1939, and the first to enter following the liberation. The soil is to be kept in London until a suitable site can be found in the re-planning scheme to erect a memorial containing the soil. Here, Sir Bracewell Smith examines the silver casket after receiving it from George Drury, right.

Bodnar, Poile, Stewart, Two Defence, Goldham, Dickens Go to Hawks for Max Bentley

Smythe of Leafs and Tobin of Chicago Engineer Biggest Hockey Deal in History

Chicago, Nov. 4 (CP) — What most observers termed the biggest deal in hockey history sent brilliant Max Bentley to Toronto today with a $100,000 price on his head, broke up the hottest brother act in the National Hockey League and brought virtually a new starting team to the floundering Chicago Black Hawks.

The five-for-two player transaction announced yesterday between Chicago and the Maple Leafs left experts pondering a host of imponderable. Perhaps the biggest question is how the 27-year-old Max will fare without his aggressive brother Doug who has been feeding him shots for the last five years in the N.H.L. With Bill Mosienko, the brothers formed the "Pony" line the League's highest scoring forward line for two years.

However, the Hawks, defeated in all six starts this year, snatched a fistful of manpower in the straight player swap announced after an estimated 10-hour parley between the Black Hawk president Bill Tobin, and the Leaf's general manager Connie Smythe.

Arriving in the Chicago fold in time for the game against Boston Wednesday will be centre Gus Bodnar, wingman Gaye Stewart, and Norman (Bud) Poile, and defenceman Bob Goldham and Ernie Dickens.

The slim tricky Max Bentley, who led point-getters last season with 72 and in 1946 with 61, and rookie forward Cyril Thomas, the other Chicago player involved, will arrive in the Leafs' camp for the Leafs' - Canadiens game in Montreal Thursday.

Scored First Goal

Thomas, a 21-year-old product of Edmonton amateur ranks, scored his first major league goal Sunday night.

He was the least publicized of the players involved in the deal which in the opinion of some experts, set the cash value of Bentley at $100,000. The Toronto Globe and Mail said that Leafs swapped $95,000 worth of talent represented by five players for $90,000 worth of two men.

In Stewart and Bodnar, the Hawks receive two former winners of the Calder trophy, awarded to outstanding rookies. The tall, rugged Stewart came to Leafs from Fort William in the 1942-43 season.

Bodnar now recovered from an injury to his left side suffered in a game a week ago, made the best performance ever achieved by a league freshman when he scored 62 points in the 1943-44 season. He is one of the frailest players in hockey, but durable.

Dickens, who came to the Leafs as an outstanding defenceman from Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League was rated highly by Chicago sources.

Hawks manager Johnny Gottselig said he will keep intact the Toronto trio of Bodnar, Poile and Stewart — who played as a unit with the Leafs.

Goldham would be paired alongside bluff Johnny Mariucci to make Chicago's No. 1 defence pair.

Smythe said Bentley will probably play on a line with Joe Klukay and Don Metz. Acquisition of the 150-pound Bentley would ease the dangers in the event anything happened to Captain Syl Apps, veteran Leafs centre now on a line with Harry Watson and Bill Ezinicki.

JOHNNY GRECO DECISIONS HURST IN 12-ROUNDER

Retains Welterweight Title but Hurst Scores Only Knockdown of Contest

Montreal, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Youth gained a unanimous decision over experience last night when Joltin' Johnny Greco retained his Canadian welterweight title by a 12-round decision over Harry Hurst before 8,663 fans who contributed a gross gate of $32,000.

Greco, an in-and-out slugger who has seen 11 main bouts under boxing's big tent in Madison Square Gardens, was hard pressed by the challenger and earned his only decisive round in the 12th when he had Hurst hanging on the ropes.

Outweighing Hurst 147 to 142½ and with a five-year age advantage, the 25-year-old Greco weathered a whirlwind attack that had him in trouble in the third round. Greco dropped to the canvan for an eight count when Hurst unleashed a vicious right to the chin. It was the only knockdown of the slugfest although Hurst staggered the champion in the seventh round with a two fisted attack that had Greco half way through the ropes.

In the unanimous decision the judges all voted the same way, giving Greco five rounds, Hurst two and five even.

Billed as a "grudge fight," the battle was action-packed throughout with the bewildered Greco unable to find the range until the fifth round when he gained the edge over Hurst with his dangerous infighting.

Harry, lacking an effective jab, relied on a charging, two-fisted attack which he rained uncercilessly on the swarthy Italian's head and body with little telling effect.

Britain Keen To Try Again For Ryder Cup

(By The Canadian Press)

Britain took the defeat of its Ryder Cup golf team at Portland last week as it has received a succession of golf lickings since the war ended — embarrassed, but keen to try again.

"British post-war golf has touched rock bottom with the writing of this final forlorn chapter in a tragic year, which has seen U. S. victories in four of the five big international meetings," wrote Geoffrey Cousins, golf editor for the London Star.

"It is to be hoped that Cotton and his men will bring back with them the lessons which will enable us to rebuild our shattered prestige."

Most London newspapers printed the Ryder Cup story on the front pages. "There can be no excuse for the eclipse," commented the Daily Mail.

Chicago observers last night said it was generally agreed that Emile (Butch) Bouchard, Montreal defenceman banished from a National Hockey League game in Chicago Sunday night, had "sharply pushed" linesman Geo. Hayes of Ingersoll, Ont. Earlier, spectators at the game said that during the melee which involved five players, the 200-pound defenceman had punched Hayes.

After the free-for-all in the last minute of play, Hayes gave major penalties to Ralph Nattrass, Bob Carse, goalie Emile (Cat) Francis and Jimmy Peters. Bouchard was given a match penalty.

(In New York, Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said that pending an official referee's report he would not make a decision on possible disciplinary action against Bouchard.)

Two Indianapolis forwards, Cliff Simpson and Fern Gauthier, lead the American Hockey League scoring parade with 17 points each. Simpson, 24-year-old centre formerly of Toronto has 10 goals and seven assists. Gauthier has seven goals and 10 assists.

Fritz Pruden, 136½, of St. Catharines, won a decision over Jimmy Young, 133, of Buffalo, in a six-round boxing bout at Buffalo last night.

Ants Antanas of Minneapolis Millers with six goals and 12 assists today topped United States Hockey League scorers with 18 points. Second place is held by teammate Tom Forgie with 17.

Terry Sawchuk, hefty 17-year-old goaltender for the league-leading Windsor Spitfires of the junior O. H. A., yesterday signed a professional contract. The Winnipeg-born goalie, described by Detroit Red Wings manager Jack Adams as "too good for this league" made the step up the Detroit farm club ladder to Omaha Knights of the United States Hockey League.

Prominent in sports for many years, Mrs. Hazel Hill died unexpectedly at her London, Ont., home yesterday. She played for several outstanding girls' softball and basketball teams.

Toronto and St. Catharines men have been nominated for the presidency of the Ontario Basketball Association which holds its annual meeting at Kitchener Nov. 8. Ed Dixon of St. Catharines and W. T. Marks of Toronto are the two nominees for the office to be contested at the meeting.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

These ancient enemies of Trent Valley Hockey League days, Madoc and Tweed tangle tonight in their first Belleville District Hockey Association picture of the season, and from reports from the various camps it should be one of those old-fashioned tussles with plenty of hockey shenanigans, and what not.

Madoc will have the services of Lee Goyer and Timmy Williams of the Belleville Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans while Tweed, 'tis rumored will have Stew Stewart and another "Red" player in uniform. These buckaroos of the Fighting Redmen will be bolstered by local stars and the class should be worth anybody's money.

As a curtain raiser the Stirling squad takes on the Trenton Hockey Club entry, and that joust too, should be productive of plenty of action. Trenton did not enter a junior entry in O. H. A. circles this year and a number of the crew that played for the youngsters squad last year will be available.

The decision that four teams in each section of the District Hockey Association seems to have met with the approval of the majority of the teams. This was decided after it was discovered that it was impossible to have the twelve teams play a schedule (66) over the allotted time, or seven weeks. The executive had two alternatives, to play triple-headers three nights a week, or divide the league into two sections of six teams each, with each section playing a single schedule apart from the other. This arrangement was such that schedules could be finished by Dec. 16.

The sectional idea was found to be the most adaptable, due partly to the fact that the Arena would not be available, and in addition it would appear that the Association was trying to hog playing nights. After all there is such a thing as public skating, and in addition the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Intermediate squad and the Juniors will likely want exhibition games before the OHA grind starts.

In order to make up, or partly make up for the deficiency in games played by each team in the Association, it was decided to declare the four leading teams in each section eligible for playoffs. Semi-finals and finals will be played in each group and the ultimate sectional winners play off for the Association trophy and title.

It will be noticed by the schedule that games are spread rather widely apart for practically all teams, but this is something that could not be helped. RCAF Flyers already have two games under their belts and all games played to date will count in the sectional standing. It will be noted that those teams which have played have all been grouped in their own section.

All teams are again reminded that the deadline for the signing of players is November 5th, and all certificates must be in the hands of the secretary by November 8th. Following that date, teams which have not forwarded certificates or had them filled out and signed may be forced to forfeit games until the regulation is complied with.

The Belleville Gun Club, (small bore) gets away to its initial shoot tomorrow (Wednesday) evening at the Bridge Street Armouries. All members and potential members are requested to bring their own guns and ammunition with them. Arrangements have been made to make the first shoot of the club a successful one and everyone interested is requested to be present. The shoot gets under way at 8 o'clock.

Girl volleyballers of the district will go into action in the drill hall of the Ontario School for the Deaf tomorrow night when the Bay of Quinte COSSA girls volleyball Jamboree gets under way. Eleven teams from OSD, Belleville Collegiate, Campbellford, Picton, Brighton, Trenton, Marmora, Napanee, Wellington, Stirling, and Albert College will compete in the jamboree and officials look forward to a highly successful meet. The sports function, one of the first of its kind held here, is part of the extensive COSSA sports program this year, and should prove interesting. It is in charge of Miss E. B. Leverance women's sports director at the Ontario School for the Deaf. The Jamboree starts at 4.30 p.m. and will last through till 8.30.

Following the Jamboree a special social function has been arranged for the girl athletes. The volleyball tournament will be open to the public and those interested in the sport should not miss seeing some of the district's star girl athletes in action.

The Sports Digest in a harness racing story mentions an old friend of ours, the late Jim Healy, former proprietor of the Royal Hotel in Picton. About that grand old man of racing, both in Prince Edward and the country, the Digest says;—

The late Jim Healy, possibly one of the oldest hotel operators in Canada had many sidelines in addition to his hotel business, but the one closest to his heart was horse-racing. His many steeds raced on harness circuits throughout Canada and in the United States, (on ice at Montreal and at Ottawa), and wherever you heard hoofbeats, there you saw Jim Healy.

With "Bobby Lee" — 2.07 1-4, he set the Canadian half-mile track record which still stands, and, about that time, imported the famous English trotting sire "Guy West!" Possibly the horse that Jim loved most was trotting mare "Maggie Prim" — 2.15 1-4. Jim Healy was a great lover of sports, and many an old timer will remember when this noble gentleman on New Year's Day raced down the main street of his home town."

WILDCATS RANK TOP FAVORITES TO TAKE O.R.F.U.

Touchdown Favorite Weapon for Little Men Under the Mountain

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP) — On their season's performance, Hamilton Wildcats rank as top-heavy favorites to capture the Ontario Rugby Football Union title. But the imponderable human factor may wipe out all the statistical data when the chips are down later this week.

The Wildcats, who led the six-team Union in the scheduled season with only one defeat in 10 starts, face the fourth - place Toronto Indians in one semi-final bracket, clashing at Hamilton Friday afternoon. The clubs which finished second and third, Toronto Balmy Beach and Ottawa Trojans, meet in the other sudden-death semi-final at Toronto Saturday. The winning teams play the final in Hamilton a week later.

On the basis of their performance during the schedule, the Wildcats rank head and shoulders above their rivals. They scored 245 points, an average of 24.5 a game. Their total is just about one-third of the 741 for all the Union teams.

The touchdown was their favorite scoring weapon. They got 40 — average four a game — for 200 points and had six singles. Six of their players ranked among the first 11 in the Union individual scoring.

Defensively, they have the best record in the Union, with 84 points against them. They faltered only once, against Windsor Rockets, losing 10-5.

The Indians really represent the imponderable. A young club, they lack scoring power but they have tremendous fight and might just be the team to batter down Hamilton's mechanical men. They scored only 99 points over the season, with 15 touchdowns, three field goals, five singles and 10 converts. Rival clubs tallied 120 against them. They won four, lost five and tied one. They lost in both their scheduled games against the Wildcats, 31-4 and 24-6. Both were played in Hamilton.

Only three points separated Balmy Beach and the Trojans in the final Union standing. They each won a game on the other's home grounds during the schedule. The Trojans took an 18-5 verdict in Toronto and when they went back to Ottawa the Beaches won 15-8.

The Beaches scored 103 points, with 100 against, in winning seven games and losing three. They got 16 touchdowns, one field goal, nine singles and 18 converts. The Trojans won five games, lost four and tied one, scoring 148 points with 133 against.

They went for 23 touchdowns, converted 18 and kicked two field goals and nine singles.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York Nov. 4 (AP)— California recently granted a permit for light-heavyweight Tony Ross of Detroit who lost a leg when he stepped on a land mine in Europe, to box in exhibitions. Tony inspired by the example of Chicago pitcher Monte Stratton, wanted a regular boxing licence ... Barney Hearn, a home town boy who manages the Auburn, N.Y., Cayugas in the class "C" Border League, won the 1947 batting title with a .3607 average to 3605 for Tony Gudaitis of Ogdensburg. In 1945 he won the Pony League championship with .3523 while William Kovalak of Hornell hit .3515.

Highland Fling

When Jim Lockabaugh brought his Oklahoma A. and M. team east to play Temple, he encountered coach Greasy Neale of the Philadelphia Eagles ... football has gone too open, Neale was moaning, you just throw the ball anywhere at any time ... since Temple was the favorite, Lockabaugh decided that was a good hint and he told his Aggies to get in there and pitch, regardless of caution ... well, the score shows the rest: Aggies 26 Temple 0.

Dot's All Brother

College football this year is just about as good as it can be, says Brown coach Rip Engle ... so the coaching profession will have to turn to psychology to get an edge over the opposition ... Rip doesn't claim anyone actually has taken that step, but he relates that when his Brown team played Princeton, an ambulance drew up outside the room where he was making his pre-game talk ... the driver leaned on the siren and kept it blasting until Engle abandoned his speech and the Brown players didn't realize until half time that the ambulance was for the use by both teams, if necessary ... "I didn't believe Charley Caldwell or Princeton would try such a stunt, so I investigated, Rip explains. "I found it was a town ambulance and the driver was very much interested in the game — and he spent two years in the army in the psychological warfare department."

THE WORLD'S LARGEST LAND PLANE READIED FOR TESTS

At Lindberg Field in San Diego, Calif., the 18,000-horsepower engines, six units, passed the first tests in Convair's new XC-99, world's largest land plane. The propellers of the 230-foot wing-span craft create a tornado-like wind left hundreds of yards away. The taxi tests for the huge plane have been completed, with flight tests later this month. The ship can transport 400 troops, but is designed for 100,000 pounds of freight.

Halifax, Nov. 4 — (CP)—The Bill Cowley story has been penned by Ace (Halifax Chronicle) Foley who says in his tribute to an old friend, "It is probably true that others are better qualified to write the story of the retired pass master, but I'd like to be the one."

"Cowley," continues Ace, "went to the National League from the Maritime Big Four, that famous high-powered amateur circuit that lasted three years and ran off with the Allan Cup three times. In the Big Four he led the league in goals, assists and total points and footed the list only in penalties.

"The next fall Bill was invited to the training camp of the Ottawa Senators. The franchise was shifted to St. Louis. Cowley went along with the deal and Halifax Wolverines said farewell to their greatest player."

In the 13 years since all this happened Ace has had heaps of opportunity to splash the doings of his friend across the pages of his sheet — a practice for which he was never criticized by readers.

Haligonians so admired the master playmaker and goal-getter that they keep him here as long as possible, paying him during the hockey off-season while Cowley amused himself at playing softball.

"And here's a sidelight," says Ace, "a real picture of the man. When he signed a professional contract Cowley sat down and wrote a cheque, returning every cent he had received for remaining in Halifax to be around for the fall training."

Many years passed before Foley managed to see an N. H. L. game in which Cowley played.

"I finally caught up with him at Toronto one night when Bruins defeated Maple Leafs 4-3. Apart from a bald spot at the top of his head — and I probably would have missed that if I had not been parked in the all-revealing broadcasting gondola — Cowley seemed like the same man Halifax hockey fans had admired a decade earlier."

TUNNEY SIGNS PAIR

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP)—What appears to be an effort to return middleweights to the fistic spotlight here was indicated today when promoter Frank Tunney announced he had matched Canada's two most promising men of the division — Cliff Beckett of Sudbury and London's young Bobby Flanagan to fight next Monday night.

The winner of the eight-round bout will be in line for a shot at the Dominion title of aging Len Wadsworth of Hamilton.

SPINE-SMACKING JOLTS WILL SLOW EUROPEAN TEAMS

Canadian Team Will be Able to Put on Power Plays for Goals

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 4 (CP)—A pair of husky defencemen willing to smear any player who skates within hip distance and well-organized power plays with four and five men up should give Canada's R.C.A.F. Olympic team an advantage in the 1948 winter games. Make those defencemen big and tough, ready and willing.

This style of thumping body checks is almost alien to European teams. They are fast and tricky, especially in Switzerland, but a few well-timed, spine-smacking jolts should slow them down.

The power play also bewilders continental teams. At the Prague "world" and European championships last winter the United States club—by no means a star team—tried it a couple of times and had the Europeans skating in circles and gesticulating wildly. The Americans became just as confused and the play was broken up.

Canada's opposition in 1948, apart from the college crew of the United States, likely will come from Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Switzerland and Austria in that order. These clubs, all acclimatized to open-air rinks which will be used at St. Moritz, can't be sold short.

Czechoslovakia, coached by Mike Buckna, pre-war Trail, B.C., Smoke Eaters player, builds its attack on Zabrodski, high-scoring six-foot centre ice star whose free-skating style and tricky shifts are a delight to watch. But he can't take a body-check.

Sweden has a scrappy, crowd-pleasing cibu with two 60-minute defencemen, big and rugged, but not so tough. The team lacks the finesse of the Czechs but makes up for this with its aggressiveness—minus the body-check.

Switzerland probably will have the lightest club in the tournament, and also the fastest. The forwards are "skating fools" and a bit of rough—but legitimate—handling will wear them down.

The dark horse is Austria, surprise winner over Sweden at Prague. Its players have been together since, indulging in physical exercises throughout the summer and taking to the ice Sept. 1.

Britain, 1936 champion, probably will be lucky to finish within the first four or five. Development of home-bred players was blacked out during the war and officials now are scouting around in England and Scotland for eligibles.

This memorial alcove in Jesse Ketchum School will be dedicated to the school's dead of the First and Second Great Wars on the eve of Remembrance Day. Among those attending will be Mayor Saunders, Education Board Chairman Mrs. J. Isabel Ross, Bishop G. A. Welles, and representatives of Navy, Army and R.C.A.F. Relatives of those whose names are on the plaques will be guests of Principal W. F. Kirk.

TOE BLAKE TIED WITH RICHARD IN SCORING RACE

Veteran of 13 Seasons With Canadiens Having One of His Best Seasons

Montreal, Nov. 4 (CP) — Old Toe Blake, in the twilight of a long and brilliant National Hockey Sunday night's games, showed 1947-48 the best of his 13 seasons if he keeps up his current point-collecting play for Montreal Canadiens.

Official league statistics, including Sunday nights games, showed the veteran leftwinger tied today with his line - mate Maurice (Rocket) Richard for first place in the scoring race. Blake has two goals and seven assists for nine points in seven games and Richard has five goals and four assists.

Richard's spot at the top of the scoring statistics is not unusual. He holds the record for most goals in a season—50 and last spring was just edged out of the point-scoring championship by Chicago's Max Bentley.

Toe, at 35 the oldest player in the league, reported this fall in better shape than for many years and if he can match his point-collecting record in future games he'll pass his best mark—67 in 1944-45 by several points.

On the heels of Richard and Blake with eight points each are Buddy O'Connor, slim New York centre, Elmer Lach, third member of Canadiens' punch line, and Toronto's Syl Apps, another veteran who can still teach the youngsters plenty.

Jim Conacher and Jerry Couture of Detroit are next in line with seven points, followed by Jim McFadden of Detroit, Max Bentley of Chicago, Bryan Hextall of Rangers and Harry Watson of Toronto, all with six.

Top Goal Scorers

Richard, O'Connor, Lach and Conacher top the goal scorers with five apiece while Blake is all by himself in the help department with his seven assists.

Butch Bouchard of Canadiens and Bill Barilko of Toronto have served the most time in penalties, 22 minutes apiece, and Bouchard's total doesn't include a match penalty he received in Chicago Sunday night.

The goal tenders' race is as close as the league itself.

Frank (Zero) Brimsek has allowed 13 goals in seven games for a 1.85 average while Bill Durnan, Vezina trophy winner four years in a row, is one goal poorer and has a 2.00 average. Harry Lumley of Detroit and Turk Broda of Toronto yielded 15 goals in seven games for a 2.14 average.

Durnan and Lumley have registered one shutout apiece, the only ones of the season so far.

Melbourne Cup Main Attraction In Australia

Melbourne, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Practically all business and industry came to a standstill in Australia this afternoon as the population crowded around radio sets and a vast throng jammed Flemington race course for the running of the Dominion's biggest horse race, the Melbourne Cup.

The winner was the four-year-old grey gelding Hiraji, carrying 109 pounds, which covered the two miles of the handicap over a rain-soaked course in three minutes 28 seconds flat, or 6 3/4 seconds slower than the track record, Fresh Boy, carrying 94 lbs., was scored and Red Fury, 98 lbs. up, was third. The favorite Proctor, backed to win to the extend of over $4,000,000 failed to get among the first three.

Streetcars in main thoroughfares stopped opposite the radio stores while passengers heard the broadcast and even the National Parliament delayed resumption of its sitting for 15 minutes to "allow members to hear the result."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

All basic bridge plays have been known for centuries, starting with whist. On rare occasions the basics have been applied with a new twist. As in the case of this deal:

NORTH
♠K J 5
♥Q J
♦A K 6 5 3 2

WEST	EAST
♠9 8 4 2	♠Q 10 3
♥8 7	♥10 9 4 2
♦J 8	♦Q 10 9 7
♣Q 10 8 6 2	♣J 7

SOUTH
♥A K 6 5 3

South is the declarer at a contract of six hearts and west is the opening of a trump. There are several ways of playing these cards, each according to taste.

Normally it would work on the principles of the first diamond trick being taken with king or ace. Then the idea would be to ruff a south club in dummy and ruff some dummy losers in south.

Here and there trumps would be pulled. These would soften up the east hand until he was left with a lone trump. All the opponents get is the last trick, a product of the east last trump.

But an expert who played this deal pulled off a singular play. Winning the first trick with dummy jack, do you know what he led back? A small diamond. Yes, a small diamond. Even though he could have taken the first diamond trick with dummy ace or king.

It lost the first trick. But the contract is now a cinch. Dummy heart queen wins another trump round. A small diamond is ruffed in south where two top trumps pull the east fangs.

Now a spade enters dummy by way of the king. The two top and remaining diamonds are now good. On them south sluffs all the black cards for which he has no use. Just like that.

The expert planned it from normal expectancy of distribution and a study of needed entries. What's more, he says he always plays them that way.

Simple as it now looks, this sure is a novel twist to an easy play. I'll be looking for it in my next session. Just when I should be doing something else. Cards are funny that way.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 4 —(AP)— Morale in Hollywood is at its lowest ebb . . . that's the report of George Murphy, one of the film town's leaders.

George cited reasons for the low state of things — strikes, the British tax situation, the Washington investigation. Add to this hundreds out of work because of economy campaigns and you can see why studios are not the happy, screwy places they used to be.

Last Shot.

Cary Grant's last U. S. film until 1949 will be "Blandings." The actor says his Korda film abroad will be his only picture in 1948 . . . Dorothy Lamour says she'll do a ballet in her musical at Columbia. That I gotta see . . . It can be done in Hollywood: The Bill Bendixes are celebrating their 19th wedding anniversary, the Jerry Colonnas their 17th. . . .

Consider yourself warned: Songs entitled "Forever Amber" and "I Remember Mama" will be inflicted on the public, to plug the pictures. Let's see 'em write one around "Mourning Becomes Electra." . . .

Jottings.

The man most interested in the possible success of "The Bishop's Wife" is Bill Seiter, who directed the first version, which was junked at a cost of $900,000. Bill thought it should have been a comedy, Sam Goldwyn a "documentary fantasy." Goldwyn said the actors had to be unhappy to do good work, Bill said he couldn't work with unhappy actors. So he quit. . . .

Linda Darnell is pleading for a modern-day comedy. She's tired of lugging around heavy costumes and fancy hair-doos . . . Cornel Wilde get a six-months leave of absence from 20th-Fox after "Walls of Jericho." . . . Betty Grable is the first to leave the "This is the Moment" set at the end of the day. She hurries home to Harry James and the children because he hits the road soon and won't be home until Xmas. . . .

Myrna Loy reports that the Radio Repertory Company, of which she is a member, has struck a snag because of the Petrillo ban on recordings. She explained why she joined the group: "Most radio shows underrate the public. Listeners enjoy finer things, too. Nowadays most dramatic shows keep rehashing old movies." Or had you noticed?

Ship Operators Serve Notice To End Contracts

Toronto, Nov. 4 — (CP) — Rumblings of another dispute between Great Lakes shipping companies and the Canadian Seamen's Union spread last night as four lake shipping operators served notice of termination of union contracts. The contracts run to Dec. 31 and the official notices were given on the deadline, 60 days before expiry of the agreements.

The companies are Canada Steamship Lines and Northwest Steamships.

The present contracts were arranged following the lake shipping strike of 1946. A strike threatened last summer but was averted by federal intervention, when Canada Steamships and the Sarnia and Colonial Company agreed to a ballot among their crews to determine whether the men supported the C.S.U.

The vote now is being completed among seamen on Sarnia and Colonial vessels but no vote has yet been taken on C. S. L. vessels.

Announcement of the notice of termination brought from a spokesman of the shipping companies in Montreal the statement that "men and officers of the lake ships no longer want to deal with a Communist-dominated union."

Harris Davis, president of the C.S.U. said in Montreal that "the final word will rest with the government and seamen, not the companies."

Settled on Vote

"People are aware," said Davis, "that this dispute was settled on the basis of a vote to be taken among seamen."

"The shipping companies signed the pledge with the minister of labor agreeing to this, and also that they would negotiate a new contract in good faith, if the seamen voted for the C. S. U.

"Mr. Leonard Brockington is sitting as conciliator until this settlement is put into effect. Now these ship owners violate their signed pledge. One of them, Canada Steamships, has even refused to submit its employees' list to the government so that balloting may be held."

In Ottawa, a Labor Department official said that federal industrial relations provide that inland steamships companies must negotiate contracts in good faith with the certified union of their employees' choice.

The official said penalties are provided for companies refusing to re-negotiate on renewal of contracts with certified unions.

He confirmed that the department has received notice of termination from one of the four companies mentioned in reports but he declined to say which one.

So far as the department knows, the spokesman said, the notification could mean that the company wished only to change the terms of contract. No indication had been received here that the company did not wish to re-negotiate.

Pay Envelopes Left Untouched But $100 taken

Reception Held.

Following the evening service at Picton United Church, a reception was held in honor of A. A. Benvie who recently took over the duties of organist of the church. Rev. A. E. McCutcheon spoke on behalf of the congregation, Hilton McCartney for the Board and Glendon Minaker for the choir. The ladies served refreshments.

Local Hunters Prepare.

Local hunters are preparing for the deer season which opens next week. Most of them will go to North Hastings where deer are reported quite plentiful.

Pheasant hunters in South Marysburg Township last Friday and Saturday report cock pheasants very scarce. Only a few were shot though hunters were numerous.

A MEAN TRICK

Kemptville, Ont., Nov. 4—(CP) — A mean Hallowe'en prankster was operating in this district during the weekend. This unknown person thought it funny to drop a pail of crankcase oil into a well belonging to Thomas Theriault, a war veteran homesteading on the Hoy Road, west of here.

As a result of the trick Mr. Theriault, his wife and three young children will be without water for several months, until the well is cleaned out. Meanwhile the family's nearest water supply is about a mile away.

Dunbar Tells of Re-Organization At Burwash Farm

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP) — Staff re-organiation at Burwash Industrial Farm near Sudbury with the employment of an assistant superintendent, additional guards and staff training was disclosed yesterday by Hon. George Dunbar, Ontario Minister of Reform Institutions.

The new assistant superintendent is A. P. Silcox, who served as a padre in the Second World War and was credited with halting Allied bombers from bombing their own troops in the fighting at Falaise by spreading a huge Union Jack on the ground.

J. E. Cunningham, superintendent of training, now is at Burwash conducting staff training and a permanent officer will be appointed to remain at the institution for training of new personnel.

As part of the recruiting campaign for new guards the minister announced butments are being moved from Monteith to provide housing accommodation for 60 guards and their families at Burwash and plans are underway for a recreation centre for the institution's staff.

ROSE OF SOLEDAD

By George E. Holt

CHAPTER 27.

For a quarter of an hour more he suffered, shrieking, then still; screaming again—until his voice became cracked, until he only croaked "Water—water—water," like a raven.

And then the door opened, and Jose entered. A glass of water—a tall glass—in his hand.

The eyes of the Rattlesnake gleamed, his body relaxed, he drank that glass of water a dozen times in as many heartbeats.

"Give me—" he croaked.

But Jose calmly set the glass down upon a small shelf beside the door.

"Afterwards, Cascabel," he said. Turned and went out.

The Rattlesnake writhed in agony. He stared at the glass of water as one hypnotized, as, in fact, he was. Controlled by that awful auto-hypnosis of his imagination. He fought. He prayed—in awkward words half forgotten. But the glass stood still and would not come to him, no matter how he prayed that it should come.

But at last through the phantasmagoria of his delirium there broke a flash of light. He was being tortured. Not being killed. The glass of water had been set there to torture him. Why? Torture was force. Somebody—this dark faced fellow—who was he?—wanted something. What did he want? What matter? Give him that glass of water and he could have his heart's blood.

"Come here," he screamed. "Come here. Tell me what you want. Tell me what you want. It is yours. Come here!"

The door opened again, and Jose entered. He took the glass, walked to the window, emptied it upon the dusty ground.

The Rattlesnake shreked. Jose turned to him. Spoke.

"There is plenty of water," he said. "But none for you until you tell me what I wish to know. Are you ready?"

"What—what do you wish to know?" asked the Rattlesnake, trembling.

"I want to know whether you killed Black Sam Verdugo," said Jose. "I want to know why? I want to know all about your dealings in opium—in other things. That is what I want to know. That is what you will tell me—or die of thrist. Will you speak?"

Through sheer terror now, the Rattlesnake was silent.

Jose mistook it for stubbornness. He turned, left the room.

"I don't think, Jose," said Shane O'Hara, "that I can stand much more of this myself. Wouldn't he speak?"

Shane now sat with Jose beneath the stunted tree, the window twenty feet from them. Sweat was on the American's face, and it was not caused by the heat of the sun.

"He will speak," Jose assured him. "More sure he will speak than if he was been cut in leetle pieces. Me, I know. He ees—w'at you say?—all shot. It ees not that he needs water after he drunk too much tequila, but that he t'inks he does, you understand, meester? I no know how ixplain."

"Oh, I get you, Jose," said Shane. "I've studied psychology. They used to have some pretty good stunts during the Inquisition—" he was talking for the sake of his own nerves now, not because he imagined Jose understood him. "But I don't like it. I don't like it at all. It's like—like torturing a crazy man."

"Crazy man, yes," said Jose. "He crazy. Make himself crazy. But dees bis-ness no hurt him. Not like cuttin' off ears, fingers, toes. He talk—drank water—be all same again. Like Rattlesnake!" he sneered. "I t'ink—"

"Ven aqui, hombre! Ven aqui!" the Rattlesnake's voice screamed through the window. "Come here. I will tell. I swear it—I will tell!"

"I t'ink," said Jose, "dat now we get down to bis-ness. You come, then."

Together they entered the room. The Rattlesnake glowered at them through half closed eyes, like a snake ready to strike. But he could not strike; he was held down by his noosed bonds as though with a forked stick at his neck.

"You speak now?" Jose asked him. "You tell the truth?"

If the Rattlesnake recognized Shane O'Hara he made no sign. He merely rasped a word in reply to Jose's question. That word was "Todo"—everything. There was no fight in him. Nothing but floating pictures of water.

Shane seated himself, took a pad of paper from his pocket, and a fountain pen.

"All right, Vibora de Cascabel," said Jose, sitting down on the edge of the bed. "Now you talk. The sooner you talk, the sooner you drink water."

A quarter of an hour later Vibora de Cascabel, a quart of water inside him, followed by a generous slug of tequila, moaned on his bed and tried to imagine what he had done. He was already another man; or, rather, there had been another man who had given up his soul—and the souls of others—for a drink of water. The Rattlesnake cursed this other man—wondered who it could have been. Wondered why he had not choked him to death before he could speak, instead of lying there dreaming about water.

Under the dwarfed tree Shane, the signed confession of Ridrigo Guiterrez in his trembling hands, looked at Jose in unbelief.

"It—it can't be true," he said. "Some of it must be—must be lies." He removed his broad-brimmed hat, laid it on the ground beside him.

"I no t'ink so, meester," said Jose. "No, I t'ink dat feller tell de trut'. He no able to t'ink up lies when I ask him. Too thirsty. Yeah, I t'ink we get de trut'."

"But—but it doesn't seem possible, Jose," objected Shane. It means—Just think what it means, Jose!" He folded the papers, slid them under his soft gray hat on the ground beside him.

Jose nodded. Rolled a brown paper cigarette. Lighted it. Nodded again.

"It means—what you say, meester—yet even worse, w'at?"

"All of that. But—but—" Shane broke off. "What day is this? Thursday, isn't it?"

"Un-huh," said Jose, "I t'ink so, yess."

"Two days, then," said Shane. "Thank heaven—"

A sudden sharp voice cracked at them like a pistol shot.

"Stick 'em up!"

Dan Fernando Miller stood at the corner of the adobe house, twenty feet away, an automatic in his hand.

No argument was possible. They were completely covered.

"Get up!" snapped Fernando.

"Don Fernando!" exclaimed Shane, as he and Jose rose, raised their arms. He looked at Jose.

"I t'ink he tells de trut'," said that one, grinning. "Look like eet now, eh?"

"Careful," warned Shane, thinking of the Rattlesnake's confession. Yes; the Rattlesnake had told the truth. Obviously. Unbelievable as that truth might be. And Don Fernando had suddenly appeared to confirm it. Don Fernando—who had hired the Rattlesnake to kill Black Sam Verdugo. Don Fernando—who had hired the Rattlesnake to kill Shane O'Hara. Don Fernando—the respectable rancher Don Fernado Miller—who was the brains of an international band of criminals. Don Fernando—who was going to marry Rose Delane the day after tomorrow!

They turned their backs at ernando's snarled order; felt his quick hand search them for weapons; felt Shane's pistol and Jose's knife taken. And then, a pistol in the back of each, they were marched into the house—into the room where the Rattlesnake lay, forced to stand face to a wall, while Don Fernando swiftly cut the ropes that bound his creature.

The Rattlesnake sat up, staring. First at Don Fernando, then at the two helpless men against the wall. And a smile of devilish satisfaction came to his dark face, anticipation glittered in his eyes.

"Drink this, you fool," Don Fernando snapped at him, and tossed him his pocket flask. The Rattlesnake uncorked it, lifted it to his mouth, drained it. Shivered with the shock of half a pint of tequila. Then stood up.

"I will kill the Mexican first," he said to Don Fernando in Spanish.

"If you make a funny move, I'll shoot you like a dog," replied Fernando. "You've raised hell enough. How did they catch you?"

The Rattlesnake explained. That is to say, he told a story of being overpowered by the two men on his way home from the Cantina Espanol, had fought them, but uselessly. Had then been brought here and tortured."

"Tortured!" snapped Fernando. "Why? What did you tell them?"

Historic Lundy's Lane Memorial Church can be seen in right background (arrow) in this view of the 22 new homes for war veterans comprising the fast-moving housing program in south Niagara Falls. The project was started on undeveloped land, May 9; by Sept. 15 the first family had moved in.

Tweed

Grand Master, I.O.O.F., Visits Thomasburg

Tweed, (Special.)—Mr. J. W. McCarthy, of St. Catharines, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Ontario Independent Order of Oddfellows, paid an official visit to Thomasburg Lodge, last Friday. Two hundred members of the Order from as far as Kingston, Peterborough, Havelock, Campbellford and all the other lodges in the district, sat down to a banquet with tables loaded with good things to eat, prepared by the ladies of Thomasburg Rebekah Lodge.

Bro. Stanley Webb, Thomasburg, District Deputy Grand Master of District No. 45, acted as chairman for the occasion. He introduced the Grand Master and gave him a hearty welcome to Thomasburg Lodge.

Wonderful Hospitality

The Grand Master in his opening remarks spoke of the wonderful fellowship and hospitality which he had received since starting out on his official visits which will carry him across the province of Ontario. He told of the fine changes that are to be found in every degree in the Order and said how each member should be a brother and put in practice the things the Order talks about. He spoke of the younger members joining the Lodge; give them something to do, help them to broaden out, insist that they take an active part in the work. Give them an opportunity and help them to create an interest in the workings of the lodge, and by so doing create a lot more fellowship.

Veterans had tried to do this down through the years and it had helped the younger brothers to broaden out.

Much Work Ahead

The speaker said that never in the history of the Order was there so much to do in caring for the widows and orphans and the aged, and if all were banded together in Oddfellowship a lot of these big problems could be solved.

He told of the Oddfellows' Home in Barrie, where the old people are being well cared for, and where the traditions are carried out of burying the dead

Mr. McCarthy then told of starting out on a new era, a campaign for the relief of distress and of adopting a program to go right on down through the years for the relief of cancer, polio and tuberculosis, of the disease prevention and treatment. Organizations will be set up, funds will be raised, and these funds will be used in lodge localities. Money will be held in a trust fund to be used and the work to be carried on in the name of Oddfellowship.

C.P. & T. organization will see that care is being given through this organization for the relief of the suffering. The speaker expressed at this time his pleasure and that of Mrs. McCarthy with being the guests on this occasion.

Many Toasts

Past District Deputy Grand Master Brother Clayton Burkitt, of Springbook Lodge, proposed the toast to Grand Lodge. He said it gave him a great deal of pleasure to do honor to the Grand Master, who is out to do all the good he can for Oddfellowship.

Grand Herald Dr. S. R. Beatty, of Madoc Lodge, responded to the toast to Grand Lodge and he expressed his pleasure in seeing so many present in the interests of Oddfellowship. He also expressed his appreciation to the Grand Master and Mrs. McCarthy for their interest in Oddfellowship. He joined with the Grand Master in bringing greetings from the Grand Lodge.

Dr. Beatty spoke briefly on the "Anchors of Oddfellowship". First, the belief in the Fatherhood of God; second, belief in the brotherhood of man; third, practise of the Golden Rule in all walks of life.

Love Needed in Home

Power of the Home should be Love, instead one finds crime, juvenile delinquency. He stressed the power of education and results attained, power of industry and results that labor has attained.

Power of the Government of the people by the people.

Power of the Church showing the way of man to god.

Task of Oddfellowship is to promote good and there is plenty of field for the labor. Three rules to follow:

1st, Do each day's work well.

2nd, Act the Golden Rule.

3rd, When sorrow and grief come, to meet them as a man.

The work is never done, it marks the way in which good members travel.

Greetings Sent

Bro. Newton Foster, District Deputy Grand Master of Kingston District, No. 49, and his wife extended the greetings from Kingston Lodge.

Rev. Mr. Poulter J.P.G., greetings from Madoc Lodge, who said, "we must reach out and help others who do not belong to the Order".

Bro. Wm. Woods, J.P.G., greetings from Tweed Lodge, also proposed a toast to the ladies of Rebekah Lodges, responded to by Sister Mrs. W. Farrel, of Stirling Lodge.

Greetings from Havelock Lodge by Bro. McNicol.

Greetings from Campbellford Lodge by Bro. Palliser.

Bro. J. E. Bateman, of Thomasburg Lodge, proposed a toast to "Our Guests". Responded to by Bro. Wesley Farrell, of Stirling.

Bro. Harris brought greetings from Otonabee Lodge, Peterborough District No. 44, one of the oldest lodges in the district.

Brp. Norman T. Rickett, D.D.G.M., Trenton, District No. 47, extended greetings from Trenton Lodge.

Mr. Robt. Howarth and Mr. H. Birchall, of Kingston, entertained with music and singing, which was very much enjoyed by the large crowd present.

PASSENGER KILLED

Rotary Governor Makes Official Visit to City

Stating that the only International flag flying today was the Rotary flag, Rotarian Ken Smith, Leaside, Ont., governor of Rotary District 168 told the Rotary Club here at its noon luncheon yesterday that an outstanding opportunity for world peace is seen in Rotary international friendship which believes the handshake is mightier than the sword.

Governor Smith who is on an extended visit to the 38 clubs in his district gave the Belleville clubmen a highly interesting outline of his experiences at the Rotary Assembly, and the work done by that conclave of 200 district governors from all over the world before going on to the business of international convention in San Francisco.

"It had been one of the most interesting experiences of his life" the speaker said, relating how he met and mingled with men from 52 countries all bound together by the strong bonds of friendship. He had found out what Rotary had been doing and it had turned out to be a revelation, "he had grown up, Rotarily speaking," he said.

Actually a School

The Rotary Assembly, he went on, was actually a school for district governors. After a week of study, the Assembly then went on to the convention. He had met distinguished men from Shanghai, Hong Kong, Singapore men who had lived under the Jap regime and knew what it was to lose freedom. The Czecho-Slovakian member, who was forced to live in a park in one of his own factories, because of Communist nationalization of industry, had pleaded with him to send American and Canadian magazines to Czecholslovakia in order to teach English learning classes something about the democratic way of life. He had met men from Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Britain as well as Canada and the United States.

Given Finest Type

"There had been" he said "a question about the democratic way of electing the Rotary International president, Whatever method it is, he added, "we have always been given the finest type of men to lead that organization." The incoming president, Ken Guernsey, in his opinion, was one of the finest men he had ever met.

One president travelled 30,000 miles during his tenure of office made four speeches a day besides other Rotary duties. It is a great privilege to be the international president but he is one who makes a great physical contribution to his work.

"Some nations wanted to abandon Rotary National Advisory Committees," the speaker said, "but as Canada was the only nation which had one function, it was thought the motion was directed at this country." Rotarian Norman Foster, Oshawa amended the motion that it be thrown out. To deprive the nations of these committees smacked of totalitarianism, some argued. The debate went around the world, and finally the amendment won. It was felt that National Committees were better equipped to handle the problems of their countries than an international committee.

"An outstanding example of Rotarian democracy," he said, "was set in Tel Aviv, where Arab and Jew sat down together at a Rotary luncheon."

Governor Smith thanked the Rotary Club here for the courteous reception accorded him. Belleville Rotarians, he said, were noted for their fine spirit of fellowship. "Your song leader (Jack Deacon) is known from one end of Ontario to the other. You are to be congratulated."

The governor was introduced by president Alex Nathan while club appreciation was expressed by Secretary Mack Macklem. Prior to the luncheon, the governor met the club directors and committee chairmen in an informal meeting.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was downtown with ma, and we were sitting in Hookbinders shoe department waiting to be waited on, and ma said, Well Prisilla Dinter of all people, how are you?

Meening some lady just going out with a lot of packidges and 4 boys all sizes older and younger than me, and he said, Oh, Pawleen, I didnt see you. These boys of mine take up most of my attention as you may well imagine, she said.

Yes, I well imagine, ma said. I didn't realize you had so many, she said, and Mrs. Dinter said, I realize it more and more, believe me.

I suppose their governess is off today, ma said, and Mrs. Dinter said, Governess, dont make me laugh. If I only had one, or at the most two, I mite be able to afford a governess, but by the time I buy them all shoes, I'm lucky if I can buy myself a pair. It's really something to have 4 growing, eating children in these times, believe me, she said.

Oh, I believe you, ma said, and Mrs. Dinter said, I suppose some people would say it was bad management on my part, but I cant think of anything to do about it now.

Yes, facts are facts, I suppose, ma said, and Mrs. Dinter said, There's no doubt about it. Come on, you 4 facts, she said.

And she kept on going with her packidges and her boys, and ma said, Poor Prisilla, I suppose her life is no bed of caviar and champane, but in a way I suppose it's just a perfect case of poetic justice.

Why is it, ma? I said, and ma said, Because when I went to school with her she was so efficient there practically wasn't enough air for anybody else to breethe in her presence. She was the head of this and the leeder of that and the manager of the other, and when we graduated she was voted the gerl most likely to succeed. Well, she succeeded in having 4 boys and a husband in moderate circumstances, that's what I mean, ma said.

Which just then a man came to wait on us and changed the subject.

Pile Sufferers

I can help most pile sufferers. I believe I can help you too if you want relief from the itching soreness and burning pain of piles.

My Hem-Roid formula is different. Hem-Roid is an internal treatment, a small tablet taken with a glass of water. It helps relieve some of the conditions inside your body that cause you such intense pile soreness and pain.

But I'll be honest with you—there are some cases where Hem-Roid does not seem to help very much. I refuse to ask people to pay for something that does not help them. If Hem-Roid helps YOU surely it is worth the small cost. If it does not help you I want you to have your money back. I will take your word. I find people are honest about such things.

Simply go to any drug store and get a package of Hem-Roid. Use it as directed for 10 days. Then if you are not satisfied return what you did not use and get your money back. This is an unusual offer but Hem-Roid has been sold on a refund promise for over 40 years. I am not asked to make many refunds so Hem-Roid must help most people who use it.

Try Hem-Roid now. It won't cost you a penny if it does not help you.

Accused Admits Brutal Slaying Of Young Boy

Chicago, Nov. 4 — (AP)—Authorities announced Monday the mysterious brutal slaying of a seven-year-old boy had been solved by a public-school pupil's signed statement that "I killed Lonnie Fellick last Oct. 18 in Thatcher woods forest preserve."

Lonnie's battered body was found in the preserve Oct. 29, almost two weeks after he disappeared from his home.

Coroner A. L. Brodie said Howard Lang, 12, described by his mother as a "smart Alex," told him he had stabbed Lonnie and crushed the younger boy's head "with a brick" after an argument.

In a statement which young Lang signed after a 15-hour interrogation, Brodie said a nine-year-old boy and a 17-year-old girl were implicated.

Here is the story which Brodie said young Lang told:

Lang, the Fellick child and another boy rode to Thatcher woods on a street car Oct. 18, the day of the killing. The older boys' lit cigarets, but Lang refused to give Lonnie one.

Lonnie threatened to tell Howard's mother, Mrs. Alma Lang, 42 about Howard's theft of $10 from her. The 12-year-old in a fit of temper whipped out a four-bladed pocket knife and stabbed Lonnie twice in the chest, then cut his throat. Howard forced the other boy to hold Lonnie's feet while the older boy dropped a 25-pound concrete slab on his victim's head.

The nine-year-old was compelled to assist in the slaying by Howard's threat, "I'll give it to you, too."

The 17-year-old girl, being held by authorities for investigation, visited the Lang home next day, and Howard showed her his bloody clothes and asked her to dispose of them. She wrapped the garments, a shirt and a pair of trousers, in an overcoat and threw them away while riding horseback about 2½ miles from Lonnie's body.

Most Western Canada farmers have quit plowing. Instead, they turn the land over shallowly with a "one-way disc" and keep the mulch at surface of the soil. The "trash" — straw-stubble and greenery — they put into the soil is good fertilizer, and also keeps it from blowing away.

Russia to Boycott Plans Created To Supervise Vote

U.N. Assembly Votes 46-0 In Favor of U.S. Plan

Lake Success, Nov. 5 —(AP)— The Soviet bloc announced today it would boycott a United Nations commission created to supervise general elections in Korea next spring under State Secretary Marshall's plan for Korean independence.

Despite the announced boycott, the 57-power political committee of the United Nations Assembly voted 46 to 0, with four abstentions, in favor of the United States plan. The Soviet bloc refused to take part in the vote even to the extent of recording an abstention.

The Soviet boycott declaration was made by Dmitri Z. Manuilsky, foreign minister of the Ukraine, after United States delegate John Foster Dulles nominated the Soviet Republic as a member of the projected nine-power election commission for Korea.

The name of the Ukraine was included, however, in the membership of the commission along with Australia, Canada, China, El Salvador, France, India, the Philippines and Syria. Both the United States and Russia were omitted from membership.

Earlier the political committee voted 20 to 6 to reject a Soviet demand for withdrawal of American and Russian troops from Korea by next Jan. 1.

Soviet delegate Andrei A. Gromyko announced immediately after this defeat that Russia would not participate in voting on State Secretary Marshall's proposal for U.N.-supervised elections in Korea before March 31.

The only countries voting for the Soviet resolutions were Russia, Poland, Yugoslavia, White Russia, the Soviet Ukraine and Egypt. The Czechoslovak representative was not present during the voting. Seven countries abstained.

Gromyko said his refusal to participate in further voting was based on his contention that the political committee should have heard the views of Korean representatives before acting.

Two in Car Killed On R.R. Crossing

Windsor, Nov. 5 —(CP)— Two men were killed instantly and three others injured early today when the automobile in which they were riding was smashed to pieces by the fast Windsor-bound Canadian Pacific Railway train from Toronto.

Dead are Edward Reilly and Albert Garant, both of Windsor, sitting in the back seat of the car when it was struck at a level crossing.

Seriously injured were Arsene Ouellette, 22, and Alfonso Ouellette, 20. Eugene Ouellette, 17, suffered shock, multiple scratches and bruises and is not seriously injured.

John Steinbauer of Tecumseh, Ont., is the only known eyewitness to the crossing crash, which occurred at the Pillette Road crossing in suburban Sandwich East Township.

He said the automobile did not stop or slow down as it approached the crossing although the wigwags were in operation. The car was almost clear of the tracks when the fast-moving locomotive plowed into the rear of the car, killing the two persons in the back seat.

"The car seemed to fly to pieces," Steinbauer said.

Emergency brakes were applied to the train and it was brought to a stop within its own length.

Pieces of the car's wreckage were scattered for at least 100 feet down the tracks. The dead and injured were removed from the smashed chassis of the auto which was hurled into a deep ditch beside the tracks.

Force of the impact removed the shoes from the dead men and left the shoes fully laced by the tracks.

All occupants of the car were dressed in working clothes and police believed they were heading for work when the accident occurred.

Chief Constable Harris Bickford of Sandwich East opened an investigation into the crash. Dr. J. M. Young, coroner, examined the two bodies and said he would confer with Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey before deciding whether to hold an inquest.

PROSPECT BETTER FOR ANGLO-RUSS TRADE AGREEMENT

British Board of Trade President Likely to Go to Moscow This Month

London, Nov. 5 (AP) — A government source reported today improved prospects for a British-Russian trade agreement and announced that the board of trade, Harold Wilson, probably would go to Moscow this month to resume negotiations.

Wilson went to Moscow last summer to negotiate a trade pact but the talks broke down July 25 over the Russian demand for scaling down her £55,000,000 ($220,000,000) wartime credit to the Soviet Government.

Russia paid only half of a £4,000,000 installment due Aug. 1 and the default, according to board of trade sources, was an "important factor" obscuring future negotiations.

"But now," the government source said today, "prospects for negotiation of an agreement look fairly good."

He indicated that both Russia and Britain were expected to make concessions they could not agree to last summer and that Britain, under her new export program was in a position to meet the Soviet demand for guaranteed deliveries of machinery and other manufactured products.

Louisburg Captain Is Hopeful of Riding Out Storm

Halifax, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Capt. Clayton Williams of Sydney, N.S., master of the Canadian freighter Louisburg, in distress in mid-Atlantic, reported today he was "very hopeful" of riding out the storm and proceeding to St. John's, Nfld., for repairs.

The R.C.A.F. search and rescue division here disclosed the contents of the latest message received from the United States Coast Guard cutter Dexeter which is standing by the Louisburg. The message disclosed that damage to the ship included the carrying away of the starboard storeroom deck.

One Attempt Has Been Made on Life Of Gouzenko Says Montreal Paper

Montreal, Nov. 5 —(CP)— The Montreal Herald, in a column by its Ottawa correspondent, Harold Dingman, says today, "at least one attempt has been made on the life of Igor Gouzenko, the ex-Russian cipher clerk who exposed the Communists' 5th column in Canada."

The story added:

"The Royal Canadian Mounted Police will not back up this statement publicly because the Russian embassy in Ottawa is again involved.

"Because of the incident Gouzenko's hideout was changed at once. Although he has had three heavily-guarded locations and a fourth move is now underway, or possibly concluded. Gouzenko was told about the threat to get him and has discussed with police the possible fate of the person involved.

"The attempt was badly conceived and ended in a stupid incident in a Toronto police station. It happened months ago — the case is on record in both R.C.M.P. and Toronto police files —when a Russian who proved he was an employee of the Ottawa embassy was arrested in a drunken brawl. He had a gun in a shoulder holster and $650 in his pockets. At that time police did not announce any link with Gouzenko.

"In a Toronto cell the Russian set up a howl for diplomatic protection. Police searched him and found papers attaching him to the embassy. A phone call was put through to Ottawa and next morning properly accredited officials of the Soviet picked up the prisoner and took him back to Ottawa. He was taken directly to the embassy on Charlotte Street. No person has ever seen him again, either inside or outside the embassy.

"Gouzenko thinks he was shot and his body disposed of in the embassy.

"At the time of the incident Gouzenko was living in the Toronto area. Because of this, and, presumably, because of information obtained from the arrested man, there was strong suspicion he was on a mission to eliminate the ex-cipher clerk."

Ottawa —(CP)— Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police today declined to comment on a Montreal Herald report which stated at least one attempt has been made on the life of Igor Gouzenko, the former Russian embassy cipher clerk whose disclosures set off an investigation into Soviet espionage activities in Canada.

"I think the story is pure speculation, but I don't wish to comment on it," said Commissioner Wood when read the report written by Harold Dingman, the Herald's Ottawa correspondent.

SCOTTISH VOTERS GIVE LABOR PARTY ANOTHER SETBACK

Net Loss of 65 Seats Sustained in Elections

By GLENN WILLIAMS

London, Nov. 5 — (AP)—Scottish voters handed Britain's ruling Labor party another jolting setback in municipal elections yesterday.

With results nearly complete, Labor had dropped a net of 65 seats, losing 77 and winning 12 new ones. They lost control of five councils to their opponents, barely clung to industrial Glasgow, and won the upper hand in two small cities — Musselburgh and Selkirk.

Election campaigning in Scotland was less exciting than South of the border, reaching its peak in Glasgow.

There Labor lost three seats but clung to a two-vote majority among the 114 elected councilmen.

As in the English and Welsh local elections, only one-third of the seats were at stake.

In Dundee Labor lost six of the 12 seats being voted on, and the 36-member council was evenly divided between Socialists and their opponents.

Lose Paisley

The Labor party also lost control in Paisley, Johnstone and Lanhead, and in Bathgate, where they previously held half the seats. The local Ratepayers Association won back four.

Labor held on at Aberdeen, losing one seat to the Moderates, but gaining another by ousting the only Communist member of the council.

Voting was somewhat heavier than in local elections last year. In Glasgow 61 per cent of the electorate voted compared with 53 per cent in 1946.

Scanning the results, Peter Meldrum, leader of the Glasgow Labor party, asserted the Scots "have not been stampeded by the English vote."

The independent Glasgow Herald noted the Labor party got "a less decisive reverse" than in England, but said the "Scottish results, taken as a whole, must be regarded as a vote of no confidence in Labor's capacity in local as in national administration."

THREE BITES AND OUT FOR DOG

Welland, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Three bites and you're out—that is if you're liable under the Vicious Dogs Act. Magistrate J. B. Hopkins ruled John Baley's dog had more bites than he was entitled to and ordered the canine destroyed. Testimony showed the dog had bitten three persons.

YOUNGEST MAYOR RETIRES

Smiths Falls, Nov. 5 — (CP)— Mayor Jack A. Wood, 32, believed to be Ontario's youngest mayor, announced his retirement from office after his present term's conclusion. He was elected to council at 26 and served four years as ward member. Last year he was elected mayor by acclamation after one mayoralty race.

Special Air Service Force For Air Search and Rescue And for Use in Catastrophe

Ottawa, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Canada is to have a Special Air Service Company of volunteer troops, specially trained for air search and rescue work and as a versatile force for any special service, such as in a national catastrophe.

In announcing establishment of the force today, army headquarters said it now is being formed of volunteers from the three infantry battalions of the active force brigade group and is scheduled to begin training in mid-November at the joint air school at Rivers, Man.

Recruited up to strength it will be a compact unit of five officers and 114 other ranks organized into a headquarters and three platoons. All will be parachute-trained and the force will be permanently stationed at the Rivers school and will have all the facilities of the school at its disposal.

In addition to its air search and rescue duties, the S. A. S. Company will be ready to fly to any point in Canada to give public service in cases of national catastrophe. It will provide troops to aid tactical research and development in airborne work and stage land-air warfare demonstrating for the benefit of military personnel and the public.

Some officers and NCOs already have been trained for the company and have participated in a number of rescues from remote areas. Most spectacular is the current "exercise canon" where four S.A.S. Company men including a medical officer were parachuted to the aid of Canon John H. Turner, an Anglican missionary, accidentally shot at Moffet Inlet on Baffin Island in the Canadian Arctic.

SNOW WHITENS FIELDS IN WEST, MORE SNOW SEEN

Warm September and Mild October Saved Farmers Much Feed, Fuel

Winnipeg, Nov. 5. (CP)—The Prairies looked today at snow-whitened fields, read forecasts of more snow and near-freezing temperatures and, now that the rigorous western Winter appeared at hand, gave thanks for an unusually mild and open Autumn.

As if to atone for the drought it had visited upon many parts of the West this Summer, nature had provided a Fall which had saved farmers money and feed, enabled construction and highway programs to proceed beyond expectations and lessened householders' fuel bills.

With a warm September and temperatures averaging more than 40 degrees during October, there was much to be thankful for.

It enabled the farmer already faced with heavy feed bills, brought on by the packinghouse strike, to graze his livestock and save much needed grain supplies. It also aided in getting Fall harvesting, threshing nad plowing completed, which was held up in some areas due to labor shortages and wet weather.

For the housewife money saved on fuel bills could be put to further use in the family budget to meet the increasing cost of living.

The Southern Alberta sugar beet fields also were favored by the unusual weather. It permitted the 370,000 ton crop, valued at $11,000,000 to be harvested without interruption.

Three Girls Say Attempts Made To Attack Them

Woodstock, Nov. 5 (CP)—Provincial police said today three district girls had complained that a young man in an automobile had attempted to attack them during the last few days and officers have been assigned to find the man for questioning. Complainants were an 18-year-old girl and two young women from Woodstock.

The 18-year-old girl was Gloria Arnott of Kitchener, who was a near victim of a motorist who offered her a ride from Shakespeare to Woodstock Saturday.

Provincial Police Constable Charles Worrall of Woodstock said the man told Miss Arnott he thought the door was open and as she turned to look, struck her on the head with a blunt instrument. She was not rendered unconscious and began to fight.

Finding that he was losing control of the car the driver applied the brakes and Miss Arnott fell to the pavement where she suffered some bruises, but she managed to get away.

SICK MAN GOES TO POLLS IN WHEELBARROW

Los Angeles, Nov. 5 — (AP)— William T. Holman, 85, who suffered a stroke a month ago, did not let his illness prevent him from being first in line to vote, as he has been for 25 years, at his polling place yesterday.

He had a neighbor trundle him, dressed in bathrobe and pajamas, from his home to the voting booth in a wheelbarrow.

DEMOCRATS WIN SOUTHERN SEATS IN CLOSE FIGHTS

John A. Stennis, Playing Down Race Issue in Mississippi, Wins

New York, Nov. 5 — (AP) — John A. Stennis, 46-year-old judge who played down the race issue, was pulling away from two close-running opponents early today for the United States Senate seat of the late Theodore G. Bilbo, Mississippi's "white supremacy" advocate.

Veteran Congressman John E. Rankin, who promised to "out-Bilbo Bilbo" if elected, was running last in the five-man Democratic contest. His House of Representatives seat was not at stake.

The Mississippi Senate race shared interest in yesterday's "off-year" state and municipal elections with a return of the Kentucky governorship to the Democratic fold after four years of Republican rule.

Democrats swept back into control in this "border" state by easily electing Earle C. Clements as chief executive over the Republican State Attorney - General, Eldon S. Dummit.

Clements had the support of organized labor because of his vote against the Taft-Hartley Labor law. Republicans raised this as a main issue in the campaign, but Clements soft-pedalled it.

Otherwise, there was little in the cross-country returns to show any "trends" for those interested in trying to figure out the 1948 presidential election.

There were no upsets in three special Congressional elections to fill vacancies. Republicans won in normally Republican districts in Indiana and Ohio and a Democrat took a heavily Democratic district in Brooklyn.

New York state and Ohio voters approved by wide margins veterans' bonus proposals of $400,000,000 and $300,000,000, respectively.

The Republicans re-elected Mayor Bernard Samuel in Philadelphia and the Democrats kept Mayor Thomas A. Burke in office in Cleveland.

Detroit tossed out Mayor Edward J. Jeffries in his bid for a fifth term. City councilman Eugene I. Van Antwerp defeated him in a non-partisan election in which Jeffries for the first time in his last three races had the support of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.).

Democrats, in other mayoralty contests, turned out Republican administrations in Indianapolis, Evansville, Muncie, and Fort Wayne, Ind.; Allentown and Erie, Pa., and six cities in New York, including Niagara Falls, Schenectady and Poughkeepsie.

Republicans scored turnovers in Hammond, Ind., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Waterbury, Conn., and nine New York State cities, including Amsterdam, Kingston, and Geneva.

FEAR 13-YEAR-OLD GIRL ABDUCTED FROM TORONTO

One Theory Is Child Is Held as Prisoner

Toronto, Nov. 5. (CP)—Police said today they believed 13-year-old partially-paralyzed Arlene Anderson, missing since early Sunday night, had been abducted.

They added that an exhaustive search in which every available police officer took part had failed to uncover any clue to the disappearance of the brown-haired only daughter of a railway express clerk.

Veteran law officers expressed fear the girl, who suffers from cerebral palsy, had been enticed away by a degenerate and slain.

Police prepared to search a field near the girl's home in northwest Toronto for clues.

"The girl has no sense of direction and the impediment in her speech is so severe that only her parents understand what she is saying," said Det.-Sgt. Joseph Shields. "If she had just wandered off, we should have had some trace of her by now."

From half a dozen points in the Metropolitan area, reports came today that the girl had been seen. None led police to the crippled child.

Police said information given by a neighbor who knew the girl apparently supported the theory the girl may have been abducted and is being kept a prisoner. The neighbor reported seeing the girl walking late Sunday afternoon with a man who looked old enough to be the child's father.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, who have spent years in teaching her to talk, understand every word she utters.

"Arlene was showing such improvement," said Mrs. Anderson. "Now this has happened to her. If someone has her, I pray they will bring Arlene back safe to us."

Same Train Hits Different Cars

Kitchener, Nov. 5 — (CP) — For two successive nights at the same crossing with the same train and train crews involved, automobiles have crashed into the side of the Canadian National Railways work special at Wagner's crossing north of Waterloo on highway 85.

Last night an auto driven by Carl Pieper, Waterloo, ran into the side of the slow moving special. He suffered a slight injury to his back and considerable damage was done to the car.

On Monday night at the same time, George Dietrich, St. Clements, travelling in the same direction as Pieper, hit the train and he suffered slight lacerations above each eye. His car was also badly damaged.

On both occasions A. Routher, Stratford, was engineer on the train and C. W. Kane, Stratford, conductor. Provincial Constable John Munro investigated both mishaps. Police declared both car drivers will be charged with careless driving, with an additional charge of failing to report an accident laid against Dietrich.

Mikolajczyk Wishes Poles in Poland Had Freedom Which Canada Enjoys

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Kenton, Middlesex, England, Nov. 5 (CP) — Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, Polish Peasant party leader who recently sought sanctuary in Britain, said today that he had no information about Dr. A. Fiderkiewicz, former Canadian Minister to Canada, but added that he "would be surprised to hear" that the former Canadian Polish Minister to Canada had fled from Poland.

Reports from Ottawa last night indicated that Fiderkiewicz might have escaped from Poland. However, the Polish government announced in Warsaw today that Fiderkiewicz had been transferred to a diplomatic post in Budapest and had already taken up his duties there.

"I would be surprised to hear that he had gone (escaped from Poland)," Mikolajczyk said in an interview. "It may be that there has been some confusion over a name and someone else is meant."

Today Mikolajczyk said he wished the Poles in Poland "had the same freedom and democracy as the Canadian people."

He preferred to speak of Canada rather than of his experiences during two and a half years under the present Warsaw regime.

Mikolajczyk said he hopes to visit the United States but in the meantime he is content here with his modern duplex house set among the fields of this London suburb where his wife remained while he was in Poland.

He said his plans are indefinite but he recalled three wartime visits to Canada concerned with the training of Polish troops. When he was the leader of the Polish government in Britain during the war he saw Canadian and Polish troops go into battle together.

"These things the Poles never forget — how Canada received us and helped us during the war and how men fought together in a common cause," he said.

Communism Must Be Destroyed Says Archbishop

Blames Communist Influence For Much Confusion, Unrest

Brantford, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Communism "must be destroyed" if the peace and security of the world is to be saved, Most Rev. C. A. Seager, Archbishop of Huron and Metropolitan of Ontario, said today in his charge to the Provincial Synod of the Church of England, meeting here.

To accomplish that, he said "it will be necessary for the western nations to completely reorganize their economic and industrial hopes and plans."

"It is a terrible thing to think of and still more to say that, unless great changes take place within this monstrous organism (communism) there can be but one issue; like all other monsters threatening society, it must be destroyed."

Before clerical and lay delegates including bishops from the six other Dioceses attending the first provincial Synod since 1935, Archbishop Seager, who is the presiding clerical officer, declared that to gain its "ends" communism "will stop at no crime, no evil."

Pagan Religion

"What we are faced with," he said "is essentially a mighty world-wide movement of a pagan religion with all the fanaticism and blindness of such a thing. Its god is the state, and its motto 'power'. To attain both ends it has stopped at no crime, no evil."

He warned "This Oriental despotism has its missionaries in every community everywhere who leave the trail of the serpent over the world. It has shed the blood of millions. Its concentration camps are crowded with countless unhappy victims. Much of its works are carried on by slave labor. These victims are not foreigners and outsiders only, but include countless numbers of their own people."

Blames 'One Nation'

Archbishop Seager said that the fact that the hope for world peace "has turned out to be wholly baseless" may be blamed on one nation. And present world insecurity is due "largely to the lust for power by one nation."

He claimed that much of the confusion and unrest in industry and labor is caused by communistic influences. The outcome of present struggles may bring "the emancipation of the laboring classes . . . But were such a progress to be carried out with wisdom, foresight and patience it would result in the formation of a new dynamic element in our social life.

Discovery of the atomic bomb perhaps had brought to a head the search of mankind for a "new light."

Demon Unleashed

"Men have been staggered to find that they have unleashed a demon apparently far beyond their ability to control. They have at last found something bigger than themselves, yet the child of their own brain. They are horrified at its emergence and cannot but increasingly mistrust the work of their own hands.

"The opportunity of the Church of Christ in such as atmosphere lies, perhaps, in what may be called the wide 'popularity' of our Lord Jesus Christ. Men everywhere concede the deepest admiration and reverence for Him. The emphasis, however, is upon His teaching. This is a happy condition as far as it goes. It should be proclaimed from the housetops, however, that to divorce the teaching of Christ from redemption is to divorce the bridegroom from the bride."

$10,000 LOSS WHEN COE HILL HOTEL BURNS

Volunteer Firefighters Save Residence and Genera Store Nearby

Bancroft, Ont., Nov. 5—Coe Hill had one of its old landmarks completely destroyed by fire when the Prouty Hotel recently purchased by Mr. Julien burned to the ground about 7.30 p.m. Tuesday evening. Fire fighting equipment was inadequate to save the building. Loss will run between eight and twelve thousand dollars. This hotel has been a wayside inn to old timers as well as new comers, the last fifty years.

The accommodation will be greatly missed in the village. Volunteer fire fighters in the village managed to confine the blaze and saved it from spreading to Gilroy's residence and Lehigh's store nearby. The blaze seemed to have started in the second storey and in a very few minutes the structure was a blazing inferno.

Neighbor Saves Child From Flames

St. Catharines Nov. 5 (CP) — The fire which early yesterday took the life of an infant in nearby Merritton was followed in the afternoon by a near-tragedy in St. Catharines under similar circumstances.

A resident of the city-owned apartments at the airport, Mrs. Henry Smith, left her home to go across to the store, leaving her five months old daughter in bed asleep. During her absence a pan of grease in an oven caught fire and filled the apartment with smoke. A neighbor, Mrs. Elsie Wellman, rushed to the apartment and carried out the child, who was ill from the fumes for several hours. The stove and walls were partially destroyed by fire.

Jack Kuntze First President Key Club as Charter Presented At Kiwanis Club Luncheon

Third such club to be organized in Canada, the Belleville Key Club with members composed of boys in the local collegiate, received its charter Tuesday evening at a special dinner meeting at Tabernacle United Church of Kiwanis club members and their wives.

Sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club, officers of the new Key Club were officially installed by members of the local service club. Key Club equipment, including bell, gavel and flags were presented by Kiwanis district governor Walter Stewart with the club charter being presented by Lt. Gov. Elmer Cogswell.

Junior Service Club

Speaking to members of the Kiwanis club and their wives, and to Charter members of the new organization Governor Walter Stewart described the Key Club as a junior service club for key boys in high school to render service to the high school and to give training in leadership and good citizenship.

Organization of the Key Club is similar to that of a service club; it has the same officers and types of committees as does a Kiwanis Club. Club members go about finding what a school needs and then seeks to accomplish what is required.

Speaking of the need for training youth for responsibilities of later life Governor Stewart pointed out that in sponsoring a Key Club in Belleville the local Kiwanis club members were showing an understanding and appreciation of the potential power represented by the youth of the country.

"Leaders of the past have not had the answer to world problems" he said. "They have known only war as a means of settling the world's difficulties. Key club members will have a great responsibility in giving future leadership."

One of the opportunities of being a Key Club member would be to have a better understanding of fellow Canadians through attendance at National conventions and later to acquire a better understanding of people of other nations. "In this way you will get to know the International aspect," he concluded. "There is today a great need of building up friendships between nations. I urge you to make good use of this opportunity."

Key Club members, with Kiwanian Everett Fairman who did much in organizing the new club, were given seats of honor at the head table during the dinner meeting. All were later introduced to the meeting.

Presents Charter

Lt. Gov. Cogswell in presenting the charter to the new club president, Jack Kuntze, declared that this occasion was the high point of his year. Stewardship of high ideals was the essence of a Key Club, he said. It had a service to the community in training the leaders of tomorrow.

Receiving the club charter from the Kiwanis Lt. Gov., President Kuntze declared it a great honor to be the first president of the Belleville Key Club. "It will be our first resolve to live up to the ideals of our organization and to spare no effort in fulfilling obligations of the club," he said.

Tribute to Kiwaniah Everett Fairman for his work in organizing the club was paid by both visiting Kiwanian officials. "This night is the result of many months of planning," stated Lt. Gov. Cogswell and was possible only by a man who knows boys and who has their interests at heart.

Boys Did Work.

Unwilling to accept the credit for organization of the Key Club, Mr. Fairman declared that the boys had done most of their own organization. They had elected their own officers and had drawn up their own by-laws, he said.

Speaking of the need of youth training, Mr. Fairman declared that never before had Canada taken such a part in world affairs. "But if we are to continue to hold the respect of other nations we must have our boys trained as leaders. There is no better training than for boys to sit around their own council table. Belleville should be justly proud of its Key Club," he said.

Kiwanian President Jack White presided over the meeting with guests being welcomed by George Currie. Installations of the new Key Club officers were conducted with Past President Mark Vanner in the chair. Kiwanis Club officers, Treasurer Bob Stone, Secretary Taylor Franklin, Vice President Ted Schwab and President Jack White installed officers of the Key Club with the final charge to officers being given by Frank Creeggan.

Musical Program.

The evening was not devoid of its musical entertainment with "Pack Up Your Troubles" quartet Art Young, Austin Watkin, Alf Evans and Don Freeman favoring with a number, while Ethel Smith was also heard in two much appreciated solos. Chas. Cawker provided the piano accompaniment.

A new Kiwanis member, City Engineer Charles Mott, was admitted into the club with the installation being in charge of Gov. Walter Stewart.

Children of Mary Hold Meeting

The Children of Mary held their monthly meeting at St. Michael's High School on Monday evening. The meeting was opened by the singing of "Mother Beloved" and the recitation of the office. Frances Cannon proposed that sodalists spend some of their time visiting at the hospital. The motion was carried unanimously and the girls volunteered for this charitable work. Loyola Chappelle next announced that the Catholic Truth Committee would have their annual book display at the back of the Church beginning Sunday the ninth. The Children of Mary will be represented at every morning Mass from now on. Rita Chapelle is in charge of this work. Diane Upper was called upon next and gave an excellent paper on "Our Lady of Fatima". Rt. Reverend Monsignor Nicholson, who attended the meeting, also spoke on the apparitions at Fatima, Portugal. He pointed out how privileged members are to have the replica of the statue at Fatima visiting Belleville on Tuesday evening. The meeting then adjourned to the assembly room for the social part of the evening.

Our Lady's Committee under Mary Jean Hudon, presented a "Truth or Consequences" program. Professor Know-It-All was played by Edna Bashall. Miss Bashall's victims were Nora Flurey, Donna Flynn, Lillian Graham, Vera O'Neil, Iris Malloy and Monica Murphy. Bunny Hughes played several selections on the piano and refreshments were served by members of the committee. The meeting was conclub with the singing of "Holy God".

The Children of Mary were hostesses at a Hallowe'en Party last Friday night. The first part of the evening was a Scavenger Hunt, won by Helen Cooper, Al Saunders, Donna Flynn, Steve Garvin, George Graham and Lillian Graham. The evening was concluded by dancing at St. Michael's High School.

CITY TO PAY INTEREST

Peterborough, Nov. 5 — (CP)— The city council has approved the payment of the interest charges by the city on a new 52-bed addition to St. Joseph's hospital for a period of 20 years. The hospital operated by the Sisters of St. Joseph now has 98 beds.

St. Michael's Church Filled As Monsignor Nicholson Receives Statue on Pilgrimage

The Church of St. Michael the Archangel was filled to its utmost capacity with a large congregation overflowing onto the street on the arrival of the statue of Our Lady of Fatima last evening. As the procession entered the church with clergy and altar boys and the fourth degree Knights of Columbus forming a guard of honor, it passed between the ranks of the Children of Mary, who sang the hymn "Father Dearest, Mother Fairest."

Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, V.G. receiving the statue spoke of the signal honor conferred on the parish by this historic Pilgrimage. St. Michael's High School choir sang "On This Day of Beautiful Mother" followed by the "Magnificat." Nora Flerey and Katharine Fortin rendered "Mother at Thy Feet is Kneeling." Rev. J. Carley recited the Rosary and the act of consecration. Rev. A. Bennett C.C.S.R. was the preacher.

He told of the miraculous apparitions which occurred to three children, 10, nine and seven at Fatima, Portugal, beginning May 17, 1917. In these the Blessed Virgin Mary predicted the last World War would occur, "If there is no stop to the offending of Our Lord", and foretold another war accompanied by famine and persecution of the church. To prevent this she asked for the consecration of the world to her Immaculate Heart and for the Communion of reparation the First Saturday of each month. "This is no ordinary occasion" said the preacher. "These things are so important that God has sent our Blessed Mother to impress this message on us." He declared that the invitation demands action, that Russia can be converted if enough people take up the Appeal of Mary. He stressed recital of the Rosary, observance of Communion on the First Saturday of successive months and the wearing of the scapular in the wholehearted crusade of prayer for the conversion of Russia.

Solemn Benediction of the Blessed sacrament was given by Monsignor McGarth, Toronto, assisted by Dean Garvin, Tweed and Rev. Briceland, Read. The clergy present were Monsignor Nicholson, Monsignor McGarth, Toronto, Monsignor Golambo D.E., Olivien, Fatima, Portugal, Very Rev. D. Cullinane P.P., Trenton, Very Rev. E. M. Leacy P.P., Napanee, Very Rev L. Garvin P.P., Tweed. Rev E. Briceland P.P., Read, Rev. T. Dostael P.P., Batawa, Rev T. O'Sullivan C.C.S.R., Toronto, Rev. A. Bennett C.C.S.R., Toronto, Rev. A. O'Donnell, Trenton, Rev. J. O'Neil, Tweed and Rev C. E. Baker, Rev. J. Carley, Belleville.

Benediction hymns were given by the St. Michael's High School choir. Today a very large congregation was present at 8.30 a.m. for the Pontifical High Mass celebrated by Monsignor J. F. Nicholson assisted by Rev. J. Carley and Rev. A. Bennett. The sermon was preached by Monsignor McGarth who said "That the very world leaders who have brought us to this impasse by their ignoring of God in their deliberations are the ones who are now losing their hope. The purpose of this pilgrimage is to present to our people a peace plan brought from Heaven by the Mother of God. The hour is late. On the words of Monsignor Fulton Sheen it is five minutes to twelve and we are in the valley of decision." If the horrors of a Third World War are to be averted and our civilization saved people must turn to God in a spirit of pennance and reparation. The farewell ceremonies will take place this afternoon.

Jacob Wilkes, 91, Dies at Marmora

Marmora (Special) — At the ripe age of ninety-one years and one month, Jacob Wilkes, one of the oldest residents of Marmora, passed away at his home on North Hastings Avenue late on Monday evening. An interesting life was thereby closed. He was one of the few to attain that age without requiring the aid of eyeglasses for reading of which he was fond. It is very recently that he gave up his habit of a daily walk to the business section of the village and news of his death will be heard with surprise and regret by many.

Born in Marmora township he was the son of the late Owen Wilkes and Susan Conley. His father was born on the Ridge Road near Stirling and when the Grand Trunk Railroad was built through Belleville he was one of the men employed on the construction. Later he helped in the construction of the county road between Stirling and Marmora and for a number of years was employed at the Marmora Iron Works.

While residing on the George Campion farm in Marmora township his son Jacob was born. His wife was a native of the village of Stirling. He attended the Wells' Schoolhouse in North Marmora township and children in that section had to walk five miles to school. He spent many years as a wood ranger and acquired a a vast knowledge of his native township and assisted in several surveys.

His recollections of early mining at Cordova and other parts of the district were very interesting. He was married to Martha Franklin of Elzevir township and three children survive; Mrs. William Linton (Beatrice) Barrie; Mrs. Hogarth Sabine (Bessie) Marmora; and Frank Wilkes Toronto.

The deceased was a member of St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora and a member of Marmora A.F. & A.M., 222, which he served for many years as its Tyler. The funeral under Masonic auspices will take place on Thursday. Services at St. Andrew's will be conducted by Rev. E. M. Cadigan at 2.15 p.m. Interment will follow in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

Plans Completed for Holding British Empire Dairy Show And Cheese Makers Convention

With the exception of final arrangements for the holding of the concluding banquet all arrangements for the 20th annual convention and dairy show of the Central Ontario Cheese makers' Association have been made, it was announced this week by J. L. Irwin, honorary president and secretary treasurer.

The British Empire Dairy Show will be held in the Riggs Motor Sales showroom on Pinnacle Street, the same place as last year, while the convention sessions will be held at the Hotel Quinte.

With entries slightly higher than last year a total of $1,700 in cash prizes are being offered for the dairy show this year according to Mr. Irwin. This is a $200 increase in prize money over last year. The dairy show will be open to the public, on December 2nd, 3rd and 4th, while the cheesemakers' convention will be on the 3rd and 4th.

As was the case last year there will be a special class for second year beginners, with makers having operated factories for two years and under being eligible. These makers must have at least three cheese entered in the exhibition.

Ranking Figures on Hand

Ranking figures in the dairy industry will be present to address the convention. Starting Wednesday morning, Dec. 3rd. will be the welcome address from Mac Remington, Newburgh, Association president, and talks by Frank Robinson, Kemptville, Chief dairy instructor for Eastern Ontario, and by A. O. Dalrymple, agric. rep. for Hastings. In the afternoon will be addresses by Dr. A. L. Gibson, Superintendent Eastern Dairy School at Kemptville, and Harry L. Waters, representing Montreal Provisions Trade Board.

Wednesday evening C. E. Lackner, Director of Dairying for Ontario, will give an address while at this session presentation of prizes and trophies won by the various makers will take place.

Addressing the convention on the final day will be John J. Ballantyne, President of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association; W. H. Sproule, professor of dairying, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph; J. M. Bain, chief dairy instructor for Central and Western Ontario and Ronald Camirand, inspector of dairy products for Quebec.

In the afternoon the convention will be addressed by E. G. Hood, of the Dairy Research Science Service, Ottawa; T. J. Hicks, Senior Dairy Producer Grader, Montreal, who will give a report on 1947 grading and make comments on the dairy show, and also W. C. Cameron, Chief Dairy Products, Grading and Inspection Services.

Cardinal Attends Mass for Three Late Cardinals

Vatican City, Nov. 5 (AP) — James Cardinal McGuigan, archbishop of Toronto, today attended a solemn mass attended by Pope Pius in memory of three cardinals — including Roderigue Cardinal Villeneuve, late Archbishop of Quebec — who died during the year.

Cardinal McGuigan attended the mass despite a severe attack of influenza and went back to bed after the ceremony. Vatican sources feared yesterday the attack might have developed into pneumonia but his condition was reported improved today.

Cardinal McGuigan was given injections last night to ward off pulmonary complications.

The solemn mass, celebrated by Clemente Cardinal Micara, also honored the memory of Kamillo Cardinal Caccio Dominioni and Carlo Cardinal Salotti.

The death of the three during the year reduced the Sacred College to 62 members, eight fewer than its full quota, and again gave rise to speculation the Pontiff would call a consistory in the near future to fill some or all of the vacancies.

Flight From Poland

One of the great dramatic situations which never fails to raise the human emotions whether in the theatre, in the novel, or in the newspapers, is that concerned with the disappearance or loss of some person in whom interest has been aroused, doubt as to his safety and the happy revelation that he has successfully passed through the trials which beset him and has reached a haven of security.

A few days ago world interest was stirred in the disappearance of the peasant leader of Poland, Stanislaw Mikolajczyk. And out of the dark after days during which the world learned nothing of his whereabouts he suddenly appeared in London. During the Second World War and since then the world has had thrills upon thrills, which are really drama and the experience of Mikolajczyk is one of these thrills.

It is a tribute to the sense of security which the very names of Britain and the United States stir in men in Europe under trying circumstances. The readiness with which so many persons are willing to pull up stakes in some of the very old settled parts of Europe and make new homes in Britain, in Canada, the United States, in South America and in other countries which are young in years but advanced in their ideals of freedom and which seem to hold the promise of being lands flowing with milk and honey. No one is quite so uniformed as to believe that the streets of so many of these lands are paved with gold as used to be said of the attitude of some Europeans a couple of generations ago when contemplating removal to the Americas.

Britain has been a haven for many in recent generations and today Canada and the United States are havens for large numbers of persons who had to flee the madness and wrath of the Hitlerites.

What Mikolajczyk plans for the future is not quite revealed though he is planning according to a story told yesterday to visit friends in the United States.

Wild Life

The value of beaver to Canada is well known for though a wood-feller of reputation its great value lies not so much in the dams he builds for safeguarding his home but in the precious worth of his pelt.

A news story from Regina tells of the transplanting of 627 live beaver in the effort to re-stock the depleted beaver areas in Saskatchewan. 500 of them were taken to the northern conservation areas and the remainder distributed among farmers and others, having suitable locations for starting beaver projects. The beaver were taken by truck and then flown north.

One of the reasons for the removal is that these animals were causing damage by flooding certain areas. In their new homes they will serve the very important duty of increasing their own numbers and at the same time providing conditions that will be favorable to another industry, muskrat production.

The wild life of the various provinces is receiving much attention at this time because of its value as a tourist attraction and also because of the worth of furs which the fur-bearing animals carry on their backs.

This is no new thing for Canada. In another age the fur industry was one of the original industries. From the wilds of early Canada came a great amount of wealth in the days of the early colonization, when fur-trading ranked very high in the country's economy.

Canada yet possesses in its parks and distant areas sources of great wealth which can be protected and preserved for generations to come. In charge of the care and welfare of the wild life of Canada are experts in all the provinces with a thorough knowledge of Canada's animals and birds which are still so great an attraction to Canadians and to tourists.

Welcome News

With the disappearance of ration coupons for sugar housewives will look forward to the work of canning next year with less anxiety than they have felt in recent years owing to limitation of the amounts of sugar available, though the distribution was increased at times as the stocks of sugar increased and warranted.

Rural families too will welcome the use of what sugar they need for home canning and growers of fruits and berries will greet the return of coupon-free sugar. Housewives will feel the sense of relief in having a supply of sugar to draw upon which will be subject to none of the limitations which were necessary in time of a limited supply of sugar which had to be widely distributed in all fairness to everyone.

Farm Boys and Girls

At the Coliseum at Lansdowne Park some 260 farm boys and girls from the ten Eastern Ontario counties competed with calves which they had raised themselves for district honors. As far as anybody there was aware it was the largest such show ever held in Canada — there were 134 and 65 entries in classes for the two major dairy breeds.

The boys and girls who took part in this championship show were all winners at local or county elimination contests, represented several thousand farm youths in Eastern Ontario alone interested in better livestock and better farming. They are of a new breed of farmers, many who have graduated from calf and swine club work are today operating good farms of their own, or managing good farms. Their influence on many older farmers has been noticeable.

There is a lot of talk today about boys and girls leaving farms for city and town life. It is a favorite topic with many after-dinner speakers, especially at rural gatherings. They miss two important facts, that with increasing mechanization farming today does not require the number of hands it once did, and that a new generation of farmers have come to the fore who are literally making two blades of grass grow where one grew formerly. Those lads and girls who were competing in Ottawa recently were interested in making two cows do the work formerly done by three, through better livestock, says Ottawa Journal.

News Picture Pioneer

The news from Florida of the death of Elmer Underwood at age 87 conjured up memories of a pre-cinema, pre-radio era when standard entertainment of a rainy afternoon or a winter's night was provided by a simple, ingenious device that combined two similar photographic views in such a way as to give the effect of a single picture possessing the quality of depth.

Why, you could almost hear the awesome roar of Niagara Falls when the image of them was captured in the sterescope!

Elmer Underwood was the father of the sterescopic industry. He devised a sterescope for large-scale manufacture and roamed the world making photographs for the dual reproductions that fitted into the sterescope's sliding holder. What Sunday parlor in the late 1800s and in the early years of the 20th century was without its sterescope sitting, carefully dusted, on a table that more likely than not had feet resembling the paws of a clumsy lion?

Elmer Underwood not only brought the world, pictorially, into the American home through the sterescope, but he was a pioneer in bringing about the acceptance and development of the news picture as presented in periodicals. One source credits Mr. Underwood with the introduction of the news picture in the form of sterescopic views of the Greco-Turkish War in 1897.

With his brother Bert, who died in 1944, Elmer Underwood formed the photographic firm of Underwood & Underwood in 1882. That credit line, "Underwood & Underwood," was as familiar in a bygone day as is "Associated Press Wirephoto" today. — Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FOOD WASTER

It's the over-generous hostess unto whom I write today,
The lady with the gracious smile and food to throw away;
The one who wields the ladle with a baseball player's grip,
And serving mashed potatoes always gives a double-dip.

Oh, lovely, smiling lady, bear in mind
when serving me,
A heap of mashed potatoes on my plate too much will be.
Deal lightly with the ladle; leave a little room for meat;
A double-dip of anything is more than I can eat.

My tastes are very simple. I've a modest appetite.
A little food's sufficient, but too much is never right.
What's more, it's being wasteful. Let me offer you a tip:
With the turnips and potatoes never use the double-dip.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who was the youngest member of the Supreme Court?

Joseph Story of Massachusetts has been the youngest member of the Supreme Court of the United States. He was born September 18, 1779, and was commissioned by President Madison an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court November 18, 1811, when he was 32 years and two months of age.

William Johnson of South Carolina has been the second youngest member of the Supreme Court. He was born December 27, 1771, and was commissioned by President Jefferson an Associate Justice on March 25, 1804, when he was 32 years and three months of age. Story was only one month younger when he received his commission than Johnson was when he received his.

The Constitution does not provide that persons shall have attained a certain age before they are qualified to become Federal judges, as it does in the case of President, Vice President, Senators and Representatives, and therefore it is presumed that any person of legal age is qualified in that respect.

When President Roosevelt appointed William O. Douglas of Connecticut an Associate Justice in 1939 at the age of 40 he was the youngest member of the Supreme Court in 127 years.

Oliver Wendell Holmes was the oldest man who ever served on the Supreme Court. He was born March 4, 1841, was commissioned by President Theodore Roosevelt an Associate Justice December 6, 1902 when 60 years old, and resigned January 12, 1932, when he was nearly 91.

Holmes became known as "The Great Dissenter" because of the frequency with which he dissented from the decisions of the Court on important questions. It has been estimated that Holmes dissented in about one-tenth of all the decisions made by the Court while he was a member.

Because of his great age when he resigned there is an erroneous impression that Justice Holmes served on the Court longer than any other person. He served on the Court 28 years, one month and four days, while eight men have served on the Court for 30 years or more. Their names and the number of years, months and days of service are as follows:

Stephen J. Field of California, 34 years, eight months and 21 days; John Marshall of Virginia, 34 years, five months and five days; John M. Harlan of Kentucky, 33 years, 10 months and 15 days; Joseph Story of Massachusetts, 33 years, nine months and 22 days; Bushrod Washington, of Virginia (nephew of George Washington), 32 years, 11 months and six days; James M. Wayne of Georgia, 32 years, six months; John McLean of Ohio, 32 years and 26 days, and William Johnson of South Carolina, 30 years, four months and 15 days.

Letter to the Editor

"Garages, Factories Everywhere and Not A Place to Live"

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

"When our forefathers first settled here naturally they had no foresight into the future, nor as to the possibilities of the growth of our city. Therefore it is up to us as individuals to make an effort to have a building plan with an eye to the future growth.

As result of new factories and the possibility of other factories locating here, the city has never before enjoyed such development and there is no reason for Belleville not being the most important city between Toronto and Montreal. We have access to water and railway transport and are surrounded by the best farm lands in Ontario.

But the almost frightening aspect of Front Street stymied bebetween the 2 fire halls is something to be considered if we want new shops. We need added location for a shopping district and business district. An obvious place is over the south bridge on Bridge Street. West, where we have garages on the two main corners and a taxi stand on the other prominent corner.

An enterprising person, or even the city, should have erected a two or three storey building with shops below and office space above. A city of this size has too many garages in proportion to the number of cars and these have usurped some of our main corners.

We must consider the residential sections, protect them and not hem them in with factories. Our waterfront is ruined by the railroad; let us keep our industries there in the lowlands and our residential section above. There will be nothing sacred if the west is hemmed in by industries in the fair grounds section and the possibilities of an industrial site on the old golf course.

It is apparent that people building the better class of homes are going out along the Trent Road, away from the possibilities of having a factory or a garage at their front door.

Raising money for the swimming pool caused a great deal of concern. Victoria Park is a beautiful spot and if it had been protected with a breakwater we would have had no danger of a flood. There would also have been a desirable swimming section.

Development of a city is like building a statue. Each dash of the spade must be an advantage to the whole and not an ugly gouge in the city proper. Keep the factories in one area, not as mushrooms popping up in the residential section. Build homes, not as individual enterprizes, but with an eye to pleasant surroundings and future development.

Citizens should be encouraged to have a united combination of efforts, taking interest in keeping the city called "Belleville the Beautiful" using all her beauty spots to an advantage."

Tolerance, Good Leadership Main Needs in World

Declaring that Peace, Leadership and Tolerance were the three dominant needs of the world today, present day international conditions were outlined by Rabbi A. Babb when he spoke before members of the Men's Club of Tabernacle Church at their regular monthly meeting on Monday evening.

The speaker pointed out the direness of war and stressed that only ignorance would fail to recognize the danger to civilization of another world conflict. With scientific methods of destruction another war might well mean the reduction of civilization to a condition of savagery or worse.

Victory over a tyrant in the last war created a great opportunity to make the world secure and usher in an era which was prophesied by the Prophets. Failure of achieving this must be placed at the world leadership.

In giving a reason for the failure of mankind to produce the right leadership Rabbi Babb quoted a Jewish saying that "it is not the leader that produces greatness in a people, but it is the people who produce the great leader. A leader is in accordance with his generation."

"To have great leaders the people must be great too," went on the speaker. Selfishness and smug complacency prevalent today cannot make a people great."

THE DANGER IN THE WAITING ROOM

Aseptic technique has nothing to do with the use of chemical antiseptics or germicides. It means rather the principles, rules or methods surgeon, physician, nurse, dentist, assistant or other attendant must understand and conscientiously follow in order to prevent infection or the spread of infection. Aseptic technique is not more important in the operating room or in the delivery room than it is in the sickroom, in the dentist's office or in the physician's office.

Numerous readers have told me of deplorable infractions of the principles of asepsis they have observed in the physician's office.

For example a registered nurse consulted a physician who has a large practice; the physician is a hard worker and gives the best service possible to his patients. He is a most likable person. But the nurse was shocked when she saw the doctor's dirty fingernails. She required a blood count and blood pressure reading, but she felt thankful that no further service was necessary. The incident accounted, she imagines, for her blood pressure being several millimeters higher than upon any previous occasion. ..Now the nurse is looking for a new physician.

I described here recently the shameful conditions another registered nurse discovered in the "isolation room" of a large city hospital when she arrived to take care of a typhoid fever patient who had been criminally neglected by the hospital staff. The nurse didn't call it criminal — I do.

A school teacher who had just borne her first baby in a pretentious and fancy-priced hospital was shocked when the attendant who purported to be a trained nurse clumsily dropped a "sterile" dressing on the floor, picked it up and was about to apply it to the operative wound when the patient cried out in alarm and prevented the atrocity.

A young mother took her child to the doctor's office—the young mother was goofy enough to carry the child to the office although she knew the child should remain abed, but the doctor was "too busy" and his office girl assured the mother that it was all right to bring the child into the office. While waiting in the stuffy, crowded little waiting room the mother discovered another child a few feet away had whooping cough and was spraying the environment with the germs at each paroxysm. When the young mother protested about the danger, the efficient office girl shrugged her shoulders and said that of course the doctor had no idea people would be so inconsiderate, etc. etc. The fault there was the doctors. It is very convenient and profitable for the doctor if his customers are dumb enough to drag sick children to the doctor's office when the children belong in bed, but that hardly justifies the doctor in subjecting even ignorant customers to the danger of infection while they sit, peasant like, in his waiting room.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Specialist

For some time have been going to a specialist twice a year for fluoroscope and electrocardiogram. He asks a few questions hands me a report of the fluroscope and electrocardiogram which is meaningless to me, and charges me $25. What good can this do a person? (R.R.)

Answer—It does seem expensive entertainment, but a lot of Yankee Wiseacres just love it. Why not consult a reputable physician in your neighborhood next time you want medical or health advice

Drug Habit

Can honestly say I have taken ten grains of aspirin (various makes) every night for the past twenty-five years, as a sedative, until a few months ago I found that five grains was enough. It does quiet my nerves and produce sleep. I am 75 years old, no high blood pressure, no heart trouble, acidity yes, but—if I try to sleep without taking the aspirin I can't. (F.E.T.)

Answer—I bet you could sleep as well on 2 1-2 grains plus the belly breathing exercise to bring relaxation and equalization of circulation and tranquilization of mind on retiring. After a month of b. b. exercise you will probably find you need no aspirin at all. For instructions for Belly Breathing send stamped envelope bearing your address. No clipping, mind you—ask for it in writing, or else.

Plans Discussed for Raising Funds for Community Centre

Picton, Nov. 5 — Plans for a canvass to raise funds for the operation of the Community Centre were discussed by directors at a meeting this week. Mayor L. Nethery, Creighton Lockyer, Miss Violet Anglin were named a committee to organize a committee. The secretary pointed out that the present basis of financing is that the province pays about 25 cents of each dollar of cost and the town about 50 cents. This leaves 25 per cent to be raised from other sources. Additional funds are required for enlargement of facilities and purchase of equipment.

The Centre has a membership of more than one thousand. Instruction is given in all types of sport, including boxing, archery, fencing, softball, hardball, hockey, swimming, rugby. There are large tap dancing classes and entertainment for various age groups.

The committee decided to ask Town Council to make repairs so that the hall at the Market Square can be used for instruction.

White Gloves Presented

White gloves were presented to Mr. Justice Treleaven who presided at Supreme Court sittings here Monday and Tuesday. He was welcomed on his first visit here by F. L. Ward, K.C., and G. T. Walmsley, K.C.

There were seven divorce cases on the docket and six were granted. A civil action, Nourse versus Collis was also heard.

Escapes Injury

Though thrown out of his car when it collided with another on West Main Street yesterday, Clarence Smith escaped serious injury. He was given first aid at the County hospital. Driver of the second car was Sid Strawbridge of Bloomfield. A passenger in his car, John Peckett was saved from injury by the heavy cap he was wearing as his head went through the windshield. The collision occurred as Smith made a left hand turn to enter a service station, according to information given Chief of Police Bert Biddle who investigated. Both cars were badly damaged.

Injured in Face

Burnett Brant of Syracuse, N.Y. and Harvey Maracle of Tyendinaga Reserve received facial lacerations early Saturday when their car left the road on Belleville-Picton Highway and rolled over on the side of the road against Mountain View Cheese factory. They were treated at Belleville General Hospital. Brant, who was driving told police he fell asleep at the wheel.

Allen School Hallowe'en Party

Rawdon —(Special)— On Friday evening the pupils of the Allan School and their teacher, Mrs. Gordon Richardson, were "At Home" to the folks of S. S. No. 3 and a large number of visitors.

Mr. Irvin Reid was chairman for the occasion and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver was pianist for the parade of masqueraders. The judges awarded the prizes as follows:

Best Dressed — Ina Scott
Comical — Roger Smith
Original — Jimmie Johnson, Campbellford.

The program opened with a chorus "Hallowe'en Has Come." Recitations were given by Ina Scott, Eleanor Smith, George Scott and Walter Wrightman.

A dialogue "Upsetting the Ghost," was greatly enjoyed.

The pupils contributed another song and an exercise in which each told a story.

A song with Jack O' Lanterns made a pretty number followed by a dialogue entitled "Ring of Fate."

The closing number was another Hallowe'en chorus and then Ray Sharp and Edwin Reid presented several "tricks."

The pupils served cake, sandwiches and cookies and all enjoyed a social time together.

Halifax — (CP)— When Inspector Frank Hook of the Nova Scotia motor vehicle department says "that must be a woman driver," he means it as a compliment. Union Organizer Faces Charge Of Assault

In the first picket line disturbance since Corbin workers went on strike one month ago, Mr. Ross Russell, district organizer for the United Electrical Workers (C.I.O.) was arrested early today and charged with assaulting J.C. Hayes of the Belleville Police Department.

Inspector Hayes with other members of the force had escorted a plant engineer through the picket lines and had asked members of the picket line to move away from another entrance to the factory when the disturbance occurred. In the disturbance it is alleged that Mr. Russell swung his fist in the face of Inspector Hayes. The Inspector was in no way injured.

Russell was immediately placed under arrest by Inspector Hayes and later appeared before Justice of the Peace Mary Butler for remand until Tuesday. Application for bail was made and was granted with bail set at $500 cash bond.

With production at the Corbin plant at a standstill since shortly after the strike began on October 6th., a percentage of employees at both the Belleville Sargent and the American Optical this morning left their jobs in sympathy with the striking Corbin workers.

Officials of the Belleville Sargent plant stated that a number of employees had left their jobs to join with Corbin workers in their picket line, while others had left their jobs and had gone home rather than face bickering from sympathy workers. At the American Optical only two departments of the plant were working as other parts of the plant were shut down when workers left their jobs in sympathy with Corbin workers.

Street rumor was to the effect that a number of employees at Stewart-Warner-Alemite had also left their jobs in sympathy with Corbin workers, but plant officials at mid-morning stated this to be untrue.

The strike at Corbin occurred when a number of workers quit their jobs in protest against the alleged dismissal by the plant management of 16 workers. Plant management stated the workers had not been dismissed but had been laid off temporarily.

WEDDINGS

ZUFELT—CASEMENT

Frankford—At half past two o'clock, Thursday afternoon, October 30, the Free Methodist Church, in Frankford, was decorated with the greenery of ferns for the marriage of Grace Evangeline Casement, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Casement, of Frankford, with Albert Edward Zufelt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zufelt. Rev. Robert Casement, uncle of the bride, was the officiating clergyman, and wedding music was supplied by Miss Marion Mikel. During the signing of the register, Mr. and Mrs. G. Kemp sang "O Perfect Love".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a long gown of white silk crepe, fashioned with sweetheart neckline, a white lace Queen Ann headdress from which fell a floor length veil and she carried a bouquet of red Talisman roses.

Miss Joyce Latta, of Belleville, was the senior attendant, wearing a gown of pale blue taffeta, with pink and blue feathered headdress, matching shoulder length veil and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Miss Margaret Zufelt, sister of the groom, wore pink marquisette over taffeta, with a similar matching headdress, and her bouquet was of yellow roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Keith Casement, brother of the bride, and the ushers were Mr. Jack Zufelt and Mr. J. Thompson.

A reception was held in the "Dutch Mill Inn", Trenton, where tables were decorated with giant yellow 'mums. The bride's mother received in a dr. flowered green silk, with brown accessories and a corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the mother of the groom, wearing black silk crepe, with matching accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

For travelling to Brockville and points in the United States, the bride chose a blue crepe costume, with brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Zufelt will take up temporary residence at 180 West Moira Street, Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were from Belleville, Kingston, Stirling and Trenton.

For travelling to Montreal and the Laurentian, the bride donned a black and white ensemble with black accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Lynch will reside in Toronto.

V.O.N. NEWS

There are many bedridden older folk in the community who need the help of some one else to keep them physically clean and comfortable.

Sometimes the busy housewife, her day already filled with the needs of her husband and children, must find the time required to give this care. It is a simple thing to call a V. O. Nurse in a case like this: She will see that once or twice a week Mrs. John Doe, Sr., will have a good bath, her bed linen changed, and any treatments ordered by the doctor carried out.

For Mrs. John Doe Jr., this is a great help, for the nurse does what is required without any fuss, or any interference with the household routine, but to the patient herself it may mean much more.

To one who is bounded by the four walls of her room, the nurses visits mean more than merely physical care. She is the harbinger from the outside world, bringing to her patient a glimpse of outer things, and to the problems of that inner room, the fresh viewpoint which often pours oil upon troubled waters...the little irritations that have loomed so large, take on their proper proportion, and may even become things for laughter. The horizon has broadened slightly, and the patient is mentally refreshed.

For this service, call tel. 175, and Saturday afternoon, Sunday and holidays 1125.

HOLLOWAY ST. Y.P.U.

Holloway St. Y.P.U. held their weekly meeting Monday evening at the church. The meeting opened with a rousing sing song led by Eleanor Wiltse. Rossyln Robertson led in prayer.

The Worship Service was in charge of the Fellowship Group led by Betty Keeble and opened with the singing of a hymn. Scripture was read by Olive Hall and an interesting reading given by Phyllis Beatty. The offering was then received by Max MacGuire and dedicated by Betty Keeble. A poem, "I Wonder If He Remembers," was read by June Keegan and the service closed with prayer by Meighen Rodgers.

Boxes were then packed for sending overseas and apples were served. The Friendship Circle was formed for the singing of "Blest Be The Tie That Binds," and Rev. C. Perkins closed the meeting with prayer.

MISSED VITAMINS

The tomato was originally believed to be poisonous and was merely grown as a decorative plant for the garden.

W.I. Delegates From Quinte Area Branches Open 21st Annual Convention in City

The 21st Area Convention of the combined Women's Institutes of Hastings, Northumberland and Prince Edward opened at ten o'clock on the morning of Nov. 4, for a two-day session in the auditorium of the B.C.I. & V.S., with the theme "We Treasure the Past—We Face the Future".

Registration of delegates was in charge of Mrs. Donald Leslie, of Roslin, and Mrs. W. B. Weese, of Belleville, substituting for Mrs. Clarence Holmes, who was unable to be present.

Area Chairman Presides

Mrs. W. A. Hoskin, of Cobourg, Area chairman, presided for the morning session, with Mrs. J. Parrott, Front Road, as pianist. In her remarks Mrs. Hoskin said she was pleased to meet so many delegates, and she hoped the ladies were also pleased to be present, so that altogether the convention might prove to be a pleasant association. She said, "This being an anniversary year many of us have realized for the first time how widespread has been the work of the Women's Institute through the years". She stressed the importance of members "knowing" their creed, so that every day they may "live by it."

One moment of silence was observed in memory of Mrs. Gawley, a deceased vice president of the organization.

Mrs. A. Mitchell, of Rural Belleville, introduced Mrs. McEwan, Regional vice president, who was a guest speaker at a later session.

Reports Given

In three minute addresses on worthwhile achievements of W.I. branches in this area, Miss A. Brickman reported for Prince Edward, Mrs. George Page for Northumberland West; Mrs. J. G. George for Northumberland East; Mrs. Ken Bateman, Mrs. Jas. Sine and Mrs. W. Tufts for Hastings North, West and East respectively with achievements covering a wide range of activities, such as providing parks and playgrounds, community centres, rock gardens, electric light and garbage collection services; Blue Cross hospitalization for members; supplies for school nurses, baby clinics, Red Cross and Red Shield donations; showers and gifts for war brides and monetary donations to hospitals and other charitable institutions, and sponsoring special speakers on V.O.N., T.B., and Cancer clinics.

Mrs. A. Mitchell representing Belleville Area on District Board, brought gleanings from the District Annuals, every one of which was well attended rain or shine, the delegates bringing concise reports of increased membership and inspiration, taking part in interesting discussions, and going home with renewed energy, as well as inspired and informative reports.

Work Emphasized

Girls' Work is being emphasized and the membership is steadily increasing with the groups taking more active parts in projects climaxed by Achievement Days.

Institutes work toward advancement in civic projects, beautifying parks and gardens where vacant lots once were, serving on school boards, co-operating with teachers for the betterment of school age children; supporting every progressive project and setting good examples for young people of their communities.

Mrs. Mitchell suggested "Let us learn our Creed and then put it into practice in daily living. Let us all accept the challenge to face the future and throw from our hands a torch to future generations, which will help them to make their world a better place in which to live".

Mrs. Harry Ketcheson presented the financial statement showing the sum of $50.70 on hand and Mrs. Bunnett read the auditors' report finding the same statement "correct and in good order".

Resolutions Read

Two resolutions were read by Mrs. F. Denyes of Brighton, the first that the control of obnoxious weeds be more thoroughly looked after; secondly, that because of diseases prevalent among cattle, an inspection of cattle be made compulsory in Hastings County.

Mrs. Morley Sine, of Frankford, asked that more publicity be given to W.I. meetings with advance notices and post meeting reports, giving information as to place, date, and hour of meetings through the press, telephone and radio. She said "Publicity Pays".

The success of projects depends largely upon advance notices of projects and be sure to get all news of activities to the press promptly, and vary the style of the reports, always keeping them clear and concise.

For a bit of individual publicity members may use the W.I. stationery for personal correspondence. It is both neat and attractive.

Dishpan Handiest Thing

Mrs. Percy Ray, of Holloway, reported on "Home Economics" suggesting a number of subjects suitable for Roll Calls, one being "The Handiest Thing in a Home"—the answer being "a dishpan".

Mrs. Ray dealt with topics, mottoes, demonstrations, special speakers, home projects and the organization of Girls' Clubs as ways by which this subject may be presented. She stressed co-operation with church, school to promote home interest in the saving of Europe's children and suggested arts and crafts, homemade Christmas gifts and wrappings to create interest in community and home life.

Mrs. L. A. McEwan, of Ottawa, led in a discussion of these reports, stressing system, action and concise reports.

Afternoon Session

The afternoon session opened with Mrs. R. Badgley of Shannonville presiding; Mrs. Roy Sills as song leader and Mrs. J. Parrott as pianist.

Delegates Welcomed

In the absence of Mayor F. Follwell, who is ill, Acting Mayor Alderman H. J. Clarke brought greetings and extended a cordial welcome to the city and said he wished for the delegates "a successful and profitable convention." Mrs. E. Goraline of Demorestville graciously responded.

Mrs. L. A. McEwan brought highlights from the Provincial Board meeting suggesting the reading of the W.I. publication "Home and Country Magazine" which gives information important to all Institute members; "Young Canada Listens" is a program of the "Kindergarten of the Air" broadcast; and she recommended the Fiftieth Anniversary Booklet which will be published, and ready for distribution by the end of 1947.

She said the "Adelaide Hoodless "Fund" is steadily increasing but has not yet reached the objective of one dollar per member. In 1947 there are 37,500 W.I. members, an increase of 5,500.

New rulings for members will be found in the new hand book published this year. In addition to Federation Fees an additional tax of 5c annually per member—for the F.W.I.C. and one cent per member for A.C.W.W. is already in effect.

Interest in the Peace Garden project which was in abeyance during the war years, is being revived and new pamphlets on this subject are now available, the latest being "Peace Garden Up to Date," which may be secured by writing to T. P. Williams, Field Secretary, 44 Dandurn Place, Winnipeg, Man.

Solo Appreciated

A solo, "The Garden of Today" by Mrs. A. Reilly of Melrose Branch was greatly appreciated as was her second number "Smilin' Through."

Mrs. Geo. McCaw, of Picton reported on "Citizenship" saying all conveners in this department, six, had sent in reports. In Windsor 50 Europeans had received instruction in English language and history for 20 weeks in classes sponsored by the I.O.D.E. and the day after the completion of the course seven out of the twenty applied in Windsor for Canadian citizenship.

Interest, Intelligence and Integrity are outstanding characteristics of good citizens. We cannot retain the best of our Canadian traditions without Christian principles in our national life and our daily lives.

Mrs. Goodfellow of Codrington brought an extensive report on Social Welfare. From six district in the Belleville area, she received six reports, two of which were outstanding for achievements. She said Social Welfare includes Health, Education, Recreation. W.I. branches sponsor visits from Doctors, Nurses, as speakers with T. B. clinics and Cancer Research as outstanding subjects, as well as social diseases. Projects included First Aid demonstrations, and the sending of baby foods to Britain. Motto—"Good Health and the Means to Conserve It."

Education Emphasized

Education was emphasized by having addresses given by professional people as lawyers and ministers. "Education is any means used to help our children grow up so they may be able to hold their own when comparing the youth of today with the youth of yesterday.

Radio in schools and sound films are of great help in educational programs.

Recreation, includes Post War Legislation: "Life is like a garden. It bears the fruit we sow" and "a nation is as strong as the health of its people" were two quotations used to stress the importance of recreation.

One Dr. states that 80 per cent of venereal diseases are contracted while people were under the influence of alcohol.

Members were urged to give more loyalty and co-operation to whatever project is approved by your district.

Discussion Period

In the discussion following these reports Mrs. McEwan urged: "Get Results,—report Action — make all reports concise in short press paragraphs and allow any speaker no more than 3 minutes for oral reports.

"We Treasure the Past—We Face the Future"—was the subject of a panel discussion led by Mrs. Bush of Consecon, who, in her introductory remarks cited "Remembrance Day' as an example of how Canadians "treasure the past" by remembering the high cost of victory with an opportunity for dedication for the future.

"The next twenty years will be of vital importance in the solving of problems which will affect the pattern of Canadian life for all time.

Speaks on Home

Mrs. Faul spoke on "The Home" of the past when sentiment, culture, self reliance, initiative and thrift were the background of pioneer accomplishments. She spoke of Family Worship with father as the leader, and of the confidence born in the woodshed by the aid of a strong right arm.

The Superstructure of the Future if built on the strong foundations of woman's responsibility for Canada's homes will frame the nation's destiny.

She quoted: "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it."

Mrs. Bush quoted Josh Billings as saying: "Train up a child in the way he should go,—and walk there once-in-a-while yourself."

A questionnaire dealing with the community, brought out the crying need for leadership — Ability does not depend on what you know—but on what you are. There must be a vision and enthusiasm for making the vision visible.

Deals With Nation

Mrs. Hoskin dealt with the nation relative to reverence for the past and expectation for the future. She asked "How may we foster Peace?" By understanding other nationalities without race prejudice, succor for the devastation of Europe; share what we have not grudingly but willingly and cheerfully.

In closing the discussion Mrs. Bush quoted the following:

"Ye who have faith to look with fearless eyes
Beyond the tragedy of a world at Strife,
And trust that out of life and death shall rise
The dawn of ampler life," —
"Cherish the Past—and Face the Future."

Afternoon tea was served by the ladies of the Bay of Quinte Branch.

Evening Session

Mrs. W. A. Hoskin, of Cobourg presided for the evening session and expressed appreciation and gratitude, on behalf of the delegates, for the very excellent music provided by the B.C.I.V.S. Band, under the direction of Mr. Cooper.

Miss Anna P. Lewis, Director Women's Institute and Home Economics Service, Toronto represented the women of Ontario at the meeting of Associated Countrywomen of the world, held recently in Amsterdam Holland. Five thousand delegates were present, twenty-one representing Canada.

Miss Lewis said in part:—"We sailed on the Empress of Canada July 26, and arrived at Liverpool in due time. One week was spent in Ireland on a farm, where I learned how to make good things from Irish recipes. In England we were guests of the National Federation of Institutes. We toured London in four days; saw many interesting things, and some sordid sights, which would make Canadians more generous in their giving, if they could be there.

"St. Swithen's Church, which stood on consecrated ground for seven centuries is now in ruin. To the ruins men bring their lunch and rest, pray and eat in quietness. The people of England eat picnic lunches in most unusual places. I had lunch in "the blood tower," and in Westminster Abbey. In High Park no mowers are busy with the lawns, for sheep are kept in pasture there to do this.

Lunched in Forest

The speaker continued, — "In South West England I visited W. I. Group in Runnymede, and lunched in Windsor Forest, and was sight seeing in Windsor Castle. In Wales the Derbyshire Federation of Institutes were our hostesses, and we were entertained with Welsh folk dances, and heard beautiful vocal music. In Scotland we were entertained by the Ayrshire Federation, and saw wonderful herds of Ayrshire cattle. Here sheep are all colored yellow for show purposes. There is free grazing on the hills in both Wales and Scotland. In Wales if a man buys a farm he also buys the sheep, for having become acclimatized to one particular hill or slope, they cannot be moved.

"We spent one day in Edinburgh and saw the renowned castle, then came back to London, and from there we went to Amsterdam."

"At the conference we met women from 22 countries. These women meant business and the conference was a serious one. "No peaceful nation can exist unless national law is based on Spiritual power", was the basis for the conference, which opened with an international church service. Delegates numbered 550, representing 5,000,000 women, who bring home practical suggestions for obtaining world peace, each individual working for that end."

"Our nation", continued Miss Lewis, "is as healthy as each individual, so our women can bring better nutrition standards throughout the world. In England there was no milk for cereal, because there is not enough milk to go round, and in France there are no dairy products, including eggs.

Faces Were Happy

The W. I. in Holland was such a thrill! There Women's faces were happy. The way these people have come back since the war is amazing. There are no weeds in Holland, and all lands are being reclaimed as fast as possible. A farm woman works from early dawn until late at night. In the flooded areas the crops this year yielded a 60 per cent production. This was accomplished by counteracting the action of the salt water on the soil. Their happiness is due to having regained their farms after the German occupation.

"Everywhere Canadians were given a royal welcome, because Canadians are considered as Holland's liberators, and the Dutch people will never forget the service rendered. Women are interested in peace, and they knew from experience what war meant. They say continually, 'This must not happen again.'

"In 1940 the Nazis first asked, then commanded that a Nazi woman must sit on every Institute executive, but the officers and members all immediately handed in their resignations. These women served with the Underground, acting as Nurse's Aids, and carrying ammonia in their hypo needles. This was shot into the wicks of dynamite, making it of no use."

Always at Half Staff

"On one street the flag is always at half staff in Amsterdam. On this particular spot a number of people were shot by the Nazis, and the place is held sacred to their memory.

"Since the war the institute executives and members are again carrying on the work, with 360 branches and 27,300 members enrolled.

In closing Miss Lewis stated,—"The furtherance of World Peace may be obtained if all the world's women co-operate in bringing out the best in all people, and concentrate only on the good in every nation.

Mr. Roscoe Robson, M. L. A., introduced Mr. C. D. Graham, Ontario Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and in reply the minister said, "Three things are very difficult to do: first, to climb a fence leaning toward you; second, to kiss a girl leaning away from you, and thirdly, to live up to an introduction."

Continuing he said,—"To you I bring greetings from the Department of Agriculture, and with you I look back through history and find that this year is outstanding, because of decisions which will be made in this country.

"If I were to define Agriculture, I would find it is a very comprehensive word, including science and the art of cultivation, with associated industries. The most vital need of the human race today is food. Arms are the ammunition of war, but food is the ammunition of peace. If we do nothing more than to make nations realize that there must be equal distribution of food throughout the world, we have gone a long way toward winning the peace.

Food Fundamental

"Food is fundamental but shelter and clothing are also essential. Because food is absolutely necessary, it is apparent to all that agriculture is the foundation for sound economy in any country. In the countries overrun by war, people are starving, because their land has been devastated. It is important that we should emphasize soil conservation. At present we have a representative from Holland, who came to give free advice re drainage and soil preservation.

"Women," said Mr. Graham, "have taken an important part in agricultural production during the war years. Since the war, one young man being repatriated, wrote to his Canadian friends, — 'We have cleared the land, now it is up to you to do the building'. The Ontario farmer leads in the production of live stock, poultry, dairy products, soy beans, tobacco and potatoes. There are three factors in production, namely, quality, cost of production and modern methods of marketing the products.

"Science must be a partner with the agriculture. In the research department attempts are made to reduce animal disease, and in this regard the co-operation of the W. I. is appreciated. The same is true in plant disease. Soil preservation is another project which may be helped by science.

"Our boys and girls are taking an important stand in building for the future in Agriculture, with nearly 10,000 boys and girls being organized for progressive agriculture. Our young people are thinking, and are accepting responsibilities. Their program must be built on facts and not on theory. May we co-operate with them."

During the convention vocal solos by Mrs. A. Reilly of Shannonville, by Miss Verna Fox of Belleville and by Mrs. Nelson Welsh, of Moira, added considerably to the enjoyment of the sessions.

The girls' session directed by Miss Elsie Irvine and Miss Hart, Home Economists, assisted by Mrs. Rex Rollins of Belleville, demonstrated and explained methods used for the canning of some very fine exhibits of fruits and vegetables.

The National Anthem closed the Tuesday sessions.

LAND OF LITTLE STICKS

Indians once called a section of the western side of Hudson Bay "the land of little sticks" because of low forest growth.

History of Belleville Collegiate

It is difficult to obtain complete and accurate information regarding the early schools of Belleville. Indeed, for the most part they consisted of rude houses and the teachers were generally inferior men whose educational advantages had been few.

In 1816 the government instructed Surveyor Wilmot to lay out two hundred acres of Indian reserve land into town lots of half an acre each. Several of these plots were reserved, one for a hospital, one for a market square, one for a jail and one for a grammar school. The first grammar school appears to have been located near the corner of Campbell and Pinnacle Streets. Colonel Bell, who also ran a general store, was the first teacher in this school.

A two-room stone building was later erected on the west side of John Street, opposite Queen Street, on a grant of land obtained in 1829 from the Crown. A century later this school was torn down to make room from the present Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School. Mr. Burden was one of the original masters in this school. At one time Sir Sam Hughes also taught here.

Directly in front of this stone grammar school a two - storey brick school, facing the Hastings County Court House, was built in 1874. A Mr. Dawson was the original principal and was followed by Messrs. Wright, Colling and Milburn. The upper rooms were used for the High School and the ground floor provided space for the Public School. Matriculation was the only course offered students at that time. Due to a larger enrollment the public school pupils were accommodated elsewhere and both stories were then occupied by the High School. Increased attendance and a demand for a greater variety of education saw the small auditorium utilized as classrooms for a Commercial Department. At this time the stone grammar school contained one classroom and a room equipped and used for Domestic Science. Mr. P. C. McLaurin, B.A., was a teacher and principal in this school and the new collegiate from 1912 to 1943.

In 1927 the erection of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School was started. At this time classes were being held in the Y.M.C.A. and in the old Methodist Church which stood about where the school's parking lot is located. By 1928 the modern school was completed. The traditional colors, black, heliotrope and scarlet, standing for Belleville High School, were about the only remnants of the old school taken into B.C.I.V.S. Also moved to the new school was a bronze plaque which is now located opposite the main entrance and which commemorates those former students who served their country and died in the First World War.

Few collegiates have a campus located at the front of the school. This feature of B.C.I.V.S. was due to an attempt on the part of the Board of Education to satisfy various interested parties. Citizens along John Street objected to having a playground in their residential area; Hastings county wanted the new school to face the county buildings. As a result the rear of the collegiate was placed along John Street with the campus being built along Church Street.

A much broader educational program was offered in this new secondary school. The former junior and senior matriculation subjects were continued but in addition there was an enlarged Commercial Course and a new Vocational Department offering instruction in Home Economics, Woodworking, Draughting, Machine Shop and Motor Mechanics. Since the Second Great War an Agricultural Department has been added for boys who wish to specialize in farming.

Today a staff of forty specialized teachers under the principalship of Mr. George Currie, B.A., B. Paed., forms the faculty. Thus the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School has kept pace with the growth of the city and looks forward to new achievements in the future.

HAMILTON TIGERS BEAT DUTCHMEN IN FAST GAME

Owen Sound Mercurys Take Measure of Marlies by 4-2 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

The Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" fans could hardly be blamed today if they are seen walking around in a groggy state after last night's games in Owen Sound and Waterloo.

The lowest club in the league Owen Sound Mercury's, handed a 4-2 reverse to the much-touted Toronto Marlboros, who entered the game tied for top honors with Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen.

The unpredictable Hamilton Tigers defeated Flash Hollett's Dutchmen 3-2 and moved in with the K-W squad and Marlies to share top berth.

Owen Sound remains the only unbeaten team in the circuit with one win and a tie in their two starts, and sit by themselves in second place. The other three clubs are hitting .500 in their four games each.

Goalie Bob Gilson of the Mercury's outshone Toronto Maple Leafs' protege Howie Harvey although he didn't have as much work to do. Harvey blocked 41 drives while Gilson stopped 31.

Todd Miller and Bruce Small each fired two counters for Owen Sound. Toronto goals were tallied by Leo Curick.

At Waterlo, the Flying Dutchmen received a bad break when referee Kenny Holmshaw called back two Kitchener-Waterloo goals in last period. The Bengals won on tallies by Tommy Smelle Bill Tindall and Swap. Mason. Sparky Weiler and Dick Behling scored for the Dutchmen.

Although with the new season scarcely two weeks old, previous scoring records in the senior and junior "A" series are in danger of being shattered if this season's flock of scoring marks indicates things to come.

Nine players in both series already have accomplished the "hat-trick" — that of scoring three goals in one games, and one of them, Don Bauer of the Flying Dutchmen, scored four goals in a game against Stratford.

The other senior players who have performed the hat trick are Joe Fitzpatrick of Stratford Korehlers, Hamilton Pats' Nick Phillips and Doug Gillespie of Owen Sound Mercury's.

The five junior players are Bobby Gamble of Oshawa Generals, Gil St. Pierre of Barrie Flyers, Doug Chapman of Toronto Young Rangers, Eddie Ouellette and Earl Frazelle of Windsor Spitfires.

Three junior "A" games are slated for tonight — Toronto Young Rangers at Barrie, Oshawa at Stratford and Galt at St. Catharines.

Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen meet Hamilton Tigers in the lone senior tilt.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Although Ken Doraty's Moose Jaw Canucks have been Memorial Cup finalists in two of the last three seasons, it will be a long time before they win any popularity contests among Saskatchewan junior teams.

In fact, there are those who say that Canucks' favorite sport is swiping prize players from other teams.

However, Canucks' repeated success is enough to tempt many a prize junior to the fold — five of last year's team, for example, now are in pro ranks and scouts are watching half-a-dozen of this year's crew.

But Canucks have a constant friend and defender in Murray (Moose Jaw Times - Herald) Brown — who not so long ago nominated them to represent Canada in the Olympic Winter Games.

"The charge has been hurled repeatedly at the Moose Jaw club in recent months," he reports, "that it is attempting to snatch all the province's rural junior material that it can lay its hands on.

"If that's the case, then the other teams have no one to blame but themselves. Had they been on their toes and gone for the fall training school idea like the Canucks did three or four years ago, they'd probably be in a more favorable position as far as players are concerned."

The system has paid off.

"Canucks leave little to chance at these schools," Murray continues. "True, they may pick up only one or two kids each year, but the names of players the club thinks will develop are filed away and they are invited to attend the school the following year for another trial."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

A quiet-spoken modest chap is this Coach Laurie "Smoky" Harris. He stood in the Memorial Arena the other night looking over his Belleville junior hockey squad as it went thru its paces, making mental reservations, between an inaudible "doping out" of plays.

"Smoky" who isn't built like a Joe Louis or a Whipper Watson, nevertheless has more between his ears, than a shock of brown curly hair, and it should not be his fault if the Cook-Yanover-Beare beardless ones don't blossom forth as one of the best junior squads seen here in some time.

For behind "Smoky's" quiet mien, there is a wealth of sports experience and that includes everything from soccer to checkers to golf to a quiet spot of penny-ante. In fact, weather permitting, he'll go you a round of tennis, if you don't insist on his running too hard. For "Smoky" has a leg that is some two inches shorter than the other, and that keeps him out of a lot of sports that demand plenty of physical exertion.

He comes by his nickname honestly. In fact an illustrious brother, who went by the same moniker and who carved himself a niche in hockey fame years ago, bequeathed it to him. The big brother, born Chester, was a member of the famous Melville (Sask.) Millionaires when Eddie Shore was a hockey pup and was laying the foundation of his colorful hockey career. Later, Ches, dubbed "Smoky" because of his blazing shot was associated with Pittsburgh and New York clubs.

"Smokey the Second" took to hockey when he wore diapers. In fact he threw away his teething ring picked up a hockey stick by mistake and didn't let go of it until he was a battled-scarred rink warrior. He holds the enviable record of plyaing in intermediate company when he was 13 years of age, and thought a saftey razor was something that girls used to remove superfluous hairs from attractive underpinning.

The next 18 years saw him cavorting around centre ice, a speedy elusive player, no bigger than a pint of cider, but with plenty of intestinal fortitude and a fast hard shot. He played junior hockey with the New Hamburg squad for a year and then hopped to Chicago where he played for a Windy City squad for the next two year in senior company.

But tiring of the synthetic brand of the pastime he returned to his native Canada, and associated himself with the intermediate teams this side of the border. He wor the colors at different times of the Waterloo "A's"; the New Hamburg "A's" and the Tavistock, Seaforth "B's". He also saw hockey action for a brief period with the London, Ont., entry in the former Michigan-Ontario loop, and the Toronto Mercantile League.

And he's as much at home — or was — on a baseball diamond as a hockey cushion. His favorite spots were the hot-corner and shortstop, and during his baseball career he played with a Chicago team and the Dunnville and Woodstock squads in Ontario.

And he has a soft spot in his athletic heart for soccer. He played fitba' for Woodstock and other teams, turning back many an opposing threat from his opposition between the goalposts. That short limb of "Smoky's" prevented him from playing out front so he satisfied his soccer appetite with the custodian's job.

But don't go yet. He has specialised in Canadian football and also in softball. Smoky is married, has no children, is looking for an apartment; was once on the call list of the Toronto Maple Leafs, has three straight years of coaching under his belt, besides coaching many of the teams with which he has played, and thinks highly of his new "babies" in the Belleville junior hockey club.

Trenton and Madoc cut notches on the handles of their hockey pistols last night, emerging winners in a double-header at the Arena over Stirling and Tweed respectively. The games were fast and exciting with a little shinny mixed up with flashes of mid-season hockey. Stars are in the making in this Belleville District Hockey loop, if you can judge by the actions of "scouts" of other squads.

However, no matter the opinions of the alleged "experts" the games are proving crowd-pleasers as 600 fans present last night will testify. It isn't National Hockey League style, but then we've looked over some pretty crumby exhibitions under the aegis of that illustrious organization at times.

Orchids for last night go to Trumble of the Stirling team, a flashing, speedy player who rammed home four goals to put his team back in the running; Lavender his team-mate who picked up four assists; Brannigan, Trenton goalie, who, if it isn't ability had enough horseshoes to equip seven blacksmith shops; Burtt, Trenton defenceman, Lamorre of the same team, Lovelace of Madoc, and Bill Dickie of Tweed. The Belleville Intermediates go orchidless for obvious reasons.

Kingston Victorias, fast-travelling intermediate "A" team who are cutting up fancy hockey didoes around the Jock Harty Arena will be here on Friday night to take on the Belleville Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans 'A's' in rinkish combat. The Vics come highly rated, and the joust should be a real test for the ANAFS. The locals travel back to Kingston Saturday pip-emma for the return duel. Game here Friday gloaming begins at 8:30.

President Leo Kelly of the Belleville District Hockey Association announced last night that officials for the Thursday night games will be Speedy St. Louis and Don Lee, and for next Tuesday night's battles, "Toots" Holway and Bill Jessiman, the latter of the Trenton Air Station.

That pair of tilts scheduled here for Thursday night between the Belleville Hornets and Napanee, and Trenton and Cobourg should be well worth the price of admission. Napanee has shown unexpected strength, while the Fighting Bumblebees will have their stingers ready for the Gibbardville invaders. Both have plenty of class and will open festivities at 7:30. Trenton showed surprising power last night and Cobourg which defeated the fancied Campbellford squad last week, will be a force to be reckoned with. Looks like a neat evening of hockey entertainment.

HERSHEY BEARS A BETTER TEAM THAN STANDINGS

Tied for Fourth Place in Eastern Division With the Springfield Indians

The American Hockey League's defending champion Hershey Bears still have a potential championship team although one might be excused if they thought differently.

In the standings, the Bears are tied for fourth place with the Springfield Indians in the Eastern division. In the other A. H. L. contest billed for last night, Springfield Indians edged the cellar-dwelling St. Louis Flyers 4-3.

Gordie Bruce was the big gun for the Bears with three goals, two of them scored in the final period. Other Bears marksmen were Jack McGill, Penti Lund, Herbie Cain, Rolly McLenahan and Hy Buller. Shultz, Jack Portland, Scotty Mair and Bobby Walton each put the red light on for the Lions.

Washington were minus the services of defenceman Larry Archambult and five Lions played the game with upset stomachs due to food poisoning.

Eldy Kobussen led Springfield in their victory over St. Louis, notching two of the four goals scored. Other Indian scorers were Bill Gooden and Harry Frost.

Paul Gladu tallied the first goal for the Flyers with George Milligan scoring the second and Waikko Lund the third.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 5 — (AP) — The rain, dripping past the windows of coach Earl (Red) Blaik's office, furnished a subject for speculation about Saturday's Army - Notre Dame game besides threatening to hamper Army's preparations . . . Indoors, Blaid refused to supply an accompaniment of tears, although it's a well-known fact that this year's team resembles the "Black Knights" of the past three seasons no more than the color of Blaik's hair resembles red . . .

The Outlook is Blaik

Although Blaid insists that 1947 "definitely is our down year," he doesn't appear too gloomy about the future . . . Augie Dielens, who may do a lot of passing against Notre Dame, is coming along well as quarterback understudy to Arnold Galiffa. And both these youngsters are good enough that Bill Gustafson is definitely a half back now . . .

4,000 Hospital Beds Short in The Province

Toronto, Nov. 5 (CP) — The Ontario government—faced with a shortage of some 4,000 hospital beds for chronic patients—today is considering construction of a convalescent hospital to take care of a large number of patients waiting treatment.

Health Minister Kelly told the Ontario Hospital Association Convention yesterday that the Ontario government was considering construction of such a hospital with beds at a much lower cost than previous estimates which ran from $7,000-$8,000 per bed.

"We have applications for about 4,400 but we feel convalescent treatment will take care of a great many," the minister said.

About 3,000 nurses are needed in Ontario, he continued, "and I can't see much ahead of us for the next four or five years in taking up the slack.

"Our system of certified nursing assistants has graduated 100 girls and more than 100 more are training in Toronto, Hamilton and Kingston hospitals. Frankly, we were a little disappointed at the lack of co-operation we got from hospital superintendents in finding girls for these courses, but the situation has improved."

R. J. Weatherill of St. Catharines, reported at a round table meeting that the financial picture for hospitals was "dark".

Quoting statistics covering hospital cost from 1943 to 1946, he pointed out that in ten months of 1947 costs had risen almost as high as they had over the four years he cited.

He said more attention should be paid to hospital cost, pointing out a survey had shown, some hospitals were losing 17 cents a day on private patients, while eight others were out 18 cents a day on semi-private and public patients.

The Health Department, Mr. Kelley said, 'is experimenting with Vitamin E and trying to find out whether it will help in checking the number of deaths from heart diseases."

"We also have some ideas about treatment of arthritis, which we are doing something about," he added.

Superintendent E. J. Moffatt of the Ottawa Civic Hospital appealed to the provincial government to establish some kind of arbitration medium to decide quickly whether a patient was able to pay his own account after receiving hospital treatment.

He also said he had asked the Provincial Health Department to increase its statutory daily rate to help meet rising costs. Health Minister Kelley had replied the matter was to be discussed by cabinet.

"Our expenses would be considerably decreased if so much clerical work didn't have to be undertaken to claim money from the government and the municipalities for indigent patients."

Pigeon Protector Foils Pot Pie Man

Vancouver, Nov. 5 (CP)—A silent feud between a 76-year-old bird-lover, and a young athletic "business man" is being carried on in the heart of downtown Vancouver.

David McKenzie, who for the last six or seven years has stood guard over the pigeons in Victory Square, has never spoke to his arch-enemy, but believes his presence has saved many a bird from a pot pie.

The young man, he says, has made friends with the birds, only to capture them and sell them to restaurants.

"Several times when I have been watching him, I have seen him tempt a bird to him, then tie its legs together and slip it into his pocket," McKenzie said.

"Now, whenever he goes to the square I stand beside him. The birds like me. Perhaps they know what I am doing."

SAYS FORTY NEW DWELLINGS SITTING EMPTY FOUR MONTHS

Toronto, Nov. 4 —(CP)— Forty new dwellings in a North York township subdivision have been sitting empty for the last four months, Reeve George H. Mitchell told the township council last night. "I have an idea what's happened," he said "They were built on a percentage basis and the price has undoubtedly finished up so high that the Federal Government doesn't know what to do about placing them on the market."

Trenton and Madoc Show Too Much Power in Beating Stirling and Tweed at Arena

More Than 600 Fans Witness Two Exciting Games in District Loop

Nearly six hundred fans saw two fast games of hockey in the Memorial Arena last night, when Stirling after spotting Trenton Hockey Club five goals in the first two periods rallied strongly in the third heat to ram home four markers to the oppositions one to be edged out by a 6-4 score. In the second game of the double-header Tweed bowed before the powerful Madoc team by a 6-3 count after making a spirited third-period bid for victory which fell short.

TRENTON 6, STIRLING 4

Paced by the outstanding effort of Trumble, fast tricky centre player, the Stirling team nearly turned defeat into victory in the third period after being down five goals in the first two heats. Trumble, aided and abetted by wingmate Lavender flashed into speedy action and rammed home four goals, the first two coming in 25 seconds of each other and the second pair just thirty-three seconds apart. Lavender was credited with four assists with Desjardins, Stapley and Armstrong getting in on the others.

Trenton's speedy first two periods attack was led by Burtt, Lamorre, Watson and Johnson with the first two being outstanding. The Trenton squad showed a powerful passing attack and were effective inside the opposite blueline. Stirling relied too much on ganging efforts with the result that the speedy Trenton forwards broke away continuously on goalward rushes.

Johnson Opens Scoring

Johnson opened the scoring in the first period when he batted in a puck from the blue line and Barr made it two on a breakaway rush.

Trenton added three more in the second period on goals from Lamorre and Burtt the latter scoring the last two on neat efforts.

Stirling flashed into life in the third period with the speedy elusive Trumble leading the attack. The tricky centre raced down the midlanes flanked by Lavender and Armstrong at the ten minute mark and made no mistake. Twenty-five seconds later he again flashed the light.

Johnson broke away while Stirling was ganging his goal and put his team four goals up on a hard drive to the corner. But Trumble again raced up the ice and within a few seconds pushed the rubber home to make the score 6-4.

MADOC 6, TWEED 3

Led by Leo Goyer and Timmy Williams, star forwards of the Belleville Army and Navy Intermediate squad, Madoc flashed too much power for the Tweed squad inasmuch as it was bolstered somewhat with Stew Stewart of the Belleville "A's", and accounting for four goals among them, paced the way to a 6-3 victory over their northern rivals. Ken McNaught, Belleville "A's" signed by Tweed did not play.

Williams and Goyer playing on the Madoc defence turned in fine efforts going both ways the latter scoring the first goal of the night at the 17-minute mark in the first period. Goyer's hard drive found the twine with but a second to go in the same period to put the Madocers two up.

Tweed battled hard in the second period in an effort to cut down the lead and finally made the count 2-1 when Stew Stewart dented the mesh from a pass by Bruce Gehan. Rashotte drew a penalty and the Madoc crew forging to the attack made it three-one when Goodchild, assisted by Williams and Goyer sank the rubber from close in.

Hit Jackpot

Rivers hit the jackpot for Tweed early in the third to give their supporters the chance to cheer, scoring alone at the two-minute mark, but three minutes later on a combined drive Williams took Goyer's pass to make the count 4-2.

Keller who suffered a gashed eye, and who played a fine game put the Madoc crew three up midway through the period but Alexander got that one back on a ganging attack minutes later. Timmy Williams drew a penalty but Tweed could not capitalize on the advantage and Goyer put the game on ice in the last minutes with a sharp drive to the corner.

Home and Career Not Incompatible

Montreal, (CP) — Frieda S. Miller, director of the women's bureau of the United States labor department, believes that home and career are not incompatible. In an interview here Miss Miller expressed it this way:

"Women are human, and they cannot have a good home situation unless they are free to choose whether they will do unpaid work in their own homes or hold down an outside job for which they are fitted by training and temperament. It is better for the family and the community if the wife is allowed to express herself."

Re: Bay of Quinte Golf Trophy

Dear Sir,—

As you may have read in the report of the City Council meeting last week the account for the trophy competed for at the Field Day of the Bay of Quinte Country Club in September, and known as the "City of Belleville Trophy," was presented to the City Council for payment. Members of the Council refused to sanction payment of the account which was for $40.

I feel that a further explanation should be added to the reference made in the Council news. During the summer recess of Council I was approached by officials of the Bay of Quinte Country Club in my capacity as Chairman of Publicity for the City and asked if the Council would donate a trophy for the major competition of the Field Day. I was informed that golfers would be present from all over Eastern Ontario and that presentation of a suitable trophy would be an excellent method of promoting good will between sportsmen of the City and District and the City Council. Feeling that this would be an excellent opportunity of giving deserved support and at the same time giving the City of Belleville a chance to obtain wide publicity for such a sporting gesture I authorized, with the sanction of the Mayor the purchase of a beautiful trophy which was certainly a credit to the donor.

The trophy was competed for at one of the most successful Field Days ever held here and was won by a member of the Cataraqui Golf Club of Kingston. Golfers were present not only from Eastern Ontario but also from many points in Western Ontario and from the United States.

After presentation on behalf of the City of Belleville and after many favorable comments by the way in your column as to the sporting attitude of the council, the account for the trophy was duly presented with the result mentioned above that the City of Belleville would not pay for the trophy. I readily agreed to pay for the trophy personally which I would glady have done in the first place, but I was requested to make the donation as Chairman of Publicity for the city, and not in my personal capacity.

In any event, the City of Belleville trophy will be withdrawn from competition and the winner advised as to the reason. I propose to offer to the Bay of Quinte Country Club the "Edward E. Follwell" trophy which I hope the Club will accept. Incidentally I am not a member of this Club.

In all fairness to all members of the Council I would advise the result of the recorded vote in regard to the account. For payment: Aldermen Butler, Duyfy, Follwell, Hyde, Harvey and Tice.

Against payment: Alderman Allin, Clarke, Chamberlain, Lattimer, Lazenby and Wilbur.

Yours very truly,
Edward E. Follwell

Hunters Find Pheasants Scarce

Point Traverse, Nov. 5 — Many hunters participated in the two-day pheasant hunt held in the South Marysburgh game preserve on Friday and Saturday, according to licence issuer, Clerk Hiram Ellis.

Several hunters returning home through this vicinity reported cock birds very scarce in the township. One sportsman said that there were more hunters than pheasants.

Lake trout will soon be leaving deep water for shoals to spawn. Annually at this time of the season they spawn in shallow places, soon returning to deeper water.

According to commercial fishermen the whitefish spawning season will soon be at hand.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A bridge player may tell his partner a little white lie that ends in a bloody shame. Then again, he may spread black falsehoods all over the place and come back with a crop of sweet results.

During a hectic tournament came this deal:

NORTH
♠ Q 10 3
♥ J 10 9 4 3
♦ 10 5 3

WEST
♠ A K J 7 6 3 2
♦ A 9 6

♥ K Q 8 6
♦ K 8 7 4 2
♣ J 7 2

SOUTH
♥ A 2
♦ Q J
♣ A K Q 10 8 6 3

By ignoring routine bids for the moment, south landed in one of those precarious three no-trump contracts. Not only was it in a no-trump game bid. It was doubled and redoubled.

We like to think that crime does not pay. In the same breath we like to say that neither does wrong bidding. But deserving or not, this declarer took the tricks he needed.

Opponents could have defeated his contract. It might have taken a little guessing on their part. Then they could have taken a heart, two top diamonds, two top spades. All before he got nine tricks.

They might have done this with a heart lead at the start. They have ace and king of diamonds between them. If they discovered this soon enough, it would have been curtains for the bid.

An opening heart lead can be taken by south. Seven club tricks could go with it. But opponents could get in again before he had a ninth trick. The damage could then be done.

But west, the opening leader, was unaware of what was held by his east partner. He started off with a lead of his spade king. Seeing dummy, he followed this with spade ace and a small spade.

This forced dummy spade queen and set up the remaining diggers in west. With diamond ace as a future entry, west assumed this to be his best policy. But it did not work out as he had hoped.

Declarer took spade queen, heart ace, and seven clubs for his needed nine tricks. But what I started to tell you was how they got to three no-trump redoubled. Where was I?

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 5 (AP)—Each year at academy award time there is a battle royal among female contenders for the acting oscar, while the actors race is a sluggish affair. Want to know a reason why? It's because male tears have virtually disappeared from Hollywood films.

It's a truism that the way to attract award consideration is to have a nice weepy role. Most of the gals in academy races have portrayed tear-filled heroines, whereas their leading men are denied that sure-fire prop—brimming eyes.

These thoughts were evoked by watching Jane Wyman in a crying scene for "Johnny Belinda." Her co-star, Lew Ayres, further observed: "Movie acting is a woman's business."

"I couldnt do it," Lew observed. And for two reasons: He can't turn it on and off the way the girls do; the American public doesn't want to see a man weep on the screen.

"European and Latin films often portray men in emotional scenes which require tears," he said, "but we are too stoical to permit this. We follow the British in that respect. They rarely show a man in tears on the screen."

In the early days of movies male stars wept all over the place. Those films appear corny now. So the gals have taken over the heavy stuff.

Hollywood Smells

This is not intended as a statement of fact, but an idea we might investigate. For some time we have been observing Hollywood sights and sounds, now we'll give the sniffer a workout. Here are some you encounter in these parts...the stifling odor of a man-made fog—smoke and dry ice fumes...The mutiness of a newly-made plaster-of-paris castle...The fragrance of Lana Turner's perfume as she drifts by.

Hot coffee in the corner of a big stage...The aroma of well-chewed, but unlit cigars in Red Skelton's dressing room...The savor of tea in Greer Garson's dressing room at four...The peview of a picture that turned out bad.

Brief Review

"The Exile" (U-I) offers Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in that fine film commodity which has father popularized, the swashbuckling drama. This time young Doug portrays Charles II of England, harried and hounded by roundhead assassins during his Dutch exile. The film starts slowly but finishes fast. The star is also the writer and producer and he serves handsomely in all three categories.

CHAPTER 22

The Rattlesnake say the pit into which he was about to fall. A cold sweat broke out on him. Death grinned from Fernando's face. He couldn't tell this scowling man that he had confessed everything. That he had signed a paper implicating all his fellows. Fernando would kill him like a rat. But he was himself again, now. The tequila had done its swift work—and the Rattlesnake had a brain of a sort. Like the thing he was named for. A brain now working like lightning to save itself.

There were only two ways open to him. Tell Don Fernando what he had done—and die on the instant. Or, say that he had refused to speak beneath the torture. Then he would live—at least for a while; might be able to get away, far, far away from Don Fernando and the others. Also, if he denied the confession, he might be able to kill these men, or induce Don Fernando to kill them, and recover the incriminating confession.

"They nearly killed me, Don Fernando," he said. "But I told them-nothing. Am I called the Rattlesnake for nothing?"

Don Fernando stared at him from eyes like knife blades, but the tequila in the Rattlesnake made him bold, and he was able to return the stare.

"Fortunately for Rodrigo Guiterrez," said Don Fernando.

"And now Don Fernando," the Rattlesnake suggested, "give me one of your guns—or your knife—and leave me alone with these two men."

"No, fool," Don Fernando snapped at him. The pleasant picture of two dead men on the floor, and himself securing and destroying the incriminating confession was washed from the Rattlesnake's mind. Death still was close! Don Fernando would search these fellows, would find—The Rattlesnake's heart almost choked him.

"Do you know who these men are?" demanded Don Fernando.

"One I know," said the Rattlesnake. "The American. The other—no."

"Fool," snarled Don Fernando. "The other is Jose Cerdugo—brother of Black Sam. Now get busy. Tie them up, like you yourself was tied. There is more rope outside the door."

The Rattlesnake got the rope. Under cover of Don Fernando's pistol he tied the hands of the two men behind them. Then their ankles. And then ran the ropes from wrists, between legs, to a noose about the neck. The strangling rope, to prevent struggling. And then he tripped them up and flung them upon the floor. But as he fixed the strangling rope to Jose's body, Jose whispered to him beneath the handkerchief that concealed half his face.

"Your freedom for ours," was what Jose whispered.

For Jose had perceived, as had also Shane, the dilemma that the Rattlesnake was in. If Don Fernando found the confession, the Rattlesnake would strike no more.

But Shane and Jose also saw quite clearly that although death was near them now, it would strike not the Rattlesnake alone, if Don Fernando found the confession, but all three of them, as fast as Fernando could pull trigger.

Their only hope of life lay now in the man whom they had tortured. But his own life was guarantee of his silence, perhaps his aid.

Don Fernando had come in a car, which he had left at some little distance.

Now he went to get it, and when he returned, he and the Rattlesnake threw the two bound men into the back seat, and Don Fernando drove rapidly southward. For half an hour perhaps although the road was bad and the car could not go swiftly.

At the end of this time he turned abruptly off the road, on a small mesa, and drove toward a range of rocky hills. At last the car stopped before a huge flat rock, standing upright.

"Come Rodrigo," commanded Don Fernando, getting from the car. And he led the Mexican to the mouth of a large cave, concealed by the huge rock. "Now listen. I am going to leave these men with you. I do not care what happens to them. Understand? I suppose you will kill them. That is all right. But I have no more time to waste. I must be back at Rancho La Espanola soon. So I leave them to you. I think you will not let them—escape."

"No!" the Rattlesnake assured him. His heart thumped. He was saved. "But give me one of the pistols, Don Fernando, and you can go about your affairs without worry." He grew impertinent with relief. "There is a marriage arranged, I believe."

Don Fernando's fist caught him on the point of the jaw. Knocked him to the dust.

"Get up, fool," snarled Don Fernando. The Rattlesnake scrambled to his feet, rubbing his jaw. "Now help me throw these men in here. And here is a bottle tequila and a canteen of water for you."

Between them they hauled Shane and Jose into the cave, threw them carelessly upon the ground. Then Don Fernando handed the Rattlesnake a pistol. Turned to look at the prostrate men.

"You should have remained in Baltimore, Mr. O'Hara," he said. "However—you may find Heaven a pleasant place."

He climbed into his car. Turned it. Roared away. He was quite tranquil. The Rattlesnake would make a quick finish of his two enemies. He had to.

The Rattlesnake gripped the butt of the automatic pistol, stood at the mouth of the cave, watched the car recede from sight.

Then he heaved a great sigh and entered the cave.

"At Soledad and its adjoining ranches—La Paloma and La Espanola—there was much wonderment and talk and enquiring glances.

Something had been happening—many things—and nobody understood what they were. Nor could they make guesses which held promise of fulfillment.

Shane O'Hara and Jose Verdugo had departed quite suddenly; all knew that within a few hours. Those at Rancho Soledad knew, further, that they had started for the border. Teddy had revealed that.

The men at Don Fernando's rancho, La Espanola, knew that their master had returned from a horseback ride—where he had been they knew not—had had a hurried talk with the foreman concerning matters of which the foreman would not speak—and had then gotten into his car and driven swiftly off in the direction of San Diego.

At La Paloma, Ramon Estancia, hurriedly raised to charge des affaires, scratched his head and wondered if the police were after Mr. O'Hara and Jose. Pablo Martinez, chancing to come up from one of the farther fields shortly after the departure of Shane and Jose, Ramon asked him.

Pablo looked startled, stared at Ramon.

"You—you say that Mr. O'Hara and Jose drove away—hurriedly—in a car?"

"Yes," Ramon told him. "A car that Jose had brought from San Feliz. A big car. A touring car."

"Damnation!" exclaimed Pablo, somewhat surprisingly to Ramon.

"Well, what of it?" inquired that one. "Why not? If the Senor Shane wants to take a drive, is that your business? Or mine?" What affairs was it. Ramon wondered, of this fellow. He had not been left in charge of the ranch. Why should he seem worried?

Without giving any explanations, Pablo walked away. Kept on walking. Toward the gateway. Through the gateway. Down the road. Toward Soledad.

"Hey!" shouted Ramon. What business had this workman to walk away from the place without his consent.

Pablo, still going, merely waved an airy hand, said, "I'll return—perhaps."

Arriving at Soledad, he found Don Timoteo seated in the shade of the veranda, smoking his pipe. He went up to him, looked around.

"Nobody here," said Don Timoteo. "What's the matter, Chris?"

"Shane's gone," said Pablo Martinez—or Christopher Drake, deputy sheriff."

SCHOOL PICKETED BY PARENTS

Newport, Pa., Nov. 4 —(AP)— Walter Byers, 52-year-old school teacher whose schoolhouse was picketed by a group of sign-carrying parents, was released on bail yesterday until Nov. 17 on charges of assault and battery on a six-year-old pupil. The charges were pressed by John Jenkins, who alleged his son was brought home in a semi-conscious condition and that other pupils said Byers had whipped him for failing to recite lessons correctly.

Farm Problems To Be Discussed At Conference

Montreal, Nov. 5 (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Tuesday a Dominion-Provincial conference to discuss Canada's farm problems and the agricultural program for next year has been called for Dec. 2 and 3.

Mr. Gardiner, stopping briefly in Montreal en route to Halifax said notices of the meeting have gone to the provinces and that in addition to Dominion and Provincial agricultural officials, representatives of leading farm organizations and the farm press have been invited.

Mr. Gardiner, speaking of domestic conditions, said removal of subsidies and price ceilings from feed grains had to come and although their increased costs to farmers would probably result in higher prices to the consumer for certain dairy and other farm products, "eventually it will will all level off." He mentioned the recent decline in butter prices as an instance.

Regarding food contracts with Britain, he said quotas had been almost met or more than met, especially in regard to wheat, eggs, poultry and small fruits and vegetables.

While Canada was likely to fall short of supplying the 125,000,000-pound cheese contract, there has never been hope it could be filled completely.

"By setting a high figure, we thought we would do better than if a lower figure had been aimed at," he said.

The 120,000,000-pound beef contract also would be down, probably only half met, partly because of the recent packinghouse workers' strike. The 263,000,000 - pound bacon contract would be met or very nearly so, and would have been considerably exceeded if the strike had not occurred.

RETURN TRUE BILLS

Cobourg, Ont., Nov. 4 (CP)—A grand jury today returned true bills against three district men facing trial at assizes here.

James Angus of Cobourg is charged with attempted murder, attempting to do grievous bodily harm by wounding and with wounding Jack Jackson.

Vernon Ellison of Bowmanville is accused of attempted murder and an attempt to do grievous bodily harm to Lindsay Scott.

Keith Menzies of Trenton is charged with manslaughter and drunken driving in connection with the death of Mrs. D. Dunkley.

Commissioner Issues Warning To Stock Brokers

Toronto, Nov. 5 (CP) — C. P. McTague, chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission, warned last night that the Toronto Stock Exchange "must make up its mind as to whether it intends to operate as a private club or a public institution and be prepared to take the consequences for whichever decision it makes."

He told the staff of the Association of the exchange in a prepared address that "it is perhaps fitting that I put before you a definite problem that is crying for effective and responsible solution right now."

"...somehow or other mining issues in the very immature stage as so many are on a dignified stock exchange lend themselves to unscrupulous manipulation. During my comparatively short term... we have had two rather scandalous manipulations—Beaulieu and Eldona. The latter is still under investigation so I shall not enlarge beyond saying that the public was badly treated in both...

"Selling short is not an evil itself. It may be a very healthy operation tending to keep stocks from overvaluation and arresting market rigging. But when it is permitted to be done in secret without declaration of what it is it can become an instrument of a most unscrupulous method of market raiding. It should not be permitted unless it is declared and for what it really is.

"If that is a proposition admittedly valid in the public interest, then it must be taken care of effectively or else the stock exchange must become in reality what it is in theory, a public institution."

ASSAULT FINE

Toronto, Nov. 5 (CP) — The question of who is the skipper of the schooner Marjorie B bobbed up in court yesterday as Magistrate J. L. Prentice heard details of an alleged assault aboard the vessel interrupted in her projected run to the West Indies.

The ship is tied up in Toronto harbor pending settlement of another suit.

In yesterday's case, Isser Platus of Toronto was fined $10 or 10 days on a charge of assault laid by William McCarthy of Toronto who testified he had invested $500 in the schooner and arranged with Platus to help sail her to Miami and the West Indies.

"On Oct. 29 I found he was trying to sell her as sole owner and I filed claim for part ownership," McCarthy testified. "As soon as he found out, he came down the companionway looking very angry and told me to get off the ship or he'd throw me into the bay. Then he struck me across the arm and tore my shirt."

He claimed that since the government had registered his part-ownership in the vessel she was partly his property and he could not be thrown off her.

"It wasn't a question of skippers and crews — we were all to work equally," said McCarrhy.

But Platus testified that it was arranged that I would be the skipper. The trouble was that McCarthy wouldn't do his work as a member of the crew. He left dishes in the sink."

DIPLOMAT TAKES LIFE

John G. Winant, 58, former U. S. ambassador to St. James' Court, who committed suicide with a pistol while alone in his bedroom at Concord, N.H. Three times governor of New Hampshire and first head of the U. S. Social Security Board, Winant had just completed his war memoirs. He was reported to be suffering "mental and physical fatigue."

Hidden Cache Being Sought By Two Sons

Canmore, Alta., Nov. 5 (CP)—They're digging for buried treasure in this coal town 60 miles west of Calgary — and this time the search isn't for coal.

The hidden cache, believed to contain upwards of $1,500, represents the savings of Alexander Begey, 58, a miner who died last Tuesday after coming off shift at the Canmore mine.

The story of the treasure goes back some years when Mr. Begey lost faith in banks after losing out in a joint account and decided to be his own banker.

He hid his savings in the chicken coop and all went well until two years ago when his eldest son, George, then 16, discovered the concealed wealth — $700 folded in an eye glasses case. George reported the find to his father who immediately chose a more secure hiding place which to this day has defied discovery.

Interviewed by a newspaper reporter today George, a trucker's helper, told of his unsuccessful attempts to locate the hidden nest egg.

"I feel certain that dad buried the money" he said. "He would'nt have hidden it in the house or the outbuildings for fear of losing it through fire."

George and his brother Alexander made a few backyard forays with a spade but so far without result but intend to keep on trying.

George said that the $1,500 estimate of the amount hidden was based upon information received from another miner who was a close friend of his father's.

PAGING ALL WIVES

Victoria — (CP) — Any man who does his own cooking, housework, canning and gardening is interesting, but when he happens to be 90 years old, he becomes downright newsworthy. Capt. Eber Lee, who recently celebrated his 90th birthday, has a neat cottage and shelves full of preserved fruits and vegetables to prove it.

CANADIAN COW TOPS

Woodstock, Ont. — (CP) — Alice Calamity Bonheur, a Holstein cow formerly owned by J. D. Innes of Woodstock, and bred by Arnold Hogg of Thamesford, Ont., has been crowned grand champion at the national Holstein show at Bogota, capital of the South American republic of Colombia.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

EVERY PERSON who suffers can have a special introductory bottle of SYNTONA to try for ONLY 25 CENTS.

Simply read the offer below. Do this in your own interest.

This new and scientific medicine, known as SYNTONA, has helped so many people whom the readers of this page know personally. Therefore, we offer the first trial bottle at 25 cents, because we believe the people who are benefited will keep on using it. The offer is good for Friday and Saturday of this week only.

WHAT IT IS!

This is no salts or pill, nor is it a powder, capsule or tablet.

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within ten minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves headaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

NOW, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your suffering in a day or a week—remains to be seen. But in the light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25 cents, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good Friday and Saturday ONLY, so read the rest of this advertisement and act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

WHAT IT WILL DO!

SYNTONA will cleanse your bowels (gradually—not drastic or severe), and tone them into daily action.

It will bring out awful gases and impurities (frequently from the first dose) which may have been inside of you a long time, causing you many days of misery with headaches, dizzy spells, skin eruptions and lazy, drowsy, tired feeling.

SYNTONA will relieve acid conditions and make the digestive organs sweet and clean, and give grand relief from acid indigestion, bloating, sour stomach, shortness of breath and dyspepsia.

IT WILL improve your appetite and promote proper assimilation of food for ENERGY and RESISTANCE.

SYNTONA will act as a diuretic to sluggish kidneys and flush out quantities of impurities that may have become dammed up inside, causing BACKACHE, SHARP PAINS and RISING AT NIGHT.

Science brings us methods of preparation and preservation which enable us to bring this famous medicine within reach of all sufferers. Permits hundreds to get away from the habitual use of nerve-deadening pills and harsh drugs.

It will make your liver more active, thus relieving spells of biliousness and sick headache.

Relieves those with rheumatic and neuritic pains, by ridding the system of excess acidity and irritating waste matter.

IT WILL clean up skin eruptions caused by the impurities in the organs, will overcome the sallowness or "muddiness" that is due to sluggish liver.

SYNTONA will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active, build you up in general and make you FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN or WOMAN, younger than you may have felt in YEARS.

Coupon good only at the store listed below. If desired by mail, send 25 cents, stamps or coin. Within 20 miles.

Witness Admits Woman Spent Night in Cabin

Cobourg, Nov. 5 — (CP) — James Angus of Cobourg went on trial in the Supreme Court Fall Assizes yesterday for attempted murder of Jack Jackson of nearby Baltimore. The sessions started after the Grand Jury returned true bills against Angus, against Vernon Ellison of Bowmanville for attempted murder and Keith Menzies of Trenton for manslaughter in a motor fatality.

In the trial of Angus, Milton Lonsberry, Port Hope taxi driver who was a Crown witness, said that he drove Angus to Jackson's home on the night of April 27. Lonsberry said Angus "had a knife with him and said he was 'going to slit a fellow's throat with it.'" He saw Angus and Jackson later come out of the house, both with blood on them.

Jackson testified that he had called for accused's wife on the morning of April 27 and they went up to his house. During the evening he was outside the house, when he heard voices raised inside, and he went in to find Angus grappling with Mrs. Angus.

"He turned around towards me and said 'There's the guy,' and I felt a stabbing pain in my stomach," said Jackson. "I put him out. I saw that I was badly wounded and Mrs. Angus and I drove into Cobourg to the doctor." Jackson admitted that on occasions Mrs. Angus had spent the night in his cabin.

PROTESTS APPOINTMENT

Kitchener, Nov. 5 (CP) —Carl Stabler of Kitchener Monday night was appointed by Waterloo town council as Waterloo tax collector and assessment commissioner at a yearly salary of $3,000.

Alderman George Charlton earlier protested the appointment on the grounds that Stabler was not a war veteran. "I think everyone who supports this appointment should feel ashamed of himself ... the move is a slap in the face of every war veteran in Canada."

Alderman Charlton said he knew of veterans who had sought the position but were turned down.

IF IT'S BLADDER TROUBLE

Here is a medicine made specially for it!

What are you doing about your bladder trouble? If you are hoping that the burning, scalding and irritation will correct themselves naturally, you are taking serious risks with your health. Those painful symptoms may mean that impurities are in the bladder. Look to your kidneys—they may be the source of your suffering. These all-important organs have the vital task of helping to rid the system of waste products. If they become sluggish the pain-causing impurities accumulate and give rise to discomfort and distress. There is a way of helping to stimulate those kidneys to function naturally with a medicine made for the very purpose. For over half a century De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills have been relieving bladder troubles by helping to cleanse and tone up the kidneys. Our files of world-wide testimony could convince you that this remedy can be relied upon for kidney and bladder troubles. De Witt's Pills are sold at drug stores everywhere.

London Letter:

Hoary Ceremonies Mark Annual Observation of Historical Events

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 5 — (CP) — In 1397 Lady Constance Knollys built a 15-foot passage; in 1471 King Henry VI died at his prayers — almost certainly by violence. Historian John Stow died more peacefully with a quill pen in his hand in 1605; later in the same century King Charles II founded the Royal Hospital, Chelsea.

These are only four of the scores of big and little events in London's crowded history that are recalled annually in the repetition of hoary ceremonies.

Lady Knollys, wife of a close friend of the Black Prince grew tired of crossing ruttled cobblestones between two houses in which she and her husband lived in a London byway now known as Seething Lane. She ordered an elevated passageway built to join them.

The city's government decided the act violated the right-of-way of pedestrians and ordered Sir Robert Knollys to recompense the corporation for his wife's "overbold haut-pas" by paying annual quit-rent of "one red rose freshplucked from his garden."

Each festival day of St. John the Baptist, a lineal descendant of Sir Robert still presents to the Lord Mayor of London a fresh red rose.

Henry VI, like many a well-born Englishman since, was an Eton boy. He met his death in the Tower of London, once the residence of kings, in what now is Wakefield Tower where the Crown jewels are displayed.

Each year, on the marble slab that marks the place he died, is placed a bunch of white lillies, similar to those which appear on the coat of arms of Eton College.

In the Church of St. Andrew Undershaft in Leadenhall Street stands a marble-and-alabaster status of John Stow, noted Elizabethan historian who died, legend runs, clasping the pen with which he wrote the closing pages of his "Survey of London."

"He wrote excellently and deserved well both of his own and subsequent ages," says the Latin inscription beneath the figure of the writer at his desk. In recognition of this sentiment, each year the Lord Mayor places a new quill pen in the right hand of the statue.

Charles II, as lovers of historical anecdotage will recall, took shelter from the roundheads after the Battle of Worcester in the trunk of a hollow oak. That's why the Chelsea pensioners celebrate the monarch's birthday as "Oak Apple Day," wearing sprigs of oak-leaf in their cocked hats.

At the Royal Hospital some 300 veterans — the oldest is 90; three served as long ago as the Zulu War of 1877-9 — live fading away in a manner proper to old soldiers. Their bright-scarlet, full-skirted uniforms are one of the colorful features of a London drabber than the one over which the Stuarts reigned.

Campbell Declines Unofficial 'Election'

New York, Nov. 5 — (CP)—Sir Gerald Campbell, former United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada, has modestly declined an unofficial "election."

Newly arrived to start a United States tour of lectures on "You Americans," Sir Gerald found his photograph in a New York newspaper erroneously captioned "Senator from New Jersey."

Commented Sir Gerald:

"I am afraid I cannot accept the honor this trip. Perhaps I can be elected later, if Great Britain becomes the 50th state."

Sir Gerald did not amplify his quip, made during an interview, to the "50th state" of the United States, which has 48 states. It was suggested later that he either had made a slip of the tongue or that he was under the impression that Hawaii, expected to become the 49th state within a year or two, already had been taken into the union. Hawaii now is a Territory.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

Montreal — (CP) — Window washing is a big item in this city's budget. Price of the lowest bidder for the washing contract, to run to April 30, 1950, was $8,550.

Liberals to Have Candidate in Every Riding

Hamilton, Nov. 5. (CP)—Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal Party leader, in a speech to a party rally last night attacked the Drew government for failure to implement the 22-point platform on which it won the 1945 provincial election and said that the Liberals would have a candidate in every riding in the province in the next election.

Of the Progressive Conservative government's platform, Mr. Oliver said that only about 2.2 per cent of the program was carried out. The promise to clear slums and build houses was one of the point which the Drew government made no effort to carry out, he charged, "and yet Premier Drew had the colossal nerve to state in the legislature that the Federal government had failed in its housing program."

The Progressive Conservatives also promised that the people of Ontario would get fuel, bread and milk at reasonable prices. "These three commodities have never been so high in price and the Tories have never raised a finger in that regard."

The Liberal leader further charged that "a measure of responsibility for the impending power shortage rests on the present "Ontario Government".

MOLOTOV SAYS A-BOMB CEASES TO BE SECRET

Charges Britain, U.S. With Blocking Ban on Weapon

Foreign Minister Speaks On Bolshevik Anniversary

Moscow, Nov. 6 —(CP)— Foreign Minister Molotov said today that the Soviet Union would defend the interests of peace of the whole world "till the end" but also said that "it is well known that the United States is basing its policy on the sole possession of the secret of the atom bomb although this secret may be considered non-existent."

The Associated Press, in a dispatch from London quoting Molotov as broadcast by Moscow radio, used the phrase "has long ceased to exist" in reporting the Russian Foreign Minister's reference to the secret of the atomic bomb.

(The Associated Press quoted Molotov as saying:

("It is interesting that in the expansionist circles of the United States a new, peculiar sort of illusion has been formed about their internal strength—a belief in the secret of the atom bomb, although this secret has long ceased to exist."

("'Evidently the Imperialists need this faith in the atom bomb, which as is known, is not a means of defence but a weapon of aggression. Many are indignant that the U.S.A. and Great Britain hamper the United Nations from adopting a final decision on the prohibition of atomic weapons.'")

(The Associated Press also quoted Molotov as saying the United States was establishing new naval and air bases close to Russia "as a preparation for aggression." There was no elaboration.)

The Foreign Minister also declared:

"The Soviet Union, Britain, the United States successfully co-operated during the war in the common fight. As soon as the war was over the Soviet Union went over to peaceful work The economic systems of the United States and the U.S.S.R. are different. Yet they co-operated during the war. Why cannot they co-operate after the war?"

Molotov spoke on the eve of the 30th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Reviewing the achievements of the last 30 years, Molotov said:

"Not only in the countries friendly to us but elsewhere there are millions of people devoted to the Soviet Union.

"Everywhere where capitalism rules it oppresses the working people, ensalves the working people of the colonies and the dependent states. Peoples in whom knowledge has brought awakening seen in the successes of the Soviet Union the approach of their own liberties from the yoke of enslavement."

Action Protested

Molotov declared that during the year British scientists twice had protested against the action of the United States in keeping the atom bomb "secret".

"Twice," he said, "they have published statements to this effect expressing dissatisfaction that Britain can only say 'yes' to the United States in this business."

The Foreign Minister declared that Russia now "is just beginning" to reach her power and was opening a new phase of her history since the Revolution.

The Soviet Union had taken a special place at the head of the struggle for peace.

"The fact that the Soviet Union is planning several five-year plans ahead is sufficient to show how interested we are in a lasting and permanent peace. . .

"It is clear that the creation of new naval and military bases by the imperialistic nations is not being undertaken for aims of defence but of aggression. . .

"The atom bomb is a weapon of attack and Britain and the United States are hindering U.N. efforts to get a final solution of the atom question.

"British scientists have twice this year protested against this delay.

"At present the internal scene is divided into two groups. At

RCAF CREW STARTS ON EVACUATION OF MISSIONARY

Canon Turner, Family, Army Party to Come Out

Winnipeg. Nov. 6 — (CP) — Racing against the Arctic night, a R.C.A.F. Dakota — the Snowbird — sped today toward the top of the world where a seriously-wounded missionary, his family and a Canadian Army party of four tending him await evacuation.

FO. Bob Race, the Snowbird's captain, said he planned to stop overnight at Churchill, Man., jump tomorrow to Coral Harbor, Southampton Island, and land Saturday at Moffet Inlet, 1,700 miles north of Winnipeg.

At Moffet — 400 miles inside the Arctic Circle, where after Nov. 17 the sun does not rise above the horizon until Spring— are Canon John M. Turner, Church of England missionary suffering from an accidental bullet wound in the head, Mrs. Turner, their two children, and the four paratroopers who jumped to Canon Turner's aid when his plight became known late in September.

At Moffet, too, FO. Race hopes to find a frozen lake upon which he can land just long enough to bring his passengers aboard — the slowly-convalescing missionary in a wheeled stretcher brought along in the Dakota. If all goes well, he might return to Winnipeg Monday. Here, Canon Turner will be rushed to hospital.

Also aboard the plane are blood plasma, an oxygen tank, chemically-heated blankets for the entire party, morphine, a special oxygen tank and mask and what the army described as "a complete set of safety equipment for each man — sleeping bags, winter clothing, rations and so on — in case anything goes wrong."

The lake has been marked with colored panel bolts by Capt. Guy D'Artois, commander of the paratroopers who have been at Moffet since Oct. 4 waiting for ice on the lakes to become thick for a plane to land.

ANGLICAN SYNOD TRIMS POWERS OF EXECUTIVE

Body Has No Right to Pass or Amend Canons and Statutes

Brantford Ont., Nov. 6 (CP)— By an overwhelming vote the Ontario Provincial Synod of the Anglican Church last night turned down a proposed amendment to the synod constitution which would have given the executive council the right to pass or amend canons and ecclesiastical statutes.

Moving the amendment, Judge G.W. Morley, chancellor of Huron diocese, said it was supported by a committee of chancellors of the province on the grounds of the gaps in periodical meetings of the synod. The present meeting is the first Ontario synod in 12 years.

"Some urgent questions might develop in absence of the synod and with no one to deal with them they may go by the board, as they have done in the last 12 years," said Judge Morley. "If the canons are of benefit to the church they should be passed by the council."

Canon R. D. Mess of Chatham declared the motion was "a precedent for all other synod and church bodies, and no one can tell where it will end. If we allow councils and sub-councils to pass canons, they will wind up by controlling the body politic all together."

Another opponent, Dean C. C. Robinson of Noranda, saw the possibility of the synod "passing out of existence altogether in a few years" if the amendment was approved. He called it undemocratic.

Four Nazi Generals Given Long Terms

Moscow, Nov. 6 (Reuters) — All 22 defendants of the Bobruisk Byelo-Russia, war criminals trial, including four Nazi generals, were sentenced to 25 years' penal servitude in a labor camp for atrocities committed during the German occupation of Byelo-Russia from 1941-1944, Tass News Agency reported today.

The generals were Lt.-Gen. Ochser, Lt.-Gen. Traut, Maj-Gen. Konradi and Maj.-Gen. Tarbuch.

Office Building of Future Modelled On Lines of Streamlined Rail Coaches

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP) — Some day Americans may go to work in an office building with all the light sleek qualities of 1947 streamlined railroad coach.

Their desks would be somewhere in a slender shaft, composed largely of metal and glass rising to 43 floors above the street. The tower would be set in a park, complete with trees and grass, a tennis court and a swimming pool.

The structure surrounded by open spaces, would have plenty of natural light, but built-in canopies would shield windows on the south side from sun glare.

Inside air would be filtered, and warmed or cooled. Acoustical treatment of the ceilings would minimize noise. Windows would be cleaned on the outside by an automatic washer that would move completely around each storey of tracks.

Occupants would not have to leave the premises to eat, exercise, take a sun bath or see a show. There would be ample parking space in the lower levels.

Such a building has been conceived by Nathaniel A. Owings of the firm Skidmore, Owings and Merrill, architects and engineers.

Owings was impressed by the re-styling of trains and airliners to increase comfort and eye appeal. He figured something of the same sort would be done in heavy constructions.

In the structure he is devising a man-made park would be laid out on the roof of the third floor level. Handball or tennis courts and a swimming pool could be built. Tables and chairs would be set out for dining or lounging.

The section containing the offices would rise 40 floors from the park or plaza. It would be simple, rectangular shaft, measuring 60 by 160 feet, and would occupy about one-eighth of the area of the base site.

Body of Missing Girl, Arlene Anderson, 13, Discovered Strangled

Toronto, Nov. 6 (CP) — The body of 13-year-old Arlene Anderson has been found in the Van Horne Street section of west end Toronto, Police announced today. They said the partially-paralyzed girl had been strangled.

Discovery of the body of the child, missing from her home since Sunday night, came after police launched six separate new searches.

Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson said it was "definitely a case of murder." The girl was strangled with a piece of a sweater which had been torn into strips, but it could not be ascertained immediately if it was Arlene's own garment. The body was found in a vacant lot.

A Mrs. Recci discovered the body as she picked dandelions.

The grim find ended the extensive searches renewed by police and volunteers today.

The body of 13-year-old Arlene Anderson, strangled with a piece of a torn sweater, was found in an empty lot by a woman picking dandelions.

Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson said it was "definitely a case of murder."

The partially-paralyzed child had been missing from her home since Sunday night. Her body was found as hundreds of policemen and volunteer civilians combed west-end stockyards, railway right-of-ways and wooded areas.

The lot in which Mrs. N. Ricci made the gruesome discovery is three blocks from the girl's Marchmount Avenue home.

Three Blocks From Home

The body was turned partly on one side, some 50 feet from an engine and tool company factory.

"The woman who found her body came to our shop and banged on the window," said Allan McLeod. "We went over and recognized the girl right away from the description given of her."

The body was fully clothed. The nearest house is 150 feet away.

Friends said Mrs. Ricci was almost overcome by her discovery.

"The way she tells me about it," said Deputy Chief Constable Moses Mulholland, "was that she went over to the garden ... she saw something that looked like a coat on the ground.

Equipped with shovels, a large squad of plainclothesmen and detectives started to dig in the ground around Howard Monument in west-end High Park where citizens last night joined police in an extensive hunt for clues to the girl's whereabouts.

The latest search is near where the bodies of George Vigus 39, and Iris Scott, 21, were found early last Sept. 12, strangled and stuffed in the trunk compartment of Vigus' automobile.

A second group of police and volunteers today combed the west-end stockyards district, particularly old, unused buildings, warehouses and shacks at the rear of the yards. Another party probed a railway right-of-way through another section near the city's western limits.

Trace Swampy Area

The missing child's father led a fourth group of searchers They tracked a swampy, bushy area north of St. Clair Avenue and Weston Road — once a notorious "hobo jungle." In it are numerous holes, once the underground homes of hobos.

Meanwhile, police of suburban North York township continued attempts to trace a woman and lame girl whom Mrs. S. Goodhead said she saw Tuesday afternoon, walking on a highway.

In the west-end St. Clair-Weston Road neighborhood, schools and stores were canvassed in an effort to locate a group of boys reported to have been seen teasing the missing girl Sunday night, less than an hour after she disappeared from her home.

But detectives considered their search for the boys may be useless. It is now thought that another girl — similarly afflicted with cerebral palsy — may have been the one a motorist saw being teased.

Senior police officials in charge of what was called the most intensive police search here in many years first believed the girl was abducted, possibly by a degenerate. But as the hours went by without a clue they feared she was dead.

The father, William Anderson, express company employee, told a group of his fellow-workers as they started search last night of High Park that: "You know what you're looking for. It isn't for a child who is walking around."

The slim, brown-haired youngster is a partial cripple and also has an impediment in her speech. The last reported sign of her was a motorist's statement that he had seen a girl answering her description being teased by boys on a city street Sunday evening. Since then all policemen and special squads of detectives have been aided by volunteer groups of citizens in the search, without result.

250 Persons in Hunt

The girl's home is on Marchmount Road in the northwest section of the city. The group of fellow-workers of the girl's father, who were augmented by volunteers until the search party had grown to more than 250 persons, roamed the large High Park area on the lakeshore at Toronto's west end for hours last night with no clues that would indicate the park was the area where she disappeared. It was just one of several areas which the volunteers planned to search in detail.

Rev. L. I. Hunter, pastor of the Westmoreland United Church, offered his services an an intermediary with the person responsible for the girl's disappearance. He said he was willing to act, with no questions asked.

He was one of several persons who publicly supported the frantic plea of the girl's mother that whoever was responsible for the child's disappearance should return her at once. In appeals broadcast from local stations repeatedly, Mrs. Anderson said: — "Whoever has her, if you believe in God at all, please send her home. We are heartbroken."

Burmese Premier Escapes Attempt At Assassination

Rangoon, Nov. 6 (Reuters) — Thakin Nu, Burmese Premier, today escaped unhurt from an attempt to assassinate him at Mingaladon airport when he was returning to Rangoon from a holy pilgrimage.

The would-be assassins wounded a British officer when they opened fire from roadside jungle on the Prime Minister's station wagon, an eyewitness said. A British officer who was following in a jeep was believed to have been killed, but this could not be confirmed.

Appeals Against 15-Year Sentence

Kingston, Nov. 6 — (CP)—Notice of appeal against the 15-year sentence imposed upon him by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer at recent sittings of Ontario Supreme Court here has been filed by Clarence Washer, 35-year-old Army veteran, through his attorney, W. M. Nickle.

Washer was convicted of manslaughter in the shotgun-slaying of Michael Kazma Oct. 3.

Mr. Nickle said the appeal was launched on grounds that the sentence was "too harsh and severe, having regard to all the circumstances in reference to the crime."

Now a prisoner in the county jail, Washer was originally charged with murder. At the conclusion of the prosecution's case, Mr. Nickle told the court his client would plead guilty to manslaughter. The Crown signified its concurrence.

HOG PRODUCERS IN BAD POSITION SAYS TUMMON

Claims Many Producers Liquidating Stocks

Toronto, Nov. 6 (CP) — Ontario hog producers are operating under the most adverse conditions in years, W. E. Tummon, secretary of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association, said today as arbitration continued in a dispute between the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) and Canada Packers Ltd., and Burns and Company.

"Farmers are in the same position, in regard to cost of production, as any other business," he told C. P. McTague, arbitrator. "If the cost of production exceeds the financial return, the producer has no alternative but to go out of business."

He said some producers now are "liquidating" their stocks. Weanling pigs, which sold a few months ago at from $8 to $10, now were selling at from 25 cents to $2. Some breeders, rather than accept the reduced prices, were killing the young pigs at birth.

Cost Given at $40

Mr. Tummon's comment on the farmers' position came as the arbitration hearings entered their third day.

The recent six-week strike by the U. P. W. A. ended with Canada Packers and Burns granting an increase of seven cents an hour, with Mr. McTague to handle the difference between that figure and the union's original demand for a 17½-cent boost, and other issues.

Mr. Tummon estimated the producer's cost in bringing a hog to maturity is $40. Top price the producer can receive for the carcass is $33.75, he said.

A union claim that wages should be based on the budget needs of a family of five created a sharp controversy in yesterday's sessions.

The position of the companies was that a fair test in assessing wages was how the rates of the two companies compared with rates in other industries, and whether the "take-home pay" was enough to permit maintenance of health and respect of the individual and his family.

L. A. Forsythe, counsel for the companies, maintained the companies had met both tests.

Adequate Wage Discussed.

Fred Dowling, Canadian director of the union, said the companies should pay wages that would enable single men to get married. He also attacked the proposition that Federal family allowances should be considered in arriving at an adequate wage.

The companies and union were in dispute as to what was an adequate wage to meet family living costs. The companies quoted figures of the Toronto

Weather Service Has New Technique In Guiding Ships Through Storms

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP) — The United States Air Weather Service has come up with something new in the technique of guiding a lost surface vessel to safety through a terrific storm.

It's done with applied meteorology — by remote control.

Service officials told a reporter how weathermen stationed at Iwo Jima actually found and then guided to safety a vessel that was lost in a recent Pacific typhoon — even though there only clues to the ship's position were the wind direction and sea-level barometric pressure in the neighborhood of the ship.

The craft had been faring badly for three days in a wild sea whipped by winds of 140 miles an hour, with gusts up to 160.

The lost craft — the Coastal Gem — had radioed the facts about wind direction and barometric pressure at the time she sent out an S.O.S. The ship also reported she was unable to get a celestial (star) bearing because of low visibility.

Ashore at Iwo Jima, men of the Air Weather Service's 43rd wing recorded the radioed information — and then consulted their weather maps.

With their knowledge of the pressure pattern of the typhoon and the associated wind flow, they were able to determine the position of the vessel. The first position estimated was 70 miles east of Iwo. That was Oct. 8. The ship was informed of its position by radio periodically.

By means of these fixes, the ship's captain was able to navigate to a point only 12 miles from Iwo. The following night, the navigator aboard the ship obtained a "celestial" fix and contact soon was made with the naval rescue service which escorted the vessel to Iwo.

Canada Prepared To Absorb Island's Debt, Resources

Best Possible Terms Under Circumstances Says King

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 6 —(CP)— Canada today offered to welcome Newfoundland into confederation on terms described by Prime Minister Mackenzie King as "the best possible under the circumstances" and with the added emphasis that no change could be contemplated which would impose "further financial burdens" on the Dominion.

The terms did not estimate in round figures how much the Dominion will have to put on the line as an initial outlay and Mr. King made it clear the final decision on acceptance rested solely on the island's population of 312,000.

Terms Outlined

The financial terms, made public here and in St. John's came almost a month after release of general proposals under which union of the island colony and the Dominion would be acceptable.

They made these disclosures:

1. Canada is ready to absorb $63,000,000 of the $78,000,000 Newfoundland national debt, but in doing so it will take over such resources as the Newfoundland railway, the Newfoundland publicly-owned communication system, the mammoth Gander Airport, the Newfoundland steamer service and the Newfoundland broadcasting service.

2. Canada will allow Newfoundland to retain the $32,000,000 surplus built up during the war years, providing a third of the amount is set aside to meet possible deficits during the first eight years of union.

3. Canada would extend to Newfoundland the special subsidies of $1,100.000 awarded to the Maritime Provinces after special Royal Commission hearings.

4. These special subsidies would be added to payments paid under any Dominion-Provincial taxation agreement where Newfoundland would agree to abandon income, corporation and inheritance tax fields in return for certain payments.

5. The payments for the use of the taxation fields and the statutory subsidies would amount to a minimum of $6,200,000 annually.

6. As a colony Newfoundland collected between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000 annually but as province practically only $3,000,000 of this revenue, mainly raised from customs and excise taxes, would still be collectable by her.

7. Canada would make provision for a series of diminishing transitional grants to give Newfoundland time to develop, as a province, new revenue-producing services.

8. In view of the difficulty of predicting accurately how Newfoundland would fare financially under federation, Canada

HOSPITAL CARE PLAN PRESENTED TO CONVENTION

Pre-Paid Medical Care at Yearly Cost of $18 for Individual Proposed

Toronto, Nov. 6 — (CP)—Ontario Medical Association plans for pre-paid medical care at yearly cost from $18 for an individual to $60 for a family of three were outlined yesterday before closing session of the Ontario Hospital Association.

Dr. Melville C. Watson, president of Physicians Services, Incorporated, recently granted a provincial charter, said the plan offered two types of medical care. One type insures against "major hazards" while the second type offers more comprehensive protection. Neither type includes hospital expenses, dental care, ambulance service, nursing service, drugs or vaccines.

The first type provides for surgical and obstetrical services, including pre-natal and post-natal care and rates will be 75 cents a month for one person, $1.75 for one person and a dependent, and $2.50 for a family of three or more.

The second type offers all the service of the first plus visits to a physician and will cost $1.50 a month for an individual, $3.50 for one person and a dependent, and $5 a month for a family of three or more.

The plan will be offered first to groups of 15 or more employees in cities, Dr. Watson said. However the plan is expected to include farmers and other independent workers as soon as arrangements can be made to organize them into groups for enrollment purposes.

Dr. L. J. Crozier, superintendent of Victoria Hospital, London, Ont., advised hospital authorities at the convention against building new hospitals to meet the present shortage of hospital accommodations. He cited present high building costs as making such construction inadvisable. To meet the shortage he urged hospitals to install better and more adequate facilities for aiding the physician in reducing his patient's stay in hospital.

J. M. Tutt of Brantford yesterday was elected president of the Hospital Association, replacing Miss Pricilla Campbell of Chatham.

MOTORIST CHARGED AFTER PEDESTRIAN KNOCKED DOWN

Struck by a car as he was crossing the street in front of the Belle Theatre shortly after the supper hour last evening, Mr. James Cook, 47 Station Street, was knocked to the pavement suffering a scalp wound. Driver of the auto, Joseph Ellis, 17 Benjamin Street, was arrested by police and charged with careless driving.

Cook was struck and knocked to the pavement when he was hit by left front fender of the Ellis vehicle and was later taken to hospital where he is under the care of Dr. F. R. Ross.

D. L. Storey Seeks Mayoralty Office

A mayoralty contest in the forthcoming municipal elections was assured for this city today when D. L. Storey, sales manager for Belleville - Sargent, announced his intentions of running for mayor.

A veteran of the First World War, Mr. Storey has been a resident of Belleville for the past 12 years and is chairman of the Hastings County Tuberculosis Association. He has been a salesman over a period of 35 years.

Co-ordination of municipal services and a program to keep taxes down will be Mr. Storey's aims if elected to the mayor's office, it was stated.

Regt. Conducts Wide-Range Reconnaissance

Reminiscent of the dark days of war when khaki-clad troops deployed over the countryside in training schemes, members of the city company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment conducted this week, the first peace-time military training operation in this area since the war.

Under the command of Major Max Porritt, M.C., members of the regiment conducted a long-range reconnaissance patrol in mock reconnoitering of an invading force descending on the city from the north.

The scheme originated from the city and embraced the communities of Trenton, Frankford, Stirling, Marmora, Madoc and Tweed.

Street fighting took place in all these centres, while much emphasis was placed on section attacks.

The operation was held in conjunction with the Hasty Pees training and recruiting campaign, and is said by company officers to be one of the most eleborate schemes carried out in this area by a reserve army unit. Bren gun carriers and small arms were used in the sham battles, and as one veteran of the last war smilingly remarked, "It's the first time I ever saw a Bren carrier travel 150 miles without breaking down."

Commission Requests All Power Reductions Should Be Mandatory

The Belleville Utilities Commission held a special meeting yesterday with a representative of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario to consider ways and means of dealing with the power shortage.

Belleville's load has increased 1000 H.P. in October 1947 over October 1946 and the consumption has increased 14% or 410,000 K.W. hours in the same months.

Since the end of the war there has been an unprecedented demand for electricity due to Ontario's industrial expansion and the consequent growth in domestic, commercial, farm and factory power needs. The voluntary reduction which has been asked for by the Ontario Commission has not been experienced and more drastic action will have to be taken.

It was pointed out that recent legislation gave the Ontario and local commissions the authority to ration power and it was indicated that street lighting and store window lighting would have to be curtailed, indoor and outdoor decorative lighting prohibited, sign lighting discontinued, flood lighting of used car lots and parking lots limited. In fact the restrictions which were in force during the war would be revived.

The suggested reduction in loads was 10% which would mean that Belleville would be required to conserve to the extent of 1000 H.P. It was felt that the reduction could not be reached by voluntary methods and it would be necessary to interrupt sections of the city at different times to make the necessary saving.

The Belleville Commission expressed its willingness to co-operate to the fullest extent with the Ontario Commission but asked that all reductions be made mandatory so that all users of electricity in Ontario would be dealt with on the same basis.

Wm. H. Gerrie Dies Suddenly At Ann St. Home

William H. Gerrie, Assistant Superintendent of the Eastern Ontario District for the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, with offices in this city, died suddenly as the result of a heart seizure early Wednesday evening at his home, 155 Ann Street. The late William Houston Gerrie, who was in his 56th year, was born at Kenora, Ontario, in the Lake of the Woods District, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Gerrie. On the completion of his preliminary education he attended McGill University, Montreal, and graduated from that institution as an electrical engineer in 1917. The following year he came to Belleville to join the engineering staff of the Ontario Hydro System. He remained here until 1934 when he was transferred to Shaw Falls as Superintendent of the large Power Development Plant. In 1941 he returned to Belleville to assume the important position of Assistant Superintendent of the Eastern Ontario District and he filled the position with marked ability up to the time of his death. For the past two months he acted as Superintendent owing to the absence of the Superintendent at the head office of the Commission in Toronto.

Prominent Mason

William Gerrie possessed many fine traits of character and in the esteem of a host of friends he held a high place. He was a member of Bridge Street United Church and for a time was a teacher in the Sunday School. Fraternally he was a prominent member of the Masonic Order being a Past Master of Eureka Lodge No. 283, A.F. & A.M.; Past District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward District; Past Preceptor of King Baldwin Preceptory and an officer of Moira Chapter No. 7 R.A.M. He was also a popular member of the Belleville Rotary Club. By many friends he will be much missed. Surviving to mourn his loss are his wife, the former Ina Eleanor Jacobs; two daughters, Miss Fern Ann Gerrie, who is a student at the Bible College at Toccoa Falls, Georgia, and Miss Audrey Christine Gerrie, Reg. N., at home; one son, Mr. William Standen Gerrie, Toronto.

would make provision to have the islands financial resources reviewed by a Royal Commission within eight years.

Employment Offered

The government reiterated offers to employ Newfoundlanders where possible in federal government services on the island, to allow the island to continue the manufacture of oleomargarine providing it is not exported, and to retain courts now existing in the colony.

As far as dvorce is concerned the island would be in the same position as Quebec and anyone applying for divorce would have to go through parliamentary procedure as do residents of Quebec where there is no divorce court.

In a letter accompanying the financial terms, sent to Sir Gordon Macdonald, Governor of Newfoundland, Mr. King said:

"The government could not readily contemplate any change in these arrangements which would impose larger financial burdens on Canada. On the other hand, with respect to the matters which are of primarily provincial concern such as education, the government of Canada would not wish to set down any rigid conditions, and it is prepared to give reasonable consideration to suggestions for modification or addition."

Mr. King emphasized that it was his understanding that the terms offered by Canada would be submitted to the national convention, elected more than a year ago to recommend future form or forms of government for the now commission-controlled colony.

Will Act Promptly

"Should the people of Newfoundland indicate clearly and beyond all possibility of misunderstanding their will that Newfoundland should become a province of Canada on the basis of the proposed arrangements, the Canadian government, subject to the approval of parliament, would for its part be prepared to take the necessary constitutional steps to make the union effective at the earliest practicable date."

Newfoundland representatives estimated prior to their departure last September that a referendum of the people on the question of future form or forms of government could be held next May at the earliest. Federation with Canada, if approved, could be accomplished by July 1, the 81st anniversary of Confederation.

If Newfoundland came in as a 10th province the federal government possibly would collect $20,000,000 in annual revenues from various sources, but it would be out more than $26,000,000 in the way of old age pensions, family allowances, and taxation agreement subsidies.

Would Need Subsidy

Newfoundland, as a province, could raise possibly $10,000,000 annually, including taxation agreement payments, but would spend $15,000,000 for provincial services. The Dominion's financial terms indicates that the difference between revenues and expenditures would be made up by a special transitional subsidy aimed at bringing Newfoundland's services up to a par with those of the rest of Canada.

Oddly enough, the financial terms did not indicate whether Canada would make any offer to the United States to take over the $300,000,000 bases which, with the consent of the United Kingdom, the Americans established in Newfoundland.

However, the original report released when the Newfoundland delegation first arrived home indicated that Canada would not interfere with the 99-year-leases.

In that holy happy land.

STAPLEY — In loving memory of our dear son, Douglas, who passed away November 6th., 1945, age 5 years.

No stain was on his little heart,

He was too pure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay,
And so God's hold angel
Bore our darling one away.

We who loved you sadly miss you,
As it dawns another year;
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are ever near.
Time will pass and years roll by,
Whatever be our lot;
As long as life and memory last
You shall never be forgot.

HOGS

Toronto, Nov. 6 —(CP)— Hog prices remained unchanged at Stratford, Grade A delivered to farmers $22.75, to truckers $22.90, and at Hull unchanged at $22.75 delivered while unquoted off trucks, in markets reporting early this morning.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Prices moved back moderately on the stock exchange today as profit-taking halted an upward move that extended through the first three days of this week. Narrow declines were scattered through the industrial lists although newsprints began to show signs of picking up. Steels were off as were foods and a few other classifications. Mining issues gave back some of the gains established earlier this week but here again share volume was light.

Volume for the first three hours was 565,000 shares, about 360,000 below yesterday's similar period.

A heavy loser in junior golds was Amalgamated Larder, down 21 with other losers in the group Anglo-Rouyn, Armistice, Conwest, Diversified, Dome, East Malartic, Frobisher, Giant, Hosco, Lake Shore, Louvicourt, Madsen, O'Brien, Osulake, Teck Hughes, San Antonio. Base metals were mixed in light trade.

First Seditious Libel Conviction Made in Quebec

St. Joseph De Beauce, Que., Nov. 6 (CP)—The first conviction on a charge of seditious libel was written into the annals of criminal justice in the province of Quebec today while 50-year-old Aime Boucher, a member of the religious sect the Witnesses of Jehovah, started to serve a jail term of 30 days.

The conviction against Boucher, resident of Ste. Germaine De Dorchester, 40 miles southeast of Quebec, was recorded by an Assize Court jury yesterday on a charge laid under Section 134 of the Crininal Code of Canada.

Crown Counsel Antoine Lacoursiere said later it was the province's first conviction under that particular section of the code which provides a maximum penalty of two years on conviction fior inciting seditious libel aganst God, the state and liberty.

Boucher had admitted to the court that he distributed in the nearby village of St. Joseph last December copies of a tract entitled "Quebec's Burning Hate," which the Crown described as a succession of libellous attacks on Quebec's government, its church and its judicial authority.

Meantime in Quebec, a source close to the Attorney General's Deparment said similar charges are pending against several other persons in the province, among them Boucher's daughter, Gisele, whose trial has been set for Nov. 24 here.

This source said that of the 800 to 1,000 members of the Sect arrested in the province and charged in Recorder's Court under municipal by-laws, many had appealed for convictions to the Attorney-General. He said 100 such appeals now are pending.

In some instances, the Attorney-General's Department issued instructions that charges be laid under the Criminal Code. At least five persons in St. Jerome, near Montreal, others in Montreal proper and Gisele Boucher at Beauce will be tried on a charge of seditious libel.

Moscow-Backed Gov't Inquires Into Flight

Warsaw, Nov. 6 (CP) — The Moscow-backed Polish government intensified today its inquiry into the flight of Stanislaw Mikolajczyk which it asserted was "actively aided" by an unnamed embassy, and indicated new arrests would be made shortly by persons suspected of helping the opposition leader escape.

Three of the group who fled with the Polish Peasant party Oct. 20 were declared officially to have been arrested after crossing the Czechoslovak frontier.

The United States ambassador Stanton Griffis, and British ambassador Sir Donald St. Clair Gainer both said they knew nothing of how Mikolajczyk's escape was effected.

In London, where the former premier found asylum to escape what he said was a plot against his life, Mikolajczyk said in a statement the charges of the Warsaw government were mostly "lies" aimed at compromising him personally. The foreign office there withheld comment.

Mikolajczyk termed "false" and "a cynical provocation intended to sow international discord and to provoke me into telling the details of my escape" the Warsaw assertion that he and his friends received foreign aid in escaping. The claim that "compromising documents" were found on his arrested friends was to Mikolajczyk an "absurd lie, impossible to believe."

ANGLICAN SYNOD

Canon F. C. Lightburn of Stratford, and "canon law can only be changed by the Provincial Synod."

And Fred Babe, K.C., Fort William, chancellor of Algoma, although he was a member of the recommending committee said he would vote against the amendment because it was "dangerous and unconstitutional."

A Lay delegate, J. P. Bell, of Hamilton, told delegates that "there is no way in which we can pay the primate. All he receives at present is some expense money for travelling." In a brief discussion of the question of payment to the primate the Synod took no action. Under present canonical law the primate receives the support only of his diocese and there never has been a statutory salary for the office.

Active participation of the Church of England in the Canadian Council of Churches was urged by Dean G. M. Luxton, of London, Ont. His suggestion of financial assistance was referred to the Executive Council.

When Mr. Dowling attacked the suggestion that family allowances be considered in arriving at an adequate wage, Mr. McTague remarked that labor demands in the past had been based on the wages needed to meet family requirements. "Labor cannot complain when family allowances are brought into the picture by the companies," he said.

He continued:

"The ground is swaying under the feet of the imperialists while the strength of the democratic nations is growing day by day. ... The anti-imperialist forces must be united into a mighty army to which the capitalists can never produce an equal."

Discussing the United States, Molotov said:

"There is no country where among the working classes and peasants the Soviet Union has no friends," Molotov said. "That is why today, on this day of the 30th anniversary, our banners fly so high — the victorious banners of Stalin."

Weather and Winter

Snow has fallen in the West and the prairies have been reported white. Here in Ontario usually the first flakes of snow fall in October but no flakes have been seen falling in [illegible] 1947.

Winter weather is showing signs of appearing in Western Canada and it is too much to hope that these halcyon days which have been enjoyed in the past eight or [illegible] in Eastern Canada will last much [illegible].

In short, winter will come when the elements [illegible] to bring the cold and the snow.

There is, of course, always the hope in the "law" of averages. Last winter from the first of 1947 onward it was not so cold but it was very much a winter considering the fall of snow.

As each day passes, however, people will feel thankful that the day has dawned without snow for snow does mean winter to everyone.

In the beneficience of nature what the future in general will hold is withheld from men. There has been the prophecy that man will soon make the weather to suit himself but that seems hardly to be realized for there can be little unity among men about wet and dry weather for instance. If it were possible to make the weather who would be wise enough to manufacture it just as it should be to produce the crops?

Some persons would not care for the weather that fosters growth. Making the weather and the atmosphere would seem to be a rather responsible task without entire success and certainly without the possibility of pleasing everybody. Many people would think any weather man was very autocratic in providing such and such kind of weather on his own decision.

But such matters need not make people anxious now. The weather is in the making of nature yet for a time. So for the immediate future weather will be provided by nature in the usual way, with the uncertainty at times, even if modern forecasting of weather is finding a remarkable degree of accuracy in its predictions. Winter will come in its time, that much is certain, and there will be no doubt be need of winters and the volume of snow to provide protection and moisture and rest for the soil.

Man O' War

No horse has ever been praised as has been Man O' War, known commonly as "Big Red." He lived the normal life of a horse and died of heart trouble at the age of thirty, for a horse's life is not a long life like man's.

The attention which this supreme animal of the track won in the short career when he was piling up fortunes and which followed him into retirement is followed up in the tributes paid to the animal which became the most famous horse of all time. A sample tribute is in the words of an editorial writer in the New York Times: "None was more beautiful, with lovelier lines of grace and power. None was more beloved by an admiring and faithful public. The American scene seems a little vacant with Man O'War gone to the Elysian Fields where all good horses go."

"He was thirty years old. Had he been human and of comparative longevity, his great heart would not have ceased to beat until he was 105. To his owner, Sam Riddle, and his devoted old groom, Will Harbut, who died last year, he was almost human. He had the high qualities we value in a man's strength, endurance, courage, intelligence, responsiveness and affection. Harbut called him "the mostest hoss in the world."

Man O' War was retired from the race track twenty-seven years ago when he was only three years old, yet in two of these three years he built up a fame that has never been approached on the turf. He was beaten only once, by Upset at Saratoga. Later he defeated Upset readily.

No horse ever sired so many track-winning foals, 386 of them, most of them being what are known as aristocrats of the turf. In his short track career he won a great deal of money and his royal line likewise made money for their owners.

The horse has always been the friend of man from the days when man in his progress took to the horse as his companion in work, in peace and in war. Today the noble animal which has served man in so many capacities down the ages seems under an eclipse in competition with the regal motorcar, which, however in all its beauty, can never rank with that matchless animal, the horse, which is a living thing with all the symmetry of development and beauty of form which only nature can give.

Man's affection for the horse has not passed though for labor the horse has been considerably supplanted by power which however is named after him, namely "horsepower." Still the horse is to be found on the track providing entertainment for man with whom he has been for many ages associated. Numberless fall fairs have their races still, a tribute to the appeal of the noble animal who has been the symbol of speed and strength and intelligence. The word "horse" too has passed into common parlance for many a man of great strength has been known as a "horse to work".

What the horse has done for man, every man knows. He accompanied man in the rise of civilization. He carried man on his back and has drawn him and his burdens forward as the world was opened up. The march of civilization owes much to the magnificent animal of which so many lines and breeds are known throughout the earth. On the track he has been the source of sport to countless millions of human beings. There he still remains supreme and he would be a venturesome man who would dare to predict when trials of speed will fail to draw the crowds. Man's admiration for the horse will endure.

Weary Work

The demise of the British Snail-watching Society reported recently marked the closing down of a body whose aims and ideals always seemed to be most admirable. Admirable, too, was the fact that this society never asked for a subscription: members were all "honorary," says Manchester Guardian.

The same happy, non-commercial spirit applies to another unusual club of which I was recently made an honorary member during a visit to the United States. This is the Weary Club of Norway, Maine. Its members do not do anything at all. And they are proud of it — they have even built themselves a trim little clubhouse on Norway's main street to do it in.

You can drop in at any time and read the club's charter, which explains that it was established for "tired old men to escape the wrath of their womenfolks, swap lies and fishing stories, and always have on hand a supply of straight-grained cedar for whittling." Arguments in this club are not allowed, and it is also a rule that nothing shall be carved from the cedar sticks. Just shavings.

Dollar Load in Germany

When Britain is fighting its own economic battle and is cutting down imports to eke out the last of its own dollars, it can no longer bear the dollar burden in Germany, says the London Times. In the report of the 16 nations it was stated that during next year alone the combined zone will have a deficit of $1,150,000,000 in its balance of payments with the American continent, even though imports requiring dollars are kept to the minimum. With such a prospect the British Government have been obliged to act.

"Some Leeway"

It should be possible to give the British some leeway, temporarily at least, in their foreign purchasing if by so doing they can use sterling and conserve the dollars still available to them. Some reasonable adjustment of the conditions imposed by Article 9 is apparently not only necessary, but it would presumably promote the original basic purpose of the loan agreement. After all, our main consideration is to help Britain recover her economic equilibrium. In doing that, we know we are serving our own best long range national interest.—Providence Journal.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did mileage originate?

"Mileage" in the sense of distance measured in miles is an old English word, but the term in the sense of a travelling allowance based on distance in miles travelled appears to be of American origin. The earliest known use of it as applied to an allowance to a legislator for travelling expenses was by Benjamin Franklin in 1754.

The principal of mileage, though not the name, dates back to the early days of the English Parliament, when members living outside London were permitted to kill two deer in the King's forests and game preserves en route to and from the sessions to provide them with venison. Members of Parliament now get free travel to and from their homes if they live outside London.

George Washington's accounts show that he received a special allowance from the Colony of Virginia for travel and "ferriage" between Mt. Vernon and Williamsburg when he represented Fairfax County in the House of Burgesses. During the days of the Continental Congress (1774-1789) the travelling expenses of the Delegates were paid by the Colonies and States.

In 1778 the "independent State of Vermont" provided fourpence a mile for travel to members of the legislature. The First Congress under the Constitution (1789-1791) provided that each member should receive six dollars for each 20 miles travelled in going to and returning from the seat of government for each session of Congress.

Senator William Maclay of Pennsylvania complained in his diary that Senator William Samuel Johnson was allowed mileage between New York and Connecticutt, though, as president of Columbus College, he lived in New York. Senator Robert Morris used the saving of mileage as an argument in favor of establishing the capital at Philadelphia.

Later Congressional mileage was raised to eight dollars for each 20 miles travelled. This was probably based on the actual average travelling expenses of members going to and returning from the sessions in the days when travel on horseback and in stage coaches was slow and when travellers were continually charged for using toll roads and ferry boats.

By the compensation act of July 28, 1868, the mileage was fixed at 20 cents a mile for the first round trip between Washington and the home of each member "for each regular session." Special sessions were not mentioned. Since then Congress has voted itself mileage for special as well as regular session. The present mileage rate, which is that fixed in 1866, has often been criticized on the ground that the amount paid greatly exceeds the actual cost of a round trip between Washington and the homes of the members.

But mileage is not based on the actual cost of travelling to and from the Capital on official business but is a device for equalizing the compensation of members of Congress. It is really an adjusted compensation for the disadvantage of living far from the Capital.

What's to be Done About Hospital Deficits

(Owen Sound Sun-Times Editorial)

Recently, an Owen Sound deputation, comprising members of both the City Council and the General and Marine Hospital Board, waited on the Minister of Health for Ontario in Queen's Park. Their purpose was to learn whether the Provincial government would consider assuming any portion of an operating deficit which the local hospital had amassed during the first eight months of 1947.

The deputation learned that, aside from the usual scale of grants, there was, at present, no machinery within the provincial government which could make money available to underwrite losses of hospitals anywhere. Responsibility for meeting financial obligations rested solely with the municipality wherein such hospitals operate.

If the hospital in Owen Sound were alone in its difficulties, blame for the present deficit might easily be assumed the result of strictly local conditions. But this is not the case. Hospitals throughout the province are, without exception, finding expenses to exceed earnings—this in spite of the fact that most of them are running at capacity with every bed occupied.

A recent report from the Kingston General Hospital shows an operating deficit of $30,820 over an eight-month period. For the most part, they blame this deficit on the fact that the actual average cost of keeping a patient in the institution for one day has risen from $4.78 on January 1st., 1946, to $6.87 in August, 1947.

Many items contribute to these increased costs. Salaries and wages have risen greatly—a necessary thing if staffs are to be retained. Working days are becoming shorter and more help must be engaged to keep up the 24-hour services which hospitals must provide. All supplies, food, drugs and equipment, have followed an upward spiral since removal of price ceilings. There has been a marked increase in indigent patients as more families find their budgets just won't stretch to cover both inflated living costs and hospital bills. Finally, there has been an ever increasing use of costly new drugs, many of them war-time developments—much of which cost cannot be reclaimed.

It would appear that Ontario's hospitals are facing critical times. Demand for hospitalization has never been greater and yet every hospital is going further and further into the red. Municipalities cannot be expected to pay deficits indefinitely and if hospital rates are raised sufficiently to permit the institutions to show a profit, they would become prohibitively high.

It may be that our Provincial Government will find it necessary to make a careful study of the general hospital picture before long. Without some increased financial assistance, critically needed hospitals may, otherwise, have to close their doors.

THREE BITES AND OUT FOR DOG

Welland, Nov. 5 — (CP) — Three bites and you're out—that is if you're liable under the Vicious Dogs Act. Magistrate J. B. Hopkins ruled John Baley's dog had more bites than he was entitled to and ordered the canine destroyed. Testimony showed the dog had bitten three persons.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-adressed envelope is enclosed. Letters should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

CORNS AND PILES BELONG IN THE SAME CATEGORY

I belive the protest vote is all in now. So, if you have quite finished telling me off I'll close the discussion by stating that it is now pretty well established at least among the intelligentsia that it is downright stupid to suffer from piles. What I mean, of course, is that physicians who have enough training and skill to use twentieth century methods can administer the ambulant or injection treatment painlessly and without interrupting the patient's ordinary activities and cure the piles. This being true, it surely is stupid to suffer from piles, at least any longer than it takes to find a physician with such training and skill.

So much for piles. If you're still confused about it send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask in writing (you will receive no reply if you use a clipping) for the pamphlet. It is Stupid to Suffer From Piles.

Corns are localized calluses, due to prolonged or constant friction and/or pressure.

Aside from accidental infection or inflammation which may complicate the trouble, corn or calus invariably disappears within a reasonable time after the friction and or pressure ceases to be operative. Say you break a leg or get a fever and have to spend several weeks in bed or off your feet—corns or calluses vanish while you wait. But a broken leg or a bout of fever is needlessly radical treatment; if you have sufficient strength of character you may get the same result by simply going barefoot or wearing only soft socks or moccasins for several weeks.

To remove corn or callus the most satisfactory remedy I know is a solution of thirty grains of salicylic acid in one-half fluidounce of flexible collodion, painted on corn or callus once a day for a week or more —untily corn or callus softens enough to wipe away. This is not a "corn cure" and it is not my prescription, formula or invention; it is just an old standard corn collodion that was popular long before anybody ever heard of Doc Brady.

If you use this corn collodion for corn or callus remember these details:

1. Keep the liquid tightly corked else evaporation of the alcohol and ether will leave a solid mass in the vial.
2. Avoid getting the liquid on the inside of the neck of vial, for that will make the cork or stopper a poor fit.
3. For applying the collodion use only a toothpick or similar stick with a wisp of cotton wound around the end — dip this in the liquid and remove from vial without touching inside of neck, apply the drop of collodion quickly to corn or callus, and throw the applicator away.
4. If in spite of care the collodion thickens in the vial after standing unused for a considerable time only the addition of more alcohol and ether by the druggist will restore it to usefulness.

In nearly all instances corns and calluses on the feet spell poorly fitted shoes. Wearing a shoe that gives the feet enough room may remove pressure but not necessarily friction too.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Child Wakes Up Crying

For past two years my 4 1-2-year - old has been waking with pain in her legs. A doctor told me to put her to bed a couple of weeks and give her asperin every four hours. Blood tests showed nothing abnormal. Three months ago she had sore throat and swelling of right limb and the doctor tells me now it was rheumatic fever. (Mrs. M.F.)

Answer — You had better be guided by the advice of the doctor who tells you it was rheumatic fever. Children who complain and perhaps cry about ache or pain in legs that is commonly called "growing pain" are usually suffering manifestations of calcium deficiency, I believe. At any rate, calcium and vitamin D feeding seems to bring prolonged freedom from such pain.

Acne

In the short time I have been, following the advise in your pamphlet there has been a definite improvement in my complexion. May I have a copy of the pamphlet on piles?

(Mrs. J. B. H.)

Answer — For the pamphlet on acne (blackheads and pimples) send a stamped self addressed envelope. For the pamphlet It is stupid to Suffer from Piles send a stamped self addressed envelope. If you ask for both inclose ten cents. Ask for it in writing —I do not answer clippings.

WEDDINGS

McKENNA—VANDUSEN

Christ Church was the setting, Nov. 1st., at six-thirty p.m., for the marriage of Joyce Lillian VanDusen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip VanDusen, R.R. 8, Belleville, and Allen James McKenna, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. McKenna, Burnham Street. Rev. J. G. Sparling officiated for the ceremony.

Mr. Travers ably supported the groom.

A reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Deline, 48 Murney Street, which was decorated for the occasion with streamers of pink and white. A buffet supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. McKenna left for a wedding trip to Ottawa, and after their return will reside in Belleville.

TRAVERS—KENNEDY

Baskets and bouquets of asters were used in the decorations at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, for the marriage, recently, of Kathleen Elizabeth Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy, R.R. 2, Belleville, and James Travers, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Travers, Burton Street, with Rev. Father Carley as the officiating clergyman, and Rev. Sister Mary Bibianna playing the wedding music. Miss Carrol Belnap was the soloist, singing "Because" and "Ave Maria".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Gilford Easton, wore a gown of white satin with lace inserts, and carried a bouquet of red roses.

She was attended by Miss Margaret Kiser, as maid of honor, wearing a gown of blue satin with matching hat, and carried a bouquet of roses and 'mums.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Mowers, uncle and aunt of the bride. The bride's mother received wearing a gown of black crepe with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother, in a gown of grey crepe with black accessories and a corsage of red roses.

For travelling to Toronto, the bride chose a grey suit.

PROMINENT LAWYER DIES

London, Ont., Nov. 6 — (CP)— Dr. Albert H. Murphy, 54, prominent London lawyer and a past president of the Ontario Hospital Association was found dead in bed here today. A well known Liberal, he was senior partner in the law firm of Murphy and Durdin.

Mrs. R. Badgley, Shannonville, Elected Area Chairman of W.I. Convention Convened in City

Memorial Service Held for 18 Members Deceased During Past Year

Delegates of the W. I. Belleville Area met on Wednesday in the Collegiate Auditorium for the second day of their convention, when, with the election of officers which concluded the afternoon session, Mrs. Roy Badgley, of Shannonville, became Area Chairman.

Mrs. K. Faul, of Rural Belleville was in charge of the Wednesday morning session and community singing was led by Mrs. Roy Sills with Mrs. J. Parrott at the piano.

A report on historical research was presented by Mrs. F. Brown of Roseneath. She said: "Nearly every branch gives one meeting each year to the study of this subject, and the papers prepared cover a variety of topics such as pioneer churches, schools, militia and homesteads; racial origin and activities of early Canadians and the stage coach between Belleville and Toronto, all of which have been both interesting and instructive.

Agriculture and Canadian Industries was the subject of a report brought by Mrs. G. Foster of Moira, saying: "Farmers are the founders of civilization. There is a steadily increasing interest in agriculture because, perhaps, of the great need in Europe. Better food for more people may pave the road to international peace, for, "a hungry world is an angry world."

More Time Given

More time is being given to Girls' clubs and to Junior Farmers. Exports arouse their interest; the girls are becoming expert in canning and preserving fruits and vegetables; and the boys in the raising of a better grade of livestock. These interests are helping to keep our young people on the farms for, "Happiness grows by our own fireside and is not picked up in a neighbors' garden."

Mrs. Foster suggested the making of plans, early in the year, for a schedule of the subjects to be studied. Mrs. L. A. McEwan led in a discussion of these two reports commending their brevity and conciseness.

Mrs. W. A. Hoskin, of Cobourg contributed the solo "Life Has so Many Lovely Things," which was greatly appreciated.

Reviews Trip

An address by Miss Lewis on her recent trip to Great Britain and Holland was accompanied by colored slides of places she visited and some of the people she met in England Scotland, Ireland, Wales and Amsterdam, (Holland) These included a Druid Circle, an Orthopedic Open Air Hospital, a Reform School in a lovely home, Windsor Castle, 'Fairy trees in Ireland, and the grave of Lloyd George, in Wales. To anyone interested in Wales she recommended the book, "I Bought a Mountain" by Thomas Fairbanks.

The pictures of Hollands' windmills, waterways, bridges and peaked homes; as well as the story of her swift return to the real business of living after the end of German occupation, were both interesting and thrilling.

A short memorial service for eighteen members deceased during the past year, was led by Mrs. R. Bush of Consecon, assisted by Mrs. A. Mitchell of Rural Belleville. One minute's silence was observed in honor of these loyal women who were earnest workers in different W.I. organizations and the service closed with the singing of "Abide With Me."

The session adjourned.

Musical Program

Mrs. A. Mitchell presided for the final session of the convention which included two entertaining members, a reading by Mrs. E. Sandercock, of Belleville, and a playlet "Changes in Fifty Years", presented by members of the Cobourg Branch, when Mrs. 1897 met Mrs. 1947.

The contrasts for the homemaker, were shown in modes of conveyance "Dobbin" versus "The Family Car"; in Fuels—lack of dry wood versus electricity and coal; in conveniences,—home made soap versus soap powders, flakes and cleaners;—Leisure, In 1897 there was no leisure for the home maker,—In 1947 there is time for recreational exercises and for women's meetings either in connection with church life, school life, or the W.I. but it was decided that Mrs. 1897 was a better companion to her children because of their closer home associations. Mrs. Walton spoke on the Canadian Consumers Branch of Ottawa. She told of the relation between plenty and scarcity and urged the women to spread more information so that the homes, communities and nation might be benefited thereby.

Some steps have already been taken regarding the rising prices for necessary commodities, and the cabinet has been asked to halt any further advance.

Regarding the poor quality of materials found in clothing whose cost warrants a better quality manufacturing firms should be forced to label clothing and to establish certain standards for corresponding costs.

History of City Public Schools

Queen Mary School

Queen Mary School is built on an eminence facing Isobel Street, and is beautifully situated in spacious playgrounds containing many lovely old elms and maples.

It was built to replace No. 2 School which was situated at the corner of Octavia and Catharine Streets. For over half a century No. 2 School was the educational centre of Murney Ward and many of its pupils and teachers afterward became prominent in commercial and professional life. Among others might be mentioned Mr. Nathaniel Vermilyea, Sir Sam Hughes, Mr. S. G. Beatty, Mr. F. Reddick, and Mr. T. Irvin.

Of later years, Miss Jessie Jack was for some time principal. She was succeeded by Mr. J. W. Dafoe who resigned in 1904 and was succeeded by Mr. D. Barragar.

Queen Mary School was erected in 1913 and 1914 and was occupied in September 1914. The architect of the building was the firm of Ellis and Comery, Toronto, and the contractor was the well known builder, Mr. G. A. Bennett, of this city. The school was opened with appropriate ceremonies. Lt. Col. W. N. Ponton, M.A., K.C. was the Chairman of the Board of Education at the time, and Mr. H. J. Clarke, B. A., the Public School Inspector. The first staff of the new school consisted of — Mr. D. Barragar, Principal; Mr. C. I. Frederick, Miss Addie Harold, Miss Ethel Nurse, Miss E. E. Styles, Miss L. M. Phelps, Miss Mary Frost and Miss C. Cunningham.

At the present time there is a staff of fourteen teachers and an enrolment of four hundred and thirty-two pupils. In September 1946, a Home Economics Department was added and in September of the present year two new classrooms were equipped to serve the ever-growing school population, of this district.

W.A. Bazaar at Bridge St. Church Held Amidst Colorful Surroundings

After five or six years of rationing have the women of Belleville lost their knack of the culinary art? The tea room and home cooking tables in Bridge Street Sunday School rooms answered that question to the complete satisfaction of crowds of people yesterday.

The occasion was the annual Christmas bazaar under the auspices of the Woman's Association.

Christmas decorations and the spirit of Christmas penetrated to every corner. It was a spot of cheer on a dull day.

The guests were welcomed into the main auditorium by the president of the association, Mrs. Harry Rollins, assisted by Mrs. Donald Amos.

Tastefully Decorated

Part of the auditorium was divided by a red fence and red and green streamers to form the tea room. The guests entered through a gateway flanked by evergreens. Evergreens and ferns formed a background and at corners were baskets of salvia with their bright red blooms. In the centre of the room were the main decorations, a large tea table with its white cloth, white chrysanthemums and red candles. Surrounding this were small tables also with white cloths and centres of white baby chrysanthemums. In such beautiful surroundings the guests lingered over their tea.

Conveners for the tea room were Mrs. R. C. Sargent, Mrs. C. R. Clapp, Mrs. T. Thompson, and Mrs. J. Mitchell. Tea was poured by Mrs. Howard Clark, Mrs. A. H. Bruein, Miss E. Corbett and Mrs. H. A. Morgan. The plates were replenished by Mrs. W. Brown, Miss P. Campbell, Mrs. A. Gilroy and Mrs. C. R. Clapp.

Assisting with the serving were Mrs. W. D. Gilbert, Mrs. W. Fox, Mrs. H. Seldon, Mrs. T. McMullen, Mrs. D. Reddick, Mrs. C. Clark, Mrs. Barnett, Mrs. N. Wilbur, Mrs. R. Neal, Mrs. Ralph Clapp, Mrs. A. Clark, Mrs. Johnston, Mrs. J. Dickens, Mrs. S. J. Hibbard, Miss Helen Sulman, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. W. Roblin, Mrs. H. McBurney, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. J. Cook, Mrs. J. Boyd, Mrs. McBride, and Mrs. Franklin Martin.

A beautiful Christmas window was the background for the apron and baby booth, and the booth itself was festooned with green and red paper on white. Judging by the numbers of aprons and baby things sold, the supply in local households must have been very low. The conveners for this booth were Mrs. B. Howard, Mrs. P. C. McGuire, Mrs. H. L. Croll and Mrs. H. M. Francis. The assistants were Mrs W. J. Moore, Miss I. Dickens, Mrs. J. C. Allen, Mrs. Ross Bateman, Mrs. K. M. Bird, Mrs. J. M. Wood, Mrs. J. A. Broad, Mrs. Harry Allan, Mrs. R. D. Adams, Mrs. J. W. Holmes, Mrs. J. Mather, Mrs. D. Stanton, Mrs. W. C. Hurlbut, and Mrs. Parliament.

Novelty Table

The one exception to the red and green was the white elephant and novelty table. Here an appropriate procession of white elephants marched across a black background. Since anything from a piano to a handkerchief can be a white elephant, this booth carried a wide variety of articles. Sales were brisk and many things that were white elephants yesterday are treasured possessions today.

The conveners for this booth were Mrs. H. McCabe, Mrs. T. Franklin, Mrs. F. Countryman and Mrs. W. Northcott. These ladies were assisted by Mrs C. L. Massey, Mrs. C. A. Meyers, Mrs. I. Hefkey, Miss J. McGie, Mrs. Hermon, Mrs. E. Fairman and Mrs. R. A. Lashbrook.

Home Cooking Attractive

The home cooking booth really required no extra decorating as all eyes were centred on the table itself with its elaborate display of culinary art, products, and minds were completely occupied with the serious business of choosing what to take home as a special treat.

The conveners were Mrs. H. Wray, Mrs. J. Marsh, Mrs. W. H. Lee and Mrs. W. Hunter. Assisting these women were Mrs. W. E. McCormick, Mrs. E. Buckanan, Mrs. Ormond, Mrs. R. Wotten, Mrs. C. Hyde, Mrs. Kerr, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Tice, Mrs. Gale and Mrs. Currie.

The success of the bazaar reflected the hard work and thoughtful planning of the women and Mrs. Rollins and the members of the Woman's Association are to be congratulated on the splendid results obtained.

Contribution Tea Held at Home Of Mrs. Stobie

On Wednesday afternoon the home of Mrs. George H. Stobie, Campbell Street, was the scene of a charmingly arranged "Contribution" tea sponsored by the members of the Alpha Lambda Chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, which acts as a junior auxiliary to the Hospital Auxiliary and is responsible for the supplying of articles for the layettes for the Samaritan cupboard at the hospital. Baskets of chrysanthemums added to the attractiveness of the spacious rooms.

The guests were received by the hostess, Mrs. Stobie, who is social sponsor of the Sorority, Mrs. William McCutcheon, director, and Miss Marion Rafuse, vice president, who acted in the absence of the President, Miss Margaret Anderson. Mrs. J. S. Howe was convener of the successful affair. The living room was in charge of Mrs. Robert Boyce and Miss Peggy Doolittle.

The tea table with its lace cloth and centre arrangement of yellow rosebuds and black candles in silver candelabra was presided over by Mrs. John Deacon, Mrs. G. A. Morton, Mrs. William Doyle, Mrs. A. E. Miles, and Miss M. Byers. Mrs. Ray Wood, Misses Barbara Rutherford, Mary Truaisch, May Smith, Helen Jeffrey, Monique La Porte, and Geraldine Trimble served the many guests.

Mrs. Ray Putman was in charge of the draw on the cake donated by Mrs. R. Stiver and won by Mrs. Edward Follwell.

Chaperone? Oh, No Not for Elizabeth

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London. (CP)— Like her great-great-grandmother, Victoria—who long before the days of the suffragettes showed that a woman has a mind of her own—Princess Elizabeth has already influenced the ways of British society.

For one thing, she has killed the chaperone of pre-war days stone dead.

Nowadays guests go to dances patronized by the young princess with no more ceremony than the village girl goes to a local "hop" —without footmen or dowagers in tow.

Young society women arrive at the front entrance clutching their long skirts to keep them out of the dust. Young guards and naval officers whiz around in battered sports cars and sometimes battered motorcycles.

Sometimes parties of laughing girls arrive sitting on each other's knees in old family cars. Many have rushed home from jobs in offices, schools, stores and hospitals and hurried into their glad rags.

The princess herself still keeps up a certain formality and invariably goes to dances in her own chauffeur-driven car. Since her engagement she has not been escorted to a dance by anyone but her fiance, Lieut. Philip Mountbatten.

But right up to the time her engagement was announced she was still to be seen at West End dances and parties partnered by some handsome young officer of the Guards.

In pre-war times it would have been customary for a third party, usually an elder person, to accompany her. But Elizabeth didn't dance in those days and since then she has summarily dispensed with chaperones.

"She has her own idea of right and wrong," a friend said, "and while she has never done anything flagrantly unconventional I certainly would not call her conventional."

Buffet Service Convenient and Delightful For Dessert-Bridge Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I read with very much interest your suggestions in your column recently about what to serve at a dessert-bridge party. I would like to give this kind of party, for it sounds so practical and inexpensive. But my dining-room is so small and therefore the dining-table so limited that I couldn't have seated luncheon-service for the number of guests I would like to invite for bridge. For such an occasion, where there is really only one "course", would buffet service be entirely out-of-order?

S. R.

Buffet service would be correct, suitable, and delightful for this dessert-bridge party. Doubtless your dining-table would be large enough to set as a buffet table, and when the guests have been served or serve themselves to the dessert and coffee, they might take their plates and cups and saucers to the bridge tables or to other convenient places in the living-room. (If you have appropriate cloths for your bridge tables, you might prefer to serve the dessert and coffee directly at the bridge tables, rather than have a buffet table.)

This is Not Correct Form For Envelope of Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow and my son, 26 years old, lives with me. Yesterday we received an invitation to dinner from a delightful woman and her husband who have recently come to this medium-sized town to live and whom we have met quite a few times at our church and in the homes of several mutual friends. To my amazement the envelope of the note was addressed to "Mrs. Mary Allen and Son"! To me the "Mrs. Mary Allen" is always distressing, because I have never used that form of name, always using "Mrs. John Allen", but apparently she has heard me called "Mary" and thought a widow should use her first name with the "Mrs.". But what about ". . . and Son" . . . . is that correct form to use on an envelope of an invitation?

Reader

Her form for the names on the envelope is indeed wrong on two counts: (1) she should have written "Mrs. John Allen", and (2) should not have included "and SON". Her note of invitation to dinner should have been addressed to you, and your son should have been included in the invitation, for example, like this: "My husband and I (or Bill and I) would like very much to have you and your son come to dine with us, informally, on . . ."

Candles on Tea-Table to "Give a Lovely Light"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As a wedding present I received a pair of quite large silver candelabra which I have not yet had an opportunity to use. Now I am going to give a tea, inviting as many of our relatives and friends as possible (this really a "substitue" for the wedding reception we were not able to have), and I am wondering if it would be correct for me to use these candelabra on the dining-table which I will have set a tea-table. If so, should the candles be lighted? And what color candles do you suggest?

R. E. U.

Yes, do use your lovely candelabra on your dining-table set as your tea table. A candle-lighted tea-table glows a warm-hearted welcome to guests! Indeed have the candles lighted . . . I suggest either white candles or ones of a rich ivory shade. The candelabra may be used in various ways for decorative light: one on each side of a central flower-decoration, or in diagonal corners, or together in the centre of the table.

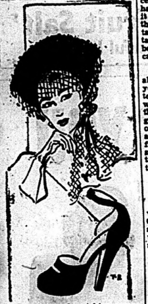
Accessories For Fall



Brown hat and matching pumps

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

THE BICORNE, with its sweeping brim, emerges as one of the millinery Fall favorites. The model illustrated is of brown velour and it is simply but most effectively trimmed with a pale blue dotted wide-meshed veil that is draped over the hat and tied in back. Brown suede is used for the neat ankle-strap pump that has an oval cut-out on the vamp and beige piping.

A Scarf and a Hat Combine

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THIS ADVANCE Fall hat took this customer's eye because of its size and silhouette, which is really small enough to stay put, but which gives the effect of a large brimmed hat. The color is most effective, too, as the beaver hat is turquoise blue, while the printed sheer wool scarf trim is a pattern of soft Persian colors.

The hat is slashed to permit the scarf draping, and the long ends of the scarf may be worn floating or wrapped neckerchief fashion as photographed.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

To Dye or Not to Dye

Lovelies of the silver screen can change from brunette to blonde, to redhead and back again without the slightest damage to their locks. But they have expert attentions. Hair dyeing and bleaching has become a cosmetic art. A Hollywood specialist, who has been known nationally for years, tells us that any one doing this work must have wide experience and a knowledge of chemicals. The character of the hair must be considered. A medium that will do well by one thatch will not be a happy choice for the next one.

For a woman to attempt home treatment to change the color of her hair is to take a risk. She may be able to touch up a few grey hairs here and there, but that is something quite different from ducking in the dye pot.

She cannot see the back of her head. She knows nothing about timing, which is important. To get the right shade is difficult even for professionals, who make careful tests before going ahead with the project.

A woman who has been using peroxide and who changes to henna pours troubles on her head. Her locks may take on a carroty hue that will just about break her heart.

If a woman must dye or die, led her seek professional care, and the very best at that.

8-26
Helene Stevens

Cinema stars change from brunette, to blond, to redhead and back again.

It often happens that the hair must undergo conditioning treatment before the presto-change act is attempted. That is particularly true if the hair has been over-bleached and the misguided lady realizes that the normal color is far more becoming. Bleaching changes the character of the shafts. In the course of time they become jute-like, may break at the touch of the comb. It isn't the peroxide that brings about that unhappy state of affairs, but the ammonia that is added to speed up the work.

The most difficult jobs have to do with the pepper-and-salt thatch. The dark shafts may take on a dark color, the white ones may be several shades lighter. Experts know how to get around that difficulty. The home experimenter just makes a mess of the whole business.

One still hears women talking about walnut stains or sage tea as coloring agents. These were the resources of our great-grandmothers, and a fine time they must have had trying to disguise their grey threads. Walnut stains the scalp as well as the hair. Sage tea gives grey hair a greenish tint. Well, maybe they didn't mind.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Does It Pay to Be Good

A young woman, who has just had a very disillusioning experience with a young man she has been close to since the age of 13, has reached the cynical frame of mind in which she wants to know if it pays to be a good girl. She also wants to know if a man could stop loving a girl as suddenly as hers seems to have done, and if I think he will ever come back to her.

Her story is that this 22-year-old chap was impatient to get a lien on her affections from the time he was 16, and constantly nagged at her for several years to get her to "go steady". She, however, felt that they were too young for anything serious and asked him to wait until they had finished school. Even though nothing was definitely agreed between them, however, there was a tacit understanding that this would occur at the proper time.

"If we were engaged," she tells me, "we couldn't have been happier or together any more."

Out of this apparently serene sky, a storm suddenly blew up. It came so completely without warning that she was astounded when he told her one day he had invited another girl to attend a social event with him. The next day he came around and told her he had decided he wanted to be free and wasn't coming to see her any more. When she asked him if there was anyone else in whom he was interested, he said no.

That was the end of the friendship and now, bewildered by the sudden change, she asks the questions that I mentioned at the beginning of this article.

Her question about whether or not it pays to be a good girl would seem to suggest that she believes if she had been a little less virtuous, she might have been able to hold her man. This I doubt very much. He might have stayed around longer, but developments would seem to indicate that sooner or later he would have been off, no matter what she did.

This is the practical and specific way of looking at the matter. Taking it in more general fashion, and looking to it from the standpoint of the principle of the thing, the only way to tell what pays off and what does not pay off in life is to make up your mind exactly what you want and then decide whether or not it is worth the price you must pay to get it. If a girl wants true happiness, peace of mind, respect and affection from those whose opinions she most values, she will hold on to her standards and her self-respect no matter what temptations she may have to forget them. In this case, the price she pays to get what she wants is to give up those things that do not contribute to her fundamental values. If, on the othery hand, she wants momentary pleasures more than ultimate good, she pays for them by forfeiting the worthwhile things.

My correspondent's question about whether or not it is possible for a man to stop loving a girl suddenly, as hers apparently did, I would answer by saying that I do not believe he ever loved her. Their long years of childhood association no doubt gave him a certain measure of affection for her, but there was probably a lot of mere habit in their association, and the habit grew less strong as the boy grew older, till it was too weak to hold him any longer.

The third question about whether or not he will come back is one that no one in the world could possibly answer. If he discovers that no other girl suits him as well as his first childhood sweetheart, he may decide to try to revive the old association. But it is just as likely that he may be gone for good, and, if so, I think she should be well satisfied. I feel sure she will eventually do much better in the realm of romance.

Fashion Flashes

A STAND-OUT in youthful dance frocks is the ankle-length ballet skirt—made even fuller over a half-slip of crinoline for a real stand-out effect. Nice in contrast to a brief, off-the-shoulder decolletage. Nice in deep forest-green satin.

AN EASY JOB of laundering is always a boon in these busy times. So there is extra charm in a beautiful nightgown of black nylon with its sweeping skirt permanently accordion-pleated. So just a tubbing and there it is!

VERY FULL crowns obtain on the newest hats. An off-the-face design is of winter wine felt, itis drum-shaped, bloused crown mounted in a full bumper brim. Hat is trimmed with wide, tucked draperies of deep rose velvet touched with a cluster of little gilt balls.

HIGH STYLE coats are attracting much attention. A really different design is a coat of dark brown broadcloth cut on molding, princess lines that break into a rippled hemline flounce. Quaker collar is draped with deep mink bands, and there are flared gauntlet cuffs of mink.

A NICE IDEA is that of a silk scarf with a pocket hankie to match. Nice in plain and shaded colors, and with tiny sequin touches. It is easy to make for the handy girl, now that the fabric counters are well supplied.

NOVELTIES continue to appear in the accessory field. For a nice conversation piece that makes sense, choose a wide cowhide belt with a big, non-tarnishable, square gilt buckle that acts as a frame for a matching gilt compact that slides in and out. Belt is narrow in back and is decorated with gold-colored studs.

Dog Attacks Master After Smelling Wolf

Port Arthur Nov. 5. —One of the strangest tales to come out of the northwest, a story of a struggle to the death between a dog and his master, after a deer-hunting expedition, was told here today by a 72-year-old farmer of Intola, 10 miles west of Port Arthur.

Henry Stahlhammar, his right hand and left arm swathed in bandages, told officials of the Fish and Wild Life Division, Department of Lands and Forests, of being forced to shoot his dog when the animal apparently became maddened after smelling a timber wolf shot by his master. The dog sprang at his throat and arm. The incident occurred on the Stahlhammar farm, about 16 miles northwest of Port Arthur.

In company with the dog, a large collie, and his constant companion about the farm, Mr. Stahlhammar set out in search of deer. His original intentions were deferred, however, upon the sight of a lone timber wolf in pursuit of three deer.

The farmer shot the wolf dead, then, out of curiosity, called the dog over to the fallen animal. The collie took one sniff, turned and charged his master. After ripping through a heavy leather mitt, Mr. Stahlhammar wore on his right hand, and slashing through to the flesh of his left arm, the dog leaped for the farmer's throat. Mr. Stahlhammar then shot the dog.

SAVED BY A SHOELACE

Auckland, N.Z. — (CP)— A motor-cyyclist here owes his life to the strength of his shoelace. He collided with a tramcar and his shoelace caught in a bolt in the front of the car. He was dragged 30 feet with his head only two inches from the wheels.

ADMITTED DUTY FREE

Ottawa, Nov. 6 —(CP)— Officials of the United Kingdom Information Service said they had been informed from London that unsolicitated gifts entering the U. K. and plainly marked as such are admitted duty-free. Previously it was believed that Britons receiving gift packages were required to pay duty which normally would apply on the items received. Thus sugar sent as an unsolicited gift would enter the U. K. duty-free.

BUT ACT NOW

Scrambling to make a Will when danger threatens is probably better than not making one at all but the preparation of such an important document should not be left to the confusion of a last minute rush.

Making a Will is something that can easily be attended to before emergencies arise. This duty should not be neglected. The logic and advantages of appointing a Corporate Executor and Trustee are obvious and well recognized.

All that is needed to get the job done, and done well, is to ask us to help you plan your Will, which we shall gladly do without charge. You can then have it drawn in proper legal form, naming The Royal Trust Company your Executor and Trustee, execute the Will and file it with us for safekeeping.

Canadian Novelist Finds Nova Scotia Stimulating for Creative Writing

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Liverpool, N. S., Nov. 6—(CP) — In this quiet south shore town where fishermen, farmers and millhands mix, Thomas H. Raddall, one-time wireless operator and office accountant, is turning out novels, short stories and historical sketches that are finding more and more Canadian readers.

To Raddall, author of five historical novels, Nova Scotia is a "Little Canada." It contains a variety of life, a mixture of sea and shore, as it were, that he says can be found nowhere else. Here the Canadian writer has a widely varied field at his disposal and Raddall still is drawing upon it —with no signs of slowing up.

Raddall finds that the environment of the Maritimes is more stimulating for creative writing than any other part of the country and he has no intention of moving. The titles of books by other writers bear him out in this. Some of them displayed during Canadian book week were "Down in Nova Scotia," "More about Nova Scotia," "Cape Breton Over," "Away to Cape Breton" and "Stories of the Land of Evangeline."

Sitahtion Has Changed

Raddall says that the picture of Canadian writing has changed altogether in the last 20 years, especially since 1939.

"Maritime writers are more than holding up their end in Canadian literature, although New Brunswick writers haven't come forth so much in the last few years. The great interest in writing among servicemen didn't wait for the end of the war and young writers have made great strides.

"During the war people in other countries discovered that there were Canadians who were not trappers and Indians. They wanted to find out what Canada was really like and what Canadians thought and felt. Now Canadian writers are telling them, and ably."

Raddall is only one of a number of writers using the Maritime background in their present work. Will R. Bird of Halifax won the $500 Ryerson fiction award this year with his "Judgment Glen."

Loyalists in New Brunswick form the setting for Grace Tompkin's "Welcome Wilderness," Dorothy Duncan's "Bluenose" deals with exactly what the title suggests, and Charles Bruce's "The Flowing Summer" is a book of poetry dealing with childhood days on the Atlantic seaboard.

Many have classed Hugh MacLennan's "Barometer Rising" among the best books published in Canada, not so much for its story, but because of its grippling description of the Halifax explosion in 1917.

Since "Barometer Rising" MacLennan, husband of Dorothy Duncan, has moved to North Hatley, Que., and turned out "Two Solitudes." Raddall believes this book, like many other recent Canadian works, is setting Canadians and influencing their thinking.

Claim Pratt as Own

Nova Scotians are apt to claim Prof. E. J. Pratt as their own, although he is a native of Newfoundland and now teaches English at the University of Toronto. Regarded by many as Canada's senior poet, he turns often to the haunting theme of the sea.

To present-day Maritime writers, the literary giants of the seaside provinces still are Thomas Chandler Haliburton, who wrote "Sam Slick," and poet Bliss Carman.

Raddall believes that a great deal of Canadian writing produced in the last 20 years will continue to be read in the years to come. He wouldn't hazard a guess on what works they would be, however. "Every writer hopas he'll be the one to be read by posterity."

The tall, athletic novelist, who often camps out with Indians and takes along an Indian guide when he goes on his numerous hunting and fishing trips, now is working on an "Account Of" Halifax, originally intended to be one of the "Port" series. It will be completed next spring, when Raddall will embark on another novel whose setting will be on an island off the south shore. He hasn't decided on a name for it yet.

Raddall says he thought of turning out historical novels because "the history taught me in school didn't jibe with the facts as I learned them in later years."

"I wanted to tell what really happened, but it doesn't mean I'll turn them out forever," he added.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT

As dramatic as any performance given on the stage was this capture of an alleged safe-breaker in the office of the Cort Theatre, New York The man, shown as he was searched by one of the arresting officers, identified himself as Nicholas Chiarito. He was one of two men captured when a suspicious watchman summoned the police. The other man said he was Walter Oliver. According to police, Oliver and Chiarito were trying to knock the combination off the safe when surprised by the officers. They surrendered without a struggle. Four other members of the gang escaped. They got nothing.

REALIZES LIFELONG AMBITION

Kitchener, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Ten years ago a little Scottish girl waved her mother good - bye as the latter sailed on a trip to Canada and wept because she could not go. Today the girl, now a young married woman, realized a lifelong ambition when she arrived in the Dominion this week in conjunction with the Ontario government's air immigration plan.

Mrs. Albert Placquet and her husband, both veterans of the war, are planning to make their home in this city.

Closing Dates For Christmas Overseas Mails

Gift parcels of foodstuffs and comforts will do much to brighten the Christmas this year of those overseas who are living under "austerity" conditions.

The Canadian Post Office, however, again urges the public not to delay, but to mail for Christmas overseas just as early as possible.

For the guidance of the public it announces that the following closing dates have been set for the overseas Christmas mails:

November 8th — The Continent — Letters and parcels.

November 15th — The United Kingdom — Parcels.

November 29th — The United Kingdom — Letters.

Mailers are reminded the Gift parcels, if bona fide and unsolicited may be mailed up to 20 lb. weight to individuals in the United Kingdom, but must be plainly marked, "Gift Parcel."

Parcels containing food cannot be insured.

Attach Labels

To expedite the delivery in the United Kingdom of gift parcels containing food only a Yellow Label (No. 61) obtainable at Post Offices, should be attached. The usual Customs Declaration Form (91B) fully completed, must be affixed to all parcels addressed abroad. Care should be taken to see that the non-adhesive Customs Declaration Form (15B) and Despatch Note (16B) are completed and forwarded with the parcel where necessary.

The total value of the contents of parcels sent to the United Kingdom or other countries without an export permit must not exceed $25.

Mailers are urged to pack all parcels firmly and securely in strong corrugated containers, wrapped tightly in several folds of thick wrapping paper, and securely tied with strong twine.

Do not pack parcels in shoe boxes, or use tissue paper for outer wrapper, or ribbon to tie the outside of the parcel.

Enclose only articles suitable for mailing. Be certain that all mail is fully prepaid, correctly and clearly addressed, and that a return address is given on the outside of the paper. Enclose a slip with the contents of the parcel giving the names and complete addresses of sender and addressee.

SUDDEN GALE CATCHES CALIFORNIA COAST UNPREPARED

A severe storm with winds raging some 35 miles per hour hit the Los Angeles area suddenly on Monday causing some damage to the coastal section. Huge waves are pictured breaking over the fishing boat at Redondo Beach as crowd gathers on shore to watch. The 30-foot craft, moored near breakwater, broke loose in the heavy winds and was dashed against the rocks. The boat owned by G. E. Gillard, was a total loss.

EX-VICE PRESIDENT HAS WORD FOR IT!

"Stop worrying. And the way to stop worrying is to forget all your troubles. They don't amount to anything anyway." That is the philosophy of this placid man who sits in the sun shucking pecan nuts in the backyard of his Tennessee home. He is John Nance Garner, vice-president of the United States for two terms under F. D. Roosevelt. Today he'll talk about anything — except politics. When he quit politics in 1941, he said he was through. He has kept his word.

Producers Must Get Fair Price Says President

Kingston, Nov. 6 — (CP)—J.L. Ballantyne, president of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association, speaking today at annual meeting of the Frontenac Association declared it was the duty of the producer to convince the government that producers must get a fair price for what they can sell in order that they can pay the price of manufactured goods.

"We are all caught in the squeeze between the prices we get and the cost of things we want to buy," he said.

"The Ontario Royal Milk Commission suggested $2.67 per hundred pounds of milk would be a fair price. If we added another 50 cents to that we wouldn't be asking too much."

L. B. Cronk of Parham was re-elected president of the Frontenac Cheese Producers Association.

Jury Acquits James Angus

Cobourg, Nov. 6 — (CP) — James Angus of Brantford, was acquitted last night on charges of attempted murder, assault with intent to cause grievous bodily harm and wounding in the knifing April 27 of Jack Jackson in a cabin at nearby Baltimore.

The jury hearing the case against the 43-year-old Angus deliberated one hour.

In his testimony, Angus said he had visited the cabin with a knife after being told that his wife was "running around with a man named Jack Jackson."

Angus said he had found his wife in the cabin when he reached the place. He said that when he had asked her what she was doing she had replied, "None of your business." Angus testified he had taken out the knife while in the cabin to defend himself against Jackson.

Diamonds Sold By Government

Ottawa, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Five large diamonds, seized from an Austrian woman as she attempted to smuggle them into the United States from Canada in 1940, have been sold for approximately $9,300 and the money goes to the Dominion treasury, a finance department official disclosed last night.

Sale of the stones, ranging from 1½ to about 3.85 karats, was carried out by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police which put them up for bids in Montreal and Toronto. They were disposed of individually to jewelry concerns.

The spokesman said that at the time the stones were seized from the woman, who attempted to smuggle them over the border aboard a train bound for Buffalo, N. Y., and New York.

Postal Officers Seize Bags of Overseas Mail

Toronto, Nov. 6. (CP)— The Globe and Mail said in a newspage story today that postal authorities at Ottawa have seized bags of overseas mail containing receipts for tickets purchased by Canadians in the Irish Sweepstakes, and that already 10,000 letters have been sent by the post office to Canadians asking them to refrain from using the mails for illegal purposes.

The newspaper said that a special staff is sifting contents of the intercepted mail bags from Ireland and that many more thousands of form letters will go out to ticket purchasers.

The Foreign Exchange Control Board was also reported interested in the lottery mail. Sending of money out of Canada for this purpose is a breach of currency regulations "and it is understood the Board is co-operating with postal authorities in stopping the flight of currency overseas," said the story.

All names on the seized receipts were reported to have been placed in a black list file. "Denying the use of the mails to an individual is considered drastic action but there is a possibility of prosecution if persons on the black list defy the warning and continue to buy or sell tickets," the newspaper said.

BABY'S COLDS

Help Nature To Fight Them Off

Medical Science denies there is any such thing as a cure for colds—only Nature herself can do it. So when baby's sniffles, or stuffy breathing warn you of a cold's presence—cooperate at once with Nature.

See that baby is kept warm, gets plenty of sleep and take extra care that the bowels are thoroughly cleared of harmful wastes. To do this without upsetting baby's whole system and further weakening it, try Baby's Own Tablets. Mild, yet act promptly in getting rid of the irritating materials that make baby restless and feverish. Mrs. George McBride of Scarboro says: "My baby of 26 months caught a nasty cold so I tried Baby's Own Tablets and she threw this cold off quicker than ever before. I certainly am for Baby's Own Tablets from now on." Effective also in teething troubles, constipation and other simple baby ailments. 25¢.

What It Is!

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within 10 minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves backache, bladder irritations and weakness.

Those ravaging acids that accumulate and irritate your stomach—fill you with gas—sour your food and cause constipation.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your sufferings in a day or week —remains to be seen, but in light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25c, only a fraction of its worth. Welch's Action Suspicious Says Coroner's Jury

Aylmer, Nov. 6 — (CP) — A coroner's jury holding inquest yesterday into the death by poisoning of Florence Welch, 31, last Aug. 21, recommended that every effort be made to prove "the guilt or innocence" of the woman's husband, 24-year-old Vernon Welch.

The verdict said that evidence was that Welch's actions had been "most suspicious."

Welch did not appear at the inquest and his whereabouts are unknown. Police previously failed to locate him when they sought to serve a subpoena for his attendance at the inquest.

An autopsy showed that Mrs. Welch died from poisoning and police were unable to trace the source of a large vial of the type of poison which was found in a search of the Welch home.

The bottle found in the husband's shaving kit contained what Prof. J. L. Rogers of the Ontario Attorney-General's Department said was 40 to 50 grains of an unusual form of an ordinary poison, of which less than one grain could be fatal.

Angle Parking No Time Limit By-Law Passed

Picton. (Special.)—Angle parking, with no time limit restrictions, will return to Picton if a by-law passed by Town Council last night, is approved by the Ontario Department of Highways. For the Summer months, parallel parking with an hour time limit has been enforced on Main Street. As a result, a large number of motorists have received summons for infractions.

A delegation of anti-parallel parking merchants appeared before council to voice their objections. Though all were against parallel parking, not all were agreed as to the angle or the hour limit.

In passing the by-law, council included a request to merchants to make all clerks park their cars at the rear of stores, instead of filling Main Street with them as was the custom before hour parking was enforced.

Not in Agreement

Several merchants contended that parallel parking adversely affected their business.. Deputy Reeve R. Cockburn did not agree with this, stating "farmers do not like to have doors slammed in their faces".

Councillor William Henley advocated a policy of "first come, first served".

Mayor L. Nethery stated he felt parallel parking permitted cars to stop to pick up parcels at stores and still not block traffic. He saw merit in the hour parking limit as it allowed more cars to use Main Street.

Ex-Mayor Ralph Warren declared Picton's parking restrictions were forcing people to shop in the villages.

Fred Stafford and Sam Gentil, grocers, both said business was being lost due to the system. They claimed less cars are coming to Picton.

Duncan D'Esterre cited difficulty in parallel parking of cars. A petition with 17 names was presented by the delegation.

Merchants Censored

Reeve J. C. Cooper censored merchants who filled streets with their own cars, forcing farmers to use back streets.

Walter Pope and S. Gentil suggested fining merchants for parking cars all day on Main Street. Mayor Nethery pointed out council has no power to pass a by-law to discriminate against merchants alone.

Angle parking won't solve the problem, said Councillor C. H. McGibbon, who recalled criticism of that system.

Councillor C. H. McKibbon felt the will of the people should prevail.

Building Permits

Building permits granted H. J. McFarland were for a $4,000 concrete block house on Jane St.; a $6,000 frame and brick house on Jane and Johnson St., for Mayor Nethery; a carpenter shop and stock room, costing $3,500 on Talbot Street; a garage costing $25,000 on Talbot Street.

Walter Boyer was given a permit to convert a building into apartments, and Elmer Branscombe to erect two cabins.

Repeal By-Law

Council instructed the Clerk to prepare a by-law to repeal the early closing by-law for garages and service stations.

Salaries of Fire Chief W. Reid and Deputy Chief George Jones and Captain Sam Hollingsworth were increased $25 per year.

Nearly 250 volunteers joined in seach at High Park for missing Arlene Anderson, 13-year-old partly crippled child who disappeared Sunday evening. Fellow express company employees of the father, William Anderson, friends and neighbors scoured the ravines of the big park last night under direction of police from the Ossington station. Hope for the girl's safety dimmed as the hunt entered its fourth day. It was thought she may have been abducted by a degenerate and slain.

SPING TRADE FAIR FIRST OF ITS KIND IN NORTH AMERICA

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Toronto, Nov. 4 (CP)—Would you like to buy an edible Chinese bird's nest? Or does your taste run to a deisel locomotive or tram car which you may call your own?

They will be for sale with thousands of other articles at the Canadian International Trade Fair in Toronto May 31 to June 12 next year.

To get them, however, you will have to be a buyer from an accredited firm. For this is an event to get the buyers and sellers of the world together in one big market-place; every product on display must be for sale, and for delivery within a reasonable time.

There will be no midway, no ferris wheel, no fortune tellers. The general public will be allowed in on Saturdays, but otherwise attendance is by invitation only, though interested buyers will be invited on request.

Some 120,000 invitations to buyers are planned, of which 90,000 have already been mailed; United States and Canadian invitations will go out in January. They will see 1,050 exhibits from 25 countries on a floor space of about 750,000 square feet, treble what was originally planned.

Telling the World

World-wide advertising in 15 languages, including Arabic and Erse, is being carried on, requiring a translation set-up approaching United Nations proportions. Newspaper men attending, as well as exhibitors, will have complete services of interpreters. There will be linguists and secretaries, restaurants and smart club rooms.

From a spectacle point of view one of the most interesting shows will be a display by 50 Swiss watch and clock manufacturers in which a complete factory will demonstrate the full process of manufacture. Jewelry and semi-precious stones from India will be side by side with others from Portugal, emeralds from South America, set and unset stones from Singapore.

The Fair is patterned after similar events carried on for years in Europe, but is the first of its kind in North America. It is designed to stimulate trading among all countries of the world, but will also be a show place for Canada herself, which is the world's third trading country and whose citizens make one-third of their incomes from the export business.

It was authorized in August, 1946, by the Canadian government which is issuing the invitations through the Department of Trade and Commerce. Responsibility for organization is delegated to the Canadian Government Exhibition Commission under the direction of Glen Bannerman. R. H. Dayton is administrator and an advisory committee includes representatives of Canadian Exporters' Association, Canadian Importers and Traders Association, Canadian Manufacturers' Association and Canadian Chamber of Commerce. It will be held in buildings of Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition.

GEORGIA FARMER CLUBBED TO DEATH

Ellaville, Ga., Nov. 6 —(AP)— John Stratford, 64-year-old farmer, was clubbed to death with his own rifle; a hoe and a claw hammer and Sheriff Edgar Devane said he was taking "all precautions" to avoid mob violence against five Negroes accused of the slaying. Immediately upon their arrest the Negroes—a mother and her four sons—were hurried to separate and undisclosed jails.

New Course Would Train Nurses In 22 Months

Toronto, Nov. 6. (CP)— To overcome the critical shortage of nurses in Ontario a special demonstration course is under consideration whereby qualified nurses can be trained in 22 months instead of the present three years.

The special courses in clinical nursing, sponsored by the Canadian Nurses' Association and financed by the Red Cross Association, will continue for four years, Miss Priscilla Campbell of Chatham, Ont., retiring president told the Ontario Hospital Association Convention here yesterday.

Miss Campbell also said the hospital association is working on a plan to provide pensions for hospital employees. She stressed the shortage of all types of hospital personnel and said, "an increased hospital budget and improved working and living conditions would assist in solving this urgent problem."

Miss Edith G. Young of Ottawa Civic Hospital, reporting on nursing staff conditions said a survey of 26 representative Canadian hospitals in January this year showed most of the nursing service was by students.

"The needs of hospital patients have to be considered first rather than the students' education needs. As a result the students have too few hours of instruction and too many hours non-education services," she said.

Mrs. E. Cottrell Back on Farm

South River, Ont., Nov. 6 — (CP) — With plans for a new home for her and her children, Mrs. Edna Cottrell, 33-year-old mother of eight, is back in the farm shack where she shot her husband last July.

An Assize Court jury at Parry Sound Oct. 24 acquitted her of murder after she swore the killing followed her husband's attempts to molest his young daughters. She told a long story of her husband's drunkenness and abusive conduct.

She was alone when she stepped off the train here Tuesday, her children remaining under care of welfare officials at Parry Sound, but neighbors rallied quickly to help her with house-cleaning and renovation of the shack.

A fund has been started to build a new house for the family but contributions to date scarcely exceed $500. Local workmen have volunteered to assist when the fund is large enough to get the building under way.

Meantime Mrs. Cottrell plans to improve her dingy, tar-papered shack.

"I can divide this room into two bedrooms and a kitchen, put a front door in and windows here and here," she said. "I am sure I can make it very attractive — paint and wallpaper go a long way, you know. We have never had much, but this farm we own is so much better than being pushed from pillar to post in a town or city that I want to live here."

Ontario Synod Meets First Time In 12 Years

Brantford, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Churchmen, both clerical and lay, Wednesday attended a service of Holy Communion at Grace Anglican Church after which they began consideration of a lengthy agenda as the Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario, Church of England in Canada, convened for the first time in 12 years.

The beautiful service was conducted by Most Rev. C. A. Seager, Archbishop of Huron and Metropolitan of Ontario, assisted by Bishops of the other Dioceses in Ontario. Archbishop Seager will preside over sessions of the Synod.

Bishops and delegates are present from the Dioceses of Ottawa, Ontario, Toronto, Algoma, Moosonee and Niagara as well as from the Diocese of Huron.

Arriving throughout Tuesday and early Wednesday morning, the delegates totalled about 90.

The Archbishop and the six Bishops comprise the Upper House and the other clergy and laity, totalling nearly 90 sit as the Lower House.

After Archbishop Seager delivered his charge to the Synod before the two houses, they separated to begin their respective agenda.

Following luncheon, the Synod was to receive delegations, including Hon. Ray Lawson, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, Mayor John H. Matthews and Rev. C. C. Boyter, president of the Brantford Ministerial Association.

A Synod service open to the public had been planned for Wednesday evening.

DIVORCE TOO EASY S. AFRICA CHURCH ASKS TOUGHER LAW

By DENNIS E. RYAN
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Johannesburg, Nov. 4—(CP) — South Africa's churches are deeply perturbed by increased divorce and domestic disruption in the Union, and they are recommending changes in the divorce laws, making it harder to obtain a divorce.

At the European representative session of the annual Methodist Synod, held recently, the chairman, Rev. J. B. Webb, said South Africans were "in the second generation of broken homes." A large percentage of those who were experiencing domestic disturbances, were themselves the products of broken homes and many had never known the stabilizing influence of both parents living in harmony and co-operating.

Main factor contributing to this unhappy state is, he said, waning sense of the vocation of parenthood. Sacrifices, inseparable from the advent of children, are being either repudiated or grudgingly made and children regarded as a nuisance. There is widespread repudiation of the Christian ideal of marriage as a monagamous, life-long obligation. Other contributory factors, said Mr. Webb, are intemperanee, gambling, and the housing shortage.

He suggested that home-life campaigns, marriage - guidance bureaux might contribute towards solving some of the problems.

The Dutch Reformed Churches, however, have put forward more concrete proposals in a memorandum to the government.

The memorandum asks that existing divorce laws should be amended so that adultery is regarded as a crime and not merely as ground for damages. Where a person has been divorced on the ground of adultery, he (or she) should not be allowed to marry the person with whom adultery was committed.

Ask Penalties

A man who has been divorced should not be allowed to remarry unless he can prove that provision has been made for his previous family. A man who does not fulfil his financial obligations to his former family, and cannot prove that it is impossible for him to do so, should be liable on conviction to a term of imprisonment.

It further suggests that there should be a judicial officer more or less like the king's proctor in England, to watch all divorce cases and intervene where he has reason to believe that the truth is not being told, or that any particular aspect of the case should be more closely investigated.

Where collusion or perjury is proved, the guilty party (or parties) should be charged and punished, and divorce should not be granted.

There should be a special court for divorces, with special judges trained also in the social sciences. A judge in a divorce case should be assisted by a sociologist as an adviser.

A reconciliation council with statutory powers, should be appointed in all large centres, and should be composed of married men and women — a lawyer, a psychiatrist, an economic assessor, a doctor and a social worker. Working in panels of five, they should thoroughly investigate all matters brought before them with a view, to persuading the parties to forgiveness and reconciliation. No judge should be allowed to hear a case unless a certificate is furnished to the effect that the parties concerned have already appeared before the reconciliation council.

The state should encourage marriages in the churches in preference to civil marriages.

JACK SLIPS AND WHEEL COMES DOWN ON MAN'S STOMACH

Boston, Nov. 6 —(AP)— Timothy Nyhan, 42-year-old accountant, found out his stomach is pretty rugged — but he isn't over-anxious to make another test.

Nyhan jacked up his automobile and crawled underneath to make repairs. The jack slipped and the rear right wheel came down on his stomach.

Extricated by police and firemen, Nyhan was taken to hospital where he was found to have suffered only minor contusions.

Franklin Mystery Linked to Cairns

Regina (CP)—A series of cairns in the barren lands lying north and west of Churchill may contain the answer to one of the most baffling mysteries of the North—that of the fate of members of the expedition led by Sir John Franklin, which vanished into the remote vastness of Canada's Arctic more than a century ago.

This is the belief of ex-inspector Frank French of the then Royal North West Mounted Police. French blazed the trail later followed by the Canadian Army's Exercise Muskox, which in its trip through the wilderness covered 5,553 miles in 11 months.

On his trip French came across three of the cairns, each of them between 150 and 200 miles apart on a rough line linking Bathurst Inlet, which bites into the North West Territories, with Fort Churchill, far to the southeast.

The cairns, he contends, could have been built only by a large group of men, for boulders weighing more than a ton formed the base of the largest. He believes their regular spacing confirms his belief that a large body of men was marching by navigational instruments.

Further, Fort Churchill was the one place in the region which could provide supplies to winter a large body of men.

Went Down in Ice

Two of the expedition's ships went down in the ice off the west coast of King William Island. French argues that the expedition on foot might have been trying to make its way to the mouth of the Coppermine River, which Franklin visited on a previous expedition. But on his death and the promotion of a new commander, the course was set for Churchill.

The first cairn French passed was the largest. It was at Schultze Lake. The second was north of Lake Garry and the third about 80 miles from the Arctic coast, near Ellis River.

When his dog team passed the first cairn a native guide told him another cairn was about a half-day's travel west of Ranken Inlet in Keewatin district, which would put it on the same imaginary line.

A newspaper reported recently that a prospector had found a large cairn near Nualtin Lake, 150 miles west of Churchill. This, French thinks, might contain records of the Franklin expedition.

He reported the strange monuments to Ottawa 30 years ago, but to his knowledge no action has yet been taken upon the report. He believes it to be quite possible the monuments hold the story of the Franklin expedition, and even if they do not, they hold the answer to some stirring saga of Arctic history as yet unknown and which should be investigated.

Mass Beheadings Were Greeting Of Native King to White Prince

By MAX BOYD

Cairo, Nov. 5 — (AP) — Two thousand miles south of Cairo, in the primitive capital of Uganda, a man called himself the White Prince, but better known to his late comrades in the United States army as Charles Chaille-Long, dressed carefully in glittering gold and red uniform.

Outside his establishment, where he had planted the Egyptian flag, the White Prince mounted his horse, an object of wonder and fear to savages who had never seen such an animal, and rode to the palace of King M'tesa.

As the visitor passed torhugh the gates of seven high walls made of straw and cane, cowbells announced his progress. Before a pyramidal structure of straw he dismounted. M'tesa, a tall, graceful man of 35 came forward. They exchanged salutes and sat down inside the king's hut.

Chaille-Long, a United States citizen serving as a lieutenant-colonel in the Egyptian army and pretending to be a prince, addressed M'tesa as follows:

"O great king of Africa, M'tesa, I come to salute you by order of the Pasha of Gondokoro, in the name of the great sultan at Cairo . . . the world has talked much of an unknown and great King M'tesa, and my august master . . . wishes to express his friendship for the greatest king of Africa."

For half an hour after this speech the king's subjects chanted praise of their monarch for bringing such a great prince to Uganda. This did not save 30 of them, however, from being seized and beheaded in honor of the visitor at the end of the interview.

The bloody sacrifice made Chaille-Long acktely aware of the danger of his position. He had only three soldiers, two Sudanese who had fought for Napoleon III in Mexico and a third born in Zanzibar who had lived in Uganda and spoke its language.

Painful Magic

Next day, accompanied by his three soldiers, he returned to the palace with gifts of calicoes, flannels, silks, satins, paste diamonds, rubies and sapphires. Next they produced a mirror 10 feet long and five feet wide, into which the king and his harem peered with fascination and dread. Then came a music-box grinding out "Il Trovatore" and "Miserere."

Chaille-Long saved until last an electric battery, the poles of which were connected by one of his soldiers as M'tesa took them in his hands. The king received a severe shock and insisted on his ministers experiencing the same painful magic. Chaille-Long's soldiers saw that each of them got a severe jolt. Then they handed the poles, disconnected, to the White Prince, who held them with no sign of shock or suffering.

M'tesa was so impressed that, at the American's request, he called an interpreter and addressed a letter to Khedive Ismail, acknowledging himself a vassal of Egypt.

The little-known adventures, victories and defeats of Chaille-Long and 49 other Americans who served in the Egyptian army between 1870 and the British occupation of 1882, have been brought out of the attic of history by Egypt's recent request for another group of United States military experts.

The story of the Americans who entered the service of Egypt after the United States Civil War runs through the faded records of the Egyptian government, the American embassy, and reports published by the Khedivial Geographical Society of Cairo. It was put together painstakingly some years ago by Pierre Crabites of Louisiana, former senior United States judge of the mixed tribunal here, and published by George Routledge and sons of London in 1938 under the title "Americans in the Egyptian Army."

Judge Crabites wrote that Khedive Ismail conceived the idea of enlisting Americans to extend his empire to the equator and shake off the overlordship then maintained over Egypt by Turkey.

Ismail was said to have accomplished his purpose by getting in touch unofficially with Gen. William T. Sherman, and asking his aid in choosing officers to act as military experts in the Egyptian service.

Civil War Veterans

One of the first engaged, Capt. Thaddeus P. Mott, a New Yorker who had served in the Union army, was made a general, assigned to duty as a Khedivial chamberlain and sent to the United States to sign up other officers.

Brig.-Gen. Charles P. Stone of Massachussetts, a West Pointer, who had fought in the Mexican war and in the Union army during the Civil War, became chief of staff of the Egyptian army, a post he held for more than a decade. When he retired in 1882 the Egyptian minister of the interior credited him with creating the general staff and officer corps of the army.

Chaille-Long of Maryland, the officer who visited King M'Tesa, was made chief of staff to Charles George Gordon, the lieutenant-colonel of royal engineers whom Khedive Ismail appointed governor-general of "the equatorial provinces" upon retirement of Sir Samuel Baker, the famous English explorer.

He travelled to Egypt with two other Americans — Col. Kennon, son of Commodore Kennon of the United States navy, and Maj. Cameron, a former chaplain who had shouldered a Confederate gun during the Civil War.

Crabites credited Chaille-Long with establishing friendly relations between Egypt and Uganda; with providing partial proof, which Gordon completed, of the Englishman Speke's contention that the Victoria Nile issued from Lake Victoria; with discovering a lake which the Khedive named Lake Ibrahim in honor of his father but which now is generally known as Lake Kioga; with subduing a force of 8,000 of 9,000 Yanbaris armed with poisoned arrows and lances; with freeing a caravan of 250 slave girls and marrying them to an occupation army, and with many other accomplishments.

MEAT RATION O.K.

Montreal (CP)—Found: One man who thinks the British meat ration is all right. Seventy-year-old A. MORE BUSES MEAN MORE FIGHTS FOR HARDY PARISIANS

By STANLEY HELLEUR

Paris (Reuters) —Some 25 new bus lines have been put into operation in Paris recently, resulting in approximately 500 more free-for-all fights a day at points throughout the capital.

It is fairly safe to say that there is nothing less disciplined than a Paris bus queque — unless it is a Paris shopping queue. A certain amount of order is maintained by bus conductors who refuse to allow anyone to stand beside the bus itself, while they draw the line at people climbing on the roof. But there discipline ends.

Would-be travellers maintain reasonable order while awaiting a bus but when it finally stops, the tussle between Parisians trying to get off and Parisians trying to get on the bus is something to behold.

In variably, someone has his corns trod on and it usually requires the intervention of a policeman or two— before order is restored.

Authorities have two measures aimed at minimizing the bruised ribs;

1. By instituting a system of priorities generally; and

2. By a system of numbers at stops where each would-be traveller turns a little handle and tears off the numbered slip which is delivered to him. He is then supposed to take his place according to his number.

"Priority" cards are reserved for the sick, aged, invalid ex-service women and pregnant women — and two weeks' travelling on a bus route would produce serious misgivings in any health official on the general well being of Parisians. It would seem that every second or third person holds a priority card.

The numbers system might work if passengers lined up according to their numbers. But they seldom do so. When the bus comes along, it is all a question of speed — and he who shouts loudest.

This instance, observed in the Place de la Concorde, shows how it works:

The conductor of a bus called for the lowest three numbers among a group of ten. A woman nearest the door shouted "568" and bustled into the bus. Those holding 566 and 565 followed her. The bus pulled away and those holding numbers down to 559 were left on the sidewalk shouting fiery protests.

Beaverbrook Driving Force Behind Big London Daily

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London —(CP) — Canadian-born Lord Beaverbrook has sold part of his interest in the London Daily Express but remains "the controlling owner, master-mind, and the final arbiter" of everything affecting the newspaper and its allied publications, says one of his fellow publishers.

"The outstanding success which the Daily Express has achieved is unquestionably the work of Lord Beaverbrook," writes Lord Camrose of the Daily Telegraph in his book "British Newspapers and Their Controllers" (Cassell and Co., Ltd.)

"He has able editors and efficient management, but the inspiration, the drive, and the never-ending thurst, have been his beyond all manner of doubt.

"Politically the influence of the Daily Express is not considered to measure up to its huge daily sale but of the continued appeal to the broad public the figures testify eloquently.

"It's controller is an inveterate individualist, a man of moods and fancies, audacious in a magnificent way, with nevertheless a Scotch carefulness minifesting itself actively from time to time. He is no ordinary man and he strives hard not to act in an ordinary way.

"The Express reflects that personality and whatever else you may say about it, it has proved more than successful in that field which its owner has cultivated for its own."

Lord Camrose, devoting a chapter to the Beaverbrook newspaper interest, describes the growth of the Express from 277,-947 copies a day in 1913 when it was "losing property" to something just short of 4,000,000 this year.

At one time Lord Beaverbrook, now visiting New Brunswick where he expects to spend a few months each year, "owned directly or indirectly nearly 100 percent" of Express shares, but some years before the Second World War some shares were placed on the market and today some of the principal Express executives are "quite substantial shareholders."

Lord Camrose lists three other newspapers in the Beaverbrook camp: the Sunday Express and Evening Standard, published in London and the Glasgow Evening Citizen. He calls the Standard the "quality" evening paper of London although its circulation is only half that of Lord Rothermere's Evening News.

"I have an idea that Beaverbrook would rather own the Evening News than the Standard," writes Lord Camrose. "Like the late Lord Northcliffe he is a believer in the 'big battalions,' and the more limited appeal of the Standard makes him chafe at times."

BRITONS SEEK HOMES IN B.C.

Vancouver (CP) — Harold Akerman, president of Vancouver Branch of the Society of St. George, has been deluged with letters since he volunteered information to Britons desiring to emigrate to Canada and British Columbia.

The rush started when Akerman wrote a letter to the London Daily Telegraph offering to give information about B.C. to readers.

Navajo Weaving Art Now Canadian Hobby

Winnipeg, (AP) — Al fresco weaving in the manner of the Indians of New Mexico and Arizona who makes Navajo rugs has been a Summer's pleasure for Mrs. William J. McGougan of Winnipeg.

Mrs. McGougan, an expert handicrafter, had wanted for some time to weave a Navajo rug and in June she set up her loom out of doors. Its posts are tree limbs about four inches in diameter. The cross-pieces are slightly less sturdy. A great elm supports the loom against some of the wind.

The warp threads had to be wound onto a frame on the ground, then the frame is set into the tree supports.

Mrs. McGougan worked out the design as she went. On a pale grey background are black arrows, triangles and diamonds of darker grey wool, and green and red.

Mrs. McGougan is Icelandic. Her home is full of looms and spinning wheels as well as piles of beautiful linens she has made. She showed visitors aprons with a row of dancing figures across the hemline; an all-weather beige gabardine coat made from her own material; her husband's tweed overcoat and various suits made on her loom. She doesn't attempt the tailoring.

Her mother lived with her until her death a year ago; she, too, was a spinner and weaver.

Loved German P.O.W., Blames Her Parents

Horsham, Sussex, England. — (CP)— A 15-year-old girl who told a juvenile court she tried to run away with a German prisoner-of-war and later attempted suicide because her parents failed to show affection for her, was placed on probation.

The magistrate told her he was not blaming the German, who "tried to make you happy". A letter from the girl to her parents, read in court, said:

> "You think because he is German he is not human, but I loved him even if I am only 15. If dad and you had shown me affection I might not have gone with him, but I want to feel somebody thought something of me and really loved me.

Hawks Lose Seventh Straight NHL Game Despite Acquisition Of New Strength From Leafs

Twice During Game All Five Players Traded to Chicago Played as Team

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Seven is popularly regarded as a lucky number, but not where Chicago Black Hawks are concerned.

Hawks went down to their seventh defeat in as many starts last night, bowing to Boston Bruins 2-1 in Chicago before 16,203 fans. Bruins used the triumph to push out in front of the National Hockey League standing with 11 points against the nine accumulated so far by Detroit Red Wings.

It was the only game of he evening, allowing N.H.L. fans to focus full attention on Hawks in their first showing since acquiring five players in this history-making trade that sent their top drawer scorer, Max Bentley, to Toronto Maple Leafs.

Even though the game added to their string of failures, Hawks displayed sharper form than in any other of their losing contests. In addition, their newly-obtained line of Gus Bodnar, Gaye Stewart and Bud Poile combined for the lone Chicago goal, with Stewart getting the marker.

The flying Forts—all three are from Fort William—played spectacular hockey throughout, accounting for the majority of 27 shots rifled by Hawks at goalie Frankie Brimsek as against 17 fired by Bruins at Emile Francis in the Chicago nets.

Stewart Clicks

Boston's goals were scored by Joe Carveth and Woody Dumart. Carveth slammed home his tally in the second minute of the opening period on a play with Jack Crawford and Milt Schmidt while Dumart struck pay dirt with a shot only 1 seconds after the start of the middle period.

It was midway through the second session when Stewart clicked for his tally as a Hawk. Bob Goldham and Ernie Dickens, former Toronto defenceman also involved in the big trade, also played good hockey on the Chicago rearguard. On two occasions in the scoreless third period the five ex-Leafs appeared together as a unit.

Two N.H.L. contests are schedled for tonight. Leafs engage Canadiens in Montreal with a chance to break their third-place tie of eight points each while Red Wings take on New York Rangers in Detroit.

While Hawks dropped their seventh game, by coincidence Max Bentley was assigned sweater No. 7 when he turned out for his first practice with Leafs yesterday. It's the same number worn by brother Doug with Hawks.

Bentley and Cy Thomas, rookie also involved in the Toronto-Chicago player shift, were put in partnership with Joe Klukay despite earlier reports that Thomas might possibly be sent to Pittsburgh Harnets in the American League and that Bentley would be paired off with Klukay and Don Metz.

Houston Huskies Close on the Heels Of Dallas Texans

(By The Associated Press)

Houston Huskies are close on the heels of Dallas Texans in the United States Hockey League race after the Huskies rallied for an 8-6 overtime victory over Kansas City last night as Omaha was trouncing Dallas 8-3.

The Huskies have eight points in the standings, one less than the Texans and four less than Fort Worth Rangers, who lead the southern division.

Paul Mundrick and Joe McArthur combined with Hubb Macey to play major roles last night as Houston won at Kansas City. Macey forced the game into an overtime period when he tallied with 24 seconds of play remaining.

Mundrick and McArthur scored the winning goals in the extra session. The tallies were the Jim Drummond each counted for Rockets while Cliff Simpson, Don Morrison, Nelson Podolsky and Thio Solisizzi tallied for Capitals.

Buffalo Bisons had little trouble disposing of Providence 7-2. Les Douglas and Joe Bell came through with three goals each with Murdo McKay scoring the final Bison tally. Pete Kapusta and Whitey Prokop scored for the Reds.

Hershey Bearse, defending champions, continued their upward climb out of the eastern cellar by downing Cleveland Barons 3-1. Gordie Bruce, Jack McGill, and Frank Mario were the Bear go-getters while Roy Kelly counted for Barons.

R.C.A.F. OFFICER KEEPING CANADA IN COMPETITION

Sqdn.-Ldr. Douglas Cleland Captain of Team at Madison Square Garden

New York, Nov. 6 — (CP) — A Royal Canadian Air Force officer, who was not astride a horse during six years of war, and his Army lieutenant teammate, jumping for the first time in international competition, are keeping Canada in the forefront of military competitions at the 64th Annual National Horse Show.

Sqdn. Ldr. Douglas Cleland of Toronto, 31-year-old bomber command veteran and captain of the four - man team representing Canada in competition against Eire, Mexico and the United States, got back in the saddle at Toronto's Annual Royal Winter Fair last year where the teams competing here will carry on the feud Nov. 18.

His team-mate, Lieut. William Ballard of Weston, Ont., who also has horses entered in the civilian section of the stylish show, has had the most success among the Canadians.

Lt.-Col. H. A. Phillips, and Maj. H. J. Larocque, both permanent force officers stationed at Camp Borden, Ont., are the other members of the team.

The 33-year-old Ballard, born at Grenfell, Sask., made several faultless rides aboard Reject, a big chestnut gelding around the eight-obstacle course in Madison Square Garden.

Reject has shown the way for the Canadians. Ballard placed 4th in the Dakota Challenge Cup last night and third along with Sqdn. Ldr. Cleland in the low - score Challenge Trophy earlier after topping the international -preliminary event the previous evening.

Ballard's entries had success also in the non-military part of the show which has attracted 418 horse entries. His aged chestnut mare, Poppy, ridden by Patty Farrell, won the $1,000 Rockey Open Jumping contest.

Other Canadian civilian entries placed high in the competitions. Flying Colors, an aged piebald gelding owned by Vernon G. Cardy of Montreal, placed first under the handling of Ellen Ferguson in the lightweight working hunters. Cardy, a native of Galt who first rode here in 1910, is jumping in the heavyweight hunter class.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE E. CARVER, Sports Editor.

Open letter to Alderman Edward E. Follwell.

Dear Sir:-

Your generous gesture in paying for the Edward E. Follwell Trophy (nee City of Belleville Trophy) for annual golf competition at the Bay of Quinte Country Club, needless to say sir, is greatly appreciated by all sports-loving people of this city.

Substantiating your primary belief that a trophy bearing the name of the "Friendliest City" would bring much favorable publicity to the community, were the many laudable comments regarding the trophy when it was presented to the winners following the tournament last summer.

It not only carried favorable publicity, but the many golfers from the large area which attended the tourney left with a splendid impression of the City Fathers, whom they felt, and said, were to be commended on their fine gesture in endorsing recreational and competitive sport in their city.

The action of City Council in turning down payment ($40) of the bill for the trophy may lead some of the sports visitors to this city to treat the slogan "Friendliest City" with tongue in cheek.

• • •

If a lot of people in Belleville were a little more inclined to look at the benefits derived from clean wholesale recreation, and not so much at the cost, this city would now be taking its place with other centres of its size among the top rungs of the ladder of sport. Too many want two dollars back tomorrow for one invested today. They forget that they are investing in the future of the city, in its citizenry, and its well-being.

These saucy young Hornets hockey squad are champing on the bit waiting theid turn to take a crack at the Napanee Legionnaires in their Belleville District Hockey Association game tonight at Memorial Arena. The Hornets, composed of a number of youthful city players some too old for junior play and others not quite good enough for intermediate use, have been practicing faithfully and should show a strong speedy front to Walt. Gerow, Ken Murphy, the Jacksons and company from east 'o here.

And this surprising Trenton squad too, will make things interesting for Cobourg in the second half of the twin bill. The lads from Couchville to the west, showed more or less amazing form in their first appearance here on Tuesday and they have plenty of speed and ability on the attack, a sturdy dependable goalie in Brannigan and a defence that looks like one of the best in the loop. There'll be plenty of hockey fireworks when these teams clash tonight.

Incidentally that old rivalry between Kingston and Belleville hockey squads will be renewed here on Friday night when the Kingston Victorias and the Belleville Army, Navy Veterans Intermediates clash in an exhibition tilt. Exhibition or no exhibition, when these squads meet, or any teams for that matter from the two cities there is always something happening. The "amazing" Vics" with their "thunderous power" if you can believe what you read at times, are highly touted as a powerful squad but they'll know they've been playing more than tiddly-winks before the final whistle is tooted. Game starts at 2.30.

"Buck" Boucher's Royal Canadian Air Force team which will carry the Dominion's colors in the 1948 Olympic games in Europe will parade their hockey wares before a Belleville public on Friday, November 14, when they meet the RCAF squad from Trenton in an exhibition tilt. Boucher is trying a build a representative squad from RCAF players in the country, and the team is now in the process of the making. We do not know the strength of the Olympic Flyers, but they'll be here to strut their stuff come a week from fishday.

Toronto Maple Leafs will trot out their 'million - dollar baby' Max Bentley against their ancient enemies Les Canadiens at Montreal tonight. Bentley will make his first appearance in a Leaf uniform and will team up with pal Cy. Thomas, former Hawklet and Joe Klukay.

The defeathered Hawks, whose plumage has been brightened by practically an entire team of Toronto Maple Leafs dropped a close decision to the powerful Bruins by a 2-1 score last night. Twice during the game the "Toronto weaklings" who went to the Smoky City in exchange for Bentley represented the Hawks on the ice and made a favorable impression with the Chicago fans. In fact Gaye Stewart scored the only goal for the Hawks. Looks as though Bill Tobin may have got something in this deal with Smythe.

Bowmanville have defaulted their COSSA junior grid game to Peterborough C. I. youngsters who now tangle with Belleville in a two - game semi-final series the first tilt scheduled for Peterborough on Saturday. The game will be followed by a senior joust between Belleville and the Pete C. I. seniors which will wind up the loop. On the same day Albert College seniors trek to Oshawa to take on the team from that town, the winners to meet the Pete seniors in COSSA semi-finals the following week.

The winner of this series will then tangle with the winners of the Niagara Falls — Georgian Bay victors for the title. The Peterboro squad are naturally favored in this district on account of their unbeaten - untied record, but don't sell this Albert College senior outfit short. And there's many a slip twixt the cup and the kicks. Albert threw an goshalmighty scare into the highly - touted Petes at their last meeting here and with any kind of luck would have come out on top. Coach Huyck is readying his charges for the important battles ahead so don't be surprised at what you hear, or mebbe see.

Wayne (Wiener) Brown, of Marmora, who was rated one of the best midget players in the province last year, will wear a St. Catharines uniform this year. The former Madoc midget who tried out with Belleville juniors has secured a position in St. Kitts and will play Juvenile "A" in that city under the coaching of Art. Jackson formerly of Boston Bruins.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

New York, Nov. 6 — (AP) — Hey, you two-buck bettors! Horses often live longer than three and four years! . . . All right, all right, so Man O' War's death made us remember it . . . But here's another reminder: There's a horse in the current Horse Show here that is 29 years old — just one year less than Big Red at his demise . . . The gran'paw is High Tide, a gelding owned by Milton Potter of Westbury, N.Y., which in September won a $1,000 prize at the Piping Rock Show . . . Bartender won the National jumping championship in 1940 ... At the age of 18! . . . Intrepid showed up well the same year at 21 . . . One horseman here says he once hunted with a horse which was 28 — had the nag never jumped until he was 25 . . .

And you'll remember last summer that a trotter won a race at 17 . . . A few years ago there was the authenticated story of a mare in Australia that foaled at 30 — (the foal was perfect too) . . . These figures make event the British jumper look sick . . . Jumpers in the Grand National and other steeplechases don't get their full strength until eight, none or 10 . . . British trainers claim that driving a horse hard at three breaks him down . . . They say it's not until he's four that he's ready to give his all, even in flat races . . .

One of the oldest thoroughbreds campaigning on Canadian race tracks — and winning the odd race at 13 — was Lorraine S., a cheap but consistent mare owned by James Fair of Cainsville, Ont.

Bobby Flannigan Has Chance for Shot at Title

(By The Canadian Press)

A self-styled "funny combination" of a Scottish-Roman Catholic manager and an Irish-Protestant fighter may ripen into one of the most successful duets in Canadian boxing since the days Pop Foster handled Vancouver's Jimmy McLarnin nearly twenty years ago.

When Canada's most-promising young middleweight, Bobby Flannigan, of London, Ont., met his present manager Cliff McWhirter, he was only 14. That was five years ago and in the last 2 1-2 years under McWhirter's guidance Bobby has had 59 bouts and lost only six. He receives the most severe test of his career at Toronto, Monday when he faces Beckett, experienced Sudbury middleweight, and a win will put him in line for a Dominion title bout with Champion Len Wadsworth of Hamilton and Sudbury.

An "Olympic Night" with the R.C.A.F. Olympic team playing McGill University in an exhibition hockey game, will be held at the Ottawa auditorium Dec. 13, officials announced last night.

Rugby is a tough game—on both players and spectators. Phyllis MacDonald, 16, landed in a Sydney, N.S., hospital with a broken leg yesterday when hard-hitting high - school players plunged into the stands where she was watching the game.

Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis opened serious training at New York yesterday for his Dec. 5, Madison Square Garden title bout with Jersey Joe Walcott, and boxed savagely through four spirited rounds with two spar mates.

A magistrate's court at Stockport, Lands, England, yesterday ruled that last golf balls are the property of the club members and fined Harold Hibberty £1 ($4) for "stealing" eight balls he "found" on Reddish Vale golf course.

Virgil Wagner, high-scoring halfback of Montreal Alouettes Big Four football club, has been awarded the McAlpine trophy which goes to the player judged by his team-mates to be the most valuable player on the team. Wagner already has signed with the club for 1948.

Scoring two touchdowns in the final quarter ,Woodstock Collegiate Red Devils captured their third successive group title yesterday when they whipped St. Jerome's College 18-22 in a hard-fought contest at Woodstock.

George Toller of Brantford, and Ken Lovegrove of Hamilton, fought to a draw in their five-round match of an amateur boxing card of the Hamilton Athletic Boxing Club last night. They fought at 160 pounds with Lovegrove's last-round rally gaining a draw.

A. J. Hamilton was re-elected president of the Listowel Hockey Association yesterday. It was announced that Listowel would drop out of O.H.A. Junior competition this year but Intermediate, Juvenile and Midget Clubs would operate.

Toronto Argonauts Junior overwhelmed Hamilton Tigers 23-11 in a Junior O.R.F.U. play-off game at Toronto last night under the lights, gaining a 12-point lead for the second game of the two-game series at Hamilton next Wednesday.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By KEN METHERAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Nov. 6 — (CP) — Away out here on Canada's west coast where men are men and more fragile Easterners watch enviously from the sidelines, Clancy (News - Herald) Loranger — a 110 pounder who just manages to reach the five-foot-five mark by standing on his toes — recites the following tale of a typical far west "hot stove league" session:—

"A bunch of us he-men were whooping it up, twisting wrists, Indian wrestling and spitting on the floor — you know us he-men — and when we finally tired of sport, we got to talking. He-men talk, of course . . .

"The talk drifted toward the sport world.

"The first plug for a good example of rampant muscle went to Muzz Patrick of the Victoria Patricks. Mac Colville seconded the motion and whipped in with an anecdote about their days together on the New York Rangers.

"Colville (now coaching Vancouver Canucks in the Prairie Coast Hockey League) . . . recalled a game in which Rangers were playing Boston Bruins and there was a scuffle in the corner.

"Eddie Shore, a citizen who was never known to run away from a brawl, was upholding Boston's end, and Muzz was the party of the second part. The fight didn't last long. Patrick swung once, and Shore skated out of the corner holding his hands over his face. The punch had broken his nose.

"The talk drifted to football and how Greg Kabat took the starch out of Dean Griffing. The Calgary coach and ex-Regina Roughrider isn't exactly a lily, himself.

"Kabat (ex-Winnipeg Blue Bomber and now football coach at University of British Columbia) and Griffing had been growling at each other for years, and on this particular day Kabat decided he had to discourage Dean if his club was to do anything at all.

"So on every play Greg concentrated on Dean, putting everything he had into every block and every tackle — and incidentally walking on his face if said face happened to be in the right position.

"Finally, somewhere in the second half, Griffing had "had it."

" 'Nuts to you, Kabat,' he said, or something equally he-mannish, 'I'm through, I'm getting out of here.'

"Yep, Kabat won that round, but Griffing got even in the next game. There was a pileup, then a howl from Kabat. Griffing had bitten a piece out of his leg."

"Yes siree! Men are men — he-men — away out here in the west."

Push Western Team Out of First Place in the Western Division

(By The Canadian Press)

If anyone felt sorry for Pittsburgh Hornets when the Toronto Maple Leafs traded three of their regulars to Chicago Black Hawks last Monday, they can dry their eyes.

Last night, Hornets, currently the American Hockey League's hottest club, ran over Springfield Indians 7-4 to move into sole possession of first place in the western section of the A.H.L. minus the services of Gus Bodnar, Bob Goldham and Ernie Dickens, the Hornets had little trouble in disposing of the Indians, although they did not take the lead until midway in the second period.

In other games last night, Philadelphia Rockets upset Indianapolis Capitals, 5-4, Hershey downed Cleveland 3-1 and Buffalo trounced Providence 7-2.

Pittsburgh were forced to come from behind but did it in a convincing manner, ramming home six goals in a row.

Sid Smith paced the Hornets scoring attack with two goals while Tod Sloan, Fleming Mackell, Les Costello, Pete Langelle, and Bob Dawes each scored once. Bill Summerhill was the big gun for Indians potting two goals while Eldy Kobussen scored the other.

The cellar-dwelling Philadelphia Rockets pulled one out of the fire to upset Indianapolis and push the Capitals out of first place in the western section. Steve Wochy, Wally Stefaniw, Johnny Mahaffy, Ed Bush and Jim Drummond each counted for Rockets while Cliff Simpson, Don Morrison, Nelson Podolsky and Thie Solishzi tallied for Capitals.

Buffalo Bisons had little trouble wisposing of Providence, 7-2. Les Douglas and Joe Bell came through with three goals each with Murdo McKay scoring the final Bison tally. Pete Kapusta and Whitey Prokop scored for the Reds.

ROUGH RIDERS AIR DISSENSION TALK IN PARLEY

Rumored Team Will Call General Strike Against Coach Sammy Fox

(By The Associated Press)

Injuries today bothered most Eastern Canada football coaches striving to whip their charges into playoff peaks but with Ottawa Rough Riders in seemed to be a case mostly of hurt feelings that were hurt.

Rumors of dissension against Sammy Fox, Ottawa's lanky outspoken coach, came to a head last night when the players trooped in for a full-dress conference with the team's executive. Although the meeting gave Sammy "unanimous endorsation," it remained to be seen whether the air was cleared.

But the players went into the post-practice conference in the training room amid rumors in Ottawa they would threaten a general strike; they came out shouting: "Grey Cup or bust."

A terse post-meeting statement said the conference was called and "silly rumors" filtering through Ottawa — presumably the talk that the former New York Giant, coaching his first season in Canadian football, had trod on too many toes in leading the Riders to first place in the Interprovincial Union.

Zock Back In Lineup

Meanwhile, all was sweetness and light in the camp of Toronto Argonauts the team Ottawa meets in the Big Four final after finishing of the regular schedule against them Saturday.

Bill Zock, sparkplug of the Argo line, was back in uniform after missing last Saturday's game in Toronto when Rough Riders pushed Argos around for a 15-5 victory. Coach Teddy Morris just put his Dominion champions through a light workout — he said he wasn't taking any unnecessary chances of incurring injuries.

Balmy Beach, the second of Toronto's three playoff entrants, also went through a light workout. Team manager Ab Box said four players were doubtful starters for their Ontario Union sudden-death semi-final against Ottawa Trojans here Saturday.

Lineman John Widman and half Norm Millen both had bad knees while lineman Bill Petrie and half Johnny Lake were nursing charleyhorses.

Indians Underdogs

Toronto Indians may be heavy underdogs in the other O.R.F.U. semi-final, where they meet the league-leading Hamilton Wildcats at Hamilton Friday. But coach Bob Cosgrove made it clear he liked his boys' chances.

Wally Masters, Ottawa Trojans playing coach, disclosed that he was a doubtful starter for the Beach clash because of a groin injury that was getting "no better."

Arnie McWatters, whose old leg injury is giving him trouble didn't strip for the practice while both Pete Karpuk and Al Miles were on the limp.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

HAMILTON TIGERS OUT IN FRONT IN SENIOR RACE

Oshawa Generals Handed First Defeat of Season by Stratford

(By The Canadian Press)

The top spot in the Ontario Hockey Association's senior A series was occupied today by a club long familiar with that position.

Hamilton Tigers scored a 4-2 victory over Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen last night to take over first place in the loop—a spot they monopolized in winning the league title the last two years.

That was only one senior game last night but in the one of the three games in the Junior "A" loop Barrie Flyers moved into a three-way tie for second position with Oshawa Generals and Toronto Marlboros when they swamped Toronto Young Rangers 10-1 at Barrie.

Stratford Kroehlers took over third place with their surprise 5-3 victory over Oshawa and Galt Rockets handed St. Catharines Teepees a 5-1 reverse.

At Hamilton the Bengals turned in their second win in as many days over the Dutchmen, having won in Waterloo 3-2 Tuesday.

Tommy Smelle, Ab Conick, Swap Mason and Frankie Liscombe sank the Hamilton counters.

Dutchmen goals came from Lloyd Roubell and Ted Grasser.

Scored Five Goals

Gil St. Pierre set an early, season, single-game mark when he put half the Barrie goals behind Young Rangers netminder Lloyd McLennan. Red Favero and Jerry Reid tallied two each. Rusty Atkin completed Flyers scoring. Young Rangers' lone marker came from Reg Spragge.

Dutch Hiller's Kroehlers threw Tommy Anderson's Oshawa Generals their first defeat this season at Stratford. The Kroehlers didn't get wound up until the second frame byt showed a strong three-goal third period finish.

Clair McMinn and Elwood Small both tallied twice for Stratford. George Armtsrong sank Kroehlers other counter. Oshawa goals were scored by French Mayer, George Scott and George Scholes.

Galt Rockets marked their first victory in three starts and St. Catharines their third loss in four starts this season at last night's game in St. Catharines. It was a speedier and more seasoned Galt club.

Harry Pidnerny with two tallies led Rockets' scorers. Wiggie Wylie, Harry Marchand and Whitey Malcho sank the other Galt goals. The St. Kitts counter came from Kadotsky.

There is one Junior "A" game slated for tonight, Toronto junior Marlboros at Guelph.

DOUGHNUT PRICE WAR

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 6—(AP) — A doughnut price war was being staged today by Grand Rapids bakery dealers.

The doughnuts, hole and all, came into economic prominence when a large bakery concern Tuesday slashed the price from 23 to 15 cents a dozen to meet the figure now being charged by a retail chain store. The chain made no indication of its next move.

FORGOTTEN OUTSIDE DOOR

London, Ont., Nov. 6 — (CP)—A six year old went A.W.L. from school Tuesday, but under extenuating circumstances.

Police said the boy was made to stand outside the school door for punishment and apparently was forgotten by his teacher. After standing for nearly an hour he walked off, and was later found by police in a downtown subway.

Junior 'A' Race Wide Open After Three-Year Domination Of St. Mikes Comes to an End

Ontario Loop Still Has Best Chance of Producing Successor to Irish

(By The Canadian Press)

The three-team domination of St. Michael's College Majors in Eastern Canada junior hockey wars has finally come to an end, leaving the race wide open for Memorial Cup bids from the rest of the 40-odd junior "A" puck teams in the east.

The high-flying St. Mikes who won the Memorial Cup twice in the last three years are a team of the past with all but one of last year's squad having graduated to senior and professional ranks.

As always, greatest threat in the Memorial Cup race still comes from the Ontario junior circuit. This year the major stumbling block might be Windsor Spitfires, a member of the Detroit Red Wings farm system. Other strong forces in the loop are the perennial Oshawa Generals, Toronto Marlboros and Guelph Biltmores.

The balance of the 10-team loop comprises Toronto Young Rangers, Barrie Flyers, Galt Rockets, Stratford Kroehlers and St. Catharines Teepees, part of the Boston Bruins chain.

The strong Quebec Junior League has expanded to 10 teams this year with Montreal Nationals as the likely cup contenders. The junior Canadiens, last year's Q.A.H.A. winners, are without several of their stars who moved into senior company.

Aside from six teams from the Montreal district, the junior loop now includes clubs from Valleyfield, Quebec City, Granby and Three Rivers.

Another 10-team loop has developed in the Ottawa district with Ottawa St. Pats still appearing as the strong squad of the league. Other strong clubs are Montagnards, Hull Volants and Ottawa Senator juniors, with the balance of the league made up of Shawville, Pembroke, Renfrew, Arnprior, Carleton Place and Ottawa St. John Baptiste.

In the Maritimes, Halifax St. Mary's, surprise package of last year, appears to have another formidable outfit. Competition will be strongest from Sydney Sunbeams, experts say.

In Northern Ontario the outlook so far as cup play is not good. The Northern Ontario Hockey Association says that teams in their area have been "bled white" by professional clubs. Porcupine Combines, last year's champions, Copper Cliff Redmen and Falconbridge Falcons are the only entries in the loop.

Letters to the Sports Editor

Re: Golf Trophy

Belleville, Nov. 5, 1947

Sports Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Dear Sir:

In your issue of the above date, you published a letter from Alderman Follwell, in which he comments on an incident that occurred in a recent meeting of the City Council, relative to an account for a trophy for the Quinte Golf Club.

His statement as to what occurred outside of Council is no doubt correct. Of that I have no personal knowledge. Nor do I question in any way his statement of what occurred in Council. But he neglected to tell you that Section 65 of the by-law regulating the procedure of the City Council, reads as follows: "No committee or member of the Council, and no officer of the Corporation, shall, on behalf of the Corporation, enter into any contract, or incur or authorize any expenditure, without having obtained by by-law or resolution the previous authority or sanction of the Council, except in case of great emergency, and then only to no greater extent than $25. and in such case a report shall be made immediately to the Chairman of the Executive Committee and the Executive Committee shall have power, if deemed prudent, to order the work to cease until it is laid before Council."

The order for this trophy was given without authority from Council; it could scarcely be classed as "a great emergency" but admitting that it was, the account exceeded the amount stipulated in the by-law; and the Chairman of the Executive Committee was not notified as provided in the by-law.

I was acting mayor when this account was presented to Council in Committee on October 23rd and I objected to the account on the ground that it was a violation of the above quoted by-law, and I was supported by a large majority of the members present. Alderman Follwell re-introduced the account at the regular meeting of the Council, on October 27th, when it was again refused by a recorded vote.

H. J. Clarke,
Chairman of Executive Committee and Acting Mayor.

Will he become just a memory?

The Woodland Caribou, neither as wary nor as swift in avoiding danger as the White-Tailed Deer, falls an easy prey to hunters, largely through its own sense of curiosity. Although completely protected by law in Canada, it is in perhaps more imminent danger of extermination than any other of our big-game animals. Only through the strict observance of conservation principles will this animal survive. The success of conservation measures depends on informed public opinion. Timely, authoritative literature on the conservation of our natural resources and full-colour prints of wildlife illustrations without advertising are available free by writing to The Carling Conservation Club, Waterloo, Ontario.

The Bison provides a striking example of how man can reduce an entire species to a mere handful of survivors now preserved in our National Parks.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

"Thanx for the vote of confidence, partner," chuckled south at the end of this deal:

SOUTH

His remark referred to the north redouble in this bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	2 S	Pass	Pass
3 NT	Dble	Redbl	All Pass

Opponents could have defeated the contract. But west started establishing spades. This let declarer take nine tricks with spade queen, heart ace, and seven clubs. But what about the bids?

There was no such bidding as south employed. Not by rule. An opening one no-trumper never has a three no-trump hand if his partner passes. Obviously he has deviated from some bidding rule.

These players were skilled. They knew rules. When a rule-wise player busts a bid rule, he broadcasts a manoeuvre. This is why an expert can successfully break some rules with a hep partner.

A defender who sticks in a jump spade bid may be assumed to have a strong holding in that suit. An opener of one no-trump does not have three no-trump by himself and may not even have spade stoppers.

So, what could be the stunt he is trying to pull? He must be taking a no-trump game filer on the strength of a long minor suit. He is hoping for a lucky lead to help put over a fast one.

The west double of three no-trump, therefore, may chase him into the safer spot of four in the minor suit. Which is no hope for game. So, how can north prevent south from backing down to the minor?

By showing there was no spade worry. This he can do by a bold redouble of the west double. So, although he appreciated partner's compliment, he considered the act a logical one.

But don't go making a rule of it.

The Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 6 — (AP) — Robert Walker assures that after he gets a rest he'll be back in pictures again.

Much confusion has resulted from reports that the young actor was seriously ill, was retiring from pictures and leaving Hollywood forever. Bob is as much confused as anyone. "I merely asked for a six-month leave from MGM," he told me, "because my doctor said I needed the rest."

Far from retiring, Bob said he has 4½ years to go under his Metro contract and intends to return to work some time next year. Being off salary, he intends to go to New York soon to make some money on radio shows.

International Orson

Orson Welles is getting more international in scope. He left Tuesday for "Cagliostro" in Rome and will return to okey the final edition of MacBeth." Then he's off to England for "Cyrano." When I asked Orson if his "MacBeth" had Academy possibilities he replied:

"I'm so anti-Academy I don't think about those things." You may recall that his epic "Citizen Kane," was virtually ignored by the Acamedy . . .

Red Skelton's complaints against MGM got the studio aroused, too, but the bigwigs' best answer would be better pictures for the redhead, and that looks to be in the offing. He is being mentioned for "Three Musketeers" and "Neptune's Daughter." Both will have star casts and that might remedy Red's claim that he gets little support in his films. . . .

Jack Benny was asked to make a guest appearance in Red's current picture, "Fuller Brush Man," but Jack's air sponsor turned it down. Reason: The two comics peddle rival cigarets on the air . . .

Influence

Myrna Loy has a way with her. When I dropped in her dressing room on the "Blandings" set, I was surprised to see a telephone. It was the first I had ever seen in the dressing room of any star (producers want the players to keep their minds on acting) and I asked her how she did it. "I just asked for it," she said blandly.

ARMY RESERVE CHAPLAIN SERVICES DISBANDED

Ottawa, Nov. 6 — (CP)—Chaplain services of the Canadian Army's reserve force have been disbanded because they were not full-time jobs and were considered unnecessary, a spokesman at army headquarters said.

The move was taken last August, but did not in any way involve curtailment of the chaplain services of the army's active force. These services include principal Protestant and Roman Catholic chaplains at defence headquarters, and padres attached to the various commands across Canada.

Chapter 28

"I know," said Don Timoteo, drawing slowly at the pipe. "Gone to Mexico."

"To Mexico!" exclaimed the psuudo Pablo. "The devil!"

"Why not?" asked Don Timoteo, unmoved. "You haven't the slightest idea O'Hara's guilty of shooting Black Sam. Or had anything to do with it."

"Maybe not," said Christopher Drake. "But I've got to prove that to the chief. He doesn't think that way. Or, rather, my orders were to play safe.... How long has O'Hara been gone?"

"An hour, maybe an hour and a half," said Don Timeteo, almost grinning. "And there's no telephone here, so you can't contact the border. Besides—it's too late. He's across by now."

"I suppose so, at that," agreed Christopher.

"Look here, Chris," said Don Timoteo, waking up. "I suspect he's turned up something. I suspect he's on the trail of the fellow that did kill Black Sam. Well, until that fellow's found—Shane's under suspicion, isn't he?" Chris Drake nodded. "Then—why not be a sport? Why not let him try to run the fellow to earth?"

"All right, Don Timoteo. Maybe you're right. Hope so. If you aren't, I'll sure catch hell. But.... I think I know who he's after. And if he catches up with him, it may be just too bad."

"Who?" asked Don Timoteo.

"Rodrigo Guiterrez—called the Rattlesnake," said Chris. "And I'll tell you something more while I'm at it. Black Sam was part of a smuggling ring. Opium. Maybe other things. And I'm pretty well satisfied that the Rattlesnake was a sort of go-between. Between Black Sam—and maybe other people—and Mexico."

"But—Rodrigo worked for Don Fernando, didn't he? Off and on?"

The deputy sheriff tried to read behind the old man's eyes, but there was nothing there, he told himself, save curiosity.

"Yeah, off an on," he said. "Of course, one never knows what a fellow like that is up to. Naturally Don Fernando never suspected."

"Well, I should hope not," sain Don Timoteo, and smiled. 'Especially as he's going to be my son-in-law day after tomorrow."

Chris Drake started to speak, checked himself.

"Well, so-long," he said, abruptly, and strode away.

He went to Rancho La Espanola, inquired for Don Fernando.

"Don Fernando," said a black viaged fellow, "has gone to San Diego. Or maybe Tijuana," the fellow laughed, "for a drink."

Deputy Drake cursed internally.

Then he took French leave of Rancho Paloma, hurried on foot to San Feliz, where he hired a powerful car in the name of the law. He too hit the King's Highway for the Border.

That evening Don Timoteo again sat by the doorway smoking, but now in the lengthening shadows, watching the sun go down.

To him came Rose, a puzzled frown on her forehead. She sat down, lighted a cigarette, was silent for a space; but at last she spoke.

"Is Pablo really Christopher Drake, the deputy sheriff?" she asked. "I—overheard. This afternoon."

"Yes," said Don Timoteo. "Chris is one of the best at playing Mex."

"But—but what is he doing here? I mean—at La Paloma? He works there, doesn't he? I mean —pretends to work. Is he—is he —" She could not go on.

"After O'Hara," said Don Timoteo, watching, without appearing to do so, the girl's perturbed face. Should he probe—or shouldn't he? Was the girl as content with this approaching marriage as she had said she was? Or did she really care for Shane O'Hara, and not for Don Fernando?

"Naturally Mr. O'Hara is under some suspicion," he said at last. "Any man would be. Chris is no hot-head. But he's got his job to do."

"And—Mr. O'Hara has gone away. Without Chris knowing it?"

"Looks like that," assented the old gentleman. "Do you think he has run away?"

For a moment the girl was silent. Then:

"I don't think Mr. O'Hara is the man to run away," she said. "But —of course I don't know. I think it's more likely—" She paused. "But why guess? Mr. O'Hara is nothing to me."

"Sure about that, Rose?" Don Timoteo shot the question at her as he might fire a bullet. The girl stiffened, flipped her cigarette onto the grass, rose.

"If he was," she said, "I shouldn't be marrying Don Fernando the day after tomorrow." She swept away.

"I wonder, though," Don Timoteo asked himself. "I wonder. I won-der."

Don Timoteo was pretty shrewd. There was in him the wisdom of eighty years. He foresaw that there was a chance—just a chance—that the marriage would not take place. Not that marriage. And who knows but that he would have been justified in his thought if a girl in Baltimore had not at that moment been filing a telegram addressed to Shane O'Hara, Rancho Soledad, San Feliz, San Diego County, Califirnia?

And if the telephone girl at San Feliz had not been hurrying to get through her day's work in order to meet her boy friend—and so had neglected to seal the message she had taken down by phone from San Diego, San Feliz having no telegraph office of its own.

The message was delivered — with substantial charges—by a boy on a bicycle.

Rose took it after first refusing in her mind, to do so—and paid the boy.

"What is it?" asked her mother. in the dining room, where they had just finished the meal.

"A telegram for Mr. O'Hara,' she answered quietly. Laid it on the buffet.

"I wonder," said her mother, "if we oughn't to read it—see if it's anything important. Maybe send it to him."

"It's his business, not ours, mother," said Rose.

But the matter was on Mrs. Delane's mind. She recalled times when a telegram had gone to some one, and waited, and terrible things had happened as a result.

"I'm going to see what it is," she said at last. "It might be awfully important to him."

Mrs. Delane rose and went to the buffet. "Why, it's not sealed, anythow," she said. Removing the message from its cover, she read swiftly. Then she threw a quick look at Rose—slipped the message back into the envelope — knew that Rose had seen that look —was embarrassed. "I must go to the kitchen now," she said. "You were right, Rose, it wasn't anything of importance."

But Rose knew that her mother fibbed. Knew also, that the message concerned herself, in some manner, though how she could not quite guess. Yet—there was a certain Mss Billie Porter in Baltimore—and Shane O'Hara was engaged to her, even while he made love to Rose Delane of Rancho Soledad.

Without a word she rose, went to the buffet, read the message. Aloud:

"I've got to have you after all, Shane," she read. "Meet me at San Diego airport Thursday morning, the eighth. Billie."

White-faced, she lay the message down, looked once at Don Timoteo—then walked from the room.

The Rattlesnake entered the cave, gun in hand. His face was a picture of evil triumphant. Shane and Jose saw the yellow glint in his eye, on the smooth blue barrel of the automatic in his hand. So Desth stalked.

It was Shane O'Hara to whom he strode, glaring.

To whom he said, rasped of voice, poking the nose of the blue steel pistol against his breast:

"I want those papers, hombre, muy pronto."

Shane O'Hara, Irish-American, said, and laughed, "You speak pretty good English, don't you? As for the papers—your confession—I haven't got them, little snake. Look and see."

For that, the Rattlesnake seared him across the cheek with the end of his pistol. Dark hands made hurried search of coat and vest—and of trousers. But no papers rewarded his fingers.

"I told you so," said Shane. And then he looked at the Rattlesnake as an American might look—straight and defying and rather dominant. "Look you, my brown bird, if you pull the trigger of that little gun, you hang. Hang, sure as there is a devil in hell."

"But—but —the confession," said the Rattlesnake. "You—you—"

Shane O'Hara laughed.

"The confession, my friend, is where you will never see it. Unless—" he blinked, against the pistol nose—"unless you set us free. In that case—it is yours. Get me, kid— it is yours."

That sank in.

"Where is it?" demanded the Rattlesnake hoarsely. "Where is it, you Yankee pig? Tell me! Tell me!"

Again Shane O'Hara laughed.

Outdoor Christmas Lighting This Year On Prohibited List

Toronto, Nov. 6 — (CP)—The public will be asked not to use outdoor Christmas lighting this year due to the power shortage, Richard L. Hearn, general manager and chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said yesterday. "We have not the power yet to ban persons from using lights, we can only appeal to them," he said. "We are giving everyone the opportunity of cutting down on outside lighting. If this fails, then legislation may be necessary to give us this power."

London Public Utilities Commission has announced outdoor Christmas lighting will not be permitted in that city this season.

Mayor R. H. Saunders of Toronto, a member of the Toronto Hydro Commission yesterday told a special street lighting committee that it might be necessary to cut off power to Toronto consumers of the Ontario government ordered power rationing in Ontario.

He said that in that event the city would be divided into sections and consumers would be warned of the hours during which power was to be cut off in their sections.

Woman Cook Best Says Cafe-Owner

Vancouver, (CP)—Miss Emma Larson, after 23 years in the restaurant business, says a good woman cook is better than a male cook, including any top-rated French chef.

Now owner-operator of a restaurant in Racine, Wis, Miss Larson recently attended the Canadian Restaurant Association national convention here.

"In our part of the world a good Scandinavian woman cook can dish it up to suit our taste much better than any Frenchman alive," she said in an interview. "Women cooks can out-pepper men any day."

Ella Kyttle, a restaurant manager of Wilkesbarre, Pa., agreed. "A woman is a natural housekeeper after all," she said. "It isn't right to say she can't season to give it that little something. She can shake the pepper pot with as much skill as men."

Both thought women are a whole lot neater in the kitchen than men. "A man thinks all he should do is cook. He won't do another thing. He won't put utensils away. He'll fling a spoon here, a cloth there. He needs a mopper-upper constantly."

However, they agreed it was difficult to get help. "Many girls we get are lazy, sloppy and indifferent. The trend of this generation is to rule the roost. The girls resent taking orders and they won't take responsibility."

COMMUNITY WITH NO THEATRE VOTES FOR SUNDAY MOVIES

Parryville, Pa., Nov. 6—(AP) — Residents of this tiny community voted 58 to 47 in yesterday's election to permit Sunday movies, a form of entertainment previously prohibited.

There was only one fly in the ointment — Parryville has no theatre.

Surgeons transferred the sliver to her brother Tommy, crippled by poliomyelitis. Lorraine is expected to be walking normally in about six weeks but it will take several months to determine if the operation helped the boy.

Society Sets Out To Outlaw Fox Hunting in Britain

London, Nov. 6 — (AP) — Claiming the support of 90,000 Britons who hate "killing for fun" the National Society for abolition of cruel sports has set out to outlaw fox hunting, traditional English sport.

E. G. Barlow, the Society's secretary, announced the government would be petitioned to promote legislation making fox hunting and other "blood sports" as illegal as once-popular bear baiting and cock fighting.

He claimed "more than 300" of Britain's 640 members of parliament had promised to back a proposed anti-hunting bill and that a country-wide supporting petition now being circulated had collected 90,000 signatures.

This threat to a sport which epitomized England to generations of scarlet-coated "riders to hounds" drew immediate opposition from the British Field Sports Society which predicted a "march on London" by indignant fox hunters if the measure goes before parliament.

"The farmers won't stand for it — it would mean the end of everything an Englishman enjoys," declared James W. Fitzwilliam, secretary of the society.

He warned that the measure, which also would ban hunting and coursing of deer, otters, badgers, hares and rabbits, would "create a row," and "the farmers are livid."

Fitzwilliam's forecast of a mass demonstration followed publication of a pamphlet by Barlow asserting that fox hunting was not only cruel but "anti-social," and "sabotaged" the poultry industry at a time when the country was short of food.

Barlow depicted England's fox hunters as blood-thirsty "playboys" practising "a sordid and ugly sport which has long been covered with a veneer of romance," and quoted Pravda to support his assertion that fox hunting was harmful to the country's agriculture.

"Pack up, playboys," he wrote, recalling the Soviet communist organ's April 20 comment that "Britain cannot afford a state of affairs in which millions of acres lie fallow and merely serve the need of the hunt."

(The Pravda observation was made when a British delegation under Harold Wilson was in Moscow negotiating for Russian food).

CLAIM COUPLE MURDERED

Beckley, W. Va., Nov. 6—(AP) — Police said today Mrs. R. K. Rand, wife of a Heckley dentist and Ray Bailey, local businessman, whose bodies were found at the foot of an embankment on a lonely road, were murdered, but that they were without concrete clues in the slayings. Both had been shot through the head, Bailey once and Mrs. Rand twice.

Bancroft

Lions Club Wants Representative On Committee

Bancroft — (Special) — The Bancroft Lions Club met for their regular meeting Tuesday at Hotel Bancroft and a very good representation of the club was present for the meeting. During the meeting Lion Secretary "Mike" Burns, Tailtwister Lion George Thomson and Lion Don Wilson were responsible for the many laughs of the evening. Lion Reginald Wiggins gave his report of the establishing of the Spence girl in the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville and of receiving a favorable report from her teacher on her brightness despite her affliction.

A motion, which according to the club was considered of vital importance to the village, and made by Lion Walter Wiggins, seconded by Lion Oswold Fuller, was that the president of the Bancroft Lions Club be a representative on the Bancroft Community Hall board committee, this proposal to be placed before the Village Council for their action. Following the business part of the meeting 1st Vice President Lion Whitney Martin went to a great deal of trouble to set up his motion picture machine and run off four reels of pictures in color, one of the scenic beauty of Bancroft and Baptiste Lake district, one of a colorful parade in Sudbury, another of logging in Sudbury district and last but not least a reel on the Lions Field Day held this past summer in Bancroft showing the Oriental Swimming Club of Peterborough, diving, swimming races, log-sawing contestants and a portion of the ball game. All the members thanked Lion Whitney for his fine entertainment.

Highway Truck Ditched and All Traffic Blocked

Bancroft — One of the highway trucks in charge of driver Wm. Robbins, en route south on Highway 62 hauling a float carrying a bulldozer, jack-knifed while going down a steep grade south of Mawson's Store. The truck went into the ditch and the float came to rest crossways of the highway blocking all traffic. Stapley bus service were lucky enough en route north that they had an alternative in taking a side road which was near the scene of the accident which road brought the bus back onto the highway a few miles north again. No one was hurt in the accident and the Department of Highways at Bancroft are sending down wrecking equipment to clear up the blockade.

Five-year-old Rena, who is attending kindergarten, entertained her guests at the school's open house last night with fascinating story books which were not part of school studies in "the old days."

Toronto Police Intensify Search For Slayer of Girl

Woman Gives Description Of Man Seen With Girl

Toronto, Nov. 7. (CP)—A degenerate who dragged a woman to a west-end lot and attacked her five years ago, is suspected in the rape and strangulation of 13-year-old Arlene Anderson, whose body was found in a lot in the same neighborhood yesterday, police said today.

Squadrons of detectives intensified a search for the man who served a sentence for the attack five years ago but was recently released from penitentiary.

Mrs. Margaret Tomalin, who saw Arlene being led by the hand by a man she estimated to be between 35 and 40 years, with fair hair greying at the sides, told police his description fitted closely with that of the degenerate in question. The man she saw was wearing a sand-colored windbreaker and as she did not know him, she thought at the time it might have been the father of the partially-crippled child.

Arlene, partially paralyzed and with an impediment in her speech, disappeared from her home Sunday and increasing numbers of citizens aided police in the search until a woman saw her body yesterday in a vacant lot nine blocks from her home on Marchmount Avenue, in Northwest Toronto.

The girl had been strangled with her own underwear. Police said they were almost certain the body had been placed there less than 24 before it was found. "It looks as though she was strangled where she was found because of grass in the knot around her throat and burrs on her stockings where she walked into the field," said a senior police official.

Mark on Head

There was the mark of a blow to the right side of the head," said Chief Coroner Dr. Smirle Lawson. "There was no fracture of the skull. She died of strangulation and in the opinion of Prof. W. L. Robinson (who reported an autopsy) she was raped after death — if not beforehand."

From the way the underwear was knotted about the girl's throat coroner Lawson said the slayer "was somebody very powerful."

"It was a brutal murder," said Chief Detective Inspector Arch McCathie. "A reward of $2,000 has been offered for information leading to the arrest of the person who did it."

The girl's mother, Mrs. William Anderson, was too broken-hearted to see the body of her daughter when it was found. Up to Thursday night she had broadcast frantic appeals over local radio stations for whoever took her daughter to return the child.

"It's all so terrible," the mother said. "She was a little girl, paralyzed from birth, with impediment in her speech. How could anyone harm a child so helpless?"

The girl's father said: 'If they find the degenerate who murdered Arlene, they will probably throw him in an institution and that's the last we'll hear of it. It's the law that does these things, not the police. They have done all they could to help us."

While police combed Toronto for the sex maniac who killed 13-year-old Arlene Anderson, West-end Toronto children heard these instructions at school:

Don't talk to strangers.

Don't accept gifts of money, flowers or candy in the street.

Hurry home from school so as not to be out after dark.

Anxious mothers walked their children to and from school but almost everywhere they found policemen patrolling the route.

PRIME MINISTER KING ARRIVES IN GREAT BRITAIN

Will Visit France and Holland Before Attending Wedding of Princess

Southampton, England, Nov. 7 — (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King arrived from Canada today aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth for a three week visit to Britain and Northwest Europe during which he will attend the Nov. 20 wedding of Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten.

The Prime Minister leaves tomorrow for Paris and goes onday to Brussels where he will receive an honorary degree from Brussels University. Wednesday he will drive to The Hague where he is scheduled to address The Netherlands parliament. He expects to return to London Saturday.

He was going to express "very strongly" the hope that Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Mountbatten would find it possible to visit Canada.

"Canada would give them a great welcome," he said. The mink coat which the Canadian government is giving Princess Elizabeth as a wedding present would be flown from Canada in time for the wedding. The further gift of antique silver would be chosen in London by the Princess herself.

Will Not Change Plans

(In London, however, court circles said that the invitation, while welcome, probably would not change the couple's plans for a honeymoon at home in view of Britain's economic plight.)

Mackenzie King said his main reason for going to the continent is that on his last visit — to the Paris peace conference last year — he had been able to visit some, but not all, the Northwest Europe battlefields where Canadian troops fought. Friends in Holland had heard of this and invited him to make a return trip.

Reporters clustered around the Canadian Prime Minister today and assailed him with questions. They asked for comment on Lord Elibank's statement in the House of Lords Wednesday that Britain had considered moving her wartime headquarters to Ottawa in 1940. Mackenzie King replied:—"I've heard nothing about it."

He said migration from the United Kingdom to Canada depended on the keenness of British immigrants. "I understand here you don't want too many people leaving and we don't want to embarrass anyone."

RUSSIA PARADES MILITARY MIGHT THRU RED SQUARE

Says "War-Mongers" Busy Against Union

London, Nov. 7. (AP)—Russia paraded her military might through Moscow's Red Square in commemoration of Bolshevik Revolution's 30th Anniversary today amid renewed cries that 'war-mongers' are calling for a campaign against the Soviet Union and "making plans for a new imperialist war."

In a special broadcast beamed directly at the United States and Great Britain, Moscow radio quoted Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, Soviet Minister of the Armed forces, as saying just before the parade that:

"After the Second World War essential changes have taken place in the international situation. As a result of the war the system of capitalism has suffered a serious loss. The forces of Democrary (Communism) and Socialism have strengthened, but the forces of capitalism have weakened.

"The successes of the Democratic Camp (Communists) give the war-mongers no rest. Forgetting the lessons of the recent war, they are calling for a campaign against Democracy (Communism), against the Soviet Union, and making plans for a new imperialist war."

Praises Stalin

Bulganin was extravagant in his praise of Prime Minister Stalin, who apparently was still on vacation at a Black Sea port, and of the armed forces of the U.S.S.R.

"The Soviet people and its armed forces, under the leadership of their leader and teacher of genius, Comrade Stalin, routed Hitlerite Germany and Imperialist Japan", he declared from the Tribune atop the tomb of Nikolai Lenin.

"This historically unprecedented victory proved that the Soviet army, armed with the most advanced, Stalinist military science and supplied with the most modern military equipment, is a first-class army of our time. . .

Warned to be on Guard

"Soviet soldiers, understanding the importance and responsibility of their tasks and untiring perfecting their military skill, are steadily mastering the military experience of the patriotic war, further advancing military science and are gaining new achievements in the strengthening of our armed forces.'

His speech echoed an order of the day he issued last night, in which he called for Russian armed forces to "be in constant militant preparedness" against "instigators of a new war."

It followed by only a few hours a speech, by Foreign Minister Molotov, who declared yesterday that the "secret of the atomic bomb ceased to exist a long time ago."

Molotov's assertion was greeted in London and in Washington by the feeling that he had disclosed nothing particularly new. Qualified American sources said the secret of the atom bomb was one thing, the "know-how" in making it another. They commented that Molotov specifically did not say Russia had the bomb.

Served 19 Years of Life Sentence, Gets Hearing on New Trial Petition

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 7 — (CP) — A spectacular record in Ontario was recalled today with announcement that William Fuller, 43, of Windsor, Ont., has been granted a hearing on petition for a new trial after serving 19 years of a life sentence for murder.

Fuller, who said he had studied law for eight years while in prison, claims he is innocent and that circumstantial evidence linked him as the trigger man in a gun battle Nov. 24, 1926. As a result of that shooting in a tavern in Fairhaven, Mich., he was convicted of killing tavern-keeper Leo Dipsia after he and two other men tried to rob the hotel. Edwar Memetre, one of the three bandits, was killed by a bullet from Dipsia's gun.

The Michigan shooting came six weeks after Fuller escaped from Essex county jail at Windsor, where officials who had just opened the new $350,000 prison described it as "unbreakable."

At the time of Fuller's escape he was under sentence of two years for assaulting a Windsor policeman while awaiting trial at Sandwich on a car theft charge.

Although only 22 when he escaped from the Essex county jail, Fuller already had a lengthy police record. He had served a term in the Ontario Reformatory for breaking and entering. He was tried and acquitted in 1925 on a charge of armed robbery. A few months after that he was brought to Sandwich police station for questioning and escaped through a window of police headquarters.

In 1926 he was arrested in Windsor on another auto theft charge and while in jail assaulted Detective Joseph Bowers, drawing a two year sentence in Kingston penitentiary. But he never got there, for he escaped while still in Windsor.

Three Train Crashes In Fog Near London, Eng., Kill Five, Injure 80

London, Nov. 7. (AP)—Fog bound Londoners trekked slowly back to their jobs today as emergency crews worked to clear away the wreckage of three suburban train crashes which took at least five lives and injured approximately 80 persons last night.

Visibility still was near the zero point in many sections and traffic moved at a snail's pace. Weather Bureau officials predicted that the fog, Britain's worst in 15 months, would continue most of the day.

Thousands of persons were marooned overnight when all late trains, buses and planes were cancelled. A special train at Waterloo Station served as a dormitory for stranded passengers. More than 1,000 other persons spent an uneasy night at Empire Pool, Wembley, when they were unable to get home after a hockey game.

The fog hampered train accident rescue operations and police used walkie-talkie radios and flares to help guide ambulances to the scene of the wrecks.

Police reported that three men and one women were killed in a train collision at Motspur Park and one man lost his life in another collision at Herne Hill. At least 20 wer injured in still another train crash at Euston.

Russia Warned by Canada Foreign Mission Diplomats Must Be Guarded in Language

By JOHN LeBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 7 —(CP)—Russia had a blunt warning from Canada today that members of foreign diplomatic missions will have to be careful of their language in this country.

Specifically, the Russian embassy has been told formally, the Dominion doesn't want diplomatic officers or employees stirring up "ill-will and hostility" among Canada's different racial groups.

A sternly-worded note delivered to the embassy yesterday served notice that the government would demand immediate recall of any diplomatic personnel guilty of this type of statement.

Somewhat paralleled to a complaint made to the Polish legation a few weeks ago, the protest was prompted by a July 27 speech at St. Vital, Man., by I. O. Scherbatiuk, a Russian embassy employee.

In its note, the External Affairs Department characterized the Scherbatiuk speech as "clearly offensive" and "calculated to promote ill-will and hostility between different groups of people in Canada."

Speaking at a Ukrainian picnic, Scherbatiuk had been quoted in a Ukrainian newspaper as criticizing Ukrainian - Canadians who accepted displaced persons from Europe and believed their "lies" about Russia.

The department noted it had asked the embassy more than two weeks ago for a text of Scherbatiuk's speech but had never received it. Consequently, it had to base its criticism on the translation of the Ukrainian newspaper report, which had not been denied.

There was no immediate reaction from the Soviet embassy, which presumably will reply formally to the note.

The earlier incident involving the Polish legation developed from a complaint here that a legation employee had influenced two Polish girl immigrants to leave their jobs here to work on a Polish-language newspaper in Toronto.

U.S. Seizes Two Privately-Owned Heavy Bombers

Ponco City, Okla., Nov. 7 — (AP) — The United States has seized two privately-owned heavy bombers on Oklahoma airfields to stop their use in a revolution believed pending in South America, a government official announced here today.

Customs Inspector O. C. Milligan made the statement after impounding both planes under a wartime law governing arms exports.

"We have been working on this thing for months," he said. "It involves a lot more than just two bombers."

Milligan said both were destined for the abortive expedition against the Dominican Republic organized earlier this fall in Cuba.

Padres Are Necessary Say Legion, Clergy

Chatham, Nov. 7 (CP) —Disbandment of the chaplain services of the Canadian Army reserve force brought criticism today from clerymen and Canadian Legion officials.

An army spokesman said yesterday in Ottawa that the move was made because the Reserve force chaplain services were not full-time jobs and were considered unnecessary. Disbandment, effective last August, did not in any way involve curtailment of the chaplain services of he army's active force.

Rev. J. Morley Colling former senior Protestant chaplain with the British 8th Army, said the move was "a definitely backward step, an out-and-out decision of folly."

Blair McKinnon, zone commander of the Canadian Legion, said: "The service the padre performed and the morale he builds are beyond the reach of monetary terms."

Lt. - Col. W. G. Kerr: "The padre in a unit or even attached to a unit is worth his weight in gold."

A. F. Davidson, head of Canadian Legion Branch 28: "Padres are essential in the reserve army."

300 Japanese At Marriage Fair

Tokyo, Nov. 7 — (AP)—Three hundred Japanese—women hunting husbands and men seeking wives — paraded the banks of the Tama River looking each other over in a marriage fair sponsored by a marriage magazine, the newspaper Asahi reported today.

Dressed in their best, "a considerable number" found mates, Asahi said. Some of the women "were accompanied by their mothers, which probably didn't help."

The procedure:

1. Register at the entrance to the grounds.
2. Get a number.
3. Place number on chest.
4. Walk up and down the bank, ogling each passer-by.
5. Spot a likely prospect, take down the number, run to the registration tent and get a card file, giving the prospect's life history, (bank balance included).
6. Propose, if desired.

'HUMBLE GIFT' FROM RETIRED CHINESE GENERAL

Shanghai, Nov. 7 — (AP)—The British - owned Shanghai North China Daily News has received 100,000 Chinese dollars ($1.25) from a retired Chinese general in Chungking, as a wedding gift to Princess Elizabeth. The "humble present," Maj.-Gen. Teh-Chen wrote, was for a princess who will be "another Queen Victoria."

FOOTBALL HEADQUARTERS IN COP'S CELLAR

Pittsburgh, Nov. 7 — (AP) — Mrs. Albin Miklaustick, 32, who testified her policeman - husband converted their cellar into the headquarters of his sandlot football team, was granted an uncontested divorce.

With up to 35 players meeting and changing clothes in the basement, she said, there was no place to hang the wash.

BOARD RULES TANKER'S CAPTAIN PARTLY TO BLAME

Investigators Suspend Licence for One Year

Toronto, Nov .7. (CP)—Capt. Charles Willard of Montreal, "contributed largely" to the collision early last Sept. 24 of the coal carrier Milverton and the oil tanker Translake and to the resulting explosion and loss of 12 tives a four-man investigating commission said today.

Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow of the Ontario Supreme Court said in a judgment read at Osgoode Hall that he and three Federal Transport Department assessors also found Capt. Charles A. Mahoney of Kingston, "may have contributed to the collision."

Capt. Willard was pilot on the Translake when she was in collision with the Milverton in the St. Lawrence river near Iroquois, Ont. Capt. Mahoney was the Milverton's pilot.

Suspended Year

The investigators suspended Capt. Willard's pilot's licence for one year, Capt. Mahoney's for six months.

Clare van Allen, young Iroquois district farmer, was commended for his "outstanding bravery" in rescuing some of the Milverton's crew from the fireswept ship and the burning water after the explosion.

The commission's judgment said in part:

"The court, upon the evidence accepted, is of the opinion that the primary cause of the accident was the failure of Capt. Willard to port his vessel at a sufficient distance below Pinetree Point to prevent the full force of the current striking her starboard bow, the strength of which current prevented the vessel from responding to the starboard wheel, with the result that she went across the river and across the bow of the approaching ship Milverton."

Might Have Helped

The court found that Captain Leonard E. Paine of Montreal, captain of the Milverton, did not contribute "in any way whatever" to the collision or explosion. Capt. Raouel Chatel of Montreal, the Translake's skipper, did not "contribute directly to the cause of the collision."

"The court cannot find that the pilot of either vessel misunderstood the intention of the other as the two vessels were approaching each other until such time as the S. S. Translake sheared to port. At this time it was too late for the pilot of the S. S. Milverton to do other than what he did do, except that he failed to blow a danger signal.

"It is impossible for the court to say that the failure of Capt. Mahoney to blow a passing signal, when the vessels were one-half mile apart, contributed to the accident but the court is of the opinion that if such signal had been given it might have helped avoid the accident."

Oil Flowed into Hold

The judgment said that evidence showed "some 2,000 barrels" of crude oil was discharged from the Translake during the 1½

BOARD RULES—PAGE 3

Commission Bans Use of Electricity For Many Purposes

New Regulations Come Into Effect on Monday

Toronto, Nov. 7 —(CP)— A modified form of power rationing, effective next Monday, Nov. 10 and coupled with penalties for infractions of the regulations, was announced today by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.

The announcement, by W. Ross Strike, second vice-chairman of the commission, bans use of electricity for these purposes:

Signs, show-windows and ornamental lighting for decorative or advertising purposes; electric heating devices in stores or offices; interior lighting of business premises after business hours unless work is being done — with the exception of banks and other business places requiring light for protection.

The order also restricts use of electricity for floodlighting of parking lots, used car lots, service stations and outdoor industrial premises.

The rationing announcement came on the heels of numerous commission appeals for economical use of power.

The commission has been pressing a campaign for a voluntary 10-per-cent reduction in domestic use to enable power to be diverted to meet the increasing demands of heavy industry.

May Grant Regulations

Provision is made whereby the Power Commission may grant exemptions under the regulations. These will be granted only where public health and safety are endangered.

The regulations put a blanket ban on outdoor Christmas lighting. Merchants in some municipalities already had decided against hanging strings of colored lights over business district intersections this year.

The order placed this restriction on outdoor and floodlighting for brightly-lighted streets and for parking lots, used-car lots, service stations and outdoor industrial premises between sunset and sunrise:

Parking lots and used-car lots may use two watts for each 100 square feet only while open for business; service stations, 100 watts a gasoline pump standard, exclusive of lights in pumps, and only while the service station is open for business; and outdoor industrial premises, the amount necessary for working areas only.

Still unrestricted is the floodlighting of airports, lighting for police and fire services and protection, lighting required by law, and lighting for direction signs and signs designating doctors' offices.

Algiers, Nov. 7 — (Reuters) — Four hundred of 600 Jews from Morocco, Tunis and Algiers were arrested while trying to embark from the beach at nearby Glyotville today on a cargo vessel which was cruising offshore. The arrested Jews, believed to be attempting illegal immigration to Palestine, were taken to Algiers.

IMPORTED SCOTCH STILL RATIONED, 12 BOTTLES MONTH

Chairman Says Ration So High Liquor Considrred as Free Sale

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)—Imported Scotch whisky still is rationed in Ontario but Chairman William Griesinger of the Ontario Liquor Control Board said today the quota of 12 24-ounce bottles a month is so high that "it could practically be considered free sale."

The quota jump from one monthly bottle of imported Scotch Nov. 1 passed almost unnoticed in liquor stores, which report the supply plentiful. All other types of liquor have been off ration since last March 1.

"The change didn't make much difference to us," said one store manager. "The demand isn't anything startling. Personally, I doubt that the average working man can afford to buy his full quota of imported Scotch."

Supplies of Scotch whisky arriving from Great Britain have increased recently as Britain increased export efforts to obtain Canadian and American currency to ease her dollar shortage. This reflects the change in the British economic situation over the last few months, for Mr. Griesinger was quoted last January as saying it would probably be five years before Ontario residents would be able to buy more than one bottle of imported Scotch a month.

Mr. Griesinger said at that time that shipments of Scotch whisky to the Ontario Board had been cut 10 per cent below 1946. He declared then that the shortage probably would persist for "some years" because all British distillers had to reduce their production during the war.

The permit sale system of handling liquor is being continued in Ontario. Started about 1927, it is required by provisions of the Liquor Control Act as a control measure.

Table Sugar Takes Place of Sunlight In Speeding Growth of Tomatoes

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, Nov. 7 (AP)—Ordinary table sugar is being used as a substitute for sunlight to make tomatoes grow.

This is reported by Dr. Robert Hockett, scientific director of the Sugar Research Foundation, which sponsored the sugar- sunlight experiments.

The sugar was sprayed in liquid on the undersides of tomato leaves by Prof. F. W. Went of the California Institute of Technology. These tomatoes were grown in a greenhouse. Their natural light was cut down until the plants became stunted.

Then the sugar spray was used and the stunted tomatoes grew as well as those getting adequate light.

The results are not expected to be confined to tomatoes. The sugar ought to work on all kinds of plants. Hockett said it seems possible that sugar, supplementing light in greenhouses, may pay off in terms of larger, earlier and more numerous fruits and flowers.

Went found also that when tomatoes are transplanted, they recover from the shock quicker if their leaves have been sugar-sprayed a few hours before the transplanting.

Hockett explained that substituting sugar for light seemed a natural experiment because of the way that plants make their own sugar. All plants produce some sugar along with their starches.

This they do by taking carbon dioxide from the air, water from the soil, and sunlight, and mixing the three with the green coloring matter of leaves, chlorophyll. The amount of sugar so made rises with the amount of light falling on the leaves. So it occurred to scientists to substitute ready-made sugar for the light.

Police Blotter

City police have received several complaints from directors of the Club Commodore at the exhibition park that windows in the Club were being broken, presumably by boys throwing stones. The matter is being investigated by police who promised that regular checks would be made at the property by constables in the police cruiser.

Raymond Bonisteel, R. R. 5, Trenton, night watchman at the Graham Cold Storage, reported to police that on Wednesday evening he had been assaulted by three men as he was about his work at the plant. The commotion was heard by James Graham from his apartment in the building, the three men making off when he investigated the disturbance. When Bonisteel reported the incident his face showed bruises as result of the assault.

Rubber tires are still in demand if the disappearance of a wheelbarrow tire from a contracting project on Albert Street is any criterion. The St. Lawrence Contracting reported that a rubber tire had disappeared from a wheelbarrow left at their contracting job.

Harold Barrett, Well Known in Music Circles, Dies

Harold W. Barrett died at his home, 42 Grove Street, Friday morning after an illness which developed last Sunday. In his death this city has lost one of its much esteemed and well liked native sons and to a host of friends his sudden passing has brought sincere feelings of regret.

Born in this city, Harold William Barrett was in his 51st year, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Barrett. All his life was passed here and for some years he was engaged in the retail tobacco and news business. Of late years he has filled in a capable manner the position of manager of the Central Warehouse at the Trenton Airport. He loved the city of his birth and was active in many ways in its betterment. Especially in musical circles he was a great asset to the city as he possessed a fine voice and his services were often solicited to assist in musical events. To all requests, when possible, he consented and gave freely of his talents in entertaining the music lovers of this city. He was a valued member of St. Michael's Church choir and also in connection with the parish he was a member of the Holy Name Society. He was a member of the Separate School Board and held the 4th Degree in the Knights of Columbus. He will be much missed.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Helen Foltz; one daughter, Margaret, and three sons, Jack, William and Joseph, all at home; three sisters, Miss Nellie Barrett, Miss Ethel Barrett, both of Belleville, and Mrs. Hilda Serre, of Chapleau, Ontario; five brothers, Frank, Norbert, Leo and Thomas, all of Belleville, and James (Doc.), of New York City.

Three Injured When Car Ditched, Charges Laid

Bancroft (Special)—An accident occurred about 12.30 a.m. Thursday on Highway 62 when a car owned by Mr. Charles Murphy of Murphy's Corners and driven by his son, Michael, took the ditch about a mile below Steenburg. He had as passengers Miss Margaret Maxwell of Bancroft and Mr. Donald Whitmore of Coe Hill. The trio were returning from attending a Young People's meeting at Ivanhoe when the accident occurred. Dr. S. S. Lumb of Bancroft was called to the scene of the accident and treated Miss Maxwell for arm and wrist injuries and it was thought that Donald Whitmore may have a fracture of his ribs. Provincial Constables S. W. Palmateer and Douglas Ketcheson of Bancroft investigated the accident and charges of careless driving and driving without a license have been laid against the driver Michael Murphy. Extensive damage was done to the car in the neighborhood of three hundred dollars.

Observe Education Week

Last night was Open Night at the Bancroft Public School in recognition of Educational Week. The full staff of teachers was on hand as well as Inspector H. H. Loucks to welcome the parents of the children attending the school. There were approximately ninety attended the opening between the hours of seven-thirty and nine-thirty. The teachers were busy showing the parents the work of the pupils and it was inspiring to see just what was being accomplished by the young group from Kindergarten up.

Council Proclaims Remembrance Day Holiday

Merchants of the city as well as workers in manufacturing plants will observe November 11 as a public holiday it was decided by council in committee Thursday evening. The holiday was later proclaimed by Acting Mayor H. J. Clarke.

Council recommended that as Remembrance Day had been declared a statutory holiday by the Dominion Government that the day be declared a civic holiday in Belleville to do honor to those who sacrificed their lives in two world wars.

In a second recommendation passed in committee councillors agreed to the preparation of a city by-law prohibiting the use of sound trucks on city streets.

Consulting Engineer William Storrie will be contacted by council to ascertain the most feasible plan for the installation of sewers for the Docter property subdivision which it is proposed to be annexed to the city.

The firm of Meadows and Critoph, town planning engineers, will be advised that no further expense be incurred against the city unless under proper written authority authorized by recommendation from council.

Will Place Signs

City Engineer Charles Mott was authorized to place any necessary signs along Pinnacle Street to obviate any traffic confusion resulting from the placing of traffic signals at the intersection of that street and Bridge Street and Victoria. Railroad officials pointed out in a letter to council that as trains move slowly along Pinnacle Street, it would in many cases be impossible to get through the intersection in the interval in which the green light might be in their favor.

A committee of Alderman Allin, Armstrong, Butler and Duffy was appointed to interview the Industrial Commission regarding a recommendation to council in connection with the industrial area at the eastern limits of the city.

A light was ordered for the Market Street laneway at the rear of the liquor store, while a new desk was authorized for the comptroller's office, the present desk in that office to be placed in the office of the chief of police.

Record Number Hunting Licences Sold in City

"If there's a deer left in the north country after the 1947 season closes, it won't be the fault of the hunters," Ed. Thomas, issuer of licences, said today after scanning the list of the "papers" sold to potential nimrods who start on the annual deer-hunting trek over the weekend.

Over three hundred licences have been sold already, Mr. Thomas said, "This number is away in advance of those sold a year ago; and that is not taking into consideration the inevitable last-minute rush."

A large number of Americans have secured licences, and are ready to take their chances with their Canadian brothers-in-arms come deer-hunting time. Upwards of 1,000 gun licences have been sold to date by Mr. Thomas.

Arrested Man Halted by Shots After Attempting to Escape Custody Near County Jail

Halted by four shots from the service revolver of provincial police as he vainly attempted to escape after being apprehended for breaking and entering the Napanee Cleaners at Napanee, James Maitland, 37, alias, Ed. R. Page of West Vancouver, has been returned to Napanee to face charges.

Maitland was arrested Thursday night by J. Purdy of the Belleville provincial police following a four-mile chase in the police cruiser from Point Anne to the outskirts of the city where the arrest was made.

Later Maitland was being transferred to the county jail when he stepped out of the police car he made a vain attempt to escape as he darted around the corner of the court house building in the darkness. Four warning shots from the police revolver halted Maitland and he was recaptured with the assistance of Fred Scott, jailer assistant, who was just then reporting for duty.

Napanee police first got on the trail of Maitland when an employee of the Napanee Cleaners noticed someone in the plant as he passed the premises on the way to lodge. Police were informed but when they arrived on the scene the intruder had fled taking with him three fur coats and approximately $150 from the cash register.

Later is was ascertained that the intruder had hired a taxi to take him to Belleville. Provincial police in this city were notified and the trail of the taxi was picked up as it passed the Point Anne laneway.

Provincial police at Belleville stated that in addition to the Napanee charge Maitland was wanted in Woodstock on two break-in counts; at Ottawa for housebreaking and also at Peterborough where he is alleged to have entered the office of J. W. Pierce, Dominion Surveyor. He is also wanted at West Vancouver and at Winnipeg.

James A. Cokers, Retired Manager Phone Co., Dies

James A. Cokers, 285 William Street, retired manager of the Bell Telephone Company in this city, died in the Belleville General Hospital late Thursday evening after an illness of several weeks' duration.

Born in Hamilton the late Mr. Cokers was in his 83rd. year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cokers. At the age of twenty years he served in the Northwest Rebellion of 1885 and after the rebellion he became associated with the Bell Telephone Company in Montreal. He advanced well in the service and in 1893 he was appointed manager at Knowlton, Quebec, and later transferred to the managership at St. John's, Quebec. In 1900 he was appointed manager at Cornwall and in 1910 he came to Belleville to assume charge of company's business here. He filled the position in a highly satisfactory manner to the company and to the general public and in 1932 he retired on pension after serving 44 years and 4 months.

Enlisted in 1915

When living in Cornwall the First World War occurred and Mr. Cokers enlisted in 1915 with the 154th. Battalion Glengary Highlanders and went overseas as Captain-Quarter Master. He served in England until 1917 when he returned to Canada. Having taken part in the Northwest Rebellion and also in the First Great War, Mr. Cokers served well his King and Country.

During the years Mr. Cokers lived in this city he was highly esteemed. He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and held the office of an elder. Fraternally he was a Past Master of Dorchester Lodge No. 4 A. F. & A. M. at St. John's, Quebec. He was a former member of the Belleville Rotary Club.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Rowena Ashline, and one sister, Mrs. Fannie Trenmouth, Acton, Mass.

Resting at the Pinkston Funeral Home, Church Street at Victoria Avenue; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Fred MacDonald, game overseer for this district, stated today that hunters are warned to have the shipping tag which is attached to the hunting licence put on the carcass before attempting to transport it from the hunting camp.

"Unless this is done," MacDonald said, "the party or parties are liable to confiscation and prosecution under the Act. It is understood that the Act will be strictly enforced during the coming hunting season."

Veterans Request Citizens to Buy Poppies Saturday

The local Veterans organizations are making their annual Poppy Day appeal to the people of this community on Saturday. The Poppy Fund is now a recognized institution wherever such organizations exist in Canada and it serves a two-fold purpose of much merit. The money which is raised by the distribution of the Poppy — the symbol of sacrifice — is used entirely to relieve unusual distress among War Veterans of the last war and the recent conflict, and their families. At all times it has been found that the Veterans, in view of the fact that many of them have disabilities and handicaps, suffer even more than others who are out of employment, since many of them require special care and attention which they are unable to provide. This is where the Poppy Fund, raised through the sale of Poppies by the local Veterans organizations, steps in and provides relief for the situation.

There is another reason why every citizen should wear a Poppy for Remembrance Day. These Poppies are manufactured in the Vetcraft shops of Canada, workshops in which handicapped Veterans are given sheltered employment, and in which they manufacture the hundreds of thousands of Poppies which are distributed every year at this time. By wearing a Poppy, citizens can find much satisfaction in knowing that they are helping these handicapped Veterans to obtain a livelihood which they would otherwise lack on account of their special disabilities.

This two-fold appeal should find a ready response in the hearts and minds of the people of this Community, which has always been ready to make the way easier for those of its citizens who served Country and Empire in the Great War, and in the recent conflict.

MORE ABOUT:

INCENTIVE PAY AT THE "ALEMITE"

Previously we showed how employees benefit from production by a "norm" and take home more pay as a result of their own efforts, and we said that how a norm was reached would be discussed next.

A norm is sometimes called a "standard task" and is arrived at after the job for which the norm is sought, is studied, tested and analyzed. The study takes place for a period, with different conditions, different operators and so on. The figure that comes out of this study is the number of job operations per hour that the average employee can do under average conditions. This figure is in turn amended to allow for fatigue, machine-down-time, lack of materials, supervision and personal needs. It is after these amendments that the norm is reached and then we take 38% of norm as the point of production above which the employee gets paid for all extra production. Once again here are some of the best:—

Mr. B. in two weeks ending October 5th., 1947, made a total incentive pay of $18.97. Thus he made $1.12 on a base pay of .90 per hour.

Miss S. in two weeks ending October 5th., 1947, made a total incentive pay of $14.72. Thus she made .81 on a base pay of .63 per hour.

Miss C. in two weeks ending October 5th., 1947, made a total incentive pay of $19.62. Thus she made .88 on a base pay of .65 per hour.

Mr. H. S. in two weeks ending October 5th., 1947, made a total incetive pay of $15.56. Thus he made $1.03 on a base pay of .86 per hour.

Mr. D. in two weeks ending October 5th., 1947, made a total incentive pay of $13.72. Thus he made $1.03 on a base pay of .86 per hour.

NEXT:—
Under what circumstances can a Norm be varied?

In mining stocks gains ranging from fractions up to three points were posted, less expensive stocks moving ahead up to 20 cents. Steels and newsprints were strong in industrials.

Volume for the first three hours was 843,000 shares, about 280,000 better than yesterday's similar period.

Senior golds saw Dome up 3/8, Hollinger ½, Kerr Addison 1/8, Lamaque 25 and Teck Hughes 5. Better juniors were Campbell, Central Patricia, Cochenour, Consolidated Beattie, Conwest, Donalda, Eldona, Giant, Little Long Lac, Macassa, Macleod, Madsen, Negus, O'Brien, Upper Canada, Sullivan, Sisco, San Antonio and Pioneer. New Hamburg Rink Destroyed, Cost $15,000

New Hamburg, Nov. 7. (CP)—The New Hamburg rink was destroyed by fire today and the blaze was said to be the largest in New Hamburg's history. The building was built in 1905, was 200 feet long and 90 feet wide and had a capacity of 1,200 people.

A fire alarm was sent in at 5 a.m., and 10 minutes later the entire building was a mass of flames.

It was believed that no one had been in the rink since last Monday. Besides the rink, the Hockey Club dance floor and tables and chicken pens owned by the Wilmot Agricultural Society, which were stored in the building, were destroyed.

The structuhe originally cost $15,000. Owned by a stock company, it was partly covered by insurance. Besides serving as a community sport centre, the rink was used for village dances and festivals and as an agricultural hall.

Half an hour after the fire was reported, the building was demolished. A high wind carried sparks and embers throughout the village and firemen said only the effects of recent damp weather saved many other buildings from burning.

The best known team to see action in what was often referred to as the "cigar box" was the intermediate team which won the O.H.A. championship in 1925-26. Among the members of that team which later saw action in professional ranks were Andy Bellemer, Roter Roth, Gamey Lederman, Hap Hamel and Ted Oliver.

minutes the two ships were locked together. Some oil flowed into the holed Milverton, vaporized, mixed with air and became a "highly inflammable and explosive mixture." This, ignited by some undetermined force, caused the explosion.

The accepted procedure was for ships to remain together after a collision, keeping holes closed. But the commissioners recommended:

"In such a case as this, however, when an oil tanker is holed as the Translake was the court suggests that the Department of Transport carefully consider if it would not be proper procedure when any ship collides with an oil tanker in way of cargo tanks that she immediately back out and stand by at a safe distance."

Restaurants Must Be Kept Clean Says Speaker

Belleville and Kingston members of the Canadian Restaurant Association met in Kingston on Wednesday evening where they heard E. R. Nichols, London, national president of the organization state that Canada had plenty of eating places but not enough good restaurants.

Setting the tone of the evening Mr. Nichols stated that renewal of membership should be refused to restaurants or eating places which failed to conform to definite high standards. Size of the business should not be the qualifying factor, he added, the emphasis should be placed on ethics, quality and cleanliness.

George A. DeVuyst, president of the Belleville Branch of the organization told the meeting that some city councils seem to be more interested in the licence fee from eating places than in protecting the public. "As long as cities permit these sling shot places to operate they can't expect decent restaurants," he said.

Mr. DeVuyst suggested that restaurants and other eating places be classified as "A", "B" or "C" and that licences be issued only with the authorization of the boards of health and that licences be revoked "without a moment's notice" if the places failed to keep up their standards.

A good representation of members of the Belleville organization attended the meeting, including Alderman E. E. Follwell representing Mavor Frank Follwell and Health Inspector George Whitman.

WOUNDED BUCK JABS HUNTER

Halifax, Nov. 7 — (CP)—Carl Morash aimed well and dropped the big deer with his first shot. But the well-antlered buck was not one to give up so easily.

When Morash approached the deer reared up, poked his antlers in Morash's midriff and sent him spinning through the air for 10 feet.

Another hunter came to the rescue and dropped the buck — for good — with another shot. Morash was only shaken up.

40 New Members Initiated Into Loyal Order of Moose

In the largest initiation to be held since the institution of the lodge, twenty-six years ago, a total of forty new members were admitted into the local Moose Lodge on Thursday evening. The initiation degree work was by the Trenton Degree team, the initiation being the first of many in the re-organization of the Belleville Lodge.

The Order of the Moose is enjoying tremendous growth throughout Canada and the United States, the organization now having more than one million members. The background of the fraternal order is Mooseheart, 35 miles southwest of Chicago, and Moosehaven at Jacksonville, Florida.

Mooseheart, solely owned and operated by the Order is the child city where dependent children of Moose members are raised and educated with more than six thousand children having graduated. At present there are just under one thousand in attendance with plans for extending the property and enlarging the physical plant. In proportion to the lodge membership there are more children from Canada attending at Mooseheart than from the United States.

Moosehaven is where dependent aged Moose members and their wives live out their remaining years in comfort and contentment. with all expenses paid, thus fulfilling the true spirit of fraternalism. Moosehaven as well as the lodge is entirely non-sectarian. Locally there are many sickness and accident benefits to be had from the Moose.

Grand Governor of the Grand Lodge for Ontario, Oscar Pierce spoke briefly at the initiation, as did membership director C. F. Hamilton, who talked on the work before the members to complete the rebuilding of the lodge. A presentation in appreciation of Mr. Hamilton's work was made by Past Governor Ed. Patrick.

Vince Freeman Governor

The entire lodge meeting was under the capable direction of the new lodge governor Vincent Freeman who thanked the various speakers and others who cooperated in making the evening a success.

The Belleville Lodge has an exceptionally full social and community program which will soon go into effect, one of the projects being the construction of a new Moose building which it is hoped will be built next year. This will provide large quarters and other accommodation.

The program of entertainment was under the direction of Gerald Vance with a lively and entertaining evening being provided by capable local entertainers.

The present Belleville plant of American Optical Company, Canada Limited

Architect's drawing of new AO Belleville plant to be completed in 1948.

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY IN BELLEVILLE

This is the first in a series of advertisements to tell you a few facts about American Optical Company Canada Limited, its people and their activities. So let's turn back the pages of history a quarter of a century ago. It was in the year 1922 that AO was born in Belleville. The new company started operations in a small way, employing less than 30 people. But it did manufacture an essential product — ophthalmic lenses for the correction of vision—and so its future seemed well assured.

Today American Optical Company Canada Limited stands as a monument to the foresight, energy and skill of AO Belleville people who are responsible for its steady growth. Over the years the plant's personnnel and production have expanded. Today nearly 190 people are employed .... and these lens experts grind and polish over a million lenses annually!

Large as this quantity may seem to you, it still isn't enough. Millions of additional lenses are needed to satisfy the demands of ophthalmologists, optometrists and ophthalmic dispensers who provide eye care for people in Canada, Australia, and New Zealand where AO Belleville lenses are primarily distributed.

That's why we are building a new, modern lens manufacturing plant in Belleville, which is expected to be completed and in operation late in 1948. More help will be needed too when this new plant really starts "rolling" — at least double our present personnel..

In our opinion the new Belleville plant of American Optical Company Canada Limited represents another indication of the growth of Canada and the solidarity of AO Belleville people working together for their common good. So long as this teamwork exists, AO can look forward to a bright future in Belleville where, like its employees, the company constantly strives to be a good neighbor and a good citizen.

Home and School

Education Week aims to bring the parents and guardians of the young more and more closely in touch with the teachers and the work of the school. There can be nothing but benefit by attracting to the schools those who have the education of the young in the homes as the teachers have their training in the schoolhouse.

That parents should know very closely what the teachers are doing in instructiing their children is clear enough for it will help the parents in the education of their families in their homes. Parental interest in the work the child has to do in school cannot but be roused as the parents know intimately what the teacher has to do and what the child has to do during the hours of school. The interest of the father and mother in the school should be of the deepest significance for the teacher is performing part of education while in the home another part of the necessary instruction is being imparted.

More complete and intimate knowledge on the part of parent with the work in school will be a very great help to the teaching staff. For the parent can learn much from what the trained teacher is seen accomplishing in instructing the child.

To the children it is an encouragement to find their teachers and their parents both taking a deep interest in their upbringing, seeing that they are both concerned in their educational advancement. Here is a link between school and home which must be maintained.

This is a very complex world, much more so than the days when the parents of the schoolboys and schoolgirls went to school. For parents to know what modern education is will give them a sympathetic understanding of the aims of education, appreciation of the work of the teachers and cooperation in the home where the child may need advice and help with his studies. To have a close-up view and a real intimacy with the school work will be of benefit to parents as well as scholars for the home and school will then be co-operating sympathetically in the great and all important duty of preparing the young for their life work.

Parents after years out of school must find a refreshing influence during the days of this week as they come into contact with modern education. They may learn to revalue some things as the result of their cooperation with the work of the teacher in the school. To the child it must be of more than passing interest to see their parents interested in the everyday work of the teacher and the class.

Style of Architecture

Recently a newspaper remarked that Canada had failed to develop a truly Canadian style of architecture.

There are buildings of great beauty, homes, and commercial structures inspiring the observer.

Is there a trend? What is the outlook in style? Probably not many people would know if there is a trend, marked so clearly as to indicate a line of development for the future.

Ancient Greece developed a style of architecture that suited the topography of the country and the spirit of her people. Ruins of Greek buildings in various places in the eastern part of the Mediterranean stand as marks forever of the supreme sense of architectural beauty possessed by the Greeks of old.

In the Middle Ages there grew up in Northern Europe the majestic and soaring style known as Gothic, reaching its supreme expression in the great churches of the Middle Ages. Their influence is felt in many churches in North America where Gothic is followed with modifications. This style has expressed the principles which dominated the thoughts and actions of their time when the Gothic style developed; expressing the philosophy of man's community ideals in the Middle Ages. As has been said "no style is the result of chance, but is always the concrete expression of the humanities, a reflection of the intellectual, social, religious, military and political conditions." Today new inventions in materials play a part, the speed of modern life, business, economic and social requirements have their place in molding the form of the buildings which men occupy as homes; as places of business and as centres of their community life.

What the future will bring forth in the style of cities in the New World will be one of the most interesting matters to occupy the attention of the people. For this is an age which is very complex and so different from other ages. Something of development can be seen in the style of business buildings.

Prairie Chickens Return

In describing the range of the Prairie Chicken, bird books tell of the gradual trek northwestward over the Canadian plains of this diminishing species, and add, "formerly in Ontario." A revision is indicated. A specimen in the Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology was found dead by a railroad worker 50 miles northwest of Fort William in 1929, first evidence that the true Prairie Chicken or pinnated grouse was back in the province after an absence of many years. About 1932 they were reported on Manitoulin Island, welcome invaders from the Michigan mainland where numerous colonies are found. Since then they appear to become permanent settlers on the Island, and to date they are known to be present at about 30 different points. So deep is the interest in this recurrence of the Prairie Chicken in Ontario that the Department of Lands and Forests has commissioned James L. Baillie, ornithologist of the Royal Ontario Museum, to take a census of the birds and report on the possibilities for eventually securing breeding stock for introduction to other areas of the province. Because of the great value of these game birds and the fact that their numbers have decreased deplorably in years past, they are legally protected and this protection will be rigidly enforced until all danger that they will share the fate of the now extinct Heath Hen has been removed.

A Chance to Help

Every electric power consumer in Ontario has the opportunity to help ease the power shortage by conserving without forcing restrictive measures upon the Commission. To save power means that employment will benefit for electric power today plays a highly important part in industry. Without it industrial development as we know it would not have been achieved.

Everyone should make every effort possible and in every way to cut down on the use of electricity for the good of all.

Becoming Warmer

Professor H. W. Ahlman, lecturing in Oslo, Norway, discussed recent Scandinavian climate change. In the past 10 years there has been a steady rise in temperature due to increasing warm air currents passing from southern to northern areas. Icebergs and ice fields in the Northern Arctic have been decreasing and glaciers in Norway have each year been losing as much as three million cubic meters of water per square kilometer.

Causes of this climatic trend will be one of the primary tasks of the joint Norwegian - Swedish - British expedition to the Antarctic planned for 19448.

The Old Days

Yep, them was the days, when the tin cup on the school pump was used by all, and the milk was delivered in a pail and ladled out into a bowl by the milkman. Women wore three or four voluminous petticoats, and boys and girls wore wool stockings and mitts which grandma knitted in vast quantities. Folks eating anywhere but at home were looked upon as spend-thrifts or show-offs; and lemonade and a dish of ice cream treat was an event to be marked down in a girl's diary. — Moose Jaw Times-Herald.

QUESTIONING

Do they question over there:
Catholic, Protestant or Jew?
Do they quarrel over prayer,
As we narrow mortals do?
When the soul at last is freed
From the fragile bond of clay,
Is it marked by race and creed,
Or do these things fade away?

Does it matter, when the breath
From the body softly slips
And the end of life called "death"
Leaves that last smile on the lips,
By what way the spirit came,
Having Heaven as its goal?
Or will all be judged the same—
By the glory of the soul?

Is there ancient hatred there?
Are there bitterness and strife?
Is there bickering unfair
In that realm of ampler life?
Or will humble and the great,
With the last small task achieved,
Equal be at Heaven's gate
And be graciously received?

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

May one be a Catholic and a Mason at the same time?

Since 1738 Catholics have been forbidden, under penalty of excommuncation, to enter societies of Freemasons or in any way to promote such organizations.

In that year Clement XII made the first papal pronouncement against Freemasonry, condemning the order largely on the grounds that its members were bound by oath not to disclose its purposes or practices to either civil or ecclesiastical authorities and that its teachings consisted essentially of naturalism and consequently were opposed to all forms of supernaturalism. Freemasonry has been condemned by many Popes since the time of Clement XII.

The Catholic objections to the order are clearly and concisely stated in "The New Catholic Dictionary" (1929). Masonic societies, says that work, "are really sectarian bodies, having their own formulas of belief about God, the soul, conscience, etc., and their own secret as well as public ritual, so that a Catholic may not consistently belong to them any more than he may be a member of any other church than his own." And again: "Since 1738 Catholics are, under penalty of excommunication incurred ipso facto and reserved to the Pope, strictly forbidden to enter Masonic societies, or promote them in any way."

Catholics as such are not prevented from becoming Freemasons by any tenent of the order, and nominal Catholics may and sometimes do become Masons; but from what has been said above it will be seen that a person who is both a Catholic and a Mason is not likely to be in good standing in the Catholic Church.

Some of the confusion on this subject arises from the fact that "Catholic" is often , applied to persons who are not actually communicants of that church, just as "Protestant" is often used as a general appellation for non-Catholics even when they are all.

New Tax Forms Ready For Use By Next Year

Ottawa, Nov. 7 (CP) — For the litle man with the steady job tax-day blues have gone forever. From now on the income tax department is going to do the worrying for him — at least as far as telling him how much he has to fork across.

W. S. Fisher, director-general of the department's legal branch waved the proofs of the new T1 tax form which goes into effect next year.

"If this form meets with success possibly we'll expand the simplification into the other forms," he said at a press conference.

There won't be any money to pay next April 30 for the man or woman earning less than $3,000 a year — that is unless he has changed employers during that period, or has earned from outside income more than $100. If such is the case then he will have to revert to the old T1 special, or, if in the higher brackets to the T1 General.

Mr. Fisher said that out of 2,908,000 persons paying taxes in Canada next year, 1,100,000 will be able to use the new sheets which are a larger version of the T4 form employers have formerly handled.

The new forms will be sent out early in the year in quintuplet to the employer who will insert the employee's income and taxes deducted at source. Two copies will be sent the department, two given the employee, and the employer keeps the fifth.

The wage-earner completes his two forms, putting in additional sources of income, charitable donations, medical expenses. When April 30 comes around all he has to do is forward one of the copies to the department which figures out how much tax he still owes.

"Notice of assessment will be sent each taxpayer around Sept. 30," said Mr. Fisher. "He'll be given a month to pay before he becomes subject to the usual fine for non-payment."

DO YOU GET EXAMINATION JITTERS?

Whether you are susceptible to examination jitters depends largely upon the functional efficiency of Setschenow's reflex inhibitory centre in your spinal cord. If that sounds pretty bad, please excuse it, kids. Im only trying to give this wretched column a scientific complexion. 'S'matter of fact I don't know whether there is such a centre in the spinal cord, but some good doctors think so.

If you do have examination jitters there are two suggestions I can offer for amelioration, prevention or relief of the unhappy state. Ah, yes, kids, I know, I know, for I was a great sufferer when I was a boy in Canandaigua—and in my time it never even occurred to any one to seek medical advice about such a trivial thing, nor was there a Doc Brady forever sounding off about such topics in the daily paper—daily paper my eye, the weekly paper, I should say.

Here are my suggestions.

1. Boob your daily intake of vitamins B complex.
2. Begin at least two weeks before the examination taking two grains of quinine each night and morning, and continue this until the examination is over.

Don't look for boop in the dictionary, kids. It isn't there. I'll have to have a talk with that man Webster, I'm afraid, about his tardiness in adding such words as geek, boop, vite and cri.

It makes no difference which salt of quinine or whether the dose is in a capsule, tablet or pill. It makes no difference whether you take a two-grain dose twice a day or a one-grain dose four time a day, or whether you take it before meals, after food, or at your convenience.

Speaking of the need of a tonic—a need which is almost universal among you and old—there is a word you will find in Webster. A tonic is something that increases tone, invigorates. But Webster seems as inept about it as he is about somersaults. Stedman's Medical Dictionary improves on Webster's definition, stating not only that tonic means increasing physical or mental tone of strength, invigorating, but also that a tonic is a remedy which restores enfeebled function and promotes vigor and a sense of well-being.

After next mid-year examinations I hope students who have tried out these suggestions will report their experience. Only if such reports state precisely what preparation or preparations of B complex and/or quinine one has used and for how long, will the reports have practical significance. I need not say that in every instance I regard such reports as confidential and never reveal the identity of a correspondent without his or her express permission.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Frostbitten

Children bombed out of their home in Poland had frostbitten hands, and now after several years they still have much pain and discomfort in their hands. (H.W.)

Answer—X-ray treatment has brought relief in many such cases.

Fat

Thank you for the Calcium and Rheumatiz pamphlet — my husband has obtained great relief. If you have anything on "Fatsos" I'd be grateful for it. I simply weigh a ton. (Mrs. H. D.)

Answer—For the pamphlet Calcium and Rheumatiz send stamped self addressed envelope. For the booklet Rules for Reducing send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

Eat Wheat

We get wheat from a farmer friend who grows it in properly fed soil. We grind it ourselves and almost every morning have hot cracked wheat porridge. Our children love it. Also I make whole wheat bread and cookies from the home ground flour and find it hard to keep enough to satisfy husband and children. We believe this has greatly improved our general health and vitality. (K B C, R.N.)

Answer—It would improve the health and vite of every family if it were used as a staple in the family dietary. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing, mind, not a clipping, for the pamphlet Wheat to Eat, which tells you how to go about it.

Saccharin

Please tell me to what extent I may use saccharin as a sweetener in tea, coffee, etc., instead of sugar. (E.J.F.)

Answer—Any one may use up to five grains of saccharin a day with impunity.

Britain's Future Prince Consort Performs First Public Ceremony

Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, R.N., has selected eight chief petty officers from the Kingsmoor (Corsham) Petty Officers' Training School, where he is stationed to form a guard of honor on the steps of Westminster Abbey on the occasion of his wedding to Princess Elizabeth. All are members of the Kingsmoor staff and two of them worked with Lt. Mountbatten when he took charge of the courses at the school. The officers are: Left to right, Chief Instructor W. F. Twine, of Woking; Training Officers' Bosun P. Williams, D.S.M., of Topsham; Chief of R. T. Staff L. W. Muir, of Portsmouth; Parade Instructor L. Draper, of Portsmouth; Parade Instructor C. Edwards of Hoylake; Stoker Mechanic A. M. Spackman of London; Air Mechanic A. S. Lowndes of Newport, Mon., and Writer S. Simmons of Ringwood, Hants.

Trenton Pair Plead Guilty of Joy Riding

Pleading guilty to charges of "joy riding" two Trenton young men, William Smith, 21, and William Storey 23, were assessed $130 each, fine and costs, when they appeared in county court Thursday morning before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The two young men were apprehended at Cornwall by Provincial Police and originally charged with auto theft. The charges were later reduced to that of "joy riding."

Giving summary evidence O. P.P. Constable Keays told the court that on the morning of October 22nd the two accused had been riding with Guy Hughes of Tweed when the driver had stopped his car at Corbyville to get out. The two had pushed the driver into the ditch and drove the car away. They had driven to Montreal and had been involved in an accident and were on their way back to Trenton when they were apphrehended at Cornwall. It was brought out that the two young men had been drinking when the car was taken.

"Rather an extensive joy ride" commented Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan at the conclusion of the officer's evidence. "Yes," returned Constable Keays, "It was a good ride."

Rental Overcharge

Mrs. Henry Scruby, Cannifton, was convicted on a charge under the Wartime Leasehold Regulations and was assessed $50 and costs. Investigator C. H. McBride told the court that the rental of rooms by Mrs. Scruby had been appraised at $10 per month and the accused had charged $12 and later $16 per month.

Special Prosecutor Malcolm Robb told the court that the case in question was but the first of many charges which would be laid against landlords charging rentals above the appraised value. Magistrate Wills in assessing the penalty stated the case would be an example to other landlords charging exorbitant rentals.

Stole Clothing

William H. Woodcock of Toronto and Shannonville was sentenced to three months in the county jail following a plea of guilty to a charge of the theft of a large box of clothing at Napanee. The accused faced a second charge of theft of auto parts but pleaded not guilty and was remanded for one week.

King George and Queen Elizabeth, parents of Princess Elizabeth, whose marriage to Lieut. Philip Mountbatten takes place on Nov. 20, are shown looking at an old map of Plymouth, Eng., during a two-day tour of the city.

Here is the newly-designed coat-of-arms for Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, R.N. The design bears the arms of Princess Alice, Lieut. Mountbatten's grandmother, over all in first quarter, on the arms of Denmark and Greece. The supporters are Hercules, representing Greece, and the Lion of England gorged with a naval crown. The crest has five ostrich feathers derived from the Carisbrooke and Mountbatten arms.

Father and the Boys Entertain

When father has his weekly foursome of bridge or the boys bring the gang in after bowling or basketball practice they want something mighty filling.

Since they seem to enjoy these affairs better when they are strictly "stag", mother usually plans to go to a movie, leaving everything ready so they may serve themselves. Buffet style is easy as everyone serves himself. Doughnuts or chocolate cake or big ginger cookies will follow. Hot foods are most popular. If left on a glass baking dish or platter they may be slipped into the oven to be heated and served on the same dish.

Some boys call hamburgers their "favorite fruit" so they will like the version recommended by the home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

With hot drink, some good substantial sandwiches often fill the bill.

Rev. G. Earl Leard Guest Speaker At Y.P.U. Rally

Ivanhoe. (Special.)—Rev. G. Earl Leard, Young People's and Boys' Work secretary of the United Church Christian Education staff, of Toronto, gave a very interesting and inspiring address to the fifty-five delegates assembled in Beulah United Church, on Wednesday evening, who had come from Bancroft, St. Ola, Gilmour, Madoc, Queensboro, Deseronto, White Lake and Belleville for the North Hastings sectional rally. This was the last of four rallies held in the area of the Belleville Presbytery by the Young People, the first being at Stirling on Saturday afternoon and evening, the second at Roblin, on Monday evening and the third at Bloomfield on Tuesday evening, under the direction of Mr. Raymond Gunsolus, of Belleville, president of the Presbytery Young People.

This was Rev. Mr. Leard's first visit to this area and he proved a very capable leader and acceptable successor to Rev. Alvin Cooper, who has been promoted to fill the vacancy due to the retirement of Dr. C. E. Meyers. In his presentation of the Christian way of life, Mr. Leard challenged every young person present, and sent them back to their respective unions resolved to give less time and energy to "mere fun," to place more emphasis upon the realities of their faith and to be prepared to challenge every practice in this communities that was not in accordance with the teachings of Jesus. The speaker urged Young People to make their Worship services such as would lead their members into the presence of God. He said, "You exist for a purpose and you have a pattern. You should seek driving power."

The rally was opened with a delicious supper served by the ladies of Beulah United Church. The minister Rev. J. F. Everson, welcomed those present. In the absence of the President, Mrs. Harold Chisholm, of Roslin, Mr. Roy Rollins, of Queensboro, presided over the meeting. Miss Margaret Hillis, of Belleville, had charge of the sing-song and was ably assisted by Rev. Mr. Leard.

Mr. Raymond Gunsolus presented the case of the new Moira Lake camp site and stated that of the $2,000 allotment to the Young People of the Belleville Presbytery, over one-half had been raised. It was planned that building operations would begin in the Spring of 1948. Raymond also explained that the Presbytery's portion of the support of Rev. Floyd Honey and Mrs. Honey, missionaries to China had been raised from $750 to $950. He also urged Union members to subscribe for the Quinte Broadcast.

Mr. Gaynor Rendell, convener of Conference Citizenship addressed the group on the work of that department and German McCaul spoke briefly on "Boys' Work" in the Presbytery.

A half hour was given to discussion with Rev. R. MacEachern, of Bancroft, leading the Citizenship Group; Rev. Alfred Poulter, of Madoc, the Missions Group; Miss Margaret Hillis, of Belleville, Fellowship and Leadership Training, and Miss Maude Burke, of Belleville, the newly elected president of the South Hastings section, the group on Culture.

In the findings it was felt that union members are weak in their knowledge of the Bible, and the suggestion was made that at each meeting the minister be allowed fifteen minutes of the program period for Bible study. Care should be taken to see that contributions to the Floyd Honey project be earmarked for that purpose; also that a whole evening be given over to a study of the field work of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Honey.

The following officers for the ensuing year were installed by Rev. G. Earl Leard, Hon. Pres. Rev. J. F. Everson; Past President, Mrs. Harold Chisholm, of Roslin; President, Mr. Earl Carpenter, Bancroft; Vice President, Mrs. Roy Turner, St. Ola; Secretary Treasurer, Miss Jean Moxam, Bancroft.

Christian Fellowship, Miss M. Coultes, Maynooth; Missions, Miss Doris Twiddy, Ivanhoe; Citizenship, Mr. Roy Rollins, Queensboro; Culture, Miss Gertrude Orr, Tweed; Leadership Training, Rev. J. F. Everson, Ivanhoe; Boys' Work, Rev. Alfred Poulter, of Madoc; Publications, Mrs. George Patton, Queensboro; Recreation, Mr. John Alexander, Queensboro.

Rev. George Patton, of Queensboro, closed the meeting with prayer and the benediction.

Theatre Incident Involved Wife Of the Accused

Cobourg, Nov. 7. (CP)—Vernon Ellison, 21, of nearby Bowmanville, went on trial yesterday on a charge of attempted murder and intent to cause bodily harm to Lindsay Scott, also of Bowmanville, over a theatre incident involving Ellison's wife.

Ellison was charged after a disturbance in a Bowmanville plant May 13 in which a gun fell to the floor and discharged. The trouble is reported to have originated over Ellison's belief that Scott had bothered Mrs. Ellison in the theatre.

Scott, who testified Ellison attempted to shoot him only to have the gun fail to go off, said a young woman spoke to him outside the theatre while he was standing in line to enter. They had continued talking while entering the theatre and Scott said he sat down beside the woman.

"She told me she was Mrs. Vernon Ellison," said Scott. "I didn't hold her hand in the show but held her wrist up to see what time her watch said. I left the show with her and we separated. That was all there was to it."

Scott, whose testimony about the plant incident was corroborated by two other employees, said Ellison walked up to him next day at work and said: "I want you to leave my wife alone." Later, said Scott, Ellison approached him and pushed something into his side. He said he heard a click and looked down to see the muzzle of a gun.

"I saw him make a motion with his left hand," said Scott. "He seemed to be working something back under his coat. I knocked his arm up and the pistol fell on the floor where it discharged."

SURGICAL INSTRUMENTS OF SEAWEED

Tokyo, Nov. 7 — (AP) — A Japanese chemist, 24-year-old Kazuyoshi Endo, filed for a patent on a process which he said would end all fear of doctors leaving surgical dressings inside patients on whom they operate.

His process utilizes seaweed for such materials, and his friends said that samples left inside animals "disappeared in three months."

JAPS TO SPEND WINTER IN RELOCATION CAMP

Some 58 Canadian citizens of Japanese racial origin will spend the winter in two huts at the former No. 32 S.F.T.S., R.A.F., four miles south of Moose Jaw, Sask., in the face of their refusal to take employment offered in other parts of Canada. The Japanese holdouts refuse to accept employment unless they are allowed to return to their former homes on the British Columbia coast. They also want their claims against the government for seizure of their property in B. C. at the start of the war with Japan, settled. Most of those remaining at the Moose Jaw camp have at least one member of their families working at various jobs in Moose Jaw, thus providing food for the rest of the family. The government closed the community mess hall in August and since the holdouts have been providing their own meals. The government continues to pay for heat, light and water at the two huts where they are now concentrated. Above are shown some of them at the Moose Jaw relation camp.

Says Russia Voted For Canada as Council Member

By ROSS MUNRO

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, Nov. 6. (CP)—Russia's Andrei Vishinsky disclosed today that Russia voted for Canada as a member of the Security Council "despite differences we have had with Canada in the past and whatever differences we may have with her in the future."

This was the first indication of the way Russia voted when Canada along with Argentina, was a successful candidate for the Council when the first ballot was taken in mid-September.

Vishinsky was making an appeal for co-operation from U.N. members in the election of Ukraine to the last remaining Council seats over which there has been a long deadlock.

He accused Britain and the United States of preventing the Ukraine from being elected by "ordering" other countries to vote against this Soviet Republic.

10 P.C. Reduction In Use of Power Asked by Hydro

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP)—To enable power to be diverted to meet increasing demands of heavy industry, the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission yesterday pressed its campaign for a voluntary 10-per-cent reduction in domestic use of electricity.

Householders can help by economizing on use of electric lighting and by turning off appliances as soon as they are through using them, officials said. Cities and towns have been asked to wait until after sunset before turning on street lights. The commission has appealed to owners of electric outdoor advertising signs to turn them off.

In the interests of power conservation, business sections of many communities may lack their customary bright blaze of colorful Christmas lighting this year. Gaily-lighted outdoor Christmas trees probably will be missing from the holiday scene.

A commission spokesman said today power is scarce because the industrial demand for electric energy is expanding more rapidly than new generating units can be brought into service. The commission is generating more power this year than last but requirements of booming industrial areas are higher.

SIDEWALK FISHING IN NEW YORK

Torrential rains and high tides flooded low-lying areas around New York recently and among other things gave a photographer the opportunity of a fellow catching fish on the sidewalks of New York. The angler is Johnny Palm and the fish came from a flooded fish market. The one held by Johnny here looks as if rigor mortis had set in.

Four Referees To be Used in Playoff Series

(By The Canadian Press)

Football fans attending the first game of the Big Four playoffs series at Ottawa on Remembrance Day will see a new refereeing system introduced with four officials handling the Toronto Argonauts - Ottawa Roughriders tussle, the first of a two - game total point series.

The officials will line up like this: a referee stationed behind the attacking team, an umpire stationed on the side opposite the head linesman and another umpire located behind the defending team. The four-man refereeing system will replace, for the playoffs, the ordinary three-official system.

Babe Didrickson Zaharias, who turned pro this year after winning everything in the women's amateur golf field, said she planned to enter the men's United States Open tournament next year. In New York yesterday she said: "I don't expect to win, but I think I can qualify."

Sale of White Hanover, a yearling trotter, brought $42,000 at Harrisburg, Pa., yesterday, the highest price ever paid for standard bred horse at public auction.

Just when it looked as though a fighter who could be billed as Canada's outstanding middleweight would emerge from next Monday night's box-fight card in Toronto, one of the hopeful's — Sudbury's Cliff Beckett pulled up at training with a gimpy ankle.

To replace the experienced northerner, promoter Frank Tunney has signed Bruce Richardson, former Toronto Argonauts football linesman, to meet Bobby Flannigan of London over eight rounds in a return engagement.

The Beckett - Flannigan bout, originally planned to establish a challenger for the Dominion middle weight title held by aging Len Wadsworth of Hamilton and Sudbury, was scheduled as a semi-windup to the feature Li'l Arthur King - Joey Brown lightweight affair.

Robert B. White, 65, well-known Listowel district sportsman and retired hardware merchant died yesterday after a lengthy illness. He was born at Owen Sound, and went to Listowel in 1912. Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Nov. 7 (AP) — Babe Didrickson Zaharias, the golfer had just signed for a series of appearances at sportsmen's shows and was explaining that she would demonstrate golf shots and might try a little fly casting ... can you cast a fly? Someone asked ... Babe blushingly admitted that she usually flipped a worm through the brush around Colorado trout streams ... "George is the good caster," she added, glancing fondly at her huge ex-wrestler husband. "He waves it back and forth, then he lets go the line and says to me: "Honey have your boots on. Get the fly out of that tree for me."

Brownie Lou

The New York Mirror suggests that the firing of Muddy Ruel by the St. Louis Browns re-opens all that talk about Lou Boudreau going down the river from Cleveland ... when the talk first came it was soft-pedalled because there apparently was no managerial spot for the Indian field boss and short-stop ... but now the talk is that Boudreau might go to the Brownies with Vernon Stephens, the classy St. Louis short-stop, moving to Cleveland ... while everybody admits that Boudreau is one of the best infielders in baseball. there is some dissension about his management of the Injuns.

Canard

Jimmy (N.Y. Daily News) Powers comes up with a comment that makes every true plainsman's blood run cold ... speaking of the horse show now under way in New York, Jimmy writes: "We ... concede that many a lithe lady contestant in the Garden horse show, complete with starched shirt and derby, can clamber aboard a postage-stamp English saddle and ride rings around many a bow-legged puncher from the prairies." ... And right after the rodeo moved out too!

Two Players Turn Hat Trick

(By The Associated Press)

Three-goal performances in single games are being worked overtime in the United States Hockey League this year.

Two more players turned the trick last night—Clint Smith, Tulsa's playing manager, and Marcel Dheere, Houston reserve. The previous night Paul Mundrick and Joe McArthur of Houston were credited with the performance.

Dheere's initial goal against Tulsa last night came as Houston went into a first period 4-0 lead, and his other two were divided between the second and third stanzas. Houston won 9-5.

After Smith netted his first goal in the second period, he drove in two in the third period within one minute.

Omaha edged Kansas City out of third place in the Northern Division as the Knights won 2-1 in an overtime battle at Fort Worth, while the Pla-Mors were losing to St. Paul 4-1.

Sam Lavitt, Omaha defenceman, scored the winning goal for Omaha but Terry Sawchuk was the star. The 17-year-old Omaha goalie, playing his second game of professional hockey, got credit for 43 saves for the evening, an even dozen coming in the last 10 minutes of the extra period after Lavitt's score.

No games are scheduled tonight. Houston is at Dallas, Omaha at Tulsa and Kansas City at Minneapolis Saturday night.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

A flock of new hockey faces will be seen in action at the Memorial Arena tonight when the Belleville Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans Intermediate "A's" step out against the Kingston Saints (Yep, it's the Saints now, a right saucy bunch of hombres who, like Peterborough, like nothing better outside of a month's vacation with pay, than to plaster a shellacking on anything that wears a Belleville uniform, be it pinochle, checkers, croquet, low-in-the-hole, hockey or postman's knock) in the first test of the season for the red-and-white clad crew.

Only nine of the 1947 faithful which wore the uniform of the ANAFS will be on hand tonight but they will be bolstered aplenty by new ivory and talent. No less than two goalkeepers, six defencemen and eleven forwards will don the scarlet livery and go out there to "die for dear old Rutgers." It is the most imposing array of hockey talent, on paper at least, since the good old days of the Cities Service and teams of that ilk.

* * *

Between the pipes will be Bridgeman, former R.C.A.F. star and Gordie Hayes, who did the custoding last year. On the defence, and there are several promising Peters who this year will plug the holes in the porous blueline dykes of last year, will be Vern Geyer and Porky Yorke, the two Horatios who held the bridge nearly all season, Clare Williamson, who is returning to the hockey wars, and newcomers Stew Stewart, Burrill Morriss and Kenny McNaught, all husky, hardchecking stalwarts.

* * *

Up front with the attacking divisions will be the old reliable shock troops, Walt Gerow, Timmy Williams and Leo Geyer, high-scoring trio who led the O.H.A. grouping in points; Keith MacDonald, starry speedster from near Picton; Don Barrett, and Jackie Wardhaugh, Ken Murphy well-known here, Dougie Bastedo, Jerry Moher, Doug Day and Huck Reeves.

* * *

The team has been working out under the discerning eyes of "Smoky" Harris, Belleville Junior coach, and they should give a good account of themselves tonight. They meet foemen worthy of their steel in the fast-travelling Saints, who have been playing in the Kingston City League for some time now and will skate out on the ice here hotter than the south side of a clam at an Elks convention.

* * *

Up to yesterday we were given to understand that the Kingston squad would be the Victorias but a last-minute change of plans necessitated the switch to the Saints. The latter team however, knows a lot of the hockey answers and tonight's joust in the amphitheatre should, besides giving the faithful a glimpse of intermediate hockey, pre-1947 season vintage, a look-see at what will represent this village in O.H.A. upper bracket ranks this year.

What seems to be an excellent idea insofar as hockey is concerned and for that matter as far as any game which is ruled by officials is concerned happened in Ottawa the other day. It was a school for hockey referees. Students included young lads and men old enough to be their fathers. All were interested in the instructions and some tricky questions were asked.

* * *

One of the instructors explained that all players at all times should be in sight of one or two of the referees. He recalled an incident when he and another official were referring a junior final and both turned their heads on a player after a return rush. The player realized he was not noticed and took a swing at a rival. Fourteen thousand fans saw the incident but the two officials did not.

A DOZEN HOCKEY QUESTIONS

After classes the students continued their discussion of rules and a few questions resulted in the following quiz:

(1) What is the maximum width of a goalkeeper's pads?
(2) When the puck leaves the ice surface, where is the faceoff?
(3) Where does the faceoff take place after a deliberate offside?
(4) If a player is kneeling in the goal crease is he allowed to stop the puck or bat it aside with his hands, arms or legs?
(5) Is a referee permitted to give a penalty when the play is not in progress?
(6) Is a player allowed to trip a puck carrier and if so under what circumstances?
(7) Is a defending player allowed to hold his position on the ice in front of his own goal and if contacted by an opponent is he guilty of interference?
(8) Does a goalkeeper serve a minor or major penalty?
(9) Has the referee the power to remove a player, official or spectator from an arena?
(10) In the case of delayed penalties, what instructions should a referee give the penalty timekeeper?
(11) What is the penalty to a player, other than the goalkeeper, who falls on the puck in his goal crease?
(12) Can a goal be awarded for any offence?

ANSWERS TO QUIZ:

For answers turn the paper upside down:

(1) Ten inches, measured on his legs.
(2) From where it was last played, not where it leaves the ice but no puck is faced within 15 feet of a goal.
(3) In the corner faceoff spot beside the goal of the offending team.
(4) Yes, but he, only, of his side may play it.
(5) Yes, the referee is in charge of players from the time game starts until it finishes. Misconduct penalties are given for offences off the ice, as on the penalty bench or on the way to dressing rooms.
(6) Yes, if playing the puck first, in reaching for the puck when an opponent is carrying it with his stick or kicking it.
(7) Yes. He is not guilty of interference.
(8) He does not serve a minor penalty, but time for an offence is served by a team-mate designated by his playing captain. A major penalty to a goalkeeper is a penalty shot and for a second major penalty in any game the goalkeeper is given a match misconduct and must leave the game. One of his team-mates, not a substitute goalkeeper, may replace the penalized goalkeeper and is allowed 15 minutes to put on goal equipment.
(9) The referee can order any player or official to a dressing room. A referee has not the authority to order a spectator out of a rink.
(10) Penalty time for the third player of a team penalized while two team-mates are in the penalty box for minor or major penalties does not start until the penalyt for one of the players has expired.
(11) A penalty shot.
(12) No, not this year. A goal was awarded previously if a player with only a goalkeeper to beat was interfered with by a player who illegally entered the game. A goal was also awarded last year for throwing a stick at a puck in the defending zone but the rule was changed this year to a penalty shot.

'Y' Basketball

In the opening game of Wednesday night's double-header in the Y.M.C.A. House League Basketball game, Rough Riders beat the Monarchs 36-24. It was fast, close checking basketball and tempers began to flare towards the end. The half time score was 20-7 for the Rough Riders and they seemed they would have no further difficulty. However, in the second half the Monarchs fought back gamely and piled up 17 points to the winners' 16. Lloyd Faulkner was high man on the floor scoring 22 points in all for the Rough Riders. Sid Spiegel was best for the losers, getting 14.

The Dodgers pulled away from the All-Stars in the second half of the second game to win 24-10. High scoring was not a feature of the game and it was close until the third quarter when the Dodgers showed their old form and ran in a number of baskets to take the game. At half time the score was 10-4 for the Dodgers. Rollins paced the winners with 10 points and Burke was the best for the losers getting 6 of their ten points.

Dodgers Now Ahead

The win for the Dodgers put them ahead in the league for the first time. The Monarchs follow up in second place, then come the Rough Riders and still holding down the cellar position are the All Stars.

Next week the Rough Riders meet the All Stars in the opener while the Dodgers tangle with the Monarchs in the nightcap.

Girls Open Schedule

The girls of the Y.M.C.A. last night inaugurated their House League Basketball loop with a double header following the senior games. It might be added here that four games of basketball would make a good evening's entertainment for anyone interested in the game and plenty of action in guaranteed.

In the first game the Flashes proved two powerful for the Rockets and won 38-24. The Rockets were handicapped however with only four of their team showing up but they gave a good account of themselves and should prove worthy opponents in future games.

At half time the Flashes held only a six-point lead 18-12. Doreen Bell stood out for the winners sinking seven baskets for 14 points and Shirley Bunnett was next with 12. For the Rockets, Arlie Gilbert got 18 of her team's 24 points.

In the final game, the Yankees nosed the Comets 24-19. At half time the Yanks led 18-10. Clara Kikes and Mary Tomaso led their team to victory with 8 points apiece. For the Comets, Shirley Marinoff paced her team with 11 points.

Next Wednesday night sees the Rockets meet the Comets in the first game starting at eight o'clock, and the Yankees and the Flashes get underway at 8.45.

MARLIES REMAIN IN SECOND PLACE ALTHOUGHBEATEN

Guelph Biltmores Change Goalies in Third Period and Win 9-7

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto junior Marlboros, although "kindergarten" for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League barely have managed to break even in their four games so far in the Ontario Hockey Association's junior A circuit.

Guelph Biltmores won their second game in four starts when they defeated Marlboros 9-7 last night at Galt. Marlboros remained in a second place deadlock with Barrie Flyers and Stratford Kroehlers despite the loss.

There was no action in the senior A loop last night.

Marlboros took the offensive in the first stanza outscoring Guelph 4-1 but in the second frame Biltmores came back with six counters to Toronto's three and knotting the score 7-7.

Guelph coach Bobby Bauer changed goalies to start third period with Hank Lawson coming in for Johnny Fischer. Guelph played better hockey in front of Lawson and the netminder had a comparatively easy period.

GeGorge Ferguson with three goals and Glen Sonmor with two led Guelph scorers. Johnny Flynn, Neil Gordon, Stan McLellan and Gordie Miller completed Biltmore's score. Marlboro scorers were led by Ray Timgren and Bob Hassard with two goals each.

Hughie Bolton, Bob Clarke and Speers tallied the other Dukes' counters.

Tonight three senior games are scheduled. Brantford Redmen will be gunning for their first victory when they meet Toronto Marlborors at Maple Leaf Gardens. Owen Sound Mercurys will try to maintain their record of no losses so far this season when they visit Hamilton to test the Patricias and Kitchener - Waterloo Flying Dutchmen visit Stratford Indians.

STAY ON LAND ADVISED

Kemptville, Nov. 7 — (CP) — C. N. Heath, secretary - manager of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association told the Association convention Wednesday night that Ontario's immediate problem was "Who is going to operate the farms" and called on farm-raised youth to "stay on the land." He said that in Ontario on 20 per cent of the employed population were on farms and this meant that one person supplied the food needs for every four of his fellow citizens.

Blake, Lach, and Richard Of Canadiens Score Shutout Victory Over Toronto Leafs

Contest a Rough Affair With Referee Chadwick Handing Out 19 Penalties

By ROBERT CLARKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A bartender experienced in mixing that knockout concoction known as a "Mickey Finn" looked like the best bet today for any National Hockey League club seeking a means of halting Montreal Canadiens' potent "punch line."

One look at the scoring statistics is all anybody needs to realize why an opposing coach must shudder every time James Dickinson Irvin, the Habitant mentor, motions Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Elmer Lach and Hector (Toe) Blake out on the ice. The punch line boys have run up a total of 14 goals in eight games, a good deal better than half the team accumulation.

It was the same old story last night when Canadiens ground out a 3-0 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. The punch line showed the way with Lach firing home two goals and Richard getting two assists. At the same time, Detroit Red Wings moved into a first place tie with Boston Bruins by squeezing out a 2-1 victory over New York Rangers.

Leafs and Canadiens mixed it up in hectic fashion throughout with the result referee Bill Chadwick dished out 19 penalties. A free-for-all broke out two minutes from the end that brought majors to defencemen Kenny Reardon of Canadiens and winger Lynn of Leafs and minors to defenceman Bill Barilko of Leafs and centre Billy Reay of the Habs.

Jeers at Referee

In the first period, another flareup led to penalties to Reardon, Richard and the Leafs Gus Mortson. Jacques Locas of Canadiens also enlivened the proceedings, while sitting on the Hab bench by making some uncomplimentary remarks to referee Chadwick. Locas collected a misconduct penalty that meant an automatic $25 fine.

Interspersed with all this fussin', feudin' and fightin' the punch line got in its licks at the Leafs. Lach drove home a rebound on Richard's shot in the first period and then counted again in the second period on a pass from the Rocket. Bobby Carse, fired Canadiens' other score in the middle session.

It was goalie Bill Durnan's second shutout of the season, giving him the lead in that department.

All the scoring in the Detroit-New-York game came in the opening period and rookies accounted for the lot. Jimmy McFadden sent Wings out in front in the third minute with Rangers drawing even at the midway mark with a goal by defenceman Frank Shero, brought up from New York Rovers for the fray. Max McNab grabbed the winner towards the end of the period.

Wings used the triumph to pull into the first place slot with Bruins, each with 11 points. Canadiens took over sole possession of third place with 10 points, dropping Leafs to fourth with eight. Rangers have collected six points while Chicago Black Hawks still have to mark up a point this season.

WANT HOG PRICE BOOSTED

Essex, Ont., Nov. 7 — (CP) — Essex county hog producers Wednesday night asked for a straight 10-cent-a-pound increase for dressed pork or the lifting of export embargoes which would enable Canadian hogs to be marketed in the United States.

Chief complaint of producers at the meeting was that the removal of ceilings and subsidies from Western Canada feed grains resulting in a hike in their prices, has been allowed to take place without increase in the price of pork.

GREY CUPPERS START PLAYING FOR KEEPS TODAY

Hamilton Wildcats and Toronto Indians Play First Sudden Death Game in Hamilton

(By The Canadian Press)

The East's Grey cuppers start playing for keeps today, with Hamilton Wildcats opening the series of lose-and-you're-out playoffs leading to the Dominion football final at home against Toronto Indians.

The Wildcats are heavy favorites to win this Ontario Rugby Union sudden-death semi-final and make amends for their untimely exit last season. But the Indians looked at the season's record and still found cause for plenty of confidence as they whipped through a two-hour drill in Toronto last.

The other O.R.F.U. semi-final will be played in Toronto's Maple Leaf baseball stadium Saturday with Ottawa Trojans visiting Balmy Beach. The semi-final winners meet at Hamilton a week Saturday.

Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders will wind up the Big Four schedule in Ottawa Saturday and start their two-game, total-points playoff Nov. 11 at Ottawa, with the winner meeting the O.R.F.U. titlist Nov. 22 for the Eastern crown.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers already have a 12-point stranglehold on the West's berth in the Dominion final at Toronto Nov. 29. The Bombers, whipped twice by Argonauts in the last two finals, defeated Calgary Stampeders 16-4 in the first of a total-points series, with the second game scheduled for Calgary Nov. 11.

Ottawa announced last night that Eric Chipper — placement kicking middle and halfback Wilf Tremblay as their candidates for the Big Four's Jeff Russel trophy. D. Wes. Brown, O.R.F.U. secretary disclosed that Hamilton Tigers nominees were Frank Filchock and middle Pat Santucci.

Argos previously nominated snap Doug Turner and inside Bill Zock while Montreal Alouettes named Virgil Wagner and snap Jake Gaudaur and it's expected the league will soon announce the winner of the trophy, given to the player best combining sportsmanship and ability.

ROUBELL LEADS SCORERS

Toronto, Nov. 7 (CP) — Lloyd (Rube) Roubell of the Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen, with three goals and six assists for nine points, leads the scorers in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, it was announced today.

Three other players are tied for second, only a point behind. They are Leo Curick of Toronto Marlboros with seven goals and one assist, Don Bauer of Kitchener-Waterloo with five goals and three assists, and Joe Fitzpatrick of Stratford Indians with four goals and four assists.

CANADIAN TEAM MAKING GOOD SHOWING AT N.Y.

Little Chance, However, of Winning Low-Scoring Challenge Contest

New York, Nov. 7 (CP)—Canada has little hope of winning the low-score challenge contest which concludes today in the International jumping competition at the 64th annual National Horse Show.

But the showing of the Canadian team in the three-day opening event of the eight-day show is gratifying to Sqdn. Ldr. Douglas Cleland, of Toronto, team captain, and Lieut. W. R. Ballard of Weston, Ont., who have been participating in the early events.

Lt.-Col. H. A. Philips and Maj. J. H. Larocque, both of Camp Bordon, Ont., are the other members of the Canadian team which has been jumping together only for two weeks.

The Canadians, all in the early 30s, are making a showing against the polished army teams of Eire, Mexico and the United States.

Riding Reject, a chestnut gelding which has taken him around the course faultlessly on previous days, Lieut. Ballard placed second in the Stratosphere Trophy contest last night.

Swizzlestick, ridden by Lt.-Col. Charles Symroski of the United States team was guilty of only four faults against Reject's eight when the two jumped off after two faultless rides around the eighth-obstacle course in Madison Square Garden.

The Mexicans, who had won three of the five previous military events, continued however, to lead the low-score challenge contest by a wide margin.

Another colorful part of the program, the non-military hunt team event, was captured by entries of Vernon G. Cardy of Montreal. His hunters, Jervis Bay, Goldenwood and Fort Riley, ridden by Edith and Helen Ferguson and Joseph Goodwin, all of Montreal, were the top team, Cardy's entry finished second in the same event last year.

WINNING STREAK LIFTS RAMBLERS OUT OF CELLAR

Philadelphia Rockets Lose to Providence Reds by 10-6 Victory

(By The Canadian Press)

New Haven Ramblers today find themselves in second place in the eastern section of the American Hockey League thanks to a four-game winning streak that lifted them out of the cellar.

Last night, Ramblers kept to within a point of the league-leading Providence Reds by edging Washington Lions 3-2, as the Reds scored a 10-6 victory over Philadelphia Rockets. In the other game last night, Cleveland Barons edged Indianapolis Capitals 4-3.

New Haven were pressed throughout by the injury-riddled Lions but a goal by Bing Juckes early in the third period proved to be enough to carry them through. Eddie Kullman sank the other New Haven goal while Frank Porteous scored Washington's tally.

At Providence, a former Detroit Red Wing veteran, Carl Liscombe, paced the Reds with two goals. Chuck Scherza also bulged the twine twice for the Reds while Paul Bedard, Pete Kapusta, Ed Prokop, Harvey Fraser, John Chad and Ken Taylor each ragged singletons. Steve Wochy scored twice for the Rockets and Phil Hergesheimer, Mirco Narduzzi, Ed Bush and Walt Stefaniez each netted one.

Meanwhile, Indianapolis Capitals dropped their second game in as many nights. George Allen, Pete Leswick, Ab Demarco and Jack Lavoie accounted for Cleveland's markers while Don Morrison, Cliff Simpson and Nelson Pololsky each chalked up a goal for Capitals.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

My bridge takes a beating with players like Leach. We never know where we are landing. He crosses me up with his bids till we reach a definite misunderstanding.

South and north held the pair of hands you see here:

SOUTH
♠A K Q 6
♥A Q J 9
♦6 4
♣K J 7

NORTH
♠J 7 4 2
♥K 6 3
♦9
♣A Q 9 6 3

Their bidding went like this:

South	North
1 D	2 C
3 NT	Pass

You read the bidding correctly. South started with a bid of one diamond. Yes, he holds only two measly diamonds. He had no business to make such a bid. But he did it.

West held the tops in diamonds and led that suit. Five diamond tricks went to opponents right off the bat. As a result, the three no-trump contract was defeated before declarer could catch his breath.

You recognize the purpose of south in starting with a phony bid of diamonds. His plan was to end in a no-trump game. His diamond call was intended to scare opponents out of leading that suit.

This stunt of bidding a worthless suit to discourage a lead in it is an old mannish custom. It has been tried in all kinds of bad and good company by all types of good and bad players.

Sometimes they get away with it for a gain. Sometimes they take a shellacking that drives them out of the county. It loses more often than it gains. And each loss is much greater than each gain.

Correct rule bidding would land this pair in a contract of six spades. This can be made with ease. Such a slam is worth 1000 points or more. So the south judgment manoeuvre was an expensive luxury for this pair. It is dumb brilliance.

But some wise guys never learn, seems like.

Hollywood, Nov. 7.—(AP) — "Iron Curtain," 20th-Fox film of Russian espionage in Canada, is slated to start Dec. 8 in Ottawa and the studio will try to rush it to the screen while the topic is still hot. Dana Andrews would like to be in the picture but it starts the day after he finishes "Deep Water."

Bing and Barry

Bing Crosby and Barry Fitzgerald, who twice have rung the box-office bell with screen appearances together, will try it again.

Barry, now in "Sainted Sisters," said he hopes his next will be with Bing and suggested "Maybe we could be lawyers in the next one." A stone's throw away on the "Conn. Yankee" set, Bing told me Paramount has plans for them, but not along legal lines. In their next, to be made in 1948, Barry will portray an Irish merchant and the crooner will be an American Insurance investigator sent to Eire.

New Contract

Paulette Goddard starts a new seven-year no-option contract with Paramount this week. She can do one outside film a year; Paulette calls that "dessert." She reports hubby Burgess Meredith is preparing "Cannery Row," which he'll direct on the screen Bette Davis and William Grant Sherry are shopping for a ranch near Taos, N.M. ...

ROSE OF SOLEDAD

By George E. Holt

CHAPTER 29.

"I'll tell you, Rattlesnake," he said. "For a price."

"I think," said the Rattlesnake slowly, "I think—I—will kill you—now."

"If you do, your confession goes into the hands of Don Fernando," said Shane, and had to laugh again at the dismayed look on the Rattlesnake's face. "Unless you let me loose, he'll certainly get it. And then what?"

And then what?

The Rattlesnake's head told him the answer.

The face of Don Fernando rose in his mind's eye. Behind a gun.

Shane O'Hara, playing with life and death, watched the Mexican with eyes and mind sharpened by the importance of the stakes. The only possible thing which could save his life and that of Jose was that the Rattlesnake did not find his confession. Shane knew, as certainly as he knew that two plus equals four, that had the brown hands found that paper, the Rattlesnake's pistol would have instantly begun its death rattling. Death for himself and Jose.

And even though the Mexican could not find his confession, the betting Shane perceived, was still against the two who had forced that confession from a nerve-wrecked criminal. It was a toss-up as to whether the Rattlesnake would not proceed to kill them anyhow. The answer was in the Rattlesnake's head—and heart—and glands—in every part of that intricate mechanism, which is a man. Superficially, Shane saw, it appeared to be a question of indulging his joyous revenge, consequences unknown, or to secure his own safety—at least temporarily—by recovering and destroying the confession.

The Rattlesnake was now about as normal as he ever was. Which is to say, that he had consumed enough tequila to make him feel physicially well, to make his brain work as efficiently and clearily as it ever did. It was this fact which saved the lives of Shane and Jose. For the moment, at least. For the Rattlesnake was intelligent enough, momentarily, to see that by a postponement of his revenge, he might be able to recover the damning confession. After which—ojala!

For the present, he decided, he would go and sit down and have a drink and consider what the cursed Gringo could have done with the confession.

He went to the mouth of the cave, found his bottle, drew generously upon it. Then he sat down rolled a cigarette, lighted it, and considered.

It was, after all, he preceived, fairly simple. Since he had tied up the two men there had not been a chance for them to get rid of the confession by hiding it. Their hands had been useless to them. Therefore—therefore the American must have hidden the document at the house, before Don Fernando, gun in hand, had walked down upon them.

But—that theory raised a question. Assuredly they had not expected Don Fernando. Therefore, why should they have hidden the confession?

Something unexplained there. He pondered. Struck his forehead with the back of his hand.

"How foolish am I!" he reproved himself. "Perhaps the confession is held by the other one, not the American."

He got to his feet, a little more stimulated now, went to his prisoners, began a careful search of Jose. But the search revealed nothing—except most of the body of the brown man. In exasperation the Rattlesnake now searched Shane again. Roughly. But no paper rewarded his search. He returned to his tequila and his thinking. And after a few minutes an idea came to him, an idea which caused his repellant face to become creased with the caricature of a smile. That was it! That was an inspired idea! Why bother himself trying to find the confession?

Why leave his prisoners and trudge through miles of hot sun to the 'dobe house to make search? No, no; he would accomplish his desire without effort. He would use the same method on these two birds that they had used on him. He would withhold water from them until they told him what he wished to know. He might not learn today—but tomorrow—the next day. He laughed aloud, grimacing at the two prostrate men.

"I thank you," he said laughing. "Muchissimas fracias, senores."

"Yes?" said Shane. "For what?"

"That," replied the Rattlesnake, "is what you shall see."

The day dragged past for the two prisoners of the Rattlesnake.

As for their captor, he was perfectly happy. He had tequila, water, tobacco, cigarette papers and matches. And so he drank and smoked and enjoyed dreams of his coming victory, coming revenge.

Jose slept. Much of the time. What else was there to do? Eventually they would find out what the Rattlesnake was up to. In the meantime they lived. And the best way to keep on living was neither to move nor to speak, and thus avoid giving their captor any excuse to use knife or gun. Jose, it is true, though rather unpleasantly of what might happen when the Rattlesnake had drunk all his tequila. For tequila is a quarrelsome, a fighting, drink.

But Shane O'Hara did not sleep. He could not. His mind kept ticking off the minutes, the hours—judging by the changing shadows at the cave's mouth. Midday—mid afternoon—evening. And every hour was plunging toward that crime that Don Fernando knowingly, others unknowningly, were about to perpetrate at Soledad, by the aid of the Church.

Tomorrow the Rose of Soledad would become the wife of a scoundrel, a thief, and murderer and trafficker in forbidden things! Shane's stomach turned, and the blood in his head pounded and made him dizzy. That would come about, while he lay here, trussed like a pig, waiting to have his throat cut by the Rattlesnake.

He had been forced to give up two hopes. He could do absolutely nothing with the ropes that bound him—every move tightened the strangling noose. And the Rattlesnake had at last merely laughed at him when he offered the confession in exchange for their liberties.

"Forget it," the Rattlesnake has said. "I'll get what I want."

With the coming of night thrist came also.

"Oye, hombre!" Jose had called to the Rattlesnake. "Give me a drink of water."

Shane had not thought of water before. His thoughts had been too acutely concerned with Soledad and his own predicament. But at Jose's call he realized that he, too, was thirsty.

"Oho! You thirst, eh!" the Rattlesnake laughed And told them, then, what his plan was. "When you tell me where the confession is, and I find that you have told the truth, then, and not before, do you drink. Is not that good? Is not that a joke? Listen And he lifted the canteen, shook it so that the water sloshed about. And then raised it to his lips, swallowed, frimaced, rubbed his belly. "How good it tastes."

"So," growled Jose. "That's it, huh?" He looked significantly at Shane, who merely shrugged his shoulders. Then Jose rolled over and went to sleep again. Shane, too, closed his eyes. Wondered how long he could do without water. No—wondered how long he could live without water. For he, an American, would certainly never surrender to a Mexican snake.

The night passed, and a new day—the marriage day of Rose of Soledad—dawned in golden glory among the hills. Jose slept quietly. The Rattlesnake slept snored. Shane looked at the patch of gold at the cave's mouth and was thirsty—and it was the last day. The sun would crawl slowly across the opening. Noon would come, and the shadows would begin to lengthen, and when they got long indeed, and had begun to turn to purple—a crime would be consummated at Soledad. Every atom of his shivered at the thought. Sickened. He had an almost irressistible impulse to struggle to his feet, go over to the sleeping Rattlesnake and kick him in the face—to keep on kicking him until the fellow should pull his gun and shoot, and so put an end to the intolerable agony.

Shane O'Hara knew in that first morning how great was his love for the Rose of Soledad.

Noon came and parching thrist came with it. But there was no agony in the thirst for Shane. It was a relief to suffer physically; almost sweet in comparison to the torture that his soul was suffering. The face of Rose Delane was before his eyes always; her voice in his ears; the touch of her lips upon his. More than imagination, a delusion. A mirage. He could not bear it.

He tried again with the Rattlesnake. Tried to induce him to take them all to the 'dobe house, where he would show him where the paper was which he so desired to obtain.

But the Rattlesnake only scowled, refused to listen, went outside.

"Tell me where it is,' he said. "That is all I want to know. And you will tell me. Today—tomorrow—the day after."

Shane was on the point of telling him. But he remembered, in time, that he was responsible not only to himself, but to Jose.

"Shall I tell him, Jose?" he asked, when the Rattlesnake was outside.

Napanee Earns 5-5 Draw With Hornets, Cobourg Scores 6-5 Win Over Trenton Squad

Belleville and District Hockey League Games at Arena Draw Fair Crowd

Thrill-packed games featured the Belleville District Hockey Association double - header at Memorial Arena last night, when the strong Napanee aggregation, after spotting the speedy Belleville Hornets four goals in the first 45 minutes of play, flashed reserve power that netted them a quartet of markers in the third period to tie the score at five-all.

In the nightcap Trenton and Cobourg fought a close exciting battle with the former squad emerging on the short end of a 6-5 count.

Hornets 5, Napanee 5

The speedy young Belleville team flashed a sudden surprise when Art. Plumley, one of the most sought after goalies in the district appeared in the nets. Apparently inspired by the addition of the net star, the Hornets played fine hockey matching the strong Gibbardville gang stride for stride and shot for shot.

In the second period they again took the offensive and this time struck pay dirt. Wardhaugh rammed home the rubber on Moher's pass at the four - minute mark and Greatrix made it two, seconds later. Napanee flashed back to the attack and after being thwarted several times by the brilliant Plumley, Gerow raced through alone to make the score 2-1.

Hornets ripped back and Porky Yorke on a neat right-wing solo flashed the light to put his team two goals up. In the third period, Hornets again surged to the attack and scored twice in five minutes with goals from Reeves and Doug Day.

Then came the turning point of the game. Plumley was cut over the eye and retired from the game. During the melee Wardhaugh stood in the crease and caught the rubber as it sailed into the net. Art. Wright relieved Plumley and Napanee was awarded a penalty shot. Walt. Gerow drove the rubber past Wright to make the score 5-2 and the Gibbardville gang sprang to life.

With ten minutes to go Gerow, the Jackson brothers and Murphy paced consistent attacks on the Hornet goal. Wright was evidently nervous after his sudden call to duty and the Gibbardians raced through for three goals in nine minutes to tie the score. Bill Jackson got a couple and Markle got the tying marker. Hornets could not get organized and battled desperately to keep the flying Napanee crew from poking home the winning marker.

Cobourg 6, Trenton 5

Cobourg's strong aggregation took a two-goal lead in the first eight minutes of a closely fought game with Kelly dunking the rubber after three minutes of play and Hogan taking Bulger's pass for the second tally. Schmitt reduced the margin to one goal when he raced in alone and beat Brannigan cleanly with a hard slow shot to the corner.

In the second period, the Trenton team played the best hockey of the game and C. Johnson tied up the pastime with a solo effort after two minutes of see-saw play. Trenton took the lead three minutes later when the same player scored on another fine effort from close-in.

Cobourg rallied strongly at this point and Forbes, Bulger and Goyer, driving in on the Trenton goal, again tied the score when the former rammed home the rubber on a neat passing play. Bus Cain put the lakeshore crew one up at the 15 minute mark and Ed Haynes increased the lead in the last minutes of the period.

Trenton scored in the first 12 seconds of the third period to make the count 5-4 but Haynes again increased the lead when he drove home the rubber from Vern Goyer's goalmouth pass.

The Trenton crew came back strongly and Watson scored at the ten-minute mark to put his team back in the running. The teams went all out at this point with Trenton having the territorial advantage but a stubborn Cobourg defence kept him off the score sheet.

The teams:

Belleville Hornets: goal, Plumley; defence, Yorke, Longhurst; centre, J. Semark; wings, Reeves Day; subs, Wardhaugh, Moher, Greatrix, Ostrom, May, D. Rosatti, Rutherford, Dick Rocatti, Wright.

Cardinal's Health Excellent States Dispatch from Rome

Rome, Nov. 7 — (AP) — James Cardinal McGuigan, Archbishop of Toronto, told the Associated Press Thursday his health was "excellent" and he planned to leave Sunday to return to Canada.

The Cardinal, clad in his purple robes, was on his way to an audience with Pope Pius. He said he was feeling well after a slight attack of influenza which he himself described as "only a bad cold."

Wednesday Cardinal McGuigan attended a solemn mass in the Sistine Chapel in memory of three cardinals, including Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve, late Archbishop of Quebec, who died earlier this year.

Cardinal McGuigan said he was receiving scores of telegrams from all parts of Canada from people anxious about his condition and he asked that assurance be conveyed to all that he was in good health.

The affable prelate, who arrived Oct. 18 to report to the Pope on the recent Marian Congress in Ottawa, said he would return to Canada aboard the liner Vulcania.

YOUNG SUICIDE BEQUEATHED EYES TO BLIND MAN

Cincinnati, Nov. 6 — (AP) — Police related Wednesday how a 16-year-old boy swallowed poison a few hours earlier after willing his eyes to a blind man, his vocal chords to a mute and his brain to a hospital.

They identified the youth as William Merz and said he was discharged to the case of relatives after treatment at the same hospital to which he had willed his brain.

At the close of the unusual testament, the youth wrote these words:

"If this will is not carried out, I'll do my damndest to come back and haunt the one or ones who intercede."

He wrote he wanted to be buried nude.

HOW MANY STROKES FOR A SHAVE?

Sarasota, Fla., Nov. 7 — (AP) — How many strokes does it take you to make that morning shave?

The Sarasota Herald - Tribune didn't know the answer either so it polled some of the men around town to find out, asking the shaver first to guess in advance the number required strokes and then having the self-shaver count the razor licks.

Guesses ranged from 12 to 235. Actual counts ran from 38 on a soft bearder to 175 strokes on a toughie.

BOB PAFFRATH WINS IMPERIAL OIL TROPHY

Judged Most Valuable Player to His Club in the O.R.F.U.

Toronto, Nov. 7, (CP)—Quarterback Bob Paffrath of Toronto Indians carried the distinction today of being "the most valuable player to his club" in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, second year in a row the honor has fallen to an American import.

Harold Bailey, O.R.F.U. Secretary, announced last night the former University of Minnesota star had been chosen winner of the Imperial Oil trophy which carries the "most valuable player" label. Last year the award went to playing-coach Frank Gnup of Hamilton Wildcats.

The 28-year-old Paffrath, a solid 190 pounds for his five foot eight, played for the Gophers of Minnesota during the 1938, '39 and '40 seasons. He was voted the most valuable players on the team in the 1940 season. As another indication of his prowess he was picked to play in the east-west game at San Francisco on Jan. 1, 1941.

After service with the United States Army Air Force, he played part of last season with the professional Brooklyn Eagles and then with Miami Sea Hawks in the All-American conference.

Paffrath tried out with Buffalo Bills earlier this season, then moved along to Hamilton Wildcats who already had their quota of five American imports and Gnup suggested Indians might like to take him on.

An accurate passer, Paffrath also demonstrated plenty of ability as a kicker, runner and plunger. His scoring record was 16 points, from three touches and a convert, against the 38 points rolled up by the loop's top scorer —Joe Farley of Ottawa Trojans.

More Likely to Save Power by Restricting Window Lighting

Toronto, Nov. 7 — (CP)—Power-saving by restrictions on window and ornamental lighting is more likely to come than compulsory blackouts of sections of Ontario cities, M. J. McHenry, director of consumer services for the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said Thursday.

He commented on a statement by Mayor R. H. Saunders of Toronto Wednesday that if necessary to conserve power for industrial uses the mayor would favor blacking out Toronto "section by section."

"Blacking out of sections would be the last thing Hydro would demand," said Mr. McHenry. "It would have the same effect as a power failure and no one wants that. Trying to carry out such a measure would be difficult."

GASOLINE ECONOMY ORDER IN SWEDEN

London, Nov. 7. (Reuters) — Trucks, motorcycles and private automobiles in Sweden will be forbidden after Saturday to use roads on Sundays and public holidays without a permit, under a gasoline economy order issued by the Swedish government and quoted by Stockholm radio. Motor racing, air displays and circular flights will also be banned.

Figure Skating Of Barbara Ann Is Criticized

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 6 —(CP)— Jacob Gerschwiler, internationally-known Swiss figure skating instructor, said today that Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa is "the weakest figure skater to my mind we have to hold the world's championship in many years."

His brother, Arnold, said he thinks Miss Scott is "very good but certainly not unbeatable. She isn't the type of champion I'd say who could hold the title five or 10 years."

Jacob cushioned his criticism with the observation that Miss Scott's free skating is "brilliant" and that she is his "outstanding choice" to win the Olympic games championship next February at St. Moritz, Switzerland.

Miss Scott won the world and European titles last winter.

Arnold Gerschwiler told The Canadian Press in an interview that the petite, 19-year-old blonde Canadian girl has "a good chance" in the Olympics but "it all depends on how much improvement she has made since last winter, especially in her figures," and on the degree of improvement of other skaters.

"Her free skating is very polished and finished but from a sports point of view her jumps could be higher," the younger Gerschwiler said.

Both brothers agreed that the present crop of amateur figure skaters cannot compare with prewar stars.

200-Mile Band Of Fog Settles Over S. England

London, Nov. 7 — (AP) — A 200-mile bank of heavy fog, one of the worst of the year, settled on Central and Southern England during Wednesday night, reducing visibility to a few yards and slowing transport services to a crawl.

In the rush hour Thursday several million London workers were delayed, Thames River services were cancelled, and two buses collided. Twenty-five injured passengers were given hospital treatment.

During Wednesday night a motorcyclist was killed in a triple collision on a foggy suburban highway.

Along the south coast the fog was clearing rapidly and was not expected to interfere with the sailing of the Queen Mary this afternoon.

CANADIAN SPORT SNAPSHOTS

By JACK GRAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 7 — (CP)—Raised eyebrows appeared at sports desks across Canada at announcement that Britain will demonstrate lacrosse as a national game at the 1948 Olympics — an announcement that presumably caused several thousand Indians to turn counter-clockwise in their graves.

One of the eyebrow hoisters, Bill (Owen Sound Sun-Times) Dane, commented: "Canadians might well regard the latest British move as a direct steal, for lacrosse has been regarded as Canada's national game since 1867, when it was made such by an Act of Parliament."

He acknowledged a point in the story that Brietain organized lacrosse teams in 1867 but adds:— "Be that as it may, it does seem strange that the British should suddenly indicate that they will adopt lacrosse as a national game when it has been in the background so long."

Incidentally, at present New Westminster Adanacs, Canadian senior lacrosse champions, are trying to raise funds to pay their own way across to participate in the Olympics.

It should, of course, be pointed out that Adanacs play the modified form of the game in vogue in Canada today — box lacrosse — while the English field variety harks back to the original form in which the Indians belabored each other.

McGill Failure?

A two-liner in Baz (Montreal Daily Star) O'Meara's column: "McGill is after a new athletic head for which a selection committee has been formed," prompts Mike (Kingston Whig-Standard) Rodden to recall some of that institution's older, glory - ridden days.

Saying it makes people wonder if Vic Obeck "is going to follow Doug Monsson from a Canadian scene of grief and failure," Mike comments "It is reasonable to believe that McGill officials labored under the impression that Obeck would be another inspirational leader like Frank (Shag) Shaughnessy was when he brought order out of chaos in his first season as a McGill mentor in 1912."

"But there was a difference and it was important because Shag has seen Canadian football played in Ottawa and had arranged his plans accordingly. The tandem plunge, no longer legal in Canada, was employed by the wily Shag to strike terror into the ranks of victimized opponents."

Mike noted that Shag perfected an attack through the centre "that generally found 13 Reds shoving the centre-scrimmager across the goal line, the ball-carrier having made the attack legal by use of a very short drop-kick . . . most defending players, having sampled that attack once, were quite willing to be relieved by unsuspecting substitutes."

Gilead St. Andrew's Church Group Leads Way in Original Idea for Providing Funds for Cemetery Care

Today showing the results of constant care and presenting a vastly different picture from its neglected appearance of some few years ago, Gilead St. Andrew's Church Cemetery on the 5th concession of Thurlow township, on Wednesday evening drew nearer to its goal of perpetual care when both present and former residents contributed to the annual cemetery concert.

Ten years ago the cemetery in which many of the pioneer settlers of Thurlow township lie buried presented the neglected appearance characteristic of many country burying places. Today graves are all well kept, rosebushes and lilacs growing profusely about, the grave stones have disappeared and the grass is always freshly mowed.

Original Idea

And the entire program of cemetery care is the result of a worthwhile idea on the part of the Gilead congregation, the interest of former district residents and what has come to be known as the annual "Cemetery Concert."

It is from this "Cemetery Concert" which members of the cemetery board trust that sufficient funds will be raised to eventually make the cemetery self sustaining. Outside of a few private contributions, the concert is the only revenue of the cemetery.

Well-known names of hardy Thurlow township pioneers appear on the gravestones of Gilead cemetery in which the first burial took place nearly one hundred years ago. Here lie buried pioneer members of such families as the Huffman, Fargey, Leslie, Halstead, Balcanquel, Ross and many others.

Land for the cemetery and for the site of what was to be St. Andrew's Church was given back in the 1860's by the late William Balcanquel, descendants of whom still live in the close neighborhood. The present church was built in 1863, with the first burial having taken place five years previously.

In Two Parts

Gilead cemetery is actually in two parts, east and west of the church. Land for the east cemetery was originally part of the Balcanquel farm, while the west cemetery, known as the Huffman cemetery, was given by William Huffman. Here most of the pioneer members of the Huffman family are buried.

Up until 1938 when the present program of cemetery care was started, Gilead cemetery, like many other country cemeteries where few burials are taking place, had gradually fallen into a state of disrepair.

Then a general "cleaning day" was called with all members of congregation turning out to lend a hand. Another such day was held the next year and in 1940 the first cemetery concert was held. It is believed that the Gilead cemetery concert is the only one of its kind held for this specific purpose—that of providing funds for cemetery care.

Project Leaders

One of the prime movers of the cemetery care program at Gilead is former district resident, Mr. William Leslie of Belleville, who has put a great deal of effort into the project. Another former resident showing interest in the cemetery care program is Mr. Henry Ross of Saint John, N.B. The present cemetery caretaker, Mrs. Wilfred Clare, has also shown a high point of interest in the project, her many hours of work at the cemetery proving this fact.

Wednesday evening's "Cemetery Concert" was typical of concerts held in former years, featured by an attendance which jammed the proud little church to capacity. Proceeds of the concert were $186.75 which will be used to swell the cemetery fund. This fund is administered by the cemetery board composed of Everett Yorke as president, Mrs. Clare as secretary treasurer, and Arthur Balcanquel, Fred Hall and Kenneth Leavens as members.

Taking part in the "Cemetery Concert" were Mrs. Chumbly, Miss Reta Gow and Miss Norma Arkels of Belleville who rendered solos; Sherwood Reid and Mr. Wood, piano and mouth organ duet, Mrs. Harry Harrison of Plainfield and Mrs. Ben Clarke of Corbyville, readings.

STRICKEN FREIGHTER IN DANGER OF FOUNDERING

Poultryless Days Abandoned by U.S. Food Committee

American Public Urged To Eat More Chicken

Washington, Nov. 8 (AP) — Victorious poultry men today hailed the end of poultryless Thursday in the United States with a call for the public to eat more instead of fewer chickens.

Pledged to save 56,000,000 bushels of grain by reducing the size of their flocks, the growers faced the problem of peddling 136,000,000 birds between now and Jan. 1 in the face of huge cold storage supplies already on hand.

In a joint statement with Agriculture Secretary Clinton Anderson, the Citizens Food Committee headed by Charles Luckman last night called an immediate "moratorium" on the poultryless days while retaining the Thursday ban on eggs.

In Los Angeles for ceremonies attending the start of a Transcontinental "friendship train" with foodstuffs for overseas, Luckman said

"This committee has been under tremendous pressure for several weeks to remove the ban on poultryless Thursday, but no agreement was reached until the poultry industry came up with a definite program showing where 56,000,000 bushels of grain could be saved."

The committee referred to its action as a suspension "while the new program is given a chance," but the betting around Washington was that poultryless Thursday was as dead as a cold storage duck.

Cut Turkey Hatch

The poultry industry, in its substitute program, pledged to:

1. Reduce the number of broiler chicks one-third below normal seasonal levels by Jan. 31 and baby chick production for all purposes by seven per cent between Feb. 1 and June 30 for a combined saving of 21,000,000 bushels of grain.
2. Cut the turkey hatch 12 per cent compared with 1947 levels for a 4,700,000-bushel saving.
3. Reduce duck production 15 per cent compared with 1947, saving 350,000 bushels.
4. Cut chicken flocks from 536,000,000 to 400,000,000 birds by Jan. 1, saving 30,000,000 bushels.

Henry J. Kreher of East Amherst, N. Y., said the "moratorium" will help poultry growers generally but that those in his area still had a serious problem in Canadian competition.

"The thirds are coming in from Canada by the millions of pounds", Kreher said. "We can't compete with them when they only pay about half the price for feed that we do."

20 HEAD OF CATTLE BURN

Ottawa, Nov. 8. (CP)—Approximately 20 head of purebred cattle perished and a double barn containing 100 tons of feed was destroyed last night in a fire which roared through the dairy farm of Harry Leikin at City View, six miles southwest of here. The loss was estimated at $45,000.

Only 50 head of a herd of 70 dairy cattle were saved by Leikin and hired hands before the big double barn was consumed by flames that reached 20 feet into the air, for a time threatening two dwellings and even neighboring farms.

12 QUESTIONED IN SEARCH FOR STRANGLE-SLAYER

"Snuggies" Used to Strangle Girl Who Was Criminally Assaulted After Death

Toronto, Nov. 8 — (CP)—The city-wide hunt for the murderer of 13-year-old Arlene Anderson was intensified today with focal point of police search still the fair-haired, slightly greying man with whom the girl was seen walking Sunday.

"If we had that man," a senior police official said, "we feel that we might be farther ahead."

The girl's body was found in a weed-grown west-end field Thursday. She had been strangled with a pair of woolen "snuggies" and criminally assaulted after death, an autopsy indicated. She disappeared from outside her home Sunday.

Police questioned 12 men picked up yesterday in various sections of the city but the hunt still centred in the area where she was found.

Since discovery of the body police have conducted a house-to-house search in the neighborhood for clues to the slayer's identity. Files also have been checked for the whereabouts and movements of known and suspected perverts.

Hamilton police are also conducting a search for a suspect. The man sought was believed to have been in Hamilton recently, but in Toronto at the time of the murder.

Canvass Many Houses

A canvass of houses in the immediate vicinity of the vacant lot where the body was found failed to disclose that any person heard screams or a struggle during Wednesday night, fixed by police as the time of murder.

The girl perhaps was not harmed from the time she disappeared Sunday until she was strangled and violated. This was indicated by the condition of the body and clothing. Only one blow had been struck, on the right side of the head, probably knocking her unconscious, before she was strangled. Because no mud or grass was found on her shoes, detectives said, she probably was carried to the centre of the lot.

As preparations were made for the slain child's funeral Monday, the parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Anderson, expressed belief "it might never have happened if she had been well enough to attend school and learn self-reliance."

600 Pheasant Hunters Stranded On Pelee Island

Pelee Island, Nov. 8 — (CP)—More than 600 pheasant hunters were stranded here last night, and will not likely reach the mainland before tonight, due to a 50 m.p.h. gale which made crossing by the ferry S. S. Pelee impossible.

Six chartered aircraft, of types ranging from a war training Anson to a veteran Ford tri-motor managed to take off about 100 of the estimated 700 nimrods on the island before darkness set in, the shuttle service by air was run between here and Windsor.

The "rescue by air" operations continued until dusk and cars were grouped about the field with their headlights shining on the landing strip to continue operations as late as possible.

GUNMAN KIDNAPS YOUNG MOTHER AFTER KILLING 2

Shoots Husband, Father, Takes Woman for Ride

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 8 — (AP)—A young farmer, disappointed in his attentions to another man's wife, killed her husband and father last night and forced her to accompany him on his wild flight of 100 miles over Northern Illinois highways, police allege.

At her first opportunity, dark-haired Kathy Anderson, 26-year-old mother of three children, seized the pistol with which police said Glenn Marsh, 28, shot down her husband and father, and jumped from his automobile.

Marsh made no attempt to continue the abduction and sped off.

He and his automobile, the windows smashed in a violent struggle during the 100-mile ride with his attractive captive, were the object of a widespread hunt today.

Dead in the shooting were the woman's husband, Vernon, 28, a neighbor farmer of Marsh, and her father, Grant Muhrlein, 52, of Northport, Mich.

Chief Folke Bengston of Rockford police and Sheriff John Enrietta of Grund county, where the woman broke away from Marsh, pieced together this story:

In July Marsh became infatuated with Mrs. Anderson, a neighbor, but did not tell his wife, Audrey, 27, until last week. Yesterday when he learned the Andersons were planning to move from the Rockford area he left home.

Mrs. Marsh and her two children, Richard, five, and Susan, three, went to the home of Rockford friends to live. She also visited Anderson's parents to warn them her husband had purchased a pistol.

While supper was being prepared last night in the home of Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderson, there was a knock at the door. Anderson and Muhrlein, seated at the kitchen table, looked up but Anderson's warning of "Don't unlock it" was too late.

Marsh burst past Anderson's mother who answered the door, and fired three shots at the men. Both men rose up to lunge at Marsh, then collapsed mortally wounded, in a doorway.

Vernon's sister dropped the plates of food she was carrying and herded the three young children, Larry, 5, Karl, 4, and Karen, 2, to safety.

Mrs. Anderson ran to a bedroom, pushed out a window pane but was unable to escape from Marsh. Threatening "If you don't come with me, I'll kill you," Marsh dragged the woman toward the door.

When her mother-in-law tried to stop him, Marsh levelled his pistol at her and pulled the trigger but the weapon had jammed He beat her on the head with the butt, injuring her.

Marsh dragged young Mrs. Anderson out the door, shoved her into the automobile and sped away.

Power Rationing One of Best Reasons For Confidence in Ontario's Future —Drew

Sudbury, Nov. 8 —(CP)— The power rationing announced Friday by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission is one of the best reasons for confidence in the future of Ontario, Premier Drew said today in an interview as he arrived to turn on the power in the new 30-mile rural line in the Chelmsford-Hammer area, north of Sudbury.

The rationing is a direct result of the great industrial and rural expansion in Ontario which has probably reached the highest percentage level of any similar area in the world, the Premier said. The rationing is not the result of a shortage of power, he added, but rather it is because of the unexpected speed of increase in power demand.

Since the end of the war, the increase in the power supply in Ontario amounts to more than 500,000 horse power, slightly more than 25 per cent of the whole 1945 supply. Mr. Drew said Hydro projects under construction will more than meet the new requirements. More than 1,000,000 horse power will be brought in by these projects.

The Premier cautioned against expecting this supply to be available immediately. The construction of large electrical plants takes several years, he said.

The rural line the Premier will turn on tonight was begun after a visit which he made to this district soon after he took office.

Deputy Foreign Ministers Disagree Over What Nations Shall Have Voice in Treaty

By ALEX SINGLETON

London, Nov. 8 — (AP)—The Big Four Deputy Foreign Ministers bumped into new and old disagreements today over the German peace treaty and an official American observer reported, "If anything, there was a set back."

The deputies failed to reach an accord over just what countries should be given a voice in the treaty-making, just as the diplomatic chiefs themselves did seven months ago in Moscow.

It was the second spadework session of the deputies, preliminary to the meeting of the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, Russia and France here Nov. 25.

Backed by the United States, Britain sought inclusion of the new Dominion of Pakistan among countries to be represented at the peace table. Russian and French delegates declined to take a stand on the issue at this time.

Russia wants the conference limited to 18 countries plus the Big Four; the United States is urging inclusion of all 55 powers who declared war on Germany.

Soviet delegate Andrei A. Smirnov refused to budge from the Russian position on that German views on the treaty would be accepted by the conference —only when a "central government is formed which is deemed adequate for accepting a peace treaty." Robert Murphy, United States political representative in Germany and deputy for these sessions, said the American position was that "responsible representatives" of Germany should be given an opportunity to present their views.

No agreement was reached on the controversy, chiefly involving Russia and the United States, over American objections to admitting Albania to the conference.

Duplessis Critical of Terms Proposed for Newfoundland's Admission to Confederation

Quebec, Nov .8 —(CP)— Proposed terms of Newfoundland's admission to Confederation and Federal conduct in the problem were criticized yesterday by Premier Duplessis who blamed Federation authorities for failure to consult "acutely interested" provinces.

"It is not necessary to be a prophet to know that annexation of Newfoundland at the present time . . . would add greatly to the already complicated problems of Canadian confederation," said the Premier of Quebec.

Mr. Duplessis was critical of the Canadian proposals made public Thursday for a number of reasons.

He said Federal authorities had proceeded with "anti-Canadian arrogance," that burdens involved would come at a time when taxation was excessive and exorbitant" and that parliamentary representation offered Newfoundland would affect Quebec's guarantees under the constitution.

Premier Duplessis said Quebec had not been consulted during conferences over demarcation of the boundary between the province and Newfoundland territory in Labrador.

"The cavallerly proceedings of the Ottawa Government will cause regrettable friction both for Canadan and Newfoundland," he said.

The Premier discussed the Newfoundland questioin during his regular weekly press conference at his offices in the Quebec legislature buildings. Earlier he denied stories which had appeared in Montreal newspapers recently.

One story was that the Premier was to have revealed a supposed Communist plot to harm religious buildings in Montreal. The other was that the provincial government intended to take over Les Caisses Popularies (Popular People's Banks).

Eye Specialist Fights to Save Sight of Miners

Noranda, Que., Nov. 8 (CP) — An eye specialist at the Youville Hospital here fought today to save the sight of two miners injured in separate accidents, one of which claimed a life.

Gerard Letourneau was injured in a dynamite blast at Malartic, 50 miles east of here, while Milton Basken was brought to the hospital after an accident at Val D'Or, 65 miles east of Noranda. Clotted dirt from an air hose was blown into his face.

Letourneau was injured while digging drains yesterday with Roland Michaud, a neighbor. They had arranged a blast to make a hole behind new house when two sticks of dynamite went off prematurely, causing Michaud's' death.

Michaud was arranging detonator wires, hooked up with the electric current in the house where a number of children were playing. One of them, three-year-old Marcelle Michaud, suddenly put a plug back into a socket just as Michaud connected the wires. Letourneau, working beside him, suffered facial injuries requiring 20 stitches.

The accident to Basken happened today while he and two other men were cleaning diamond drill castings with an air hose. The hose became clogged with dirt and a fellow-worker said Basken failed to turn off the air when he pulled out the hose to clean it. As he moved the hose from the casing it blew the clogged sand and rock into his face.

Both men are under treatment from Dr. Maurice Tardif, an eye specialist, Letourneau was first to receive treatment while Basken was kept under an opiate to ease the intense pain while awaiting his turn in the operating room.

Parents Shocked Children Died of Fractured Skulls

Brantford, Ont., Nov. 8 (CP)—While authorities prepared today for an inquest into the death of two infant girls, the young parents expressed shock and surprise at the report the children had died of fractured skulls.

Mrs. George Draper, the mother, said neither she nor her husband had harmed the children. Her statement came after Crown Attorney F. E. D. Wallace said an examination showed the girls, Nancy Carol and Betty Ann, died from skull fractures. Their deaths occurred 14 months apart.

Nancy Carol's death occurred Oct. 24 in Brantford General Hospital when she was five weeks old. Death of the other child occurred Aug. 25, 1946. Her body was exhumed after discovery of the reason for the death of Nancy Carol. Crown Attorney Wallace said an inquest would be held.

Mrs. Draper said she and her husband had "wondered" at the cause of the death of Nancy Carol, adding that her husband had signed the paper authorizing an autopsy. Draper's mother added that she was certain Betty Ann had died of pneumonia.

Draper said he was certain there was "absolutely no way in which the babies could have been injured."

Draper added that any "insinuation" that he might have struck either of the children in a rage was "wrong."

"I loved them more deeply than I can say," said the father.

Crown Attorney Wallace said the finding that the girls had died of fractured skulls followed a two week investigation by police and two pathologists.

DEFEAT OF LABOR GOVT. IN VICTORIA, AUSTRALIA, SEEN

Liberals Are Expected To Gain Nine Seats

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 8 (AP) — The Australian Broadcasting Commission announced tonight "it is definite" that the Labor government of Premier John Cain was defeated in Victoria State's elections today.

The Federal Labor Government's plans to nationalize banking, now in a second reading at Canberra, constituted the main issue.

The early returns indicated a sharp swing away from Labor. When the Broadcasting Commission made its announcement three hours after the polls closed it appeared that the Liberal Party would gain nine seats, and the Country party, also in opposition to Labor, three seats in the State Legislative Council.

Loss of only two seats would mean the government's defeat. Four Labor ministers may lose their posts.

The opposition parties made an issue of a protest vote against the Federal Labor Government's Bank Nationalization Plan. They declared a vote against the State Labor government would be an expression of public dissatisfaction at the bank plan.

A large proportion of the state's' 1,250,000 voters streamed to the polls.

Melbourne, Nov. 8 (Reuters)—Early counts in Australia's Victoria State elections taking place today indicated defeat for the the Labor government which may lose 14 or 15 seats.

Gains were being made by the Liberals who might be able to form a government of their own. Key issue in the elections is the Federal government's plan to nationalize Australian banks.

Several members of the government were facing defeat.

The two independents, whose support made the Labor government possible, polled badly and were considered likely to be defeated.

Before the election — forced by the legislature council, Victoria's Upper House, over the Federal Government's plan to nationalize Australian banks — the party standing was: Labor 32, Liberal 13, Country Party 18, Independent 2.

Two Bandits Hold Up Windsor Hospital

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 8. (CP) — Two masked, armed bandits held up the Grace Hospital office at 4 a.m. today and got away with $95 in cash.

Capt. Mary Lydall, night supervisor, and Miss Mary Walker, switchboard operator, were in the office when the masked pair entered.

Rough November Winds Heralds Of Winter, Snow in Some Parts

(By The Canadian Press)

Rough November winds sweeping the Great Lakes last night almost brought tragedy to one vessel and sent other scurrying to safety as foam-topped waves went on a rampage from the lower Great Lakes west to Thunder Bay.

Winds reaching a velocity of from 40-50 miles an hour crashed against the hull of the freight Jupiter, crippling the ship badly as she fought against the storm in Lake Michigan. With 28 men aboard the 346-foot vessel finally limped to an unsteady anchor three miles off shore near Ludington, Mich.

Elsewhere on the Great Lakes high winds sent ships of all kinds running to harbor. Grain and other vessels out-bound from Port Arthur and Fort William returned to port in the face of the gale.

At Erieau, Ont., homes along the Lake Erie waterfront were flooded as the winds swept down over the lake. The ferry service ticket office was swept off the pier by waves.

Onion farmers in the district were watching the situation anxiously. So long as the wind remained in an easterly direction the fertile farmlands were said to be in no danger. But a shift to the south would cause danger to the dike wall guarding some 1,600 acres of land.

Snow in Minnesota

Minneapolis, (AP)—From one to seven inches of snow covered Minnesota today in the wake of this winter's first snow, blown into the State Friday by winds reaching 45 miles an hour.

Traffic was snarled in cities as well as on the highways and communications were sporadically disrupted when wires were broken by the weight of the freezing wet blanket. The northwestern Bell Telephone Company at one time last night reported half of its long distance circuits out of order.

The storm covered a 100-mile swath from the Iowa border to the Canadian boundary.

Buffalo Nov. 8. (AP)—A light wet snow, first of the season, hit Buffalo today as temperatures fell from a midnight high of 56 degrees to 33 degrees by morning.

The Weather Bureau said the snowfall was confined to areas bordering the lakes. The State's first snowfall occurred Sept. 27 in Northern New York.

28 Crew Members Aboard and Ships Rushing to Aid

Crippled Vessel Drifting Toward Shallow Waters

By BURDETTE B. ASHLEY

Ludington, Mich., Nov. 8. (AP) —The coast guard cutter Sundew reached the side of the stricken freighter Jupiter today and attempted to put a line aboard her in 25 to 30 feet seas that threatened the lives of 28 seamen aboard.

The sturdy little Sundew ended a dramatic race through churning Lake Michigan waters in response to urgent distress calls from the United States coast guard.

She manoeuvred behind two hulking car ferries that partially screened her from the towering waves.

Chief Bosun's Mate R. L. Flewelling, in command of the Ludington coast guard area, said the Sundew would try to get a line aboard the Jupiter.

Then the little cutter will either try to tow the 3,000-ton freighter into Ludington or pull her off the dangerous shallows that seamen call "the graveyard of ships".

A second coast guard ship, the Mackinaw, also was en route to the Jupiter's side.

L. H. Kent, general car ferry superintendent for the Pere Marquette Railroad, said his sailors reported the sea so strong that the Jupiter was tossing "almost 360 degrees per minute."

"She's just flopping back and forth," he said.

High winds were moderating somewhat but a 6 a.m. message from the stricken vessel said she was taking on water and dragging her anchor.

At that time the Jupiter's crew despaired of lasting out the hour.

However, at 7 a.m. she radioed that the immediate danger appeared over and that, unless she went aground, she would be able to hold out until the Coast Guard cutter arrived.

Known as "Ghost Ship"

The Jupiter was known a few months back as the "ghost ship of the great lakes" because she was unable to land during a dispute with the National Maritime Union (C.I.O.).

The Coast Guard said it hoped to get a line aboard the crippled vessel and draw her away from the dangerous shoals that sailors have nicknamed the "graveyard of ships."

Failing this, officers at Ludington said, an attempt would be made to remove the crew.

On the beach within sight of the wallowing freighter was a Coast Guard party, ready to lend aid if the ship broke up or sank.

"She could still go aground anytime the anchor lets loose," a Coast Guard officer said.

A car ferry, the City of Saginaw, put out shortly before midnight to aid the Jupiter, and managed to come within 200 feet of her, but he could not get a line across to the crippled ship carrying a crew of 28.

Had to Return

The ferry, however, had to return to port because a crew member was injured. The Coast Guard said it had no information as to the extent of the injuries or how they were incurred.

Aboard the Sundew was equipment necessary to send a line to the Jupiter. It was hoped that the storm that raged all night on the lake would abate today enough to permit towing of the ill-fated Jupiter to port.

The Jupiter, property of the Jupiter Steamship Company of Cleveland, met trouble in the same stretch of water where some 60 sailors were drowned in the disastrous storm on Armistice Day, 1940.

The area, reaching roughly from Ludington south to Muskegon, has been called the "Graveyard of Ships."

Mysterious circumstances, which surrounded the luckless Jupiter when it acquired its name "Fugitive Ship" during the seaman's strike, were present again today. The Coast Guard said it did not know where the ship had been docked, its destination or even the direction it was travelling.

Labor Council Supports Strikers, Criticizes Paper

At a special meeting of the Belleville and district Labor Council held earlier in the week members passed a resolution giving full support of that organization to the Corbin workers now out on strike. The meeting was attended by a large number of representatives of the A.F. and L. and standard railway organizations.

The meeting passed a further resolution stating that the members of the labor council "do regret and protest the action of the Ontario Intelligencer in refusing to publish a paid advertisement offered by the UE-CIO in that we feel it tends to create the impression that the publishers of this newspaper may have withheld by their action information the public should have had, thereby possibly causing the citizens of Belleville to feel that important revelations may have been withheld."

Mr. Ross Russell, district organizer for the UE-CIO was the guest speaker of the evening. The meeting closed with a discussion on reported violations of the Industrial Standards Act in this community.

Justice C. A. Cameron, Former Sheriff, J.D. O'Flynn, Honored By H. & P.E. Law Association

Members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Law Library Association paid fitting tribute to two of their members at the Belleville Club on Friday evening when they gave a dinner and made presentations to Mr. Justice C. A. Cameron, Ottawa, and to former sheriff of Hastings County J. D. O'Flynn who is returning to the law practice.

Mr. Justice Cameron was presented with a lovely painting of Belleville by Manly MacDonald, one of Canada's foremost painters, while Mr. O'Flynn received a handsome desk pen set on behalf of members of the Law Association. Presentation to Mr. Cameron was made by George S. White, K.C., M.P., of Madoc, while Lt.-Col. B.C. Donnan, made the presentation to Mr. O'Flynn.

Approximately [illegible] members of the Law Association including guests attended the dinner party which was presided over by Alan Sprague, president of the Association. Dinner was served to the gathering by the Belleville Club steward, Mr. P. Anderson and Mrs. Anderson.

A Happy Occasion

"This is a very happy occasion indeed," stated Mr. White as he made the presentation to Mr. Justice Cameron. "The record of His Lordship speaks for itself; as a lawyer in Belleville he held the respect and esteem of his colleagues on the Bench, he was most fair and courteous.

"On behalf of your former colleagues in Belleville and district I present you this painting by Manly MacDonald. I trust that in the future as you and Mrs. Cameron look at this picture it will recall to mind your friends in Belleville."

"It is a joy beyond words to come back to Belleville among my friends," returned Mr. Cameron as he expressed his appreciation for the gift of the picture. "Although our home is now in Ottawa, our hearts will long be in the Bay of Quinte district."

Recalls Early Days.

Continuing, Mr. Cameron recalled his early days of practice in Belleville and his associations with the judge, magistrates, and other members of the Bar back in the 1920's. He recalled, particularly Judge G. E. DeRoche and Judge J. F. Wills, the various court officials and officials at city hall.

He spoke of his successor as judge of Hastings County and expressed the hope that Judge J. C. Anderson would receive the same co-operation from members of the Law Association as he had received during his tenure of office.

Again referring to the picture Mr. Cameron declared that members of the Law Association had given him something which he would always treasure. "Nothing could have been lovelier," he said.

In closing Mr. Cameron assured that Belleville people would always be welcomed at his home in Ottawa. "It is sometimes difficult to say what is in the heart, but I know that tonight I am among friends. Thank you very much."

Presented With Desk Set

Presenting the desk pen set to Mr. O'Flynn on the occasion of his return to law practice in Belleville, Col. Donnan recalled the former sheriff's early practice in Belleville and his association with the law firm of the same name. "This presentation is made in appreciation of your services as sheriff. You served well," stated Mr. Donnan.

In reply Mr. O'Fylnn recalled happy associations at the court house and declared that he was looking forward to some interesting times on re-entering into the law profession. "It is a splendid feeling to know that my work at the court house was appreciated," he said.

Other speakers of the evening included Judge Wilfred Lane, county judge for Prince Edward, and Judge Anderson, county judge for Hastings, also R. M. Willes Chitty, K.C., president of the Federation of the Ontario Law Association, who was introduced by Neil B. Fraser, chairman of District No. 6 of the Federation.

All members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Law Library Association were called upon to say a few words with high tribute to the two guests of honor for the evening being unanimous.

V.C. Padre Will Address Veterans Remembrance Day

The citation covering the award of the Victoria Cross to Honorary Captain (now Honorary Major) John Weir Foote, Canadian Chaplain Services, reveals that Major Foote voluntarily stayed behind and was taken prisoner after his magnificent work on the bloody Dieppe beaches. He refused a final opportunity to leave the shore in the last evacuation craft, choosing to suffer the fate of the men he had ministered to for over three years.

Honorary Major John W. Foote, V.C., will be with local veterans when they observe Remembrance Day on November 11th. The Padre of Central Command will address the gathering at the Cenotaph at the morning service of remembrance and will also be the guest speaker at the Canadian Legion banquet in the evening.

The citation reads in full as follows:

"The King has been graciously pleased to approve the award of the Victoria Cross to Honorary Captain John Weir Foote, Canadian Chaplain Services.

"Honorary Captain Foote, Canadian Chaplain Services, was regimental chaplain with The Royal Hamilton Light Infantry at Dieppe on 19 August 1942.

Upon landing on the beach under heavy fire, he attached himself to the regimental aid post which had been set up in a slight depression on the beach, but which was only sufficient to give cover to men lying down. During the subsequent period of approximately eight hours, while action continued, this officer not only assisted the regimental medical officer in ministering to the wounded in the regimental aid post, but time and again left this shelter to inject morphine, give first aid and carry wounded personnel from the open beach to the regimental aid post. On these occasions, with utter disregard for his personal safety, Honorary Captain Foote exposed himself to an inferno of fire and saved many lives by his gallant efforts.

"During the action, as the tide went out, the regimental aid post was moved to the shelter of a stranded landing craft. Honorary Captain Foote continued tirelessly and courageously to carry wounded men from the exposed beach to the cover of the landing craft. Also he removed wounded from inside the landing craft when ammunition had been set on fire by enemy shells. When landing craft appeared, he carried wounded from the regimental aid post to the landing craft through heavy fire with no consideration for his own safety.

"On several occasions this officer had the opportunity to embark but returned to the beach as his chief concern was the care and evacuation of the wounded. He refused a final opportunity to leave the shore, choosing to suffer the fate of the men he had ministered to for over three years.

Honorary Captain Foote personally saved many lives by his efforts and his example inspired all around him. Those who observed him state that the calmness of this heroic man as he walked about, collecting the wounded on the fire-swept beach will never be forgotten."

Noted Pianist Will Be Heard Here in Recital

One of Canada's outstanding concert pianists, Mr. Geo. Hadadd of Windsor, who has just returned following a successful two-months tour of Mexico and Central America will be in the city on November 18th. to give a piano recital at the Belleville Collegiate auditorium. The concert is being sponsored by the Kinsmen Club of Belleville as one of their projects to raise money for the Community Swimming Pool fund.

An indication of the popularity of Mr. Haddad as a concert pianist is the fact that his concert to be given at Belleville will be his seventh in eight days. Immediately prior to his coming to Belleville Mr. Haddad will be giving recitals in Montreal and Quebec and on the 15th of November is to have the honor of playing for Their Excellencies, the Viscount and Viscountess Alexander at Government House Ottawa.

Very few Canadian musicians have been so recognized as to play for the Governor - General of Canada.

Although Mr. Haddad will arrive in the city only on the afternoon of his evening's performance, efforts will be made to have him play briefly to students at the Collegiate in the afternoon.

Crop Growers' Association Will Ask Increased Prices For 1948 Canning Crops

Picton — Increased prices for 1948 canning crop produce will be asked by Prince Edward Canning Crop Growers Association when the negotiating committee meets the Ontario Vegetable Marketing Board. More than a hundred growers met yesterday to decide prices to be asked and discuss problems.

The growers ask that $1.05 per bushel for number one grade tomatoes, and 75 cents bushel for number two grade be the price asked for next year. It was pointed out that increased cost of labor and plants and the necessity of spraying for blight and for worms, necessitated an increase.

Growers are asking a flat rate of $80 per ton for shelled peas, with seed not to cost more than $4.00 bushel. This year's price was $60-$65 per ton.

Price of corn should be increased from $20 to $30 a ton, the growers agreed.

Principle Endorsed

The principle of grading was endorsed with the proviso "but not as it was done this year."

Andrew Fulton, secretary of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Marketing Board, reviewed the work of that body. A N. L. Butler, field investigator for canning crops, spoke on the blight which seriously damaged the tomato crops in Ontario this year.

The future is uncertain, Mr. Butler stated. Some counties have experienced blight two years in a row, whereas others have had a year without it, he reported. Due to the simultaneous appearance of blight in counties along Lake Ontario, officials engaged in research work hold to the belief that the spores blew across the lake. Spores have been discovered 17,000 feet up in the air he said.

Cost of Spraying

Queried as to the increased costs of production due to necessity of spraying for blight, Mr. Butler said would run around $4 and $5 per acre, depending on the facilities. In New York State, five sprays are given.

Mr. Butler felt that the time may come when it will be found advisable to grade plants, as growers complained as to the type of plants they receive.

In a lively discussion, growers were unanimous in the declaration that the principle of grading is satisfactory to them, but there was harsh criticism of graders and grading done. Several alleged that processors influenced or interfered with the grader in the performance of his duties. Others declared some of the graders to be "just kids who didn't know a tomato from an apple." Bert Moran suggested relief graders who could replace those found unsatisfactory.

Treated Good

Donald Heffernan declared "we were treated better this year because of the small crop, but what will happen to us with grading when there is a big yield, if processors can influence graders."

Several complained that there was no pay for culls yet they were canned or turned into juice.

Roy Shortt suggested a halt in production if growers did not receive fair treatment.

Almost every phase of the canning industry was discussed in orderly fashion under the chairmanship of S. C. Peck.

Directors elected were Ameliasburg; Hugh Russell, S. C. Peck. Hillier, W. T. Cunningham, H. Suttaby. Hallowell, D. O. Reynolds, Oscar Parks. Sophiasburg, Roy Shortt, Harold Barker. North Marysburg. John Wilkinson, Harry Hicks. South Marysburg, Gerald Ackerman, W. O. Striker. Athol, Neil Parks, Harold Foster.

Directors will act as committeemen and will meet November 28th to elect officers.

'Minnie' and Her Daughter 'Maggie' Have Become Fixtures in Thomas' Shop

"Minnie the Mouser" may have the traditional feline nine lives, but at times she shows remarkable evidence of having intelligence equal to nine cat minds.

"Minnie" is the nine-year-old cat which with her six-year-old daughter are as part and parcel of Eddie Thomas Tobacco Shop, as is the genial proprietor, or his husky son, "Daisy"—pardon — Don, themselves.

She joined the Thomas family at the shop, a few minutes after her first family of three kittens was born eight years ago. It was a bitterly cold morning in midwinter, and "Minnie" apparently a victim of the housing shortage, decided to take matters in her own hands and "squat" in the nearest place which afforded heat, and comfort.

Warm Welcome

She investigated the Thomas shop, was given a warm welcome by the proprietor, and after investigating the place went out into the wintry weather. Minutes later she returned with her family of three. Minnie has been there rent-free ever since with board thrown in.

She raised plenty of families during her nine years of residence in the Thomas magazine emporium. A favorite daughter was reserved for the immediate family and for the past six years the two cats have been inseparable. Minnie prefers to snooze on weekly newspapers, while daughter Maggie prefers magazines.

And in passing, the only mouse now welcome in the Thomas shop is he of the "Mickey" variety, whom Minnie spurns whenever his face grins at her from the cover of a "comics" magazine. The live variety has long since sought catless quarters.

Brings Kill Home

But occasionally, Minnie forages afield for a spot of tasty mouse dessert. When she makes a kill, she proudly strides in the home shop and displays her catch to the "boss" then removes it to parts unknown.

Each morning "Minnie" and "Maggie" breakfast on fried liver washed down with copious laps of fresh milk. To make sure of the meal perhaps for the exercise only, she accompanies Eddie to the restaurant and waits for him to procure the morning meal.

The other day, there was no liver at the eatery, and Eddie, being busy decided to leave the container there and call for it later. But Minnie was wise. She refused to move from the restaurant door and patiently waited until the "boss" returned for the early morning tidbit.

Customers' Friends

The cats are the friends of the large Thomas clientele. They go and come at leisure. Rats and mice give the place a wide berth, for Minnie on the warpath is a deadly killer, and seldom makes mistakes.

She is up at the crack of dawn. The other morning when Eddie opened the shop, Minnie had already been afield. A dead mouse lay on the floor awaiting the Thomas inspection. Nearby lay Minnie, a look of pride in her feline eyes. When the "boss" had duly inspected the rodent, Minnie arched her back purred, rubbed herself against the Thomas legs, seized the mouse and departed through the front door.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

QUAKER GREY

"Aunt Alice, what bird dresses in Quaker Grey? There is one going head first down the trunk of the big elm."

"That must be a Nuthatch. Some people speak of it as the unsidedown bird, because in whichever direction it is going it is always seen head down. Woodpeckers climb towards the top, head up; Creepers work their way spiral fashion around a trunk; but Nuthatches can travel either up or down the tree with their heads pointing at the ground. Can see see its underside, Bobbie? Is its breast white or pink?"

"White, and so is its face and a little patch on each side of its short square tail."

"Then your bird is a white-breasted Nuthatch. Though not noticeable, it must have a small, chestnut daub under its tail. If its cap is grey, this is a female. Her husband wears a black one."

"Why is it called Nuthatch, Aunt Alice?"

"Because it wedges nuts into crevices and uses its strong bill to hack, or hatch, the nuts open."

In a few minutes the loud, nasal 'yank-yank" call rang out, dispelling any doubt as to the visitor's identity. Bobbie pinched his nose and sang "yank-yank" in imitation.

This bird is smaller than a Song Sparrow, yet when beside its first cousin, the Red-breasted it looks large. To some extent their ranges overlap. Both breed in southern Canada; but whereas the Red-breasted is a more northerly bird, the White-breasted spends most of its time in the United States.

Its large, strong feet are especially adapted for their use. The hind toe has a long, sharp nail, making the bird, sure footed. No doubt the Nuthatch's mode of climbing allows it to get a downward view of the crevices in the bark, so that from this angle it must see insects that Woodpeckers miss. The bill is long to enable it to poke well into the bark for insect pests, their eggs, and the larvae. Much good is accomplished by this inquisitive bird.

The flight of a Nuthatch is undulating. Sometimes several of them look as if they were playing tag, though they take little time off from work. At this season they may be seen travelling in company with the serious-minded Brown Creepers and lighthearted Chickadees. These three species get on famously together, each tackling the same job in its own way.

Marmora

Statue Placed In Sanctuary

Marmora — Wednesday evening was a memorable occasion for the parishioners of Sacred Heart Church which was filled to capacity when the ceremonies opened in connection with the visit to the parish of a replica of the statue of Our Lady of Fatima, Portugal, which is now being taken on a tour of North and South America. The statue arrived at 7.30 p.m. and a procession was formed with the members of the Holy Name Society acting as guard of honor, as the statue was placed in position in the sanctuary. The services included the Rosary, Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament and consecration to the Immaculate Heart of Mary. An inspiring sermon was delivered by Rev. Father A. Bennett C.S.S.R. of Montreal, who depicted the story of the Blessed Virgin who appeared to some humble children of Fatima in Portugal asking them to spread the devotion of the Rosary to bring peace to the world and for the conversion of Russia. Also assisting in the services were Rt. Rev. Mgr. Olivera, director of the shrine at Fatima; Rt. Rev. Mgr. McGrath, Toronto; Rev. Father T. OSullivan, C.S.S.R., Toronto, Very Rev. I. Garvin V.F., Tweed; Rev. Father F. Hyland, Madoc; Rev. Father F. Lesage, Stirling, and Rev. Father H. J. Farrell, pastor.

On Thursday morning at nine oclock High Mass was celebrated by Rev. H. J. Farrell, and the sermon was delivered by Rt. Rev. Mgr. McGrath who urged his listeners to increase their devotion to the Blessed Virgin by th daily recitation of the Rosary and to ask her intercession in bringing peace to the world and the conversion of Russia.

On Thursday aftrnoon the statue was taken to Peterborough.

Modified Power Rationing

A modified form of power rationing which goes into force in Ontario on Monday emphasizes the necessity of reduction of consumption of electric energy. For signs, show-windows and ornamental lighting for decorative or advertising purposes, electric heating devices in stores or offices, interior lighting of business premises after business hours unless work is being done — with the exception of banks and other business places requiring light for protection — the use of electricity is banned. The order also prohibits floodlighting of lots for parking, or lots occupied by used cars, service stations and outdoor industrial premises.

This step is in addition to the campaign which is being pushed forward for low-per cent conservation of energy voluntarily in domestic use to enable power to be diverted to meet the growing demands of heavy industry.

Steps have already been taken by many citizens to cut down on the use of power, merchants are co-operating in the campaign. The individual consumers by their co-operation in the drive to conserve power will be able to lend a real measure of relief by what they save.

The Mentally Ill

The general trend in the population of Ontario Hospitals for the mentally ill for the year 1945 shows only a small increase over the previous year, the rate per 100,000 of population having continued to fall until in 1945 it stood at the 1938 rate. There was a decrease marked in the number of patients on probation and the number in boarding homes.

As in previous years the male rate is higher in the age groups up to 45 years and the female is higher in the age groups over 45. In 1945 the over-all rate per 1,000 for the male population was 3.71 as compared with a rate of 3.82 for females.

The lowest discharge rates are naturally shown in the case of senile psychoses. The manic-depressive group shows the highest discharge rates and the lowest death rates per 100 admissions.

In these hospitals in 1945 there was in residence a population of 15,073 and on the books which include patients boarded out and also probation cases, the total is 15,987.

By far the greater number of patients are suffering from dementia praecox, 6,914 in 1945, with mental deficiency without psychosis in second place and manic-depressive psychoses cases in third position.

Colds

The season has come in which colds make their appearance. Later on in the winter-time most of the people suffer one or more attacks by colds causing discomfort and partial disability.

How costly colds are is indicated in the statement in the Industrial Health Bulletin that about one-third of all time lost in industry is due to the common cold and its complications. In the year it is figured that Canada loses many millions of work days. This will figure out at a loss of many millions of dollars in earnings, besides the other economic tolls of the cost of medical care and production losses.

From the medical standpoint, colds lay a heavy hand of ill health on the nation. Besides the common cold there are the complications which include, sinus troubles, ear and mastoid infection, neuritis and arthritis. There are possibly more serious results in the event of relapses, namely asthma, rheumatic heart disease and diabetes. There is said to be a predisposition to infection with scarlet fever and meningitis. The role of the cold as a forerunner of la grippe, influenza and pneumonia is well known. In over seventy per cent of cases of lobar pneumonia it is estimated that a cold preceded the onset.

It was only in recent times that the exact nature and cause of colds was discovered. Now it is known that the simple cold is the result of infection of an organism so small that it cannot be seen with an ordinary microscope. The cold virus produces a relatively mild congestion which if uncomplicated would terminate within a week or so with only moderate discomfort and little or no disability. But its most serious effect is associated with the potentially dangerous bacteria which exist in everyone's nose and throat. These secondary invaders, the pneumococci and streptococci are complications from sinus infections to pneumonia. Secondary infection once established, the cold lasts from two to four weeks, resistant to treatment and involving much discomfort and probably some disability.

Precautions to avoid colds include avoiding spray from anyone with a cold, keeping away from those with colds, frequent washing of hands, the eating of proper food, plenty of rest, avoidance of depletion of energy, exercise and wearing enough clothing to keep warm. At the beginning of a cold, the advice is to go to bed and keep warm, drink fruit juices and water and eat light food. In the case of feverishness and aches or chest pains, the ill person is advised to call a doctor.

Prevention of colds is one of the most important public health problems. Industry in particular is seriously affected by this most common of non-occupational diseases.

"Forty Years On"

Winston Churchill's great heart must have beaten faster and his poetic spirit been uplifted, as he returned the other day to the old classrooms and playgrounds of Harrow, the public school he attended as a boy of twelve.

Standing amidst five hundred boys, he captured again the "wild freshness" of the morning of his life, and sang again with them its famous school song, "Forty Years On."

What mingled thoughts and feelings must have crowded his mind, as the memories of those far-off early days came back. He must, however, have taken comfort in the knowledge of the pride that his old school has in him, her most distinguished son, whose courage, vision and skill led his nation through her darkest days to victory.

To Mr. Churchill, now 73 years old, the last verse of the famous song must again have made its irresistible appeal, and it must have been a moving and stirring scene, as the great statesman and old warrior, perhaps weary after the long struggle but still eager and strong, sang with those small English boys clustered around him.—Montreal Gazette.

Soviet "Veto" on Korea

The announced boycott by the Soviet bloc of United Nations' action on Korea—action voted by the Political Committee of the Assembly by the overwhelming poll of 46 to 0—presages a definite showdown between the U.S.S.R. and the rest of the world when the U. N. Commission moves to set up a unified government in Korea. The lines are so clearly drawn that there can be no confusion of the issue.

If the full Assembly approves the action, and there seems to be no question that it will, since all its members were represented on the Political Committee ,the Soviet Union would be left only with the alternatives of acquiescence or open defiance. There can be no question of the "veto" in the Korean case. The question has not been before the Security Council, where the veto can be invoked. There is no clause in the Charter which would allow the Council now to be "seized" of the question after the Assembly already has acted.

World opinion appears to be solidly aligned behind the United States position, which is that two years of deadlock have clearly shown the impossibility of agreement between the two occupying Powers and that the best solution is to entrust the task of setting up a free and representative government in Korea to a United Nations Commission. — New York Times.

There'll be no more State Department protests to propaganda attacks in the Russian press against the President, other national personalities, or U. S. policies. The White House has decided that silence will be more effective than any diplomatic protests to a government which has definitely embarked on a wide campaign of abuse of the U. S., says Newsweek Magazine.

YESTERDAY'S BOOK

The man who reads the latest book
Has merely had one backward look
And learned what wise men had to say
To guide their fellows yesterday.

The gathered wisdom of the past
Upon the printed page is cast,
But those who with the book remain
Tomorrow's fact may fail to gain.

Beyond the book the daring go,
Believing there is more to know;
Perhaps a surer, better way
Than what seemed final yesterday.

Tomorrow—and a book has died!
Out of the unknown, fact is pried
By some adventurer who unfolds
The mystery tomorrow holds.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why is a clever person referred to as being long-headed?

Phrenologists, those who believe that the character and mental ability can be judged by means of the shape and bumps of the head, maintain that a long head is an indication of sagacity and shrewdness. Hence a sharp-witted persons is said to be long-headed. There is an interesting reference to this subject in Shakespeare's "Macbeth," where Duncan says of the traitor Cawdor:

> There's no art
> To find the mind's construction in the face;
> He was a gentleman on whom I built
> An absolute trust.

Does any species of fish swim upside down?

A catfish ,Synodontis batensoda, and related species common to the Nile and other African rivers and lakes, have the remarkable habit of normally swimming and floating upside down. No other known fish assume this position in the water for extended periods unless they are sick or dead.

Puffers or globe-fishes and the porcupine fishes sometimes float upside down while inflated, and the shrimp-fishes or needle-fishes of the Indian Ocean do so occasionally. The globe-fish often inflates itself and swims upside down when frightened. Individual specimens of the common goldfish have been observed to swim on their backs.

The Nile catfish must have acquired its habit of swimming upside down a long time ago, because it is depicted in that position in ancient Egyptian works of art and because it has developed a light back and a dark belly, which is the reverse of the usual color scheme in fishes.

What is French cream?

Brandy is often so called from an age-old French custom of putting brandy instead of cream in the usual cup of coffee taken after a meal.

Why are small letters referred to as lower case?

"Lower case' 'in the sense of small or non-capitalized letters originated with printers. In a typesetter's case the small letters of a font are on a lower level than are the capital letters. Hence the terms "lower case" for small letters and "upper case" for capital letters.

Will Submit Housing Question To Ratepayers

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 8 — (CP) — Housing — central issue in a hot city council fight the last few weeks — will be placed before Windsor voters when they go to the polls Dec. 1, municipal election day.

Council voted 8 to 4 to submit to all municipal electors a by-law asking:

"Are you in favor of a 20-year agreement with the Dominion government for erection of 500 permanent veterans houses with the city contributing improved sites free and accepting $70 to $80 in lieu of taxes."

The issue was defined in two ways at Thursday night's special council session. Mayor Arthur J. Reaume said it was housing or no housing. Controller Tom Brophey defined it as subsidy or no subsidy.

The crux is the $70 to $80 to be paid in lieu of taxes on the low rental homes.

The council group agreeing with Controller Brophey has felt that the sum does not measure up to what the city would receive for regular taxes on the homes.

The group in agreement with Mayor Reaume believed the need for housing is foremost and that the government offer is the best available.

Letter to the Editor

We Must Remember

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

Through the medium of your paper may I, as president of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Legion address the following lines to the citizens of Belleville.

In two world wars, 100,000 Canadian men gave their lives that freedom might live. November the 11th. has been set aside as a day of Remembrance for these men who died for us. How quickly we have forgotten them!

Last year of Belleville's 18,000 people there were only some 200 at the Cenotaph on Nov. 11th. 95 per cent of these were wives, mothers, fathers, and comrades of these our dead. Where were the rest of the people of Belleville. Where were the men and women who might have "served" but didn't? Where are those who were protected from the "sacrifice of service" by the laws of the land? Where were our boys and girls? Are they so ungrateful or, did we neglect to tell them of our 100,000 gallant heroes? Where were the veterans? Of some 3,000 in Belleville only 200 paraded. Surely this was the greatest breach of faith.

It is so important that we "Remember" our dead on the 11th of November. Not for their sake (how pitiful any honor we can show them in their sacrifice!) but for ours if we are to survive as free men, that love of freedom which they so exemplified to the extent that 100,000 died for it, must live. What better way to keep it alive than to keep the memory of their sacrifice before us!

And so I respectively suggest every citizen of Belleville be present at the cenotaph at 11 a.m. on Nov. 11th. when we bow our heads in remembrance, let us pray that we may have the courage endurance and generosity of these Our Dead, that their sacrifice will not have been in vain, and that the world will have an honorable and lasting peace.

Boats Forced To Seek Shelter

Port Stanley, Ont., Nov. 8 — (CP) — A stiff "sou'-easter" lashed shallow Lake Erie into a frenzy yesterday, smashing along unprotected Orchard Beach and doing unestimated damage to the summer resort property. The driving fury of the gale forced waves up over the 20-foot bank and spray covered the bridge and nearby streets in the heart of the village.

Relentless winds forced 10 fishing boats, the greatest number ever to be moved as a result of a storm here, to seek shelter beyond the bridge.

The tanker "Texaco Brave" had to take on water ballast after she discharged her cargo of gasoline, earlier in the day. Water ballast is usually taken on in the lake, but swift action was deemed advisable by her captain.

The ship is waiting for the lake to calm before leaving port.

It is believed that most ships are hugging the American shore, to avoid the full force of the gale.

CHILDREN WHO SMOKE

I am an 18 year old high school girl (writes a reader). I have my own personal reasons for wanting to smoke. Could you please tell me what you think is a safe number of cigarettes for a girl of my age to have in one day- They say smoking is not harmful unless it is overdone. When is it overdone? (H. A.)

From the extraordinary bad spelling, punctuation and grammar of the letter (edited for publication) I cannot help wonder how this girl ever advanced as far as the freshman class in high school. Most normal ten-year-old children write a better letter. I mention this evident limited intelligence as a reflection on the character of the inquiry.

This girl has her own personal reasons for wanting to smoke —implying that her reasons are none of my business. But she asks my advice and I am sincere and serious about it whether the girl is or not. If she cares to confide in me (I have never yet divulged any secret patients, clients or readers may have imparted) and tell me what those personal reasons for wanting to smoke are, I'll give her the best advice I can.

Not that I have made a personal investigation or survey of this or any other health problem in the schools today. I know no more about the proportion of school children who smoke than you do, maybe less. All I know is what I see day by day.

Day by day I see high school children smoking on their way to and from school. Some of them do it furtively, some flauntingly and some seem un-self-conscious about it. I had rather no mention other aspects of the public conduct of too many of these smoking school children, except to say that it is sickening even to a doctor whose experience might well have immunized him against that sort of thing.

Mind you, folks, I do not believe or say that school boy or school girl who smokes is ruined or even that his or her mental or physicial health is irreparably damaged. I do believe and say that smoking before development and growth is completed (not necessarily stature, but mental physical, organic development) is pretty certain to be more or less deficient or short of what it might have been had the child not cultivated the smoking habit.

What's the matter with the W.C.T.U.? What's the matter with the other temperance organizations— if any? What's the matter with the Parents-Teachers Associations? What's the matter with the clergy? What's the matter with the physical education instructors or directors and the athletic coaches? And what's the matter with the parents, the uncle and aunts, the big brothers and sisters of these school children? Are today's children so self-confident and sophisticated that parents, guardians and teachers hesitate to give them counsel and aid? Do these precocious youngsters lack all of that deep tenderness which children in the days before cigarettes and cocktails felt for parents, teachers and guardians?

I don't think so. You never can tell till you try. You just havent's tried, you negligent, cowardly, unfaithful parents, temperance organizations, clergymen, teachers, physicians, uncles, aunts, brothers and sisters. You haven't tried. You have left the kids to go it alone—and in a world where harmful influences beset them to an extent scarcely dreamed of when you and I were young.

With a little prodding and assurance of moral and vocal support the rabbis, priests and ministers might be re-enlisted, maybe even a physician here and there, to lead the parents, uncles, aunts, big brothers and sisters, teachers and children in their respective communities and raise once more the standard that kept so many of us from faltering in the formative years before we had acquired enough strength of will or character to walk alone. Of course I mean the solemn pledging of the child against the use of alcohol or tobacco before he or she has reached full adult development. I thank my lucky stars that, under the beneficent influence of the W.C.T.U., of which my mother was an active member, my parents asked their sons to take the pledge against alcohol and tobacco—and having pledged ourselves not to use alcohol or tobacco we kept the pledge without any difficulty, just out of love and respect for our parents. I'm sure such love and respect for parents is as strong in children now as it has ever been—but I'm not so sure that parents, clergymen, teachers and temperance organizations are aware of it.

MYSTERY DEEPENS

London, Ont., Nov. 8 — (CP)—The mystery of the stuffed turtle and the stuffed weasel is puzzling city police these days.

The stuffed animals were found in a parked car at the rear of a Richmond Street business firm by Constable Blanchard after it was reported the car had been there for several days.

There were also several Toronto newspapers, some books, a pair of shoes and an air force officer's hat in the car. Police said they would wait until the week-end before moving the car.

History of City Public Schools

Queen Victoria School

Old Queen Victoria School was a red brick two-storey building which housed both Public and High Schools and stood on the site of the present Collegiate and Vocational School. The Public School also occupied an old two-room stone building at the rear of the brick building built in 1850 and always referred to as the Old Grammar School. In the last year of its existence old Queen Victoria Public School also occupied an old Sunday School building owned by St. Thomas' Anglican Church. This property was purchased by the Board of Education for school purposes.

In the autumn of 1911, the Board of Education let the contract for the building of a new eleven-roomed school building on a five-acre tract on the north side of Pine Street at the corner of Lingham St. This new school took the name of the old school. It was completed and ready for occupancy on Sept. 1st, 1912 and was officially opened with due ceremony on Nov. 8th, 1912 by the Honorable Dr. R. A. Pyne, Minister of Education. Mr. C. M. Reid was Chairman of the Board and Mr. J. F. Wills (later Judge Wills) was Chairman of the new Queen Victoria School Committee. Mr. H. J. Clarke, B. A., was Inspector of Public Schools and an indefatigable worker for new and better schools for Belleville. Revered by the teachers and pupils as a good leader and educationist, he retired in 1939. Since that time Mr. Clarke has carried on in public service as an Alderman in the City Council.

The first staff of the new Queen Victoria School was: — A. C. Wilkin, principal; Fred Snider, Asst. Principal, Ruth E. Vincent, Laura P. Hinchey, Isabel Northcott, Jessie Bruce, Violet Handley, Sadie Morton, Lola Drummond, Mabel E. Mills, Naomi G. Irving, and Mary Northcott as supernumerary teacher.

A Women's Institute was organized in 1913 in connection with the school by Miss Emily J. Guest of the High School Staff but the breaking out of war saw the members go into other fields of activities and the Institute closed out. It operated along the line of a parent-school organization and did very good work while active.

Miss Alice Sinclair was hired as our first School Nurse in 1919. She was followed in office by Miss Frazer Ross, Miss E. Earshman, Miss Gordon and our present hard working and efficient Mrs. B. Watt. Dr. Mac. Wilson was the first school dentist. Appointed in 1921, he carried on until 1927 when he was succeeded by the present School Dentist Dr. M. J. Clarke. The Health Department has a strong supporter and leader in the immunization of school children against disease in Dr. G. S. Cronk, M.O.H., who is very active in health work in the schools.

In 1925, the Board gave the subject of Music in Schools its first really serious consideration and appointed Prof. V. P. Hunt, as Music Supervisor. Prof. Hunt did splendid work but unfortunately just when he had his work well in line, an urge to economize seized the Board and music in the schools went back to the old system.

In 1931, due to overcrowded conditions, five new classrooms were added to our school with a large modern well-equipped auditorium. The school has a fine public address equipment, radio, sound moving picture projector and a fine reflectoscope, all of which make for better work in the school. In 1938 Mr. George Maybee was appointed music supervisor and music again got under way. In 1939, Mr. Maybee resigned and was succeeded by Miss Phyllis May, present supervisor of music. The success of this department can be evidenced at any class lesson or in assembly singing and the public may hear a broadcast by some class of the schools by tuning in CJBQ any Tuesday morning at 11.30. In 1933, a school band was organized and under the capable instruction of Mr. Alfred Cooper it flourished and soon became a real part of the musical set up. During the while Mr. Cooper was overseas, the band was instructed by Mrs. Murphy who was forced to give up owing to illness. Mr. Cooper has resumed his school band since returning and again there is in Q. V. S., a band to open morning exercises, and for other entertainment purposes.

In Sept., 1943, a Kindergarten-Primary Class was opened in this school and while a first there was only one half-day class, there are now two rather crowded half-day classes requiring the full time of a teacher which shows that the class is becoming popular with the parents. In Sept. 1946, a special handicraft class was opened for girls of the city under Miss Hilda Burley who also takes speech correction classes in different schools on certain days when her regular class is taking Household Science. A fully equipped industrial arts and crafts room has been fitted out in this school for use of all the city's public schools. Mr. George Elliott was its first teacher and he has now been succeeded by Mr. Frank Garrett a specialist in this work. The new advantages offered in Belleville Public Schools may well be traced to the efforts of a hard-working Inspector-Administrator.

This essay would not be complete without allusion to that fine old gentleman and teacher, Mr. S. A. Gardiner, who was principal of old Queen Victoria School for so many years. How many living remember him?

Friendly, Humorous Sketches Of Typical Ontario Farm Life

By R.A. FARQUHARSON
(Managing Editor of the Globe and Mail)

Father on the Farm. Kenneth C. Cragg; Longmans, $2.50.

Not since Peter MacArthur's day has any one caught rural life as vividly and as brightly as Kenneth C. Cragg. Father on the Farm is a Canadian book that ripples with pleasant laughter. Stephen Leacock would have enjoyed reading it. The sketches have run serially in the The Globe and Mail, and letters to Mr. Cragg have shown that they have an eager readership from coast to coast. Critics have found the book typical of Ontario; equally typical of Nova Scotia; a true picture of life in Manitoba and "exactly like it was when I was a boy in Illinois."

To strike a universal note is quite a feat. To capture the very smell of the farm, which chuckles on every page, is something few Canadian writers have done. The book is not intended as a serious work on farm life and yet I doubt if another book has given a more accurate picture of life in rural Ontario.

The first chapter was written as a lone newspaper article with no thought of an eventual book, in response to a suggestion that Cragg who is this paper's senior Ottawa correspondent, use the enforced leisure of a long illness to write on his farm background. Before the first article was printed on the editorial page, his colleagues had asked Cragg to write more about father and before the first half-dozen appeared there were requests from all over the country to turn father into a book. There have already been inquiries about motion picture rights.

I knew Father after he had retired from the farm, near Drayton, to live with Cragg in Toronto. He was a quiet, almost timid person and no one meeting him in the unfamiliar setting of a city would have visualized Father as the dramatic centre of a successful book. Father always found it easier to talk to his horses than to people.

The drawings by Ted McCormack, which have already attracted attention, make the volume one of the best illustrated Canadian books of the year. His colleagues played a trick on Cragg. They gave McCormack a picture of the author, so Father appears as a caricature of the son.

The volume is dedicated to every city dweller who still finds the odd hayseed in his hair. It follows the advice J. J. Morrison founder of the UFO gave to this reviewer years ago: "If you want to write successfully about farmers, write to interest city people." The book will be read in city and country with equal delight and should be a best seller in the coming months.

HE'LL DRIVE KING AND PRINCESS TO ROYAL WEDDING

This placid man, who sits, unexcited, at his ease catching up in his required reading, is F. McIlveen, head coachman to the Royal Family, who will drive the "Irish coach" in which Princess Elizabeth and King George will ride from Buckingham Palace to Westminster Abbey for the wedding ceremony on Nov. 20. Such colorful pageants are nothing new to McIlveen, who has driven royalty for more than 30 years. Another coachman will drive the Princess and her new husband back to the palace in another coach. The King and Queen will ride with Mr. McIlveen.

With Canada's Naturalist

(By The Canadian Press)

At a recent convention of Canadian X-ray technicians in Saskatoon, Percy Ghent of Toronto, exhibited and described a long array of X-ray films he made to wrest inside information from nature. Subjects included enormous windpipes of whistling swans and cranes which permit these birds to emit calls that can be heard for miles.

Owl pellets, by X-ray, disclosed a fantastic collection of mice bones; incubating eggs of the domestic hen showed gradual building up of chick skeletons; under the rays the secret of how a tree grows and sets up its annular rings came to light, and films of goldenrod galls told of the skill of the mayfly grub in making a tunnel for the escape of the mature fly.

If you see a moose with it massive head submerged in some Canadian lake, chances are the animal is nibling at the roots of Nymphaea Polysepala— more familiar to most of us as the pond lily. These roots are the favorite diet of the lordly moose.

This lily species with its yellow or orange colored blossoms, often four inches wide, is a familiar sight in its flowering time and brings the crowning touch of beauty to forest-rimmed lakes across Canada. It blooms too, in abundance near the shores of mountain lakes in the Rockies.

Not the roots, but the seeds of these lillies are considered a delicacy by Indians, who still prepare them for food occasionally by an ancient method. They shake them vigorously in a basket with live coals to do the roasting. When the seeds are ground after this primitive roasting, they have a flavor like fresh popcorn.

Crooner Bing Crosby did not get the grizzly bear he hoped for while on vacation at Jasper Alta., recently, even with complete hunter's regalia and a full gowth of beard to show he was really in earnest about it. Failing at Jasper, he made a call at Windermere guest ranch, arriving at the cook house door early one morning.

A cautious "Who's there?" from the cook brought a cheery "Bing" from the caller. And when a derisive "Oh, yeah" sounded through the closed door, Crosby proved his identity by singing "Going My Way."

He was welcomed after the solo and the only regret at Windermere was that Bing again failed to get his grizzly.

In Toronto alone every fall, no less than 8,000 truckloads of leaves are removed from the streets and dumped into suburban ravines. From there they are gladly retrieved by market gardeners and commercial nurserymen who know their value in the creation of humus to enrich soil when composted.

If home gardeners realized how much priceless soil nutriet—literally tons of it — thus goes up in smoke, there would be far fewer bonfires and more compost piles in back gardens.

Tweed

Kenneth McNeil Named Manager Of Guelph Bank

Tweed (Special) — Announcement was made on Thursday of the transfer of Kenneth A. McNeil, manager of the Tweed Branch of the Bank of Montreal to Guelph.

Mr. McNeil came to Tweed in 1940 from Mildmay, succeeding Mr. W. E. Spackman who retired at that time.

He commenced his banking career at Glace Bay, Nova Scotia in 1917, exactly thirty year ago. Since that time he has served in Kingsville, London, Belleville, Hamilton, Kitchener and other branches.

He will be succeeded in Tweed by Mr. G. L. Johnstone, who has served as manager of the Stirling branch for the past five years. Mr. McNeil's move is one of seven managerial transfers throughout the province, all of which become effective immediately. In some cases the housing accommodations may temporarily hold up the transfers, although Mr. McNeil has a fine apartment waiting for him at Guelph.

Takes Active Part

Since coming to Tweed, he has taken an active part in community affairs and was treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce, treasurer of the Library Board and a director of the Kinsmen Club. Any worthwhile movement in the village had his support and he will be missed in the community.

The move will be a definite promotion for Mr. McNeil and he will be in charge of a much larger branch, with twenty staff members. His friends here will rejoice with him in his new appointment.

Mrs. McNeil has been popular in feminine groups and church work in the village and has now a wide circle of friends.

Margaret and Mary have been active in St. Carthagh's dramatic society and Ladies Sodality, while Eddie was one of the promising young hockey players developed in the local midget team. Mr. McNeil is succeeding Mr. D. L. Wilson who has been transferred from Guelph to Brantford. Mr. Johnstone who comes to Tweed has spent the past five years in Stirling and is said to be a popular and active citizen of that village.

DISCONSOLATE HUNTER MISSES HIS CHANCE

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 7 — (AP) — The 1947 Missouri deer season opened yesterday.

A conservation agent, patrolling the woods, came upon a disconsolate hunter.

The hunter leaned his rifle against a tree so he could use both hands to gesture complainingly because he had seen no game.

Standing unarmed, he had no opportunity to shoot at a nine-point buck that jumped up almost under his feet.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Brough Guests Of Honor at Anniversary Party

West Huntingdon — The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Brough on the 5 th concession of Huntingdon resounded with happiness on Thursday evening when relatives and friends gathered to felicitate them on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Brough were unaware of the preparations and while absent from home during the day relatives came and spread the tables and arranged a delicious chicken dinner for over fifty guests. The main table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake made by Mrs. Frank Brough of Campbellford.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart, who offered the Grace, proposed a toast to the bride and groom of forty years ago, and asked Mr. H. R. Burke, Frank Brough and Arthur Brough, to express the good wishes of the relatives and present suitable gifts.

Immediately following dinner the neighbors arrived and filled the home to capacity. Mrs. Stewart acted as chairman and community singing was enjoyed. Life of Fuller forty years ago and the Brough-Burke wedding were humorously and touchingly told by Mrs. Alex Moore and Mrs. Frank Hutchison of Detlor, Mr. H. R. Burke of Fuller and Mr. Arthur Burke of Belleville.

Interesting addresses were given by Mr. Ted Follwell of Belleville and Mrs. J. McCauley of Fuller Miss Marion Kellar read an address from the community and the presentation of a lovely set of dishes took place.

Mr. and Mrs. Brough have been life long residents of Huntingdon and have always been actively associated with Fuller United Church. Brough and with his son Arthur, they occupy the old homestead.

One son, Frank is cheese maker near Campbellford while George resides in Toronto. Their many friends in this community wish for them many more happy anniversaries.

Mrs. R. Sills Addresses Aikens W.M.S.

The W.M.S. Auxiliary of Aikens United Church held its Thank-offering service on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. S. Marshall, the opening number being a much appreciated piano duet by Mrs. Lee Grills and Mrs. H. Hamilton.

Mrs. B. Hollinger, program convener, had charge of the devotional period, using a special Thank-offering leaflet, "Giving thanks to God", with all members assisting, and with appropriate hymns and prayers.

Mrs. E. Hubble, president, welcomed the visitors, Mrs. Sills of Foxboro, Mrs. G. Sills and Mrs. L. Hall of Centenary, and Mrs. Ralph Sills of Zion, and conducted the business of the month.

A splendid report of the recent Sectional Rally held in Grace Church, Trenton, was given by Mrs. K. Jones. Mrs. S. Spafford introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. R. Sills, Sectional vice president for Belleville District. Mrs. Sills chose "Reading" as the subject of her address, saying in part, "Our attention is focused this year upon the printed word through the study book on "The Bible". When we think of the flood of literature on our newsstands, and that which finds its way into our homes, we ask, 'are we being careful of our choice of reading matter?' Mr. Deacon, president of the Canadian Authors" Association says it is not the writers who have created the literary movement, but the readers.

"There is increasing evidence," said the speaker, "that people in rural sections are reading Canadian books and periodicals, and that is a real victory. We know that nothing else has had such effect upon the progress of the world or has so changed the characters of peoples and nations as has the invention of printing. From the opening chapter of our study book we learn that John Gutenberg is credited with being the first man to print a book by using movable type. In 1455 he produced a printed Bible.

'Great men speak to us in their best books, and give it the world their most precious thoughts. God be thanked for good books. They are the voices of the distant and the dead, to make us heirs to the spiritual life of past ages, and give to all readers the spiritual presence of the best and greatest of our age. Let us be thankful for every delightful book which strengthens character, and brings our ideals to a higher plane.

"By books, mind speaks to mind and the world's intelligence grows. No matter how poor one may be, sacred writers will enter the obscure dwelling and take up their abode with man, so that anyone may become cultured through association with the best society.

"Today's best seller is the Bible. Keep it ever near at hand, and peruse its pages devoutly, lest familiarity blunt your reverence. Someone has said,

"'Books are keys to Wisdom's treasure,
"'Books are gates to lands of pleasure,
"'Books are paths that upward lead,
"'Books are friends—so let us read.'"

Appreciation for this very fine address was expressed by Mrs. S. Westover. The Thank-offering was accepted, and after the formal closing of the meeting, Mrs. Marshall and her assistants served delectable refreshments.

Divisional Commissioner Meets Girl Guide Group

The regular monthly meeting of the local association of Belleville Girl Guides, was held in the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday evening. This meeting was well attended with Commissioner Mrs. J. Watson acting as chairman. Business routine was made up of roll call, minutes of previous meeting and the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Watson reported on her Brownie Packs and Guide Companies, stating that there are two Brownie packs meeting in East Belleville at the Kiwanis Centre with approximately thirty Brownies each, and one Guide Company also meeting at the Kiwanis Centre with 36 Guides enrolled. In the absence of Miss N. Merry, Commissioner for West Belleville, her report was read stating that in West Belleville, there are two Brownie packs functioning, one meeting with some 30 Brownies at King George School, and one with about 30, meeting at Queen Mary School, together with one Guide Company with 27 Guides meeting in Christ Church Parish Hall.

The members of the local association had the pleasure of having with them, Mrs. A. S. Oliver, Divisional Commissioner, and Mrs. T. W. Spear, District Commissioner of Trenton. Commissionjer Watson also read a letter received from headquarters, that Her Royal Highness Princess Elizabeth had graciously agreed to accept a gift from the Girl Guides and it has been requested that all commissioners, captains, lieutenants, Brown Owls, Tawny Owls, Guides and Brownies will wear their full uniform for the whole day of Nov. 20th, the wedding day of the Princess and Worlds Chief Ranger.

Fowler presented to Mrs. Buchanan a very fine wooden tray which had been made for the Home and School Association by the boys of the manual training class.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by a group of mothers from Miss Sullivan's class, and a social time was enjoyed.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa (CP) — Autumn has ushered in the apple season. They may be eaten raw, cooked with meat, or in any number of puddings — perhaps that's why they are known as the most versatile fruit on the market.

If mother's looking for an apple dessert there's a new recipe for Apple Up-Side Down Cake, destined to make the family's mouth water.

Ingredients: one-quarter cup butter; three-quarter's cup brown sugar; three apples; one-quarter cup butter; one-third cup white sugar; one egg; one-quarter cup molasses; one cup flour; one teaspoon baking powder; one-half teaspoon soda; one-eighth teaspoon salt; one teaspoon ginger; one-half teaspoon cinnamon; one-third cup boiling water.

Melt one-quarter cup butter in baking dish. Add the brown sugar and cook together. Pare and core apples. Cut each in half to make two thick rings. Arrange rings of apples in butter and sugar mixture. Cream one-quarter cup butter. Add white sugar and cream well together. Add well beaten egg and molasses. Beat thoroughly. Sift dry ingredients and add to mixture. Lastly add boiling water, mixing quickly. Pour over apples in baking-dish and bake in moderate oven for 40 minutes. Serves six.

And for a dinner dish apples may be used with baked ham. Ingredients: one slice uncooked ham (about 1 1-2 inches thick); one teaspoon dry mustard; two teaspoons vinegar; two apples; one-half cup brown sugar; one teaspoon butter.

Trim rind from ham. Mix mustard and vinegar together and spread on ham. Slice apples thinly and spread in layers on ham. Sprinkle with brown sugar and dot with butter. Bake in a moderate over until ham is tender —about 45 minutes.

Buying "by grade" is one thing the consumer section, Dominion Department of Agriculture urges every housewife to do if she wants to get the most for her money.

In its free booklet "Don't Guess, Buy by Grade," the department urges all Canadian consumers to make a point of buying most of the more commonly used food by grade. The packages in which these foods may be purchased carry the mark or it may be stamped right on the food — as it is on beef or poultry. However, unless the consumer knows about these grade-marks and the regulations concerning them she doesn't get full benefit from them.

Color Trend Shows Wedding Influence

London, (CP)— Fancy hats were on display at the Fall show of Erik (Paris) Ltd., with three colors predominating —black, winter white and wedding wine, the last intended as a compliment for the forthcoming royal wedding.

His models were designed to sit straight on the head, and his trimmings were a variety of high-standing feathers, a profusion of winter flowers or a narrow sequin band around the base of the crown.

Black Poodle was his name for a new fur fabric used for some of his models. It has a bushy appearance like the fur of a French poodle.

For wearing with tailor-mades he showed many hats designed on the style of beef-eater models. A small crown and small straight brim curving slightly upwards in front. The crowns were almost as wide as the brims.

For cocktail and dressy hats he used the pill-box style with sudden height introduced by feathers, plumes or large bows. For evening wear with long skirts, large stiff brims giving side width were shown. Most of the brims were raised slightly off the face.

Sequined veilings for keeping the hair tidy on evening outings were also exhibited.

His berets were designed with side width to be worn at the back of the head, and the brim of one of his halo hats, swept gently around to a high point at the centre of the forehead.

Another headwear show was put on by Aschers, a well-known firm of textile designers, with square scarves designed by such artists as Henri Matisse, Henry Moore, Andre Derain, Graham Sutherland and Feliks Topolski.

Ascher squares, which can also be used for neckwear, sell from 17s 6d. $3.50) for a design by an unknown artist to £7 9s. ($30) for a square by Matisse.

They were exhibited in frames, like pictures, opening up a new idea for interior decorating.

Many have been produced in limited editions of from 250 to 600, with each numbered and the screen destroyed after printing. Aschers say hopefully some may become rare museum pieces.

Some of the designs are surrealistic, Others feature ballet dancers and even still life.

THE FALLEN

(A Tribute to Canada's Airmen, Sailors, Armed Forces — Sept. 1942.)

Those who have loved the dearest,
The bravest and the best,
Are summoned from the battle
To their eternal rest;
There they endure the silence
Here we endure the pain—
He that bestows the valor
Valor resumes again.
O' Master of all Being,
Donor of day and night,
Of passion and of beauty,
Of sorrow and delight,
Thou gav'st them the full treasure
Of that heroic blend—
The pride, the faith, the courage
That holdeth to the end.
Thou gavest us the knowledge
Wherein their memories stir—
Master of Life, we thank Thee
That they were what they were.

—Duncan C. Scott.

Education Week:

This is the last day of Education Week—one more "special" week finished—ready now for the next one which may range anywhere through Fire Prevention Week, Health Week or one we should like to see added, Long Skirt Prevention Week. With such a multitude of special weeks they begin to lost their significance, to rouse little interest in the public. But let us try to take each one of us, some thought away from Education Week.

For the Student—

"How strange it is—our little procession of life!" The child says, "when I am a big boy." But what is that? The big boy says, "when I grow up." And then grown up, he says, "when I get married." But to be married, what is that after all? The thought changes to "when I'm able to retire." And then, when retirement comes, he looks back over the landscape traversed; a cold wind seems to sweep over it; somehow he has missed it all, and it is gone. Life, we learn too late, is in the living, in the tissue of every day and hour. So it should be with education.

But so it is not; a false view discolors it all. Through the vastly greater part of it the students' one aim is to get done with it. There comes a glad time in his life when he has "finished" mathematics, a happy day when he has done philosophy, an exhilarating hour when he realizes he is finished with "compulsory English." Then at last his four years at college are out, his sentence expired, and he steps out a free man, without a stain on his character—and not much on his mind....later on, he looks back wistfully and realizes how different it might have been.

—Stephen Leacock—Education Eating up Life.

For the Teacher—

"Education is an admirable thing, but it is well to remember from time to time that nothing that is worth knowing can be taught".

—Oscar Wilde.

Perhaps the above is an over statement but it carries a thought essential to a teacher. The teacher must never lose sight of the fact that the finest thing he has to give to a student is not Mathematics or French or Science, but himself. Teachers are not mere conveyor belts between books and the student's mind but rather they are living paths, between the student and life. And too many teachers are blind alleys. Give of yourself freely, give of your best and the more you give the greater will be your treasure from which you may give.

For the Parent:

A bit of very practical, very stale but very much needed advice. Don't belittle the teacher in front of the student. If you disagree with the teacher's methods go tell him so and discuss the matter with him. Perhaps he needs help or perhaps you do. The procedure of railing against a teacher in front of a student when the teacher isn't there to defend himself is not only cowardly but destroys much of the value of an educational system that you pay hard earned dollars to support.

For the Principal:

Supply positive, fearless and intelligent leadership. A General who does that need never look behind to see if his officers and troops are following.

For the Members of the School Board:

Treat the teachers the same way you would treat any person working for you in your own business. The teacher really is not some strange sort of creature.

For the Department of Education:

"Is too much stress being placed on education to earn a living rather than on education to live?"

For the Taxpayer:

We consider you last. You aren't disappointed, you always expect to be considered last. But remember you can see what you and your community get for your education taxes. Can you tell us what you get for your sales tax? Your income tax? Your stamp tax on cheques? Your dog tax? Your radio licence? Your import duties? Why should you grumble most where you can see what you get for your money?

Lodge Members Enjoy Party on 43rd Anniversary

Loyal Division 337 G.I.A. to Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers held its 43rd Birthday party recently in the Y. M. C. A. dining hall, Campbell St., when the guests were received by the president, Sister Grace Brown, assisted by Sister Sgne Orne, Gladys Grey and June Muirhead.

Mrs. H. Brown invited the guests to the banquet table, which was attractively decorated with lighted candles in silver candelabra and the colors of the order.

On behalf of the Loyal Division 337, the president welcomed the guests, charter members, (Sisters E. Taylor and June Muirhead), the Grand Organizer and Inspector, wishing a pleasant evening to everyone present.

Sister Susie Pigden proposed a toast to the King. The president, Sister Grace Brown, and Sister June Muirhead were asked to cut the birthday cake. The knife used is an heirloom in the family of Brother Orne.

Toast to Grand Division

Toast to the Grand Division was proposed by Mrs. M. J. Barlow. Two sisters of this division are now in the Grand Division, namely Sister Winslow, of Thistle Division, Toronto, and Sister Muirhead of Division 337, who responded to the toast. Ten of the members have recently returned from Chicago, Ill., where the Grand Division celebrated the 60th anniversary in the Sherman Hotel.

A toast to the B. of L. E. was proposed by Sister Gladys Grey, and Brother Percy Kerr responded, wishing the Division every success.

Toast to the Charter members was proposed by Sister Jean Hart, to which Sister L. Naylor responded, in the absence of charter member Sister E. Taylor, who remarked it was an honor to speak for the one remaining member left of the 19 who organized the Loyal Division 43 years ago. This was followed by toast to the visitors by Sister Bessie. Clark, to which Brother Larry Grey responded.

Appreciation Expressed

Sister Clark, convener, spoke briefly, and tendered to Sister Pearl Kerr and her group of ladies from Tabernacle United Church the appreciation of the Division, to which Sister Kerr ably responded. Sister Grace Grey also spoke briefly, after which solos by Miss Irene Shepherd, of Kingston, and by Mr. Ed. Brown, were greatly appreciated. Brother and Sister Ferris were honored with another solo sung in celebration of their wedding anniversary, to which Sister Ferris replied expressing gratitude and thanks for the flowers.

Sister Grey thanked the soloists and Mrs. Duff, and expressed appreciation to Brother N. Robb who helped to make this banquet a success.

Music was supplied for dancing by Brother Kerr and his violin, with Sister Robb as accompanist. Games of cards were also enjoyed.

Mrs. H. Brown thanked the conveners and committees who assisted with the banquet, and "Auld Lang Syne" brought another pleasant social event to a close.

Belleville "A" Veterans Look Good as They Edge Kingston Saints Ints. 4-3

They'll do.

That is the consensus of those of the faithful who saw the 1947 edition of the Belleville Army, Navy, Air Force Veterans Intermediates in their first test of the 1947-48 season against the Kingston Saints last night. It was a fast-flying, clean tussle with both squads in a typical Kingston-Belleville hockey brawl going all out to cop the nod. As it happened, there was sweet victory for the local lads for they emerged not too bloody and decidedly unbowed on the long end of a 4-3 score.

It was fast pre-season hockey staff. The Saints, they're wellnamed if you can take a joke, poured on the speed, the trickiness and the odd jab of villainy to press their point, and after all the squad is a mixed crew of the best Kingston has garnished with a dash of Gananoque and other rural suburbs of Mike Rodden's village. Or is it?

But they met a gang that has a memory plus plenty of hockey ability. The shock troops of Walt Gerow, Leo Goyer and Timmy Williams, while they did yeoman service up there in front of Udy Udall's slit-trench never really got going in the style and effectiveness that made them the most feared trio in the O.H.A. Intermediate "A's" grouping last season.

But it wasn't exactly necessary.

The reserve troops of Donny Barrett, Bastedo, Keith MacDonald, who looked perfectly at home in the company, Jackie Wardhaugh and the rest of the beardless crew flashed plenty of speed and ability. In fact Johnny Semark, one of the best prospects here in many a moon, teamed up with his linemates Barrett and Wardhaugh to draw the first blood at the five minute mark in the first period.

It was good fast hockey, especially in view of the fact that it was pre-season stuff, although both teams have had practice with the limestone lads having a few City League fames under their belts. They tell us that the Saints, a neat composite brew of the best Kingston had last year, are leading the local loop in their village and doing a neat job. They are fast, show plenty of ability and are opportunists. In fact if it had not been for the custodian cunning of Gordie Hayes and Bridgeman who shared the net dutiees for the Reds (hockey players that is) the score might have been different.

And by the same token the veteran Udy Udall, a grand guy, too, was on his toes last night and turned back many a goaling threat on the part of the flying Belleville up-front troops.

Bill Hastie (remember) and Tabbie Gow who formerly wore Redmen livery are still in their battling for their Alma Mamma, wherever it might be and they are far from finished. In fact Bill raced in alone on Hayes at the 13-minute mark and tied up the pastime with a hard drive to the open corner.

Kenny McNaught started a foray near the end of the heat and aided and abetted by Leo Goyre and Timmy Williams put the Reds one up when the crafty Goyer poked the disc behind bespeckled Udy.

Kingston tied it up in the second period after the squads battled for nineteen minutes in the best hockey of the evening. It was see-saw stuff with both goalies standing out as fast-skating forwards raced in on their citalels. Bearance took Arnie Jarrell's pass with seconds to go in the heat and drove the pill past Hayes for the equalizer.

Timmy Williams flashed midseason form with linemates Gerow and Leo Goyer with big Vernon also in on the kill when he scored two goals in nine seconds midway through the third period. Kingston's Ohkle got one of them back minutes later but the visitors although they pressed heavily for the tying goal were unable to penetrate a ganged Belleville defence and went home with a 4-3 defeat tacked to their belts.

Kingston — Goal, Udall; defence, Plumb and Goodfellow; centre, Hastie; wings, Gow and Casterton; alternates, Potts, Armstrong, Ohkle, Jarrell, Aitkens, Bearance, Edwards, Goodfellow, Andrewchuk.

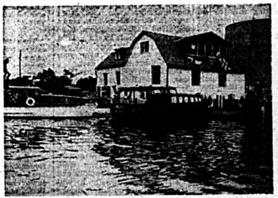
QUINTE SHIP
South Front Street



OCTOBER 31, 1947

DEAR FELLOW CITIZENS:

The Navy League of Canada have shown their faith in "Our City" by providing $4,000 to purchase the ship "Quinte."

Predominate in the Post-war work of the Navy League of Canada is the task of answering today's "Challenge of Youth"— a challenge that comes with greater force than any time in the League's fifty years of service to Canada and the Empire.

You, as citizens of Belleville and Vicinity have the responsibility of answering to this Challenge of Our local youth and the extent to which we can operate this ship depends largely on the financial support we receive.

We have a well trained group of officers under Naval Supervision giving two nights a week to this work of training these boys in seamanship and drill; leadership and responsibility; sailing and swimming; to be courteous and respect proper authority; and above all fair play and teamwork. They learn how to co-operate, to apply what they learn in Mathematics at school in the study of navigation.

The boys in this community are given the opportunity of receiving Sea Cadet training at no cost to themselves. This training is carried out in the ship's quarters Monday and Thursday evenings and for two weeks annually at summer camps.

The finances required locally are for alterations to the building and furnishing the same. To date we have spent $4,500 on alteration and to complete the building, docks, etc., making it suitable for year round occupation. We will require at least another $6,000, not including the annual cost of upkeep.

The objective for our 1947 campaign, November 5th. to 19th., is $5000.

Thanking you for your support on behalf of our executive.

Yours sincerely,
A. G. STACKHOUSE,
Chairman Navy League of Canada,
Belleville Division.

P.S.—Please make all cheques payable to the Navy League of Canada, Belleville Division, c/o H. N. BECKER, Manager of the Bank of Montreal, Finance Chairman.

SENIOR MARLIES TIED FOR FIRST PLACE IN O.H.A.

Swamp Brantford Redmen 12-1 While Hamilton Pats Down Owen Sound

(By The Canadian Press)

Joe Primeau is one lucky coach in the Ontario Hockey Association. The tutor of last season's Memorial Cup champions, Toronto St. Michael's Majors, was the object of pity in hockey circles when he handled the job of molding a group of green kids into a facsimile of last year's titlists.

Joe fooled them this season, he took two sets of teams and came up with a winner out of the two Toronto teams he counsels—St. Michael's Majors of the O.H.A. Junior A's and Marlboros of the Senior loop.

Last night the Marlboros gained a first-place tie with Hamilton Tigers by swamping Brantford Redmen 12-1 at the Maple Leaf Gardens. It was their third victory in five starts.

In the other two Senior games, Hamilton Patricias handed Owen Sound Mercury's their first defeat this season with a 9-4 victory in the Mountain City and Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen defeated Stratford Indians 5-2 in Stratford to chalk up their second triumph this season from the Indians.

St. Catharines Teepees edged Stratford Kroehlers 3-2 in a Junior "A" game at St. Catharines.

Marlboros found little opposition in the disorganized Redmen as they sifted through Brantford's defence almost at will. Leo Curick with three goals paced Marlboro scored Al Buchanan, Johnny McLellan and Ray Hannigan each tallied twice for Toronto. Ike Hildebrand, Alex Davidson and Johnny McCormack sank the other Duke counters. Brantford's lone goal came from Robin Hewson.

Runions Leads Teams

Veterans Doug Runions, coach and left-winger for the Hamilton Patricias, set the pace with two goals and two assists in the Club's victory over Owen Sound while his team-mate Murray Comfort tallied three times. Nick Phillips, Gaudette, Chuck Shannon and Oscar Clouthier tallied the other Hamilton goals. Jim Boddy scored twice for Owen Sound and Jack Ingoldsby and Art Hayward once each.

Dutchmen Goalie Keith Woodall proved Kitchener-Waterloo's strongest asset as they marked up their third success in three starts. Bobby Dixon with two counters led K-W scorers. Dick Behling, Lloyd Roubell nad Johnny Blute tallied the other. Both Stratford goals were by Joe Fitzpatrick.

It was touch and go at St. Catharines in their close checking game. Scoring was confined to the first two frames with Bill Buschlen, fiery Goegan and Kadotsky tallying the Teepees' counters, and Jim Loader and McArdle the Stratford markers.

Tonight's Senior schedule lists Toronto Marlboros at Brantford. Five Junior games are scheduled, two of them in an afternoon twin bill at Maple Leaf Gardens with Toronto St. Michael's Majors at Toronto Young Rangers in a four-point tilt and Galt at Toronto Marlboros. Toronto's games are Barrie at Oshawa, Guelph at Windsor, and St. Catharines at Stratford.

TITLE TOO "COARSE"

Thetford, Norfolk, England —(CP)— Because some members of "Rollicking Nineties Club," for old-time dancing, thought the word "rollicking" too coarse, the name was changed to "Gay Nineties Club."

Hunt Slowly During Solunar Periods

The longer I live, the more I become convinced that the leisurely man — the fellow who takes his time — gets a great deal more enjoyment in the outdoors than the ones who are always in a hurry. Fishing and hunting are, primarily, relaxing, restful sports. To hurry makes hard work of any of them and when sport takes on the aspects of hard work, fun departs as fatigue sets in.

Consider for example, upland shooting. There is a sport that can do with plenty of leisurely sauntering. Be it for quail, grouse woodcock, pheasant or what have you, a little leisure mixed with your hunting will pay off both in game and enjoyment.

In the first place, if you race through the cover the dog has time to cover the ground only hurriedly. He can't do a thorough workmanlike job of it if you are stepping on his tail. But leisurely walking goes further than that. Suppose, for instance, you have flushed a covey of quail and the singles have scattered in all directions. There isn't a dog living who can find all of them for you. All right, you make your way in the direction of the locality where you have marked down some of them. Before you get there they have scurried about and found safe hiding places in the thicker cover. Suppose you walk along near the spot where one of those singles is hiding. If you maintain a constant rate of speed and do not come too close to that little quail, he's going to stay put and you'll bypass him.

But if you take your time, allowing the dog plenty of opportunity to work out the cover thoroughly, your leisurely, erratic pase sets up doubts in the mind of that single as to the security of his hiding place. If you stop near him and stand there for a moment, he's convinced that you have discovered him and are looking at him. He can see you — you must be able to see him. Out he goes and you get yourself another quail that you very well may not have found.

Again, suppose you are hunting without a dog, brushing out and kicking up your own game. This method is coming more and more into vogue, particularly in the woodcock and grouse covers. Here a leisurely rate of progress and frequent changes of speed really pay off. A grouse or a woodcock will sit tight if you don't come too close to him and if your steps are uniform and in a straight line. But walk slowy and change course frequently, stopping now and then, and he just naturally can't stand the suspense. Rather than worry about what he thinks is his insecurity, he will flush and give you a shot.

Another thing, have you ever noticed how many birds will flush usually almost from under you, while you are climbing over or through a fence? They seem to wait until you are in the worst position imaginable for shooting; then out they go while you curse your luck and try to mark them down. There is a pretty sure cure for these unpleasantnesses if you want to take the time to apply the remedy. That's right —change of pace. Next time you have to negotiate a fence, stop about ten feet away from it and stand there for a moment or so. Then go up to the fence and kick around in the brush or grass that grows near it. Step back, gun ready, and stand motionless again. If no bird has flushed by that time, you can be fairly sure that you can get through or over your fence without losing a shot.

During the daily Solunar Periods, all wildlife is disposed to be more active and ready to feed than at other times. Thus, it pays to hunt out the feeding covers thoroughly — and slowly at these times. A bird is reluctant to leave the feeding area during a Solunar Period. Consequently he is more likely to find a hiding place and stay there quietly until you leave. If you walk past his hiding place rapidly and at a steady pase, usually, he will sit tight. But if you falter, change direction now and then, and stop once in a while, you will flush birds that you probably would not have seen otherwise.

Remember that the feeding covers almost always hold birds during Solunar Periods. Not only that, but those birds are reluctant to take wing at those times. They have come there to feed and you have interrupted their meal. Naturally, they don't figure on leaving unless they have to. Hunt your feeding covers carefully, slowly, and with change of pace during the Solunar Periods. Clip out the weekly schedules from your paper and keep them in your shell box or your hunting jacket. Remember—it pays to keep track of the Solunar Periods.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS' BLOCK

By GEORGE H. CARVER, Sports Editor.

A number of candidates for the Canadian Olympic hockey team will be seen in action in Memorial Arena here next Friday night when the RCAF entry in the Ottawa Senior City League will meet the Trenton Flyers of the Belleville District Hockey Association.

The Ottawa City League team has been using Olympic candidates in their league games and will continue to do so until the Olympic squad has been definitely selected. Playing coach of the City League squad Frank Boucher, will coach the Olympic players when they proceed overseas in January. Boucher himself is ineligible for Olympic competition as he played professional hockey with Philadelphia and Providence prior to joining the RCAF in 1941. While the Olympic squad is in Canada, the guiding reins will be in the hands of George Boucher, Frankie's father, who will select the team and coach it until it leaves for the Olympics.

Two potential Olympic team defencemen who will see action here Friday night are Johnny Frenette and Louis LeCompte. Together they represent 400 pounds of rearguard action for the airmen. Frenette, a native of Bathurst, N. B., played for the RCAF Flyers in 1941-42 when they won the Allan Cup, while LeCompte, plays junior hockey in Ottawa and for the past twelve years with RCAF teams. Louis will be remembered by fans hereabouts for his outstanding work with the Flyers squad early in the war which won the Intermediate "A" title. He was a co-partner in hockey antics of the McNeeley twins, Johnny Lalonde, Partridge, Dan Cowley, Legris, and others of the late Squadron Leader Van Vliet's team of fancy puckchasing "pigeons."

Up front will be seen Jack Seymour, Ottawa, also a member of the RCAF Allan Cuppers; Irving Taylor, rightwinger formerly of the Perth juniors; Patsy Guzzo, well-known Eastern Ontario athlete; Tommy Moore, shifty lefthander; Hubert Brooks, a Montrealer and one of the few Flyers to wear the Military Cross. Brooks had an amazing war record, escaping three times from German POW camps and finally joining the Polish underground with which he served from May 1943 to January, 1945. He was also a member of the U. S. All-star hockey team in Europe in 1946-47.

Then there is Roy Forbes, centre from Vancouver who played junior with the Portage Terriers in 1941-42 the year they won the Memorial Cup and, Oscar Klieppe, Winnipeg fire - fighter, who has been playing with RCAF teams since 1941. Prior to that he played commercial hockey in Saskatoon.

• • •

In addition to the Olympic candidates the teams will use playing - coach Frank "Buck" Boucher, and Stan Rooke, Ottawa airman, who played his junior hockey in Pembroke, Perth, with the Oshawa Generals in 1940-41 and with the Washington Lions in 1941-42.

As yet the goalkeeper for Friday's tilt has not been selected. There are five men shooting for the goal position on the Olympic team. They are: Trev. Williams, 28-year-old Ottawa player; Robbie Robson, Winnipeg; Doug. Lyon, Kelliher, Sask., now stationed at Greenwood, N. S.; Buck Buchanan, of Calgary who played with the Moose Jaw Canucks juniors in 1942-43 and Al. Darlington, a Montrealer who was former goalie for McDonald College in 1936-37.

The Canadian Olympic team has about two more months to prepare for the "world series" games in St. Moritz, Switzerland. The team will leave Canada January 3rd.

Forty-six candidates have tried for places on the team and 28 of them are still on the staff of "Buck" Boucher's test-flight patrol. Another contingent of aspiring pucksters wearing the blue of the RCAF will arrive this week for trials.

• • •

Don (Buffalo Bill) Lee, Russell (Daniel Boone) Scott, and Herb, (Wild Bill Hickok) McCabe will don their deerskins, fill their powder horns, and prime their muskets come tomorrow, and with their Conestoga jalopy filled to the gunnels with grub and sich things, will hit the trail for the north country in search for the elusive buck (deer, that is, son.).

• • •

Besides the vittles, and possibly a couple of vials of snakebite medicine, the doughty trio, who will be accompanied by Chief Scout Bill Miller of Mountain View, and two gun carriers from the Picton jungles, will take along a consignment of ear rings, toe-nail polish, hair-do catalogues, editions of Dale Carnegies "How to Make Friends, Even if You have None" tonsil lubrication, membership cards for the Royal Antedeluvian Order of Shooters of the Bull, the Deer, the Rabbit and the Ball-and-Chain if She Bothers You" jews-harps, and kewpie dolls, in case a warlike Eskimo imagines he is Sitting Bull, and pulls a Little Big Horn, Custer style, on the boys.

Deep in the woods north of Maynoothian fringe of civilization the refugees from the bright lights, will pitch their tepees. At the crack 'o frosty dawns, they will venture forth from their bearskin pajamas, break the ice in the water-bucket, inhale a few snorts of pneumonia-wrecker, and crawl on their umbilical regions to the runways, where the bucks quaff clear crystal water, because they've nothing to put in it.

And the doughty trio has an excellent system on checking not only on markmanship but on their astigmatism as well. Rule No. 6543748 of their constition demands are immediate investigation, the minute a musket or arqubus is exploded.' It all started thirty years ago when "Doc" Scott, an intelligent oaf in those days, let go his pea-shooter at what he thought was a deer, changed his diapers, and yelled "Count Noses." The rest of the council arose. "Doc" counted them, and sank down in a pile of musty wolf-skins. He quaffed a beaker of barley water, and shouted in stentorian tones, "You're all here. Then, gentlemen, I have shot myself a deer."

FIGHTING IRISH READY FOR ARMY

South Bend, Ind., Nov. 8 —(AP)— Notre Dame's fighting Irish, who have been sounding battle cries of "anihiliate Army!" During practices this week, went forth on the gridiron to try and do it today.

The 34th meeting of the Clubs held promise of a knock-down, drag-out scrap with both high-pitched teams unleashing all their artillery.

The undefeated Irish, anxious to wipe out memories of the 59-0 and 48-0 wallopings they took from the wartime-powerful cadets in 1944 and 1945, were keyed as seldom before. Army, too, was ready to strike.

Sports Digest

By PHIL STONE

Joe Krol would rather have been a ball-player! Yes, Canada's famous football star prefers the game of the diamond to that of the gridiron. Krol's life story appears in the current issue of Canadian Sports Digest and herein he tells writer M. M. Walton, his little-known frustration. Krol came along at a time when to be a big-time ballplayer was a difficult chore for a Canadian. As in the instances of fellows like George Selkirk and Jeff Heath, it required migrating to the States to get major ball savvy. Rather than leave Canada, Krol adopted baseball as more or less a hobby and concentrated on football which he liked next to the summer game. Certainly, writes Walton, it has been proven that baseballs gain would have been football's loss!

There are three National Hockey League players who have a chance to become members of the eminent and very difficult to enter "200-goal club." There are only 16 members at present and only one of these is still considered an active player. He is Canadians' Hector "Toe" Blake. The three who make the charmed circle this year are Byran Hextall of the New York Rangers, who prior to the current season had 179 goals to his credit; Captain Syl Apps of the Toronto Leafs who had 175, and Maurice Richard, who had 159. The great Nels Stewart is the only player who has made the still more difficult "300-goal club." Nels ran the goal bell 323 times before he hung up his tack!

Race-horses have some peculiar dietary idiosyncrasies. For example, "Goldey F." was extremely fond of onions and would munch one with tears streaming and nicker for more. "Okapi," twice winner of the Toboggan, chewed tobacco. "Sir Huon" ate pie, and "Bonnie Omar" used to raise such a fuss every time the soft-drink man went through the stable area that the boys around the barn bought him a sarsaparilla regularly.

Canada is growing more and more into a nation of sportsmen and sports-women. Not only is Johnny and Jane Canuck a spectator in growing quantities at games of all kinds, but also are they becoming more and more active participants. Do you know, that before the war there were 20 firms in Canada manufacturing fishermen's needs? Today there are triple that amount! And the same just about goes for all other sporting goods manufactures. There used to be just one firm producing .22 rifles. There are now three. You can look for the day when Canada will be "major" in all its sports and that includes baseball!

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Don't strain yourself to open the bidding. Every good system is geared to show each type of hand worth revealing. If there is no bid to fit it, a hand is not worth being opened.

An opening of one shows better than average. A two opening shows a hand worth trying for game. An opening of three in a major shows an independent suit and a sure trick outside.

Where does this leave an opening game bid of four in a major? For some biddable situation that is not in any one of the first three classes. What could it be?

Such a hand is short of average in some essential item. It may be shy a high card or more. It may be shy a sure trick or more. Else it would come under the class known as one bids.

Such a hand is short of nine tricks. Else it would be in a class of two bids. Such a hand may not have an outside sure trick or its suit may not be independent. Else it would be in the three bid class.

What sort of hand could it be? A long suit with nothing else. It is a hand that is no good at any other trump suit. It has nothing of a defensive nature. It has no desire to go to slam.

Consequently such a bid warns partner to lay off, desist, stay away from my door, get out of the way and stay out, let me alone, do not disturb, no interference tolerated, and shut up.

With partner so definitely squelched, such a bid can be used as a gamble. It may be with a long and strong suit, or a long suit that is not strong. It may be a shut out. It may be a sacrifice.

Deal yourself this hand:

♠J 5 3 2
♥A K Q J 6 4 2

It is not a one or two or three bid. It is a pass. You hate to pass? Then bid four hearts. You may be sorry. But partner knows what you mean. Gambling again.

BELLE—Bette Grable plays the title role in 20th Century Fox's Technicolor story with music, "Mother Wore Tights", introduces a sensational new screen personality in Dan Dailey, and has a score of terrific new song hits. "Mother Wore Tights" arrives at the Belle Theatre today.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGE

Cobourg, Ont., Nov. 8 — (CP) — Vernon Ellison 21, of nearby Bowmanville, yesterday was acquitted of a charge of attempted murder and intent to cause bodily harm to Lindsay Scott, also of Bowmanville. The charges arose from a theatre incident involving Ellison's wife.

Ellison was convicted of common assault and fined $50.

Police charged Ellison after a disturbance in a Bowmanville plant last May 13 in which a gun fell to the floor and discharged. Police said the trouble originated over Ellison's belief that Scott had shown attentions to Mrs. Ellison in a threatre.

ROSE OF SOLEDAD

By George E. Holt

CHAPTER 29.

"If you wish to die," said Jose. "He will go to the house, find the papers—and then—then he will either return and shoot us, or he will not return at all. That is as certain as the coming of tomorrow."

Yes, Shane could see, that was certain. There was every reason, from the Rattlesnake's viewpoint, for such procedure. For them to die either by quick bullet or by slow starvation and thirst.

The sun marked midday—and the shadows began to lengthen.

Shane O'Hara counted the minutes by his own heartbeats.

An hour—two hours—three. Merciful heaven, in two hours more....

And then suddenly the Rattlesnake cursed, leaped to his feet, snatched for his gun. But instead of drawing it, his hands rose slowly, rose until they were above his head.

"That's right," said a voice. "Keep 'em there."

A shadow fell across the mouth of the cave. It materialized into a body, approaching with extended arm holding a pistol. It became Pablo Martinez, whom Shane had given a job at La Paloma ranch.

"Pablo!" he shouted. "Pablo! We're here. Jose and I."

"Sure," said Pablo, in English which surprised Shane. "I've been lookin' all over hell for you two. Wait till I pull the teeth of this bird."

It didn't take long. A pair of handcuffs clicked on the brown wrists of the Rattlesnake. His gun and knife changed hands. A rough thrust toppled him into the dirt. "Lie still there, Snake," said Pablo. "Or I'll drill you."

He entered the cave. Shane stared. The voice! The language! And now—a small gold star that shone against the khaki shirt.

"Who the devil?" croaked Shane, sitting up. "Pablo, huh?"

"Otherwise Chris Drake, O'Hara; deputy sheriff. Lemme cut you loose."

"Not an objection," said Shane, and Drake's knife went to work. "Gosh, that feels good! Got any water?"

"Suree," said Drake. "In the car. 'Round the hill." He set Jose free. "You boys are pretty lucky hombres, if I do say it as shouldn't. How come that bird didn't kill you? He's bad medicine."

While he rubbed life back into his hands and arms and legs, Shane explained. Jose ambled forward and picked up the Rattlesnake's canteen, raised it, drank—kicked the prostrate man, and grinned.

"Rattle, little Rattlesnake," he said, and made a buzzing noise. Offered the canteeen to Shane.

"I think," said Shane, "I'll wait a bit." His mouth puckered at the thought of drinking from the Rattlesnake's canteen, parched though his throat was. He turned to Deputy Drake.

"What time is it?" he asked.

"Three-thirty," said Chris, consulting his watch.

"Mister," said Shane, "I've got to be at Rancho Soledad before five o'clock. Quite a while before five o'clock. How do we do it?"

"Why?" asked Deputy Drake.

"Let's get going, back to Tiajuana," said Shane. "I'll tell you on the way. There isn't a moment to lose."

"I doubt if it can be done," said Drake. "Soledad's a long way from here."

"Come on," said Shane. "Make it snappy. I'm going to do it, possible or not. And I'll tell you why."

Drake put his fingers to his lips and whistled twice. A motor started up in the distance. Soon a car swept around the hill. Two men in khaki, sombreros on their heads a rifle in the hands of the one who was not driving. "Two Mexican rurales," Drake explained. "Good men."

They threw the Rattlesnake into the car, climbed in themselves. Drake took the wheel. When the car reached the road, he gave it the gas—and while it raced northward Shane explained why he had to be in Soledad before five o'clock.

"So you've got the goods on Don Fernando, eh?" said Drake. "Good work, son. Mighty good work! I've been suspicious of that bird But he sure did cover up! Why don't you telephone—Oh, that's right—no phone at Soledad."

"Besides, I want to do this myself," said Shane. "In person."

They came to the 'dobe house.

"Wait till I get the Rattlesnakes confession," said Shane. He leaped from the car. Ran to the tree beneath which he and Jose han been sitting when surprised by Fernando. His softy gray felt hat lay where he had left it. He picked it up. Under it was the confession. He put it into his pocket, regained the car.

"Okay," he said, and they shot forward. "What wouldn't I give for a plane!"

"A plane?" said Drake.

"I'd make Soledad quick with one," said Shane.

"Now that's an idea," said Drake. "Well, son, if you can fly, I reckon I can get you a plane at Agua Caliente."

"What! Is there a field there?" cried Shane. "Fine! But—will they let us have a machine?"

"I reckon," said Drake, "that what two governments want — Mexico and the U.S.A.—they're pretty liable to get." He indicated the Mexican rurales with a thumb over his shoulder.

"Then get me to Agua Caliente as quick as this boat will go," Shane begged. "Get me a plane —and I'll do the rest."

"Count on me, son," Deputy Drake assured him. "And bad luck to Don Fernando. We'll leave our snake with the rurales—and for his own sake I hope he don't try any funny business, although I'll explain we got to keep him alive as a witness as well as a murderer —and I'll fly up with you. How's that? There's a landing field at San Feliz. That's the closest. But the best we can do."

"Leave the rest of it to me," said Shane O'Hara.

The marriage party, confined strictly to the members of the family at Rose's request, stood grouped beneath the arcade, the red-gold of the low western sun upon their faces.

A pale bride in a pale dress.

Don Timeteo, white-bearded, white-clothed, stood beside her, Don Timoteo's eyes were sad.

Mrs. Delane, motherly, wanting to cry for more reasons than one.

Dick Truesdale sitting upon the arm of his cousin Teddy's chair.

Don Fernando, in formal attire.

A black-frocked man carrying a little leather-bound book with glistening gilt edges.

A dozen ranch hands, hatless, respectful, clad in their best, at a little distance.

Rose Delane—the Rose of Soledad—looking no one in the eye, determined, straight-lipped, white her little hands clutching at bravery.

"Is it time?" asked the pink-faced preacher. Rose's mother said, "I—I suppose so," and looked at Rose.

Rose nodded. Took her place beside Don Fernando. There was a little regrouping. The minister took his place before the couple, opened The Book, cleared his throat as ministers always have done and always will do. He read, in a throaty voice, important.

Through his interminable words Rose caught the sound of an airplane engine. She looked toward the south, her eyes clouded. Once upon a time an aviator....She wrenched at the steering gear of her mind, brought it back to the road. The road that she must henceforth travel....in company with Don Fernando, not...not Shane....O'Hara.

A silver bird appeared, high in the air, droning along.

Would the pompous preacher never finish his oratory?

She kept her eyes on that silver bird, she could not help it. The preacher's voice droned on.

Once upon a time a silver bird like that had been hurt, had fallen—and a young man had drifted down into a tree....Rose checked herself. Stared. Heart pounding. The plane was coming down a bit, heading straight for the house.

"Will you, Fernando Miller take this woman, Rose Delane, to be...."

The plane swerved. Other gazes followed Rose's now. The plane swerved. A tiny black speck dropped from it, fell, hung suspended, while a white silver mushroom shot into being above it like a burst of a cannon.

"I will," said Don Fernando, and his eyes narrowed as he saw the falling 'chute.

"Do you, Rose Delane, take this man..."

The 'chute descended, approached, a khaki-clad man beneath it. His feet touched earth, spurted up golden dust. He ran forward—forward out of the way of the fluttering silk blanket. His hands moved swiftly, throwing aside the belt, drawing a pistol .The plane whirred off toward the west.

"....Fernando Miller to be your lawfully wedded husband, for better or worse, in sickness or in health, to cleave..."

Shane O'Hara leaped a hedge, raced toward he house, throwing aside his goggles, his cap. His heedless foot found a loose stone, he stumbled, the gun flew from his hand into a bush. He paid no heed to the gun—raced onward.

"...unto him— Why—What—" The minister turned to see what was interrupting the solemnity of his ceremony.

Shane O'Hara was closer now, and on the breast of his flying dress glittered the bright metal star that Chris Drake had pinned there at Agua Caliente. The star of the law.

Father on the Farm

He Took Pride in His Own Judgment

By KENNETH C. CRAGG

Father would have understood the professor perfectly.

Up in the part of the country where father farmed a person was thought of well if he didn't hurry too fast to a point. It was considered the sign of a thinker to shun the direct word if the broad reference would do.

So, when the expert on the farm broadcast recommended that cows which were really far-gone with mastitis, than painful and serious infection of the milk glands, "be eliminated from the herd," father would have felt he knew exactly what the professor meant. Father had spent most of his life eliminating something or other from the farm, not in anger — not even in spite — but in a spirit of quiet enterprise sometimes sauced with downright pleasure.

Other farmers sometimes eliminated something on father, like Rosie, the three-teated brindle cow. But, as father used to say, not too graciously, one must take the fair weather with the foul.

Employed Auction Sales

Unquestionably the auction sale, the life of private barter, was as heady to father as a shot of hot liquor to other men. When the spell was on him he would assume what the family used to call his "man of affairs" attitude. Father was an individualist, had a wonderful confidence in his own judgment and distrusted the local farmers' co-operative.

"Would you want any of those co-operative people running your own business?" he would say, and calmly assume that there was but one answer to his question.

The urge to trade always struck him hardest in the spring, about when the sap started to run. Mother sometimes suggested it wasn't accident that the sap started and father went trading at the same time.

Father used to boast that he never told a lie. No matter how close the deal, he used to say, he believed in playing fair and square. This naturally placed a tremendous strain upon father, calling for the utmost in the way of guarded language and a most delicate appreciation of what constituted the dividing line between manly reticence and unembroidered falsehood.

As a matter of fact, few, if any of his bartering friends would stoop to the lie. It was a matter of pride and it was part of an unwritten code, as strict in its way as law itself. A horse might have the rattle or heaves in its long throat when under strain. But if father were eliminating him, that feature would be strictly ignored. He would dwell on his virtues, his kindness to children, his willingness to work. Sooner or later would come the jackpot question about his wind.

A Good Horse Trader

Father would never answer that directly. He would slip into evasive action. His talk about horseflesh would suddenly include the condition of the crops, prices of hogs, sometimes scraps of philosophy, or even a suggestion that dusty hay will give the impression of something wrong with the wind, when as a matter of fact, the horse is sound as a button.

About this time father would be jamming his thumb into the horse's flank, out of sight of his victim, who not wishing to be trampled, would be discouraged from to careful listening to the sounds coming from the windpipe.

Father would talk around the chances of this one horse having the heaves like Gromyko evading a decision at the Security Council. It was a stern school in the art of unrevealing language. Father, with the trading fever in him, would never permit himself to make a positive statement and hardly ever agree to one without hedging. One of the simplest tests was to say to him suddenly that it was a fine day. When he would evade, equivocate and generally beat around the bush even though the sun were shining and not a cloud in the sky, it was a sure sign he was immersed in a prospective deal.

I had been away from the farm for a number of years before I became aware of this habit of the district of avoiding the direct statement if a non-committal one would serve.

Reticent on Breeding

While the characteristic was most marked among the trading type, my parents' reticence about calling a manure fork by its right name was shown in their attitude to the livestock. Both were born and raised on farms, but neither had acquired a comfortable or even matter-of-fact attitude to certain necessary activities relative to propagation of farm animals.

Something definitely not nice was attributed especially to animal maleness, and to his dying day father called a bull a bull or a stallion a stallion. Rather, to him and to mother also, a bull was an animal, simply and plainly, and a stallion was a big horse, or in more descriptive phrase "an entire horse."

Mother also had a sharply bounded view as to where women's interests should lie at the barn. She had her own opinion of women who liked horses, and predicted dire things for any woman who as much as spoke of a big horse by the name given to it in dictionaries. She was certain that female who could discuss horse pedigree, for example if not exactly fallen, would be inclined to fast.

She seemed to feel that chickens were the only livestock on a farm that woman could look after and still cling to some pretense of being a lady. Yet, strangely enough she took enormous pride in being the first woman in our neighborhood to discover it was not necessary to have a rooster to get eggs, and boldly, and with some relish, spread her knowledge around. "It is only necessary to have a roostef to get fertile eggs," would explain with no more fuss than if she had been explaining why she put an extra lump of butter in a muffin mix.

Trading Ability Discounted

Mother seldom took father to task about his trading. She did, however, and with some reason, distrust his ability in a horse trade. This distrust frequently led to words.

"Woman," he said on one occasion — mother always hated to be called woman — "keep your nose in the house where it belongs and I'll look after the barn."

Mother's unfailing reply to such advice was :"A lot of looking after the barn would get if I weren't around," and she would shrewdly recall the time the animal had got tangled in his chain and would have hanged himself if mother hadn't found him and got help from the neighbors. Father was away attending an auction sale that day.

One such outburst came after father had eliminated from the horse stable a mare with a more than slight bit of hog spavin and got in exchange what turned out to be one of the meanest horses ever put to harness. The worst of it was he had brought this horse home as a driver for mother.

Father, of course, had seen this animal in the stall and yard. During the negotiations he had carefully asked about his habits. Was it gentle? he had asked. "Try her," the owner had invited. Father did, handled him every way The horse had stood quietly while legs and teeth were examined and father led him home after paying $15.90 to boot over his spavined mare.

All was well until he had hitch his trade for the first time. Maud (father always called his horses Maud, regardless of their sex, because, he claimed, if you yelled Maud at one they all perked up and it saved a man time and effort) — had taken a mental attitude — what psychologists call a conditioned response and grandpa called a scunner— to snow cutters. He kicked our best cutter apart with practiced efficiency. Father was left sitting in a soiled area of the barnyard in full view of the gallery at the kitchen window.

Rosie Deal Ignored

But there was one trade, the Rosie deal, that was so bad that father let even the most cutting comments about it ride. He would never admit he had been stung— he just ignored it.

Rosie was an undersized cow, just a shade larger than runty, of mixed and unfortunate parentage. But she was fast, nobody could deny that and she could worm through holes in a fence no other cow would attempt. She had a low cunning that placed her almost at once in the leadership of the herd.

But what was really wrong with Rosie was the undeniable fact that only had three teats. Father got her in a trade that involved a set of drag harrows, a stone boat and a set of worn double-trees with a short piece of logging chain thrown in. But how he ever miscounted on the teats, no one ever knew. Up to then, it was acidly remarked, he had been supposed to be able to count up to four.

The Unwanted Cow

I was vitally concerned because being a shaver with small hands I could grab this third appendage, a large and outsized teat, and with both hands maintain some of the rythm that is a mark of accomplished hand-milking.

I milked Rosie all one summer and into the winter. Then she went dry and father apparently decided to eliminate her from the herd, by entering her in one of the auction sales in the neighborhood. Rosie's first experience as an auction sale ringer was not a happy one. When she was brought out into the sale ring, there were disparaging remarks from the crowd and someone bid $5.30.
